FIRE SWEEPS EAST SMALL CO. ADMINISTRATION ST. JOE FOREST

More Than 600 Fighters Dig Trenches Between Town and Roaring Blaze; Wind Hampers Idaho Crews

(By The Associated Press) SPOKANE, Aug. 21.—Although it apparently had left Avery, a tiny lumbering hamlet, untouched, a forest fire roaring in the St. Joe national forest swept westward before a strong wind today and developed into one of the most dangerous fires of the northwest.

The blaze swept past the small community, residents pumped water on buildings. The wind died and more than 600 fighters dug trenches between the fire and the town. Shortly before noon the fire was reported to have been held.

At 10 o'clock in the afternoon, however, a strong northwesterly wind developed, turning the area into a solid crater of flames along the St. Joe river to as far as Kyle, five miles west. The forest service described it as "the first fire in the history of the area."

Unless unforeseen trouble develops, it was not believed other communities would be endangered. This is the blaze has been confined to burned-over and non-commercial timber, and the fire has not been touched.

Fire Advances Discouraging reports came from the Selway forest fire on the Selway forest of North Central Idaho. Wind hampered the firefighters, and the fire spread out of the forest, at noon today, said that it had a half mile of fire lines and a half mile of fire lines were held. The fire has a perimeter of 150 miles. The fighting crew at this time numbered 973 men.

Fire Lines Held The Selway forest fire also on the Selway forest, which is a fire line of 150 miles. The fighting crew at this time numbered 973 men.

Army Camps Fire An area of 1000 acres of land was being burned in the west. The fire was held by the Selway forest fire. The fighting crew at this time numbered 973 men.

Harvey S. Hale, Twin Falls county agent, driver of the car, said that his attention was attracted to Bob Randall, 11, who had already crossed the road and started back, and he did not see Albert until he was directly in front of the car and it was impossible to stop or swerve the car to avoid striking the boy.

Except for Albert, all of the four other boys who had been playing on the highway when the car struck the boy appeared, coming from the car over a bridge and were safe. The other boys were Bob Randall and three Albert's brothers, Frank N. J. Everett, 12, John L. J. Everett, 12, and John L. W. Warns Companion.

Bob Randall, who said that he saw the car coming to the highway, called to Albert, "Look out, there's a car coming," and he was struck by the car. The boy was carried between 50 and 60 feet after he was struck, Sheriff E. F. Prater said. The sheriff was called immediately after the accident.

SHORTAGE THREAT SPURS STUDY OF WATER PROBLEM

Twin Falls Canal Company, With Urgent Impelling Motive, Seeks New Sources of Winter Supply

Threat of a serious water shortage next year in the area under the Twin Falls canal system has made urgent a continuing investigation looking toward early solution of the winter water problem that has been a constant one for the Twin Falls country since its beginning nearly 30 years ago. Heretofore there has been no such compelling motive for the problem's solution. Under this new threat Twin Falls Canal company is preparing to make a strong showing at hearing before the state reclamation commissioner in Pocatello next Monday on its application for transfer of its right of use of winter water to right of winter water storage.

Storage Exhausted
Indicative of seriousness of the situation, W. G. Sloan, Twin Falls Canal company engineer, said yesterday that present condition of the Snake river watershed is such that persons familiar with the situation estimate 150 per cent of normal precipitation next winter will not fill Snake river reservoirs more than 50 per cent of their capacity.

Within the next few days, he said, Twin Falls Canal company will have exhausted all of the 155,000 acre feet of storage water with which it entered the 1934 season, including 70,000 acre feet carried over from last season, and will thereafter be dependent on normal flow of the river which this season will provide approximately 80 per cent of water rights.

Right to store winter water is one phase of the problem. Another angle is presented in an agreement recently reached regarding use of water for power development at American Falls. Under this agreement no water would be released at American Falls during the winter storing season. This agreement has not yet been signed.

Seeks New Sources
Assuming that this agreement will be consummated, and that the Twin Falls company will be allowed credit for storage of the water it has heretofore distributed to consumers under its canal system during winter season, the Twin Falls company, with assistance of federal drought relief funds, is engaged in several lines of investigation looking to development of other sources of winter water supply for domestic use. Drilling of test wells was begun at Twin Falls waterworks plant yesterday and at Buhl the day before.

Two other possible sources of Twin Falls winter water supply are under investigation. One is the possibility of pumping water from Snake creek into the water system at the syphon southeast of Twin Falls. There is question as to whether the quantity available will be sufficient.

Other is the possibility of pumping water into the water system from the South Park tunnel in quantity sufficient to fill the present clear and reservoir. This project, estimated at an estimated expense of $12,000 to $15,000, which according to assurances previously given, would be provided from federal drought relief funds. A series of tests by state chemists and bacteriologists of the South Park tunnel water is under way.

A survey of farms under the Twin Falls irrigation system lately completed, indicates that 53 per cent of the total number of farms, according to the statements of owners or operators, are already provided with independent sources of winter water supply.

GENERAL TIRES

Now it's our turn! Regardless of the latest news that tire costs and retail "floor prices" may go higher any minute—here we are with this nice lot of tires that we bought at a war time figure—and we are out to do business today!

It's A Wide Open Invitation For Crowds of Car Owners—Preferred Wholesale Prices To All!

Passing on our volume purchase prices direct to consumers, we are prepared for the greatest wave of popular buying that any tire store has witnessed—a sweeping sale unlike anything seen before in a retail place. We are aiming at the biggest sales total we have ever experienced.

The sale starts off with plenty of tires of every size and type, to fit every car—but please remember sale is limited to stocks now on hand and therefore subject to unavoidable cases of stock shortage in some sizes as sale continues from day to day.

PRICE SITUATION AT A GLANCE
Timely Conditions Warrant Immediate Action by Tire Buyers.
Crude rubber has advanced from 3c to 16c per pound.
Manufacturer's replacement costs have risen above present prices.
Manufacturers for several weeks have been petitioning to raise the minimum retail price of tires.
Common sense predicts that tire prices must certainly go higher—possibly even before the ink is dry on this announcement.
Our sincere advice to customers is "stock up"—whether you need one tire or a set, or will need them later in the year. Get Generals extra quality, extra safety, now—and save the difference.
Silent Grip and Silent Safety Generals not included in sale because of absolute shortage in these types and our higher costs—but today's price on these lines means a big, important saving for those who equip now or place orders pending shipments now in transit.

Buy at the start of sale and avoid last minute scramble for sizes. If your time is limited or crowds cause delay, we will mount tires later at your convenience. Service night and day during sale — evenings till 9 p. m., Sundays noon.
