

THOUSANDS ATTEND RITES FOR SPEAKER

Brief Services Held at Country Home of Late Henry T. Rainey

By KARL E. BRADMAN (Associated Press Staff Writer) CARROLLTON, Ill., Aug. 22—(AP) President Roosevelt, scores of national and state dignitaries and thousands of plain citizens joined today in an impressive though simple farewell to Speaker Henry T. Rainey.

Following brief Episcopal services, attended by the president, at the Rainey country estate, "Walnut Hill," in the vicinity of Carrollton, the body was taken to Carrollton cemetery and interred beside the remains of Mrs. Rainey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Rainey.

The president arrived from Washington aboard the train at 7:30 p. m. (Central Standard time) and started his return trip to the capital at 8:54 p. m.

Funeral services conducted by Bishop John Cantler White of the Episcopal diocese of Springfield, were held in the parlors of the Rainey home, at Carrollton, Ill., at 10:30 a. m. The casket, which was draped in the national flag, was carried into the court house by Legionnaires.

Estimates of the crowd inside the estate ranged upwards from 10,000. Many thousands viewed the late speaker's body during the four hours it lay in state in the rotunda of the old stone Greene county court house, preceding the service.

All told, it was estimated by state highway police that more than 25,000 came to his little country seat town for a final tribute to the man known to them here as "Henry T.," good farmer and a good congressman.

Speaker Rainey, who died unexpectedly in a St. Louis hospital Sunday night, returned to the "home folk" for the last time in 1910, a few days before his customary sabbath "welcome home friends" was missing. Borrowing friends, some of them from the flood with whom he had shared the massive copper casket was carried into the court house by Legionnaires.

In the four hours the body lay there, Legionnaires estimated that an average of 50 persons passed each minute—a total of 12,000. Some farmers with overalls who always voted for Rainey because he was their friend—a farmer himself.

Ross Denies Guidance by Clairvoyant

He had taken counsel of a clairvoyant for many years and through her guidance had looked forward from the governorship to a battle in 1912 against William E. Borah for the governorship, and eventually to the presidency.

"I have read palms for enjoyment for 25 years," the governor said. "Sometimes it is entertaining at gatherings. But there is nothing to that claim I have been guilty by a clairvoyant."

It was noted that the Democrats who have agreed to serve on the executive committee were identified with the "stop-Roosevelt" movement at the Chicago convention in 1932, but Mr. Shouse said this had no significance.

Shouse is a veteran at the political game, a native of Kentucky, where he was connected with the Lexington Herald from 1890 to 1904, he later moved to Kansas and served in the state legislature. From 1910 to 1916, he served in the national house of representatives. From there he went to the assistant secretaryship of the treasury until late in 1920.

After this, Askew was quoted as saying, he went by bus to Knoxville and thence to Nashville. T. B. A number of Askew's congregation persisted in believing their minister actually had been kidnapped by enemies-made during a religious controversy here some time ago.

ONE REAL MENACE

Methods employed by robber gangs in large cities today constitute a sort of guerilla warfare against society for which it is difficult to find an exact parallel.

In the case of the Brooklyn armored car robbery of Tuesday, executed in broad daylight in busy streets, leadership of a high order is in evidence. There is also a degree of loyalty and courage apparent in the operation which would do credit to any cause.

The authorities of law and order will make a mistake if they fall in any manner to appreciate the significance of the steady trend towards organized crime. The lone holdup man was a menace only sporadically, the burglar and sneak thief have flourished for years.

But he gets votes. Votes win elections. Sometimes they break precedents. And they send men to the senate and the White House.

TECHNOCRACY IS DEAD, BUT NOT ITS LESSON. There was a melancholy little story in the papers a few days ago telling how the little chemical factory at Pompton Lakes, New Jersey, established several years ago by Howard Scott to experiment with his theories of Technocracy, was sold at auction, with all its contents, for a total of $76.

The trouble goes straight to the point that the thing needed in order to control crime is less of the hasty attorney, the venial judge, the crooked politician and the half baked sentimentality of the host of people who regard any crime charged person as an object of sympathy to be helped at any cost in an effort to defeat the law and its processes.

Some day perhaps we will learn.

SEQUESTERING SILVER

The average American, delighted or terrified by the sequestration of silver, has probably forgotten entirely the fact that there was an Economics Conference in London last summer. At that time international agreements were arrived at to limit the sales of silver in the world market and to stabilize the price of that metal.

India was to limit its sales to 35,000,000 ounces a year, Spain to 5,000,000, China to 2,000,000, the United States, Canada, Australia, Mexico and Peru were to absorb and take off the market 35,000,000 ounces. The United States is moving, one step at a time, in the direction of keeping its agreement.

The certificates to be issued against the silver so set aside in the Treasury will undoubtedly produce a slight and short inflation. The chief danger from the situation as it stands seems to be not the inflation itself, but the increase in bank reserve soon to result. Hoarding in bank vaults the money which ought to be moving around the country is not so good—not much better, in fact, than hoarding it in private lock boxes.

PICTURES OF RAYS

It is rather good to know that a great deal of scientific data is being salvaged from the wreckage of the stratosphere balloon which came down on a Nebraska farm a few weeks ago. The film record of cosmic rays proved sharp, clear and complete, say the scientists who are going over what is left of the balloon and its equipment.

A very unscientific observer wonders what is proved about a cosmic ray from the picture left on the ray detector. Photographs of the starry heavens are singularly disappointing to one who loves to lie on his back on a summer night and enjoy the stars. Blueprints of a home mean little to most of those who love to gather around its hearthfire. The mathematical inner nature of things is very curious.

WHAT MANNER OF MAN?

What manner of man is this O. Ben Ross, twice governor of Idaho and now, it appears, likely to break all the precedents of Idaho's history of statehood with a third term?

"Man of Destiny" he has styled himself, destined, he thinks, to be Idaho's first third-term governor, to defeat Senator Borah in 1935 and to walk into the White House in 1940.

The idea that Ross is inevitable has been brooded in Idaho for years. It weakened during the primary campaign when his ill-advised political prognosticators conceived the notion that he was "slipping" and that Martin was certain to give Ross such a battle that the supporters of Ross' enthusiasm would wobble mightily.

No candidate in Idaho has ever been subjected to the bitter, grilling fight that Martin forced against Ross. Probably they went too far. But there was a fight.

Comparisons may be odious. But there is much about Ross which is reminiscent of Senator Huey Long of Louisiana. The style procedure and station are alike roughed over and polished. Long's style is a mentality which will leap to anything, which keeps his opposition under leash, in the United States senate and elsewhere, through fear because of the "dirt" that Long threatens to drag out into the sunlight.

Most of them are agreed that the man in the street goes the Round Robin and stands up administration but that the business men and financial leaders are expressing open doubts as to the "caveman" man—that sort who used to be known as the "forgotten man."

From a Washington vantage point FDR's continued hold on the masses from which very many of the things to his credit resulted of one of the fundamentals of the Hoover administration.

Herbert Hoover was such a glutton for detail that he attempted to pull the entire government up on his own shoulders. He trusted his subordinates' ability so little that he undertook to wrestle personally with every major problem—and they were many.

ALGOP. Mr. Roosevelt adopted a diametrically opposite working plan from that of his predecessor. He kept a constant hand on the reins but he has imposed large quantities of his own subordinates, not only to handle details but to make decisions of the first water.

Today you hear many complaints about NRA, AAA, PWA, PVA and all the other alphabet babies. But they are all directed at General Johnson, Wallace, Tugwell, Ickes, Litchfield et al.

And the thing to remember now is the fact that these gentlemen with all their mistakes, did put their finger on the middle prong after the war had ended. It is possible, physically, for us to grow enough food and make enough things to banish want from the land forever.

How that is to be done may be another question. The central fact is still there, and we ought not to forget it.

DETAIL. Political writers for the big metropolitan papers and the press associations are back from their first outing around the country to sound out sentiment in advance of the fall elections.

Most of them are agreed that the man in the street goes the Round Robin and stands up administration but that the business men and financial leaders are expressing open doubts as to the "caveman" man—that sort who used to be known as the "forgotten man."

demands a small house costing $2000 to $4000, with an acre or so of ground. These won't amount to enough to compare with the case of West Virginia Lumber Co., which is a big deal. The other factories with obsolete equipment can anticipate plenty of profit.

LABOR. Wall Street has become extremely happy about the Steel Board relations. The fact that the lives feel that Judge Stacy and his associates are giving labor all the breaks.

The Board's ruling that employers have no legal interest in employee organizations is the case of West Virginia Lumber Co., which is a big deal. The other factories with obsolete equipment can anticipate plenty of profit.

RECOVER. The steel people will use every legal device their lawyers can think of to block the Board's radicalism. But astute observers predict government agencies will steer a course not much to labor's liking.

A New Yorker at Large

By MARK HARRON NEW YORK—In these days of modern decoration, many of the older hotels are transforming their interiors into styles more in keeping with the present.

Discovered in storehouses of the old hotels are many excellent examples of real period furniture, and these are sold as high priced antiquities.

The decorators, remodeling these places, frequently run across some good things in the way of old furniture, and these are sold as high priced antiquities.

Of a noon, I encountered Louis Adams and his pretty wife on Madison avenue corner, surrounded by dozens of tea rooms, restaurants and cafes.

From him, I did learn that Owen Francis, the short story writer (there is no such word), had gone back to Hollywood. In fact, you'd probably have to go to Hollywood to discover almost any author these days.

Nicholas Schenk, the movie magnate, has built an 80-foot swimming pool against the sea wall of his Great Neck, L. I. estate.

Clarence, through an old theater album, I was surprised to note that Christy Mathewson once wrote a play. It ran for only 20 performances on Broadway back in 1913, and after that he stuck to his pitching.

At last! Paul Green's play, "Potter's Field," is on its way to Broadway after a bounding around one producer's desk to another for six years. It now has the new title, "Roll, Sweet Charlie."

Harold Arden's kid brother has suddenly loomed up as a composer. He's sketching the score for a new Haven revue. Harold, you will recall, wrote "Stormy Weather" and "Sweet and Hot."

BORN AT FAIRFIELD FAIRFIELD, Aug. 20—Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Britton are the parents of a son, born last week at their home here. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Olson are the parents of a daughter born recently.

Guiding Your Child

By ALICE CLARRISSA RICHMOND CURVATURES A large number of boys and girls having the first thorough physical examinations in their late teens, when they are entering college or taking out life insurance, are amazed to hear that they have spinal curvature.

Generally it is very slight and has never caused them any trouble. Sometimes, however, they realize then for the first time the cause of their tired looks, peculiar posture or awkward gait.

By that time the mischief is done, and it may be too late to effect a cure. The time to treat spinal curvature is before it begins, in early childhood. There is no reason why, in examining children, should not make a special point of noting posture when sitting, standing, walking, and find any slightest irregularity in back development when it first starts.

But doctors are not omniscient. Many of them are tired and harassed by the number of cases which are brought to them every day, and many of which they never see again.

It should be the mother's function to watch her child, take him regularly to the doctor or clinic (and preferably the same doctor or clinic), and herself ask the physician to make the necessary examination.

Many mothers look upon doctors as beings endowed with second sight, and hesitate to make any suggestions or inquiries. If the doctor is open-minded and wise, he will be glad of information and hints from the mother, who in the nature of things must know the child better than he can. The modern physician does not wish to be considered as a witch-doctor who works by magic.

GUARDSMEN MAKE USE OF NEW RIFLE RANGE

BURLEY, Aug. 22—Local guardsmen are using a newly installed rifle range in the wild lands seven miles north and a mile west of Burley. There, backed up by rimrock hills, a range permitting practice at 200 and 300 yard targets is made use of each Sunday morning. The distance can be increased to 600 yards when desired. Lieutenant Murray Jensen is range officer, and details of nine men are taken to practice each week. They are selected from those who have qualified at indoor practice in the armory range with 22 calibre practice rifles. At the outdoor range they shoot from 80 to 70 rounds each man, and thus far every man trying has qualified as a rifleman who must score 100 out of 250, or sharpshooter scoring 214, or expert scoring 254. The company has started fall practice drills, both in the armory and outdoors, preparing for later inspection visits. The company consists of 61 enlisted men and three officers, attached to the 116th engineers.

AUTO REGISTRATION INCREASES IN IDAHO

BOISE, Aug. 22 (AP)—Automobile registration increased 11 per cent during the first seven months this year over the same period of 1933, the department of law enforcement reported today.

Registration to date is 80,138 passenger cars, a gain of 8348 over last year. Other registrations include 3003 private trucks, 6419 farm trucks and 1021 commercial trucks, representing an increase of 2869 in all classes of trucks. Revenue for the seven months this year amounted to $1,380,476, an increase of $185,237 over last year. Passenger cars brought in $1,015,427 of the total.

NRA Gets Order To Re-employ Official

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (AP)—NRA last night took some of the same medicine that has been given to industry under the recovery act and agreed to re-employ John L. Donovan, president of the NRA federal employees' union who was discharged by Hugh S. Johnson. The order to put Donovan back on the job was decided upon by the national labor relation board after a lengthy investigation of the circumstances surrounding the case. In a lengthy decision, the board found that inefficiency and absence from duty were not the controlling reasons for Donovan's discharge last June, as alleged by the recovery administrator, and ruled that he should be taken back immediately as technical advisor to NRA's labor advisory board. McDIFFIE NOT CANDIDATE MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 22 (AP)—Congressman John McDuffie (D-Ala.)

announced here Tuesday he would not be a candidate to succeed the late Henry T. Rainey as speaker of the house, but would support his Alabama colleague, William B. Bankhead, for the post. THOMAS SUCCEEDS IN REVIVING CLASS SONG KIMBERLY, Aug. 22—L. A. Thomas returned Saturday from the University of Idaho at Moscow where he has been attending summer school. Germans Accept Hitler As Savior, Travelers Assert

It's Easy To Marry in Germany Because "Boy Friend" Gets Job When Woman Retires From Business, Visitors Relate

"Hitler is the man Germany wants; not only as their leader, but as the savior of their country." This was the emphatic statement of C. Rowe and Milton Rees, recent visitors at the home of Dorothy and Mrs. J. A. Green.

Public education for a German girl ceases at the time she is 14. However, this is not as severe a measure as it sounds, at first. Rowe and Rees point out, in Germany the boys and girls mature more quickly than they do in this country.

Other nations of the world continue to borrow ideas from Germany, particularly in regard to relieving the unemployed, Rowe and Rees said.

A "fast day" is observed once each month, every man, woman and child are expected to fast, and the nation is to be unemployed one day on a date, but it is one of the best-operated systems in existence, they said.

The boys and girls in families on government dole are subjected to call for work on farms during planting and harvest seasons.

Women Ordered "Home" The "new" directed women is stronger in Germany than any other country. "But what if the women don't have any homes?" she asked the travelers.

"Here's the way Hitler took care of the women," she said. "If a woman was employed in an office or factory, for instance, and her 'boy friend' was without a home, she was dropped from the payroll, her 'boy friend' if unemployed, was given the 1000 mark loan which German couple who would marry."

This loan is paid in the form of scrip which may be used to pay rent, but it must be used to purchase or purchase property. It is so difficult for women to marry in Germany, particularly where the "boy friend" seeks his job and a nest egg to boot.

American high school graduate. They go to school practically the entire year, with perhaps a week's vacation at the summer. Parents pay for all their children's supplies, and consequently they insist that they get the most of their education while they are in school.

More typically German subjects are being taught in the schools. One of the compulsory subjects is English. To receive higher educational advantages, a German girl must be exceptionally brilliant, she must pass difficult tests, and receive special permission from the government. If the government finds she does not for some other reason, she is not admitted to the universities or colleges. Private tutoring, however, is unrestricted at the present time.

The average German housewife's life has been "four-walled." She had few interests outside the home, until the Nazi introduced clubs for women. These groups met twice a week, one meeting being devoted to crafts, such as knitting, and the other to the study of good books, supported by lectures and personal talks. They are making a bit with the "home-body" type of German woman.

And if Hitler has his way, there won't be a woman in Germany who isn't a "home-body" type.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22 (AP)—Mel Harder, the slender hurler whose relief pitching carried the American league to a victory over the National league in the all-star game, spoiled a golden opportunity for the New York Yankees to close up the gap between the Yankees and the dominant-yoked Detroit Tigers today.

After Vernon "Goody" Gomez had shut out the Cleveland Indians with two hits in the opening game, the double header, 9 to 0, the Yankees bumped into young Harder and while he was tapped for 10 hits he left the New Yorkers with one on the bases and led the Tribe to a 10-4 triumph in the nightcap.

Deprived of a win over the tri-state program, the Yankees nevertheless picked up half a game on the Tigers who were tamed by the Washington Senators.

Lead Attack
 Harder shared credit for the nightcap victory with Hal Trosky and Cecil "Red News" Hale. The latter two led the attack on three Yankee pitchers—Jimmy DeShong, Johnny Murphy and Johnny Broaca. Trosky making four hits, one of which was his twenty-eighth home run, and Hale driving in four runs with a four-base climb inside the grounds with two mates on the ninth.

TIGER ISLAND

A New Serial by Gouverneur Morris

SYNOPSIS: The plan of Captain Wong to sink the "Bolders" for the insurance is temporarily delayed...

"Oh, yes, it is," said the young woman who called herself Ivy Green, and admitted that it was not her name...

"That's the idea," she said. "And what will you do for me when I am home?"

"Do you really want to know?" she asked. "Well, if you really get home, I'll try to make you think that you are still in the city."

"What's the matter with the boat?" "Somebody," she said, "ran off with my bookbag. I think it was probably the illegals man. My boots are too tough to get out of."

"Now, then," he said, "you may find when ready, or ready." Ivy Green chuckled and pushed steadily with her other foot against the nearest portion of the big game hunter's anatomy...

"No, you haven't," said Bowers quickly. "Not if you still have the job. You have a perfect right to your opinion, even if you jump to it from a stop."

"No, you haven't," said Bowers quickly. "Not if you still have the job. You have a perfect right to your opinion, even if you jump to it from a stop."

"No, you haven't," said Bowers quickly. "Not if you still have the job. You have a perfect right to your opinion, even if you jump to it from a stop."

voice, playfully stern, checked her in mid-prance. "Helen? You aut-cased!"

Helen rushed back to where the little red suitcase stood beside the trunk, and flipped it firmly in her hand and followed her mistress and the strange gentlemen...

"The three walked, as soberly as if there had been nothing at all unusual in their combination, through the wreckage of the circus toward the tent. Ivy waved good-bye to Zig Bertha, who was still absorbed in her book."

As they entered the tent, the chauffeur slipped his photograph of Big Bertha into his pocket, smiling the while. The decrepit vehicle jarred into action, and started back for Sinbo.
