SUNDAY EDITION OF IDAHO

THE GOVERNORSHIP
In Frank L. Stephan, politics aside the State of Idaho has an opportunity to elect a Governor of a type which would be a credit to any State. There is no higher example of citizenship to be found anywhere, added to which, in point of ability, experience and general training, Mr. Stephan is peculiarly qualified for the office. Few men in Idaho have earned a greater degree of public confidence; none boasts a more honorable record, public or private.
It is not often that Senator Borah lends so unqualified an endorsement to a political aspirant as that bestowed upon Frank L. Stephan and, win or lose, Mr. Stephan has a right to be proud of this and other evidences of public esteem which to date have marked his candidacy.

HALLOWEEN
Halloween parties for young people have commenced and the more we have of them the better.
The Washington School on Friday evening was the scene of as happy a Halloween gathering as could well be imagined. There were clever costumes and merry games with the spirit of the ancient Scotch festival well to the fore throughout the whole evening. As a substitute for the senseless pranks of the youth of both sexes which have always characterized the observance in Twin Falls, the Halloween party has much to recommend it.
Few householders but would welcome any move calculated to help rid the community of its annual nuisance.

LIFE WRITES A STORY
That Louisville kidnapping was such a case as you would expect to read in a novel. The criminal seems to be a highly intelligent maniac with a literary gift. And the victim, surely, is inspired fiction stuff, drawn by life itself.
Alice Speed Stoll is a beautiful and wealthy aristocrat, member of an old family in a city that particularly prizes ancestry and social position. Her abduction alone would have made a big story. But there was a bigger factor, which a dramatist or novelist might call fate.
"Behold, what I feared hath come upon me," wrote the Psalmist.
Alice Speed's mother, fearing kidnappers, shielded her from her birth. There was eternal vigilance in the fortress-like home of her grandfather, where she lived when small. She played in a garden surrounded by a high-spiked fence, constantly watched by a nurse, and invisible from the street. When she went to school, though it was only across a back alley, she was escorted by the family chauffeur. When they moved to a place distant from school, Mrs. Speed got a new schoolhouse built close by, the child was never allowed to go anywhere unless attended by a servant or a member of the family.
When she grew up, and had a car of her own, she had to be at home by 4 o'clock every afternoon. Her friends were few in number. She went hardly anywhere. People had to come to her. She was shielded even after her marriage. She practiced shooting for self-defense. There were bright beacon lights on the grounds around her home. She had a Great Dane always roaming the yard, to defend her. She had three alert servants.
When she was kidnapped, the wailer and yeller went both away and the dog was sick. The kidnapper had not aimed at her; he wanted her father-in-law.
"It just happened." Or was it fate?

POOR TACTICS
It was to be expected that some time before election the usual crop of vicious charges of various kinds against candidates would break out. Two or three such stories of a particularly ugly nature are now being persistently whispered about the countryside in an effort to discredit candidates.
This is the sort of thing which renders the run of the recent men unwilling to offer themselves as aspirants for office. No matter how unselfish and high minded, no matter how thoroughly honorable a candidate's motives may be he is all too apt to find himself the target of a fusillade of slander and abuse, persistently and eagerly repeated and passed on, and generally added to in the process.
It is a thoroughly disgusting practice and one which drags the whole proposition of political office down to a lower plane and tends to result in lower standards among aspirants to public service.
It is a thoroughly disgusting practice and one which drags the whole proposition of political office down to a lower plane and tends to result in lower standards among aspirants to public service.

CAMPAIGNER
(State Statement)
One hears it said among politicians that there is not enough of the spectacular in the campaign of Frank L. Stephan and from a strictly political standpoint there is ground for the statement.
Mr. Stephan is not the bombastic type and he refuses to indulge in distortion of facts to prove his points. He has too much respect for the intelligence of his audience, too much respect for himself. If election demands that he promise abroad and impossible things and make a clown of himself then he doesn't want the governorship and he will tell you as much with the deepest sincerity.
But every one who has heard Mr. Stephan must have been impressed with his level headedness, his honesty, his determination if elected to give the state an honest and efficient administration. The very fact that Mr. Stephan has the ability to have this impression should be proof enough that he isn't such a bad campaigner after all, for the minute we admit that isn't good campaigning we reflect upon the ability of the public to choose its officials.

WHAT ARE THE FACTS
(Copyright News Bureau)
P. C. O'Malley, manager of the state insurance fund, stands by his guns in his refusal to open the records to make information available relative to fees paid to attorneys for fighting claim for compensation. In effect, Governor Ross supports the position taken by Mr. O'Malley.
It is to this time no satisfactory reason has been given for refusing this information, and the presumption grows that all is not well. As an illustration, an unauthenticated statement is going the rounds of the press that a lawyer was paid $750 to fight a workman's indemnity claim of $251. That statement, like others of kindred nature that are being passed along, is either true or false, but it is a reflection against the management of the fund. If untrue, Mr. O'Malley should, it would seem, in his own interests, hasten to open the records to the end that the misrepresentation be corrected and Governor Ross should urge that this be done. The public should demand that public records be available to the public and hold it strict accountability all officials who refuse to expose their official procedure to the sunlight.

THE BOSS GIVES ORDERS
(Burley Bulletin)
The forthcoming election is all settled now, since Jim Farley, Democratic boss, has issued an appeal to Idaho voters to support the Bourbon ticket. And why should he? He is now Governor Ross has faithfully co-operated with the national administration. Will Idahoans resent this brazen gesture on the part of the Democratic boss, and do their own political thinking? The answer will be available on Nov. 7.
Just to illustrate his impartiality, Farley also has appealed to the Democrats of California to support and elect Upton Sinclair governor of that state.
"By electing Sinclair, California will have a combination of leaders in Washington and in Sacramento who can co-operate in the best interest of the people of the state and of the nation," is the appeal of the Democratic chairman.
That Farley practices the new deal and the Sinclair program in the same category, and effects a combination that will likely prove embarrassing to the president.

BREAKFAST FOOD
Teacher—Johnny, this composition of yours is very good. "Who wrote it?"
Johnny—"My father."
Teacher—Indignant, "All of it?"
Johnny—"No; I helped him."
She—"Is someone catching?"
He—"It is when your boy has it."

SURPRISED
A woman had gone to Scotland for the first time in her life. On her return to London she expressed herself as quite surprised at the comparative civilization of the country.
"Oh English customs are surprising," she said. "Even in a little town like St. Andrews they have a nice golf course."

SLUTTING
The Congressional session opened this morning with a sluttish air. It is no way to extend the National House of Representatives. The House is usually complaining about the millions his opponent spends while he himself has not a cent to spare. The Senate was going to be denied one of the favorite sports—sluttishness.

ALL THAT IS CHANGED NOW
Contributions only trickled into the two Democratic camps. The House of Representatives is usually complaining about the millions his opponent spends while he himself has not a cent to spare. The Senate was going to be denied one of the favorite sports—sluttishness.

LEGION BACKED SHOW PRESENTS CIRCUS ACTS

Among leading stars of the "big top" who are to be seen in action at the American Legion sponsored indoor circus at Legion Memorial building, November 12-17, is Miss Mary LaBourne, who does a forward somersault in mid-air from a flying trapeze. She was for three years a featured star of the A. O. Barnes circus.

In another indoor circus act, Farmer Burns presents what is said to be the only group of trained razor-back hogs. In addition, the program includes many other circus attractions, clowning, acrobats, wire-walkers and trained dogs. The circus band is to furnish music for dancing after each evening performance, and a special matinee for school children will be given Saturday afternoon, November 17.

The Legion's share of the proceeds for the week's showing is to be used for veterans' relief activities. The ticket sale is being conducted from downtown headquarters at 161 Main avenue south.

ROSS TAKES CREDIT FOR NEW TAXATION

Governor Says 'Big Boys' Hitherto Untouched, Pay New Levies

CHALMERS, Idaho, Oct. 27.—Governor C. Ben Ross told a political campaign meeting here today that his administration had reduced taxes for the farmer and small taxpayer by jettisoning tolls on "these big interests who had always gone free—free under the Republican machine control in Idaho."

"The 140 million and the small home owner," he said, "always had to pay for the big boys in the past."

He said all his department heads had reduced travel expenses because they "kept in mind that they were using the people's money. The other fellows knew they were using the people's money and didn't care, so long as it wasn't their own."

Democratic arguments.

"All they have to talk about," he said, "is some amateur of the constitutionality of the new tax and a word or two about how men who were eligible for parole or pardon were given freedom from the penitentiary."

TWIN FALLS YOUTH'S RECORD OUTSTANDING

Leonard Thurston of Twin Falls, who on Thursday was elected vice president of the Future Farmers of America, also received the highest honor of the organization, the degree of American Farmer, at the national convention this week in Kansas City, Mo. Fifty boys were elevated to this degree at the convention. At the time of making applications for the degree, his record shows that he was the owner of 300 chickens, a registered Jersey cow and calf, the result of his project work. He also rents 21 acres of irrigated land for corn production.

Leonard has been on the debate team of the high school and has done considerable public speaking. A long list of letters won him his presidency and as a member of school judging teams accompanies his application. Leonard's record in scholarship is outstanding; third in a class of 200. His project work in poultry has attracted much attention throughout the state.

After graduation from high school, Leonard plans to continue farming and take a course in agriculture at the University of Idaho, returning to the home farm to go into partnership with his father, N. W. Arrington.

Employment Falls In Steel Industry

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Employment in the steel industry was 8 per cent lower in the week ending August and nearly 10 per cent below September, 1933, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported today. Payrolls also declined.

The number of employees on hour in steel works or tonnage shipped in September was 154,583 in August and 330,271 in September, 1933. All employees in the industry totaled 381,228.

The total payroll of the steel industry in September amounted to $20,162,822 from $24,282,208 in August and $27,122,250 in September, 1933.

The average of hours worked a week by each employee declined to 24.2 in September from 26.5 in August and 28.8 in September, 1933. Average earnings per man were 72.8 cents in September, against 72.2 cents in August and 83.6 cents in September, 1933.

Bachelors Must Pay Heavy Tax In Nazi Germany

BREMEN, Oct. 27.—The way of the bachelor in Nazi Germany becomes progressively harder. Tax schedules for 1935, issued today, disclosed that single families will be granted new offsets at the expense of bachelors. Income tax of 200 marks (112.50) is to be tax-exempt for fathers supporting five children, whereas bachelors in that category will be liable for 350 marks (193.75).

From a bachelor's income of 75,000 marks ($30,000), the tax collector will appropriate 37,500 marks ($15,000), while the father of three children with such an income will be obliged to pay only 20,400 marks ($8,160).

On incomes exceeding 120,000 marks ($48,000), bachelors will be liable 60 per cent, while all others will pay 40 per cent.

Mussolini's Plan Of Profit-Sharing Governs Farmers

ROME, Oct. 27.—A revolutionary profit-sharing system for Italian agriculture, embracing land ownership and farm workers, was approved today.

The plan, to go into effect immediately in some provinces, is to be applied on a nation-wide basis as soon as the necessary organizations can be developed.

The new system contemplates:

- 1.—A distribution of farm profits and income on a percentage basis.
- 2.—Employment of more farm workers.
- 3.—Equal distribution of work.
- 4.—Limitation of overtime work and farm labor by women and children.

To More Workers

Provisions were worked out to more employment of farm workers from regions overpopulated with labor to sparsely settled districts.

The profit sharing system was approved today by votes of the conference of Italian agricultural economists, farm owners and farm workers. The far-reaching changes in the Italian agricultural economy were suggested by Premier Mussolini.

United States Chamber Of Commerce November Business Map

This map represents business conditions in every state of the Union as shown in November, 1934, issue of "Nation's Business," official publication of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS AS OF OCTOBER 1

September saw the greatest single labor trouble in years, the textile walkout, begin and end. The Montana copper dispute, lasting more months than the cotton mill strike did weeks, was also settled. The last of the greatest drought in history were wended down, making for the notably cheerful tone of September reports from western areas where wheat-planning is active.

Perhaps more business was done than in August or in September a year ago. Wholesaler and retail trade exceeded a year ago in value if not always in volume. Some heavy industries revived partially. Steel orderings quaking a little. Bank clearings and debts increased moderately.

Price index movements showed the play of various influences but a cotton and livestock seemed to indicate speculative activity. Even corn showed fluctuation. Despite the easing of many food prices the Dun and Bradstreet indexes were still close to the peaks of recent years.

Foreign cotton production last season more nearly equaled ours than it has since Civil War days.

Stock market prices gained 7 1/2 per cent in the month, the smallest in 13 years and the year's loss less than half those of 1933. Bonds were more active and prices gained over a year ago. August export trade increased a third over last year while imports fell off a fourth.

The Map

Business in the steel trade is reflected in some additional shading in the Eastern map but the South and Southeast held earlier brightness. The map shows a general trend of 'GOOD' conditions in the West and 'FAIR' conditions in the East, with some 'POOR' conditions in the South and Midwest.

The Barometer

In September, as in August, steel production, carloadings and electric power, accounted for the slight edge in the index. In the Barometer of Business, the price factor continued upward.

Marian Gordon

by JEANNE BOWMAN

SYNOPSIS: Lon Cased, Marian's husband, did not believe his wife when she told him that his employer, Mr. Gordon, had stolen the money. He thought she was lying. He thought she was lying. He thought she was lying.

Chapter 22
LITTLE AGAIN

Marian was a little when Lon spoke. With careful hands she arranged the curled leaves of a lettuce heap on the rim of the dish, placed a wedge of tomatoes on the side, centered them with the heart of an artichoke and topped it with a sprig of parsley.

"McGowan," she repeated, "I'd rather not go, Lon. I am awfully busy. As though it were of no great concern. Doctor Alf and Anne are coming out to dinner you know. I shall be right there. I shall be right there. I shall be right there."

"Practical women are nice, but I'd rather have you for a wife," Lon said. "You are a little when Lon spoke. With careful hands she arranged the curled leaves of a lettuce heap on the rim of the dish, placed a wedge of tomatoes on the side, centered them with the heart of an artichoke and topped it with a sprig of parsley."

"You're a good sport, Lon," he commented, looking in his voice. "I know, the Almonds, it's a nice communitarian air, always a lot of foreign aviators around, and a good time."

"Yes, and have my hair done in the morning, and I shall be right there. I shall be right there. I shall be right there."

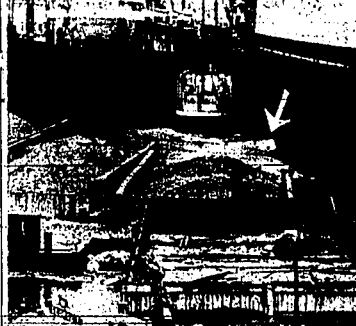

"I can cash my pay check with Murphy at the gas station before we go to the Almonds. Well, it's a nice night on duty, or we'd call them to join us. How about Jackson and his girl?"

"Jackson and his girl were delighted, and Marian thought that the afternoon was a success. She found Lon's old favorite left as they dined and dashed the evening away."

"It was long after midnight when they reached home and Marian did not herself feeling a golf date in the morning. Several times when the sun had found its way into the room she felt she should awaken and hasten him on his way but she was too bleatly asleep. And when she did awaken she found he had gone."

At first she was alarmed, then chanced to look at the clock on the dresser. It was ten o'clock. The four o'clock alarm was supposed to be at ten. She counted the hours which lay ahead, a crowded Sunday course would mean that Lon couldn't return home before two o'clock. The Bielews would arrive for dinner at three, giving Lon time to shower and change into the patio, and curled up on the swing seat, a new novel in her hand. She sat a moment, enjoying the quiet. In the kitchen, the breakfast chickens were bubbling gently in a Dutch oven, and steam rose from the refrigerator, vegetables ready to be cooked, reposed in cold water. In one end of the studio room the table was ready for guests.

Seattle-Mount Vernon Boat Capsizes In Storm

The storm marks the "spot" where the stern-wheeler Harvester, which plied between Seattle and Mount Vernon, was sunk in the ferocious wind storm Sunday, October 21. The arrow points to the keel, partly submerged. The boat was turned over when the President Madison (right) broke down from a dock and jammed the Harvester. Her crew of 20 leaped to safety aboard nearby barges. The North Haven (left) and the Joe Roosevelt also were damaged as they pounded against the side of the ship-oil Photo.

room for talk, and when he had reached the outer edge of the storm, he pulled Marian down beside him on the landing stage. "When you get what I have to tell you, you're not going to look at me like I've been stealing Jan," he teased.

"Better speak up, then," said Marian, leaning the rest of which he had been saying to her. "It happened this way," Lon began. "When I met the other three, I was alone. When I met the other three, I was alone. When I met the other three, I was alone."

"The three of them sat down to the table. When I met the other three, I was alone. When I met the other three, I was alone. When I met the other three, I was alone."

Chapter 22
LITTLE AGAIN

Marian was a little when Lon spoke. With careful hands she arranged the curled leaves of a lettuce heap on the rim of the dish, placed a wedge of tomatoes on the side, centered them with the heart of an artichoke and topped it with a sprig of parsley.

"McGowan," she repeated, "I'd rather not go, Lon. I am awfully busy. As though it were of no great concern. Doctor Alf and Anne are coming out to dinner you know. I shall be right there. I shall be right there. I shall be right there."

"Practical women are nice, but I'd rather have you for a wife," Lon said. "You are a little when Lon spoke. With careful hands she arranged the curled leaves of a lettuce heap on the rim of the dish, placed a wedge of tomatoes on the side, centered them with the heart of an artichoke and topped it with a sprig of parsley."

"You're a good sport, Lon," he commented, looking in his voice. "I know, the Almonds, it's a nice communitarian air, always a lot of foreign aviators around, and a good time."

"Yes, and have my hair done in the morning, and I shall be right there. I shall be right there. I shall be right there."

"I can cash my pay check with Murphy at the gas station before we go to the Almonds. Well, it's a nice night on duty, or we'd call them to join us. How about Jackson and his girl?"

"Jackson and his girl were delighted, and Marian thought that the afternoon was a success. She found Lon's old favorite left as they dined and dashed the evening away."

"It was long after midnight when they reached home and Marian did not herself feeling a golf date in the morning. Several times when the sun had found its way into the room she felt she should awaken and hasten him on his way but she was too bleatly asleep. And when she did awaken she found he had gone."

At first she was alarmed, then chanced to look at the clock on the dresser. It was ten o'clock. The four o'clock alarm was supposed to be at ten. She counted the hours which lay ahead, a crowded Sunday course would mean that Lon couldn't return home before two o'clock. The Bielews would arrive for dinner at three, giving Lon time to shower and change into the patio, and curled up on the swing seat, a new novel in her hand. She sat a moment, enjoying the quiet. In the kitchen, the breakfast chickens were bubbling gently in a Dutch oven, and steam rose from the refrigerator, vegetables ready to be cooked, reposed in cold water. In one end of the studio room the table was ready for guests.

UNDEFEATED HUSKIES MAKE BID FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Seattle Team Beats Golden Bears 13-7 In Traditional Clash

Northerners Continue Sensational March Toward Coast Conference Football Championship

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

WASHINGTON STADIUM, SEATTLE, Oct. 27.—California's football team was chopped today as the undefeated, untied, University of Washington Huskies continued their sensational march toward the Pacific coast conference football championship by winning, 13 to 7, in their 21st traditional battle.

Playing before more than 33,000 griddiron-mad Northerners, the biggest crowd seen in the Washington stadium since 1930, the tricky young upstarts of Seattle nosed out victory late in the last half of the game after the first half ended as a draw.

Burl Barklin, Washington half-back, connected for the winning touchdown on a fourth down play from the one-foot line, to give the Huskies their third straight conference victory. They had previously downed Idaho and Oregon.

The loss was a virtual elimination of the California team from the championship race. California showed superior running attack, and its passes clicked with grand style in the driving minutes but it was too late for the Bears to catch up.

Washington scored in the first and third periods; California in the second.

Maroons Register 19-to-6 Triumph

Chicago Rushes Over Two Touchdowns in Final Period of Play

CHICAGO, Oct. 21 (AP)—A vicious tackling game from Missouri, hungry for a touchdown, thrust for three periods today to knock Chicago's Maroons out of the ranks of undefeated teams in the national championship.

In the fourth period, however, after fumbling all afternoon, the Maroons a powerful attack began to function smoothly and they rushed over two touchdowns to salvage the game, 19 to 6, and to register their fourth straight victory this season.

Mrs. L. D. Cheney Wins Golf Title

San Gabriel, California, Star Trims Dorothy Traung in Final Round

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27 (AP)—Dorothy Traung, sparkling golf star of the San Gabriel team, won the women's Western golf championship today by defeating Mrs. L. D. Cheney, 19 to 18, in the final 36-hole match.

In victory, Mrs. Cheney earned the right to enter the Golden State's hall of golfing fame with G. D. Dutton, national open champion, and Lawrence Little, winner of the national amateur and British amateur titles.

The 20-year-old Mrs. Traung, who has been today her brilliant last made a battle of it for nine holes. After that her veteran opponent, who won this championship in 1931, was out of the race.

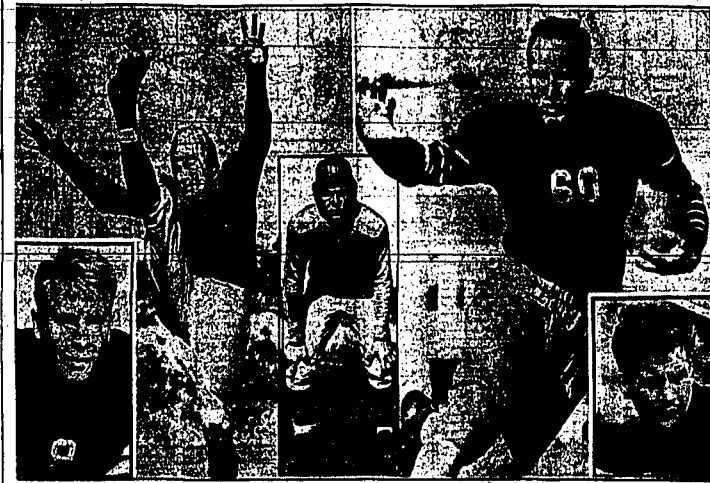

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 27 (AP)—Scoring power of Nebraska's young pitching sophomores blasted Iowa State out of the undefeated football list here today but a brilliant last third quarter drive to score two touchdowns and defeat the Blue Devils 14 to 6.

Duke Goes Down To First Defeat

Knoxville Team, Oct. 27 (AP)—Duke University was toppled from the nation's list of undefeated football teams today by the powerful Tennessee Volunteers in a 20-0 victory.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 27 (AP)—A flitting, sparkling game from the Blue and Red Hoosiers today shattered Carnegie Tech's embattled defense in a 20-0 victory.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 27 (AP)—Alabama's rolling Oriskany tide, which won a 20-0 victory over the Southern Conference champion Bulldogs, today defeated Georgia's Bulldogs 20 to 0 and striking under wraps.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 27 (AP)—Pinner Layden's first Notre Dame team, aroused to a furious battling pitch, reminiscent of the fighting Irish eleven of yesterday, closed its home football season impressively today by crushing Wisconsin, 10 to 0, before 25,000 adoring customers.

The Irish forces, who all season long have exulted in their ability to discard their gentle ways and go in for hard, high football, got what he wanted today as his backs smothered the Badgers with vicious running plays and stopped the futile Badger rallies with copyrighted Notre Dame tackles.

The Badgers, their running attack handicapped by a thin alert that whipped the field half the game, had their momentum built up by a brilliant six first downs to Notre Dame's 18, and gaining 91 yards by rushing to 245 in the first.

Notre Dame now plays the rest of its games on foreign field, meeting Northwestern, Navy, Northwestern Army and Southern California in succession.

Cougars Devastate Salmon Elk Bands

BOISE, Oct. 27 (AP)—Devastating work of cougar in the Elk bands of the Salmon river country and the area for longlands in the Pocatello game preserve was reported today by T. B. Murray, Idaho director of the biological survey.

He said the work of cougar was especially serious in the elk bands and the Salmon drainage north of Warren.

"We saw several bands of elk on the range," he said, "and almost no elk calves. The cougars appear to have destroyed about all of them."

He expressed hope that the state game department would finance a trapping campaign in the Elk country north of Warren as a means of protecting the game. Lack of experienced trappers was one of the reasons, he said, making control work there difficult.

Gridiron Goliaths From Northland Swamp Iowa

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Oct. 27 (AP)—Mighty Minnesota's football avalanche, roaring along the national championship trail, crushed a desperate Iowa team, 48 to 12, here today with an astonishing display of speed and power before 52,000 homecoming spectators.

The griddiron Goliaths from the northland, opening their western conference schedule after three early season victories, simply overpowered the helpless Hawkeyes during the first half to obtain a 34-0 lead at the intermission.

With head charging linemen opening up terrific holes in the weak Iowa line, the big Gopher backs from scrimmage, the most sensational of which was Julius Alstott's 37-yard sprint in the first quarter for the second Minnesota touchdown.

Alstott, however, had super-backfield performance for company on the Minnesota drive.

The all-powerful Gophers bruised their way through their lightest of opponents for the amazing total of 464 yards from scrimmage while the Hawkeyes could do against the stone wall Minnesota line a meagre 70.

Notre Dame now plays the rest of its games on foreign field, meeting Northwestern, Navy, Northwestern Army and Southern California in succession.

Midshipmen Defeat Game Pennsylvania Team of Gridders

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 27 (AP)—The Navy football team continued on its victorious way today, defeating a game but inexperienced University of Pennsylvania eleven, 17 to 0, before a rain-spattered crowd of 8,000, to remain unbeaten and untied.

The red and blue striped home force concentrated their defense on Fred "Buz" Borris, the Midwestern ground gainer and high scorer, and while they succeeded in bottling "Buz," they overlooked Bill Clark, Navy fullback, whose spectacular runs and punts stole the show.

Reserves played most of the fourth quarter for both teams.

Princeton Turns Game Into Rout

Ferocious Tiger Overwhelms Cornell's Football Squad, 45 to 0

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 27 (AP)—The big red Cornell football team, once a top-ranking power in the griddiron world, was little more than an appetizer for the ferocious Tiger of Juncleton today, the polished Princeton brigade recording a 45-0 victory and turning the twenty-first round of this classic series into a rout.

Crossing the Cornell oval line first on the fourth play of the game and retaining the slant six non-time before the attack ended, the Princeton-coached machine came within a single point of equalling the record high score produced in the rivalry between the two institutions. The record was established in 1920, two years after the first Cornell-Princeton arrangement, when the men of Nassau won by a count of 44-0.

Outplayed In First Half, Idaho Gridders Stage Winning Rally

Sundberg's Fumble In Second Quarter Paves Way For Touchdown By Missoula Eleven

MISSOULA, Mont., Oct. 27 (AP)—Hard running Idaho backs whirled through the Montana defense in the second half of today's homecoming game for two touchdowns to shatter the Grizzlies' conference win hopes, 13 to 6.

Missed tackles in the third period started Idaho on the victory path and the Grizzly line yielded to its bukkier foes during the second half after outplaying the Vandals in the first.

Montana enjoyed four scoring opportunities and capitalized on one, that a gift in the second quarter, when Sundberg, Idaho, fumbled on his own 15-yard line and Blaine, Montana, tore through the line in five successive plays for a touchdown. Blaine, first out of most of the game by injury, saw his place kick for extra point bounce off the goal post.

Illinois Defeats Wolverines, 7-6

Outclassed Michigan Team Loses by Margin of Try for Point

MICHIGAN STADIUM, Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 27 (AP)—Illinois Big Ten team today outplayed Michigan in an outclassed but inspired Michigan team that lost by the scant margin of a missed try for extra point.

The teams matched touchdowns for touchdowns, but Les Lindberg, triple-threat fullback, placed the extra-point after John Thompson had plunged over, while Willie Ward, Michigan's star end, missed the kick that would have given the underdog Wolverines an upset tie.

Dartmouth Takes Old Grid Classic

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 27 (AP)—The wrappings were removed from Dartmouth's "New Deal" football machine today and the unbeaten and unscathed Indiana pulled out a 10-0 victory over Harvard's inexperienced force.

A half-capacity crowd of 3,000, one of the smallest ever to attend this 52-year-old New England grid classic, saw Coach Earl "Red" Clark's youngsters register a field goal and score a touchdown after completing their lone forward pass.

Provo Yearlings Win

PROVO, Utah, Oct. 27 (AP)—The Brigham Young university Cougar freshman football team of Provo defeated the Weber college team of Ogden, 13 to 6, here today.

It was the Provo yearlings' third triumph this season over Utah Junior college teams.

They have been defeated once.
