SOLDIERS AND DOLLARS

The big reason for government control of the munition industry is aptly expressed by Senator Clark of Missouri when he says:

"A man drafted into the military service doesn't have a chance to argue with the government over hours or pay; why should industry?"

"If war must be fought, surely industrial dollars and their managers should have no more right to claim large profit than the soldiers who face death in the trenches."

It is largely because things were not handled on this equitable basis in the World War that the veterans are now pressing their bonus claims. We shall continue to have large claims for pensions and other payments to veterans as long as wars bring more benefits to those who make the fighting materials than to those who do the fighting.

DR. TOWNSEND'S SANTA CLAUS

"The Townsend plan is making a deep impression," writes a Washington correspondent. He refers to the effect of the Townsend propaganda on Congress.

It seems hardly possible that any branch of government should take seriously a proposal to pay $200 a month to every person over 60 years old—two or three times the average income of an American family—on the sole condition that the money be spent immediately. The needy old folks must be cared for, but this is probably the most illogical proposal yet made since the depression started.

Congressmen are obviously impressed by the millions of names on petitions. But any careful observer knows how that happens. The eligible persons naturally would like to have that money, whether they need it or not; so they nearly all sign, and encourage friends to sign. Hesitation and honest objection are met with the indignant question: "Why, don't you want these old people to be taken care of? Especially when it would be so good for business?" So people are shamed into signing, regardless of the social unfairness of the proposal and the ruinous inflation and confusion it would bring.

Would we like to see every elderly man or woman having $200 a month? Certainly. So would we like to have Santa Claus bring us all $5,000 apiece for Christmas.

GERMAN NEWS BLOCKADE

"I learn what's going on in Germany," says a Berlin citizen to an American correspondent, "about two weeks after things have happened, when I receive the Chicago Abendpost with its dispatches from Berlin."

Here is a good commentary on the German news situation. The strictly censored German papers do not give complete and accurate accounts of important events, so Germans seeking the truth have to depend on foreign sources. Even those sources are being closed to them more and more by the Nazi authorities. The great influx of outside papers which followed Herr Goebbels' gag on the German press will soon be a mere trickle.

Germans who buy foreign journals are stigmatized as "no-men-and-no-ids," citizens who will not co-operate with their government.

This Germany, once regarded as the most intellectual and best informed nation in the world, drifts toward isolation and ignorance. There is a self-imposed blockade against enlightenment. On such a basis rests Hitler's power.

EXCESSIVE LUXURY

Want to spend $101,585 for four Christmas gifts? An all-seeking reporter tells just how to do it easily. In New York he saw a fur coat for $100,000, a thimble for $1,000, a handkerchief for $500 and perfume at $85 an ounce, all recommended as just the right combination for "her" Christmas.

It is a little hard to think what a lady with a $100,000 fur coat would do with a thimble, even if it cost $1,000.

There is nothing new about beautiful, luxurious things of fine materials and exquisite workmanship. Perhaps the people who have the money to pay for these things have a right to enjoy them, though that is a matter about which considerable doubt may be felt in this fifth winter of the depression.

If we understand the position of the extreme economic right wing, business would be all right again if we simply returned to the conditions under which it went bust.

"Economics," we're told, means "house-keeping," so maybe the men had better step aside and let the women put things in order.

THE JUNKMAN OF THE PACIFIC

There is no record of his being in the market for rags, or "baited" as it is made of iron or steel. The junkman of the Pacific will buy it. No small part of the cargoes lifted by Japanese freighters in Pacific coast ports is scrap iron and steel, and Coos bay is no unusual thing to see on the docks rising heaps of nondescript articles of iron awaiting shipment to the island empire.

It would be interesting to know all of the uses to which the salvaged metal is put, for the Japanese are clever artisans and waste nothing, and it would not be surprising if this salvage scrap metal one day returned to the port of origin as an integral part of some new ocean carrier built in a Japanese shipyard.

A PARTY IN SEARCH OF REPUBLICANS

In the wake of the election and in advance of the sitting of the new congress the defeated Republicans are seeking firm ground for reassembling and are divided in counsel because they are evenly split as to purpose.

There are some who think that time eventually will permit them to go back to the political errors of Taft and Hoover and re-establish successfully and completely the faults of the old line. The others who apparently would like to take charge of the Republican party on behalf of the Democratic, to get the use of federal patronage and Parley poor relief.

The Republican party cannot but the Democratic party by trying to outdo the Democrats. The Republicans are seeking firm ground for reassembling and are divided in counsel because they are evenly split as to purpose.

NEVER. Huey Long's Louisiana never is coming along like micro-robots in a radio pig belt about to lose some customers.

Approved by the Kingfish's Dictator's steamer Army sergeant, the future consequences to his personal interests, a nationally-known company is arranging to know his business out of the state. Look at the barrel. An investment of $100,000 is involved.

The brass knucks will be printed here as soon as the public interest will be served by so doing.

A marine officer just returned from Cuba says the Louisiana and Colonel Fulgencio Batista, real dictator of the island republic, are perfect prototypes.

As a result of an interview with the former Cuban Army sergeant, the future consequences to his personal interests, a nationally-known company is arranging to know his business out of the state. Look at the barrel. An investment of $100,000 is involved.

red himself. "I don't like 'em," he announced beligerently. The speaker paid no attention but continued with the assertion that Mr. Roosevelt had done more for the country than any man in modern history.

"I still don't like 'em," declared the drunk. "President Roosevelt," the speaker assured his listeners, "is making a higher power."

"I don't like her either," said the speaker. "I don't like her either," said the speaker. "I don't like her either," said the speaker.

NOTES. Proposed extension of civil service to New Deal agencies is being considered by the Department of the Interior. The former administrator of NRA says the author "seeks to allow glory by trying to tear the shinning mantle from the shoulders of the country's most romantic figures."

The book, Johnson writes, "pilloried Custer because he was flamboyant, swaggering, boastful, untamed, and a little too full of himself."

Speaking of the little-known charge at Monover, Johnson writes: "This charge was the last of the mass of grand strategy at Gettysburg and defended Stuart from harassing the Union rear line. It was the last of the mass of grand strategy at Gettysburg and defended Stuart from harassing the Union rear line. It was the last of the mass of grand strategy at Gettysburg and defended Stuart from harassing the Union rear line."

JOHNSON then hastens on to the charge of "heroism" which Johnson says is "the last of the mass of grand strategy at Gettysburg and defended Stuart from harassing the Union rear line. It was the last of the mass of grand strategy at Gettysburg and defended Stuart from harassing the Union rear line."

THE WRONG WINTER OIL

See what you save with the correct winter oil! Stop at any of our Stations and try this "gadget" for yourself

The wrong kind of oil thickens and gets sticky in cold weather. It grips the pistons in your car just the way it grips one of the plungers in the little demonstrator-gadget on display now at any of our Stations. Stop by and work it yourself!

8 SHORT MINUTES and you're ready for any weather

You'll see at a glance why it will pay you to fill your crankcase with the right cold-weather grade of anti-slug Iso-Vis "D"—either 10-W or 20-W—and use no other motor oil throughout the winter season.

The free and easy way that left-hand plunger goes up and down is just the way the pistons and other moving parts of your motor will work—either in extreme cold or at high engine heat.

This light, free-flowing Iso-Vis "D", 10-W or 20-W, thickens so little at below-zero temperatures, and yet thins out so little when the mercury rises or the engine gets hot, that it allows your engine to start quickly with less strain on the starter and drain on the battery. You get silky-smooth engine performance without that waste of power, gasoline and money that comes with the drag of heavy oil.

Coaches List Nine Proposed Alterations In Grid Code

Fans Befuddled As Baer Risks Title Against Ex-Fish Peddler

Football Mentors Expected To Favor Three Recommendations

Action On 'Forward Progress' Rule Probable

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Although eighty per cent of the football coaches voting on the subject have gone on record as flatly opposed to any radical changes in the college gridiron code for 1926, it developed tonight that a list of nine proposed alterations is being drawn up for the consideration of the national football rules committee.

This list, which will be put before the annual business meeting of the American Football Coaches' association tomorrow, includes:

1. Reform goal posts to goal line.
2. Allow incoming substitutes to communicate.
3. Clarify rule on definition of when "forward progress" is made in possession of ball is stopped.
4. Permit forward passing any where on line.
5. Compel runner to notify coach when legal "time-outs" expire.
6. Allow defensive team to advance recovered fumble.
7. Allow any forward pass into end zone (except on fourth down) to be ruled as incomplete pass.
8. Apply penalty for second forward pass during same play, to be inflicted from spot of foul and not at spot of preceding down.
9. Apply penalty for attempted lateral pass that results in forward pass from spot of foul, instead of spot of preceding down.

The association, as a whole, is expected to endorse recommendations for clarifying the "forward progress" rule, which resulted in numerous conflicting decisions on last season's gridirons. It also is likely to approve proposals 8 and 9, dealing with passing penalties, although it has developed this concept in demand for a more "open" game.

Four-Round Bout At Chicago May Be Big Build-Up

Champion and Challenger to Fight With Six-Ounce Gloves; Ring Match Is Advertised as 'Real' One

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—Chicago fans were slightly befuddled today as they awaited the four round bout between Max Baer, world's heavyweight champion, and King Levinsky at the Chicago stadium tomorrow night. Some figured Baer, who can lose his championship in the event the flat peddler from Chicago's ghetto knocks him out, was merely itching for a fight; some believed he was a victim of a real test of strategy by the Levinsky camp and others insisted the match was an old fashioned build up for a regular heavy title championship match here next June.

The champion and challenger will wear six ounce gloves, six rounds, less than the regulation variety used. If the fight goes the maximum four rounds, no decision will be rendered although a full count will be taken in a poll of sports writers and experts at ringside. However, if either is knocked out, a full count will be made. Should Baer suffer a knockout at the fifth of the wild swinging but skilled Levinsky, his championship would be lost as the match is advertised as a real one, not an exhibition.

Donald Leavina, Northwestern university freshman who is seeded fifth among the boys, advanced to the second 6-0, 6-0 victory when he crushed Lynn Grossman, of White Plains, in less than half an hour.
