Supreme Court's NRA Ruling Places Future Of Recovery Program In Doubt

FREEDMAN ROOSEVELT'S administration received one of its severest setbacks when the supreme court voided major provisions of the national industrial recovery act. For almost two years—it was created June 16, 1933, under the terms of the act—NRA (national recovery administration) has stood for the administration's efforts to induce industrial recovery. Advocates of the program maintain it has been accomplishing what it set out to do—to raise wages and put people back to work. Opponents maintain it has been hindering recovery. Some of the highlights of the NRA's history are shown here. After NRA was approved by the President, a drive perhaps unprecedented in peace times was started under the direction of General Hugh B. Johnson, administrator, to enlist popular support. In answer to an appeal by the President for higher wages and shorter hours, business men showed thousands of telegrams upon the capital (the second photograph from left shows General Johnson examining some of them). To symbolize the NRA, the blue eagle was created, the famous bird appearing in windows throughout the country. Huge parades, such as the one in New York shown above (its continued in 11 hours), further helped to arouse the nation's interest. The codifying of industry became a major problem. In general, the codes tried to eliminate unfair competition by equalizing hours and wages for all members of an industry. Some operators are shown here as they met with General Johnson in September, 1933, for the signing of their code. The question of the employer's right to organize, and the provisions for minimum wages and maximum hours, led to numerous quarrels. From the summer of 1933 onward, strikes and threats of strikes rattled the industrial horizon. And disputes in which some of the nation's leaders were participants made the business. Henry Ford became a silent holdout on signing the automobile code. Then Clarence Darrow (shown reading pamphlet), head of a railway board, maintained that the codes were hurting small business and entrenching monopoly. In colorful language, Johnson frequently defended his "baby" from "scooters and burglars of dead cats." During a feud with Donald B. Richberg on NRA reorganization policies, Johnson resigned in the fall of 1934 and Richberg became the shining star. Gradually the feverish drive of the blue eagle days was giving way to routine activity in NRA headquarters. The NRA was taken into court. And as congress considered how long it should be continued and under what terms, the supreme court's ruling dealt a death blow to NRA and the 537 codes in force. Richberg (left) and Stanley Reed, solicitor general, are shown (right) as they waited to defend the NRA before the court.

GOLD FLOW FROM FRANCE DIMINISHES

Flight From Frano Stockens Paces As New Premier Starts Work

PARIS, June 1 (AP)—The flight from the frano stockens today and tomorrow, new premier, and his speedily formed coalition cabinet started work. The outflow of gold diminished. A last minute shift past Joseph Caillaux, former premier and reputed financial wizard, in the all-important finance post.

This displaced some financial quarters which said they regarded Caillaux, who is 72, as too old and too fond of his own ideas.

Caillaux gave up the post of minister of state without portfolio to replace Maurice Palmadeu, who withdrew from the government, headed as minister of finance.

In another change of plans, Caillaux gave the agriculture portfolio to Paul Magnan, minister of labor in the Italian government of Pierre-Etienne Flandin. The place was assigned to Henri Roy at first.

Schools Ministry
The 80-year-old Bouillon will take his ministry before the Chamber of deputies, which he headed when Leloup named him to the premiership Monday.

It is expected the deputies will grant him immediately the financial dictatorship they denied Flandin Monday.

Police today raided the offices of the nationalistic organization known as 300,000 members, Solidarite Francaise, and confiscated all copies of its newspaper which urged violence against the new government.

DECLINING PRICES JOLT GRAIN TRADE

New Low for Season Recorded in Wheat, Corn, Oats, Rye

CHICAGO, June 1 (AP)—The grain market was jolted today by a drop in prices that made new record lows for the season in wheat, corn, oats and rye.

Venting their nervousness in a wave of liquidation, wheat traders who professed shock as a result of President Roosevelt's reported expression that if the government crop control program was scrapped 36 cents wheat would be possible.

Wheat sold three cents to 36 cents at 81 cents for July, carrying other grains down sharply before sufficient support appeared to right the market. A mild rally influenced the corn pit, brought wheat back to within 1/16 cent of a small better price close, July finishing at 81 1/2 cents.

Another link in chain Today's break added another link to the chain of price reversals that have hit the grain market in recent weeks and gave expression to bewilderment in some quarters arising from the unsettled condition of the government program. The three cent collapse at the opening was the most violent fluctuation the market has witnessed since the supreme court's NRA decision was made known.

What prices in the last month have undergone a pronounced adjustment of 20 cents a bushel as the market reflected improvement in crop prospects following the breaking of drought in many sections of the farm belt. Dollar a bushel wheat which prevailed late in April has been wiped off the board and with it prices of other grains have been sharply pared. Corn is now the only grain value selling higher than a year ago.

UTAH GOES INTO LIQUOR BUSINESS

Upwards of 10,000 Purchase Permits Sold in Salt Lake City

SALT LAKE CITY, June 1 (AP)—With upwards of 10,000 liquor purchase permits sold here and several thousand more at Ogden, the state of Utah entered the liquor business today with a rush.

Would-be purchasers thronged the two retail stores that were opened here and in Ogden at 10 a. m. when the 15-year prohibition era ended in Utah, and kept store employees busy passing out bottles of assorted liquors and replenishing dwindling stocks.

A throng of customers anxious that they might miss the sale store here, and in Ogden, were restricted to 25 at a time. Many women were among the buyers.

Utah's late hour the store, open until 11 p. m., was kept busy with lower-priced liquors in greatest demand. Prices in effect in the state store were declared to be sharply lower than those obtained by illicit sellers, in keeping with the promise of Hugh B. Brown, chairman of the state liquor commission, to sell "good liquor cheap."

Meanwhile city police made a check of illicit liquor stocks selling at 25 at a time. Many women were among the buyers.

MOTHER AND SON IN CATHOLIC OFFICES SHADOW OF GALLOWES RAIDED BY NAZIS

Only Governor Can Avert Delaware's Hanging of White Woman

GEORGETOWN Del., June 1 (AP)—Unless the governor intervenes, a 42-year-old mother and her oldest son will die on the gallows next Friday—Delaware's first hanging of a white woman.

The condemned are Mrs. May H. Carey and Howard Carey, 27. They were convicted in the insurance slaying of her brother more than seven years ago.

In sentencing them the court disregarded a jury recommendation of the jury. The board of pardons refused a petition for commutation to life imprisonment.

Second Son Sentenced
A second son, James, 23, was sentenced to life imprisonment in the same crime—the blue-blooding and shooting of the Rev. Dr. E. J. Hitchens in 1927. Hitchens had a life insurance policy of $3000 and Mrs. Carey and another sister were his nearest kin.

Mrs. Carey acknowledged responsibility and pleaded for her sons at the trial. The three lay in wait for Hitchens in his home near Frankford. It was testified, Mrs. Carey wielded a sledge hammer and Howard fired a shot into the man's head.

An open casket also was used. The state contended Mrs. Carey poured liquor into her brother's mouth and upon his body to leave the impression that his death was the result of a drunken brawl.

Howard told the court that he opposed his mother's plans but that she called, prompted and threatened his own life. He was to get an automobile from the proceeds of the insurance.

Public Enemies In 'Snatch Racket' Gradually Rubbed Off Federal List

BY WILLIAM S. WHITE
WASHINGTON (AP)—A grim process of erasure has shortened the list of public enemies because of kidnapping crimes, although the George Weyerhaeuser abduction at Tacoma, Washington, may add new names.

From Bruno Richard Hauptmann, sentenced to death for the Lindbergh abduction in Kansas City, this work of American criminals has paid its practitioners off with jail or something worse.

Five major gangs involved in kidnaping have been smashed outright; the smashing of others have been started.

Three Abductors Sought
The three outstanding public enemies in the abduction class still at large are listed by the justice department at Alvin Karpis, who blazed his way out of captors' hands near Atlantic City some months ago; Harry Campbell, Karpis' lieutenant, and T. J. Robinson, Jr., sought for the abduction of Mrs. Alice Snell of Louisiana.

The great majority of the real leaders in the "snatch racket" apparently have been brought to book, however.

Many listed, some dead
Most of them are behind bars, and some are dead. Fred and Alvin Barker, of the Barker-Karpis gang which kidnaped Edward G. Bremer in St. Paul, fell in a police trap in a three-hour gun engagement with federal agents. Vernon Stansbury, leader in the kidnapping of Charles Becker, 22, of Denver, died a suicide in a prison cell.

The kidnaping of George Weyerhaeuser (right), 37-year-old Tacoma resident, was the most famous kidnapping case in recent years. Robinson, Jr. (below), sought for the kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Snell of Louisiana.

cepted the declaration of the court, that the National Industrial Recovery Act was unconstitutional, because it improperly delegated law-making to the executive instead of keeping that authority in the hands of Congress, and because it tried to regulate commerce within sovereign states instead of confining such regulative activities to national or interstate commerce.

Obviously we are a more law-abiding people than we sometimes think. In fundamental things we adhere to the Constitution. This does not mean that the country or its elected government cannot do things necessary to be done for the welfare of the nation. The Supreme Court has not condemned the purpose of the National Recovery Act, but only the method. It has merely pointed out that "the recuperative efforts of the federal government must be made in a manner consistent with the authority granted by the Constitution."

Experts in the United States Navy are reported as having developed a loudspeaker in which a human voice may be carried clearly for a mile. This is one of the most alarming announcements in a year of alarms. Added to all the loudspeakers now dining the ears of the American public, it is enough to drive some people insane and send sensible folk to caves.

Imagine a political campaign in which the helpless inhabitants of every city were continually bombarded with stentorian voices from every point of the compass telling them what to do about everything. Politically, commercially and educationally it would be no intolerable tyranny.

The "moral" device gets into public use, except possibly for the President in addressing open-air crowds. But even one such example might establish a dangerous precedent. Every senator would want one. Senator Long and Father Coughlin might insist on power enough to reach five or ten miles.

It is obvious that the supreme court NRA decision leaves the mass eagle a sick and sorry bird. Bristly court ruled that Congress exceeded that it delegated to the executive branch of the government, power to promulgate codes of fair competition having the force of law because it did not set standards to guide the executive, and for several other reasons. The federal executive, and for several other reasons. The federal executive, and for several other reasons.

These are among the questions which the recent court decision plus the comment of President Roosevelt provoke. Just what is coming next? Are we going to be led away from the Constitution and in the direction of a totally new form of government, or are we, as a people, willing to acknowledge and support the Constitution as interpreted by the Supreme Court?

Perhaps the most remarkable thing about the Supreme Court's decision against NRA is the acquiescence with which it has been received by the public at large. It was doubtless a shock to many millions of citizens without regard to party, working under the NRA system and grown accustomed to it, and rightly or wrongly attributing to it an improvement in their own fortunes. There may have been as many Americans in favor of NRA as against it; there may have been more.

Mdivani Refits Palace In Venice

Gossips Say Alexis, Bereft Of Barbara, Seeks New Rich Wife.

VENICE, Italy, May 31—Prince Alexis Mdivani, Barbara Hutton's separated partner in matrimony, is here fitting up one of the most beautiful love nests in the world and gossips say he hopes that another golden dove will alight in his arms.

Having purchased last year a palace on the Grand Canal here, Mdivani is spending his days in this city of the lagoons supervising the complete reconstruction of his new home.

The structure is Italian. Mdivani is reported to have paid 1,200,000 lire—around $100,000—for the San Gregorio palace, as it is called. It is fifteenth century Gothic.

The palace is right across the canal from the Grand Hotel where Hutton stayed last year for his visit to Mussolini, and where the recent Italo-Austro-Hungarian conference was held.

It is alongside the historic church of Santa Maria della Salute, built by the medieval Venetians in thanksgiving for their deliverance from the plague.

Sister Barba Frines Mdivani is here with his sister, Senora Bert, wife of a Spanish artist. Senora Bert, society circles say, has been of material help to her brother in landing American wives. This fact has led to the rumor that Mdivani is again in the market. The Venetians are overcome with amazement at Mdivani's latest achievement. Although palaces such as the one he purchased are national monuments and therefore sacred, he was able to obtain permission to make a decided change in the exterior appearance of his home by shifting a window so as to give more light in one of the rooms.

At present the interior of the palace is completely torn up. It is estimated that the summer will be well begun to entertain in it.

Prince Alexis Mdivani, recently divorced in Reno by the former Barbara Hutton, "five and dime" heiress, is reported ready to follow his ex-wife's example and remarry. As proof European gossips offer the fact that he is repairing the palace in Venice which he and Barbara purchased last year. This photograph shows the attractive courtyard of the palace cluttered with the tools of workmen.

SAVING THE CONSTITUTION

Editor Twin Falls News: Dear Sir:

The American people can be truly thankful for the decision of the Supreme Court to uphold the National Labor Relations Act. Not only has the decision saved the Constitution—but it has saved us from a dictatorship as well as Communism, which would come through government ownership and regimentation.

The senate some time ago proved its worth when it voted against the World Court and this also proved that they would not be coerced into something they did not believe in—either. Democratic politicians. The same is true of these justices. They were not afraid to say the NLR was unconstitutional regardless of all the Grain Traders in the world. Indeed, we may rejoice that we have the Supreme Court to fall back upon. When most men have lost their heads in their scramble for power, a notable "Take General Johnson" for instance who still wants to "crack down" his schemes and codes upon a free people. Americans do not believe in "big stick" methods.

We are not surprised to hear the moans and groans of the New Dealers during this spree of spending the taxpayer's money. Neither are we surprised at the threats of labor leaders to put on a nation-wide strike if the NLR is not retained. Such things may be expected when certain classes think they can run the government. The American Federation of Labor is assuming too much power for its own good, likewise the farm labor movement.

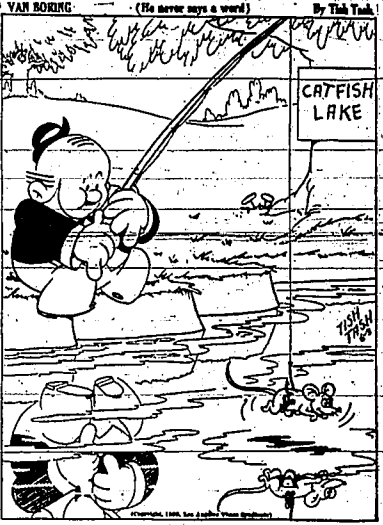

While the majority of the people have seemingly stood for the New Deal and have accepted government aid—left and right, the minority (which happens to be the Republicans in the present) have been getting out from under the depression, paying their debts and being their own boss without government aid. The Democrats seem to have been the only ones thus far to be benefited by the "New Deal."

Would it not be a good scheme for the Democratic party assume all the debts they have contracted these last two years?

"You can fool some of the people most of the time and cannot fool all of the people all of the time!" The New Dealers thought they could accomplish this feat but they were not able to fool the judicial branch of our government. Although we are sorry to admit the New Deal had done much about hypnotized, nevertheless, we can rest assured that the Constitution of the United States is still a living document.

Most sincerely,
MRB. ANNA SNOW,
Twin Falls, May 31.

WOOL POOL HELD FOR ADVANCE IN MARKET

A pool of 70,000 pounds of wool remained in possession of Twin Falls Livestock Marketing association after no buyer appeared Saturday with a bid of 23 cents a pound or better, which the association's wool committee had indicated was the lowest figure that would be considered.

The committee rejected all bids and also turned down an offer by the Pacific Wool Growers to advance 17 cents a pound on the wool. The offer was regarded as the Pacific Wool Growers estimate of 63 per cent of the present market value of the wool.

Advised that the market is "quiet after a recent rapid advance," the committee decided to hold the wool for a more favorable market. Pacific Wool Growers advised that "information indicates resumption of the upward movement late in the summer" and that indications in this

Famous Sports Writer Describes Braddock As Dangerous, Hungry Fighter On Winning Streak

By EDWARD J. NEIL (Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, June 1—The next major battle is Max Baer and Jimmy Braddock, and there should be fun for all that night in Madison Square Garden's big bowl on Long Island. Baer, naturally, is a tremendous betting favorite, and right figures that way. He has terrific power, and despite the fact that he lvees lightly and freely most of the time, he's young enough to throw off the effects of dissipation rather easily. His biggest foe in this one is overconfidence.

Braddock has been beaten by a lot of fellows. But the Braddock who tackles Baer is no dogged, hard-hitting, light-heavyweight, fighting part time, working part time, even eating regularly. He's a biter, and he's dogged Irishman. Baer may knock him down a half dozen times in the first two rounds, but he'll have to nail him perfectly to keep him there.

NEW YORK, June 1 (AP)—A pair of famous left handed pitchers hit the comeback trail today and as a result the Yankees and Red Sox divided a doubleheader. Rich Get Richer--Giants Get Pitcher

NEW YORK (AP)—Them as has, gets. The fellow who figured out that ungrammatical but expressive commentary on misdirection of attention probably never heard of the Giants' great pitching staff, but nevertheless it perfectly sums up the sentiments of rival athletes as they are in some bewilderment at the stuff of young Clyde Clapperton.

For Clyde, a dark-skinned, six-foot, 185-pound, husky pitcher from Tennessee, undoubtedly has the stuff as his three consecutive victories in his first three starts this season showed.

It seems to the rest of the league, like carrying coals to Newcastle for the Giants, thus to come with apparently one of the outstanding hurling finds of the year. Didn't the Giants already have one of baseball's all-time standard four-man corps in Hubbell, Schumacher, Pilsbimen and Parmelee?

Yes, they did. And they needed a new top line, better than the old one, to meet the season at the brilliant pace of 15 victories against six defeats and thus set forth on their first western jaunt with a firm grip on first place.

The Giants weren't hitting. They were having no "big innings." They got their runs by ones and twos, seldom more than four in a whole game. But look at the pitching this season in its first month—mostly hitless, double-play, and two-out innings.

In the 21 games they managed to pitch, they had had weathered back. After almost losing his "big four" set definitely to Clapperton, the Giants' pitching staff is now a four-pitcher, almost a five-pitcher, staff. The 31-year-old Clapperton, a steady beyond his years with a flashy Tennesseean, Bill Terry, whupping early something in his year whenever he's needed, is only one single was slightly controversial. ADVANCES SCORED IN MINING GROUP Rally of Frano Seen As Reflection of Confidence in New Cabinet

NEW YORK, June 1 (AP)—Bonds: Irregular; secondary market weak. Cattle: Nominally steady; hog: Nominally steady; quotable top 110.

Wheat: Lower; presidential remarks unsettling. Corn: Firm; bullish on breaks. Cattle: Nominally steady. Hog: Nominally steady; quotable top 110.

By FRANK MACMILLAN (Associated Press Financial Writer) NEW YORK, June 1 (AP)—After selling rather feverishly during the early part of the stock market session today, traders turned abruptly and jumped aboard the equities bandwagon again, concentrating in mining shares.

In its sudden improvement the market recovered most of the ground lost earlier. The sharp gains in the mining stocks, however, resulted from buying in speculative quarters where it was believed the administration might once more hold the price of silver in an effort to affect deflationary forces set in motion by the supreme court's decision of NRA.

Although brokers still regarded the French financial crisis as primarily a psychological influence on the market, they saw in the sharp rally of the franc a reflection of confidence in the ability of the new government to make some headway in the intricate budget language.

The sharp drop in automobile output, estimated by Crum's at 65, was offset by an increase in the preceding week, was interpreted in Wall street in the light of the fact the holiday had cut operations in the motor plant.

Sugar shares still suffered from the aftermath of yesterday's large decline, but were buoyed up by drop in futures. Cuban American sugar preferred gave up 4 1/4.

Wheat: Lower; presidential remarks unsettling. Corn: Firm; bullish on breaks. Cattle: Nominally steady. Hog: Nominally steady; quotable top 110.

WHEAT QUOTATIONS SLUMP AT CHICAGO

Substantial Rallies in Late Dealings Wipe Out Part of Losses

By JOHN P. BOUGHAN (Associated Press Market Editor) (CHICAGO, June 1 (AP)—Shaken by nervousness over President Roosevelt's suggestion that wheat might possibly fall to 25 cents a bushel, all grains receded downward today, wheat 3 1/2 cents.

Low price records for the season were broken not only in wheat, but also in corn, oats and rye. Slight rallies from the day's bottom quotations took place in the late dealings, however, largely as a result of buying on the part of previous sellers who were in a position to collect profits.

Wheat closed unsteady, 1 cent to 1 1/2 cents under yesterday's finish, July 82 1/2 to 83; corn unchanged to 1 cent higher, July 70 1/2 to 71; oats 1/2 to 3/4 up, and provisions unchanged to 25 cents lower.

Liverpool Market Weak Giving added momentum to the tumble of Chicago wheat prices today was weakness of the Liverpool wheat market and of British exchange rates, together with a reduction of the official pegged price for flour.

Corn and oats prices went down with wheat, but met with better buying support than wheat did. A reason for relative strength of corn was expectation of rains leading to more delay for planting and other factors.
