McCarran made public a letter he had addressed to Secretary of Agriculture, calling attention to rumors in India and China that the United States is to abandon its purchase of silver under the "purchase statement" to prevent a demoralization of the market. The letter sought answers to three questions—whether... the treasury has sold any silver directly or indirectly through the stabilization fund; what steps are being taken to carry out the purchase act; and why the market price recently has dropped approximately 10 percent.

IDAHO GRADUATES STEP INTO JOBS

Only Exception in Field of Education, Survey Indicates

MOBOW, Idaho, June 8 (AP)—Seniors of the University of Idaho here will receive "step into jobs" attached at commencement exercises Monday.

Almost without exception, a survey developed prospects for work for those who completed courses this June are better than for 1934. "No comparison," university officials commented.

The only exception is in the field of education. Placement director, said the outlook for education graduates is "about the same as last year."

Last year's situation, however, was 35 per cent better than the year before.

Opportunities for technically trained men head the list.

Engineering graduates all have jobs, Dean W. F. Farnham said.

"The situation is at least 100 per cent better than a year ago," he added.

The 1934 class, considered themselves fortunate to get board and room. This year they get $50 a month of board—and all graduates will be placed."

Demand for Engineers

Engineering graduates have 50 per cent better chances than those of a year ago.

Dean Ivan C. Crawford said "demand is above normal."

Graduates of the business administration college have "somewhat better chances to go right to work," said Dean R. A. Farnham.

Thirty per cent more have positions this year, and from 50 to 80 per cent already are placed, he noted.

A week ago Dean R. A. McArthur said the outlook for forestry graduates is "vastly improved over 1934," he concluded.

Big Red's In Dog Heaven, But Little Red Carries On Work Of Trailing 'Leggers'

The late lamented Big Red (right) and his running mate, Little Red, of the revenue service gained fame in Florida for their facility in sniffing out moonshiners. Little Red still "pines" for Big Red via the poison route.

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
WASHINGTON (AP)—The revenue service is lamenting the loss of Big Red, ace trailer of moonshiners.

Big Red, one of two hound dogs which for the last two years have kept illicit distillers in southern Florida on-the-run—is dead—from poison believed to have been placed in food near a still, but her running mate, Little Red, is still carrying on.

The two dogs, owned by investigator Earl P. Carter of the alcohol tax unit, have been so effective in locating stills, as well as tracking down their operators, moonshiners in Florida are reported to be suffering from a bad case of "hound jitters."

In a three-month period, officers with the aid of the dogs made arrests at 18 stills, the hounds being responsible for 14 of them.

Carter has reported to headquarters here that every person apprehended by the aid of the dogs has made a statement to the arresting officers that he ran from the still.

"None of the defendants so arrested have requested a jury trial," he said. "They either pleaded guilty or requested a trial by the court."

The dogs are of Red Bone stock. They are faster on the trail than the ordinary bloodhound and are generally used in hunting fox and deer. Trained to detect the odor of man, they often have led the officers to a still long before the latter were able to detect the scent. If the still was found to be in operation and the operators had fled, the dogs would circle the still site, pick up the trail and lead the officers in the direction of the fleeing moonshiners.

Some still operators have been apprehended recently with tin cans of red pepper in their pockets supposedly to be used to throw in the dogs' faces. Others have used turpentine for the same purpose, but without success, revenue officers say.

California Joe

Valuable historical data is skillfully interwoven with episodes of frontier life in "California Joe," by Joe E. Miller and Earle R. Farnham.

Moses Embree Miller, famous in the old west as "California Joe," was born in Kentucky in 1829. His amazing career of wandering began at the age of fourteen when he started on a few days' hunting trip and did not return home for five years.

During this period he trapped, hunted, killed Indians and fought with Kearney's army in the Mexican war.

Taking his girl wife, he crossed the plains by pack train in 1850 and established his home near Corvallis, Oregon, but the lure of adventure was too strong for him and he spent most of his life as a miner, scout, Indian fighter, finally being murdered at Fort Robinson, Nebraska, in 1870.

"California Joe" was a true frontiersman, picturesque, intrepid, ruthless, and the most noted rifle shot of his time. The stories of his association with such heroes as Bridger, Carson, Wild Bill Hickok, and Custer make up the high lights of the book which is concluded with a graphic account of Custer's last fight by Colonel William H. C. Browder, retired officer of the United States Army.

"California Joe," published by Caxton Printers, Ltd., will prove thrilling reading to the student of true tales of frontier days.

PIONEER BUSINESS OF JEROME CHANGES HANDS

JEROME, June 8—Abramson, Tent and Awning business which was sold over fourteen years ago was sold this week to Frank Avery. The business will be managed in the future by Ralph Avery.

Mr. Abramson stated that he and his family would leave soon for California, although plans for making a home are indefinite. Mr. Abramson began his tent and awning business fourteen years ago when a customer in his department store asked him to make a canvas shed cover. The cover measured 16 feet by 36 feet and took two days to complete, a job which today takes about an hour and a half.

Mr. Avery also purchased the Abramson home on East Main at this week's sale and Mrs. Avery will move to their new home soon.

Barnum's Letter Reveals Trials Of Circus Business

The trials and tribulations of the circus business were not very different fifty years ago to what they are today although organization has been developed to a finer point and the modern circus does many things which was unheard of in the days of the great P. T. Barnum.

When the Barnum show opened for business in Chicago in the late Summer of 1884, a regular party of fifty discovered that he had been compelled to pay full prices for children's tickets to the show, instead of the customary half price.

So he wrote P. T. Barnum at the latter's home at Bridgeport, Conn. The answer to the letter is now in the possession of a Twin Falls family follows:

Walden, Bridgeport, Ct. Sept. 8, 1884.

Dear Sir:

I am much obliged for your letter, explaining what seems to me a mistake, which was no doubt perpetrated by a dishonest employee without the knowledge of my managers, and which I fear is being daily repeated. Meanwhile please inform me where you purchased the admission tickets so that we can know who sold children's tickets for full adult's price.

Very truly yours,
P. T. Barnum.

P. S. As soon as I get your answer I shall forward both your letters to Bailey & Hutchinson, M.P.

A "MIDGET" N.R.A.

Just what the "midget" N. R. A. will be remains to be seen but passage of the necessary legislation by the House at the President's behest indicates that the President is still N. R. A. minded and that the recovery movement will go forward as far as possible, along the old lines.

The National Recovery Act is not wiped out in its entirety but will be used as the basis of a sort of skeletonized programme with voluntary administration to the code principle encouraged and a general supervision by government provided for.

There will be no legal enforcement of any of the new law's provisions, so far as can be seen, but the machinery to be created will have the sanction of law for its existence.

THE GRANDEST SHIP

The gigantic new French liner, Normandie, is a very beautiful and wonderful ship. It is understandable that New York City should crowd the lower end of Manhattan Island to see her coming up the bay, and shake the welkin with their cheers, and make a great sacrifice of ticker tape and telephone directories in her honor.

Whether the race for size and luxury in ocean transportation will continue is another question. There must be limits. Some of them are already discernible. It was a real joy to get that floating skyscraper up the channel and into her slip.

BLOWING BUBBLES

The hundreds of Americans who thought they could all get rich by writing letters to five people may now write their memoirs. The bubble is busted, and all that remains there has got out of it is writers' cramp.

each other. As for the Wall Street boom, its lunacy consisted in pathetic faith that there was no top to securities, as the Wall Streeters quaintly called them; and in the trustful spending of life savings for stock which, at the prices paid, could not return more than 1 1/2 per cent dividends even in the best market since the war.

Well, we are sadly concluding now that we shall not pay our debts, or buy a Rolls-Royce, or acquire a competence for our old age, by giving dimes to each other, or even by certifying before a notary that we're sending somebody a dollar. Not many of us, anyway. And what will be next? Don't you wish you knew?

NO ELECTRICITY (Mocking Star-Mirror)

We've come to think of electric power as such an ordinary thing that it comes as rather a shock to learn that fairly respectable little villages are still denied this essential.

There's Winchester, for example. Winchester has electricity a few times every day. It comes on in the summer time around dusk, is shut off at 10 p. m. in the winter time the switches are thrown in at 5 p. m.—sometimes after dusk, and the turn-off hour is still 10 p. m. They're protesting to the public service commission of Idaho for rectification and we believe they're entitled to it.

Winchester residents are denied all the benefits of electricity except that of furnishing light. There can be no electric washing machines, irons or refrigerators. Its business houses can't depend upon reliable power of electric motors. And Winchester is quite a good-sized village.

AMENDING THE COURT (Detroit News)

Proposals to alter the procedure or the jurisdiction of the supreme court have been thick in Washington since the NRA decision. One plan is to have congress pass an act declaring that no decision of the court shall be binding unless concurred in by two-thirds of the judges. This is obviously a better plan from the time when the supreme court was so often divided 5 to 4. The edge was taken off this when the supreme court decisions last week were all unanimous. It is evident also that if any such act were to be passed, the supreme court would hold it to be unconstitutional.

Apparently more promising are the suggestions that somehow certain questions be taken away from the court entirely. A common lament is saying is that the judges ought to be confined strictly to law cases and not permitted to pass upon government policies. But the constitution provides that the judicial power shall extend to all cases in law and equity arising under this constitution. Concerning government policies, the doubt often springs up whether they are warranted by the constitution. That was distinctly the question with regard to Section 5 of the national recovery act, with its delegation of power to the president to impose codes upon industries. The supreme court decision was that congress could not under the constitution authorize the president to do whatever he pleased in such a matter. There is no short cut to the desired crippling of the jurisdiction of the supreme court. It must be done, if at all, by a constitutional amendment.

The fact that the judges all agreed in the present instance silenced much criticism that otherwise would have been made. But why should it cause surprise that the so-called liberals of the supreme court should have gone along with the chief justice and the others? A part of their body of liberal doctrine has always been that the state should be left free to do a great deal of social experiment. Such freedom, as Judge Cardozo remarked, is essential to the true conception of a federal system. Let the states, as before, resist bureaucratic domination from Washington, and do so on its way, to act as a laboratory for the demonstration of principles of law and of economics.

What those liberal judges say will stand has been an oppressive federal interference with local rights, and the fostering of huge monopolies under the protection of federal administrators. It was perfectly consistent, therefore, and the most natural thing in the world, that Judges Brandeis, Stone and Cardozo should in this NRA decision have coincided with the conservatives.

It is not necessary to speculate about the motives or prejudices of any of them. They were not thinking of politics so much as they were of the law. It was their duty to declare whether and in what ways the national recovery act violated the supreme law of the land. This they did as honest and capable judges. The judicial power of the United States was, for the moment, vested in them, and they exercised it without fear or favor.

Peggy—I was so embarrassed the other night at a party in Hollywood that I almost passed out. Myrna—What was it? Peggy—Why, I was introduced to a man and I knew him but he before. He turned out to be one of my earlier lovers—but for the life of me I couldn't remember his name.

ROOSEVELT'S SON URGES NEW DEAL

Tangles With Texas Govern- nor in Debate on States' Rights

AMARILLO, Tex., June 8 (AP)—Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, and Governor James V. Alfred started a sharp impromptu debate on the issue of state's rights versus principles of the New Deal last night on the floor of the Texas convention of Young Democrats.

Roosevelt called on the youth of the Democratic party to back the New Deal in the face of the supreme court decision invalidating NRA.

The Constitution of the United States, he said, is a convention of the Young Democrats of Texas, must be interpreted "in the spirit it was written."

Campaign Starting Point

His address bore out in some degree a prediction that the "New Deal" Democratic convention, as the first political meeting of importance since the supreme court decision against NRA, would be made the starting point for a campaign to reinstate the recovery act, at least in principle.

"That that are accomplished for the common welfare are the very essence of the Constitution itself," he said. "Necessarily you take on the meaning of the times, and the language of the Constitution, as perfect as it was, must be interpreted in the spirit it was written."

The afternoon was spent with needlework, and a general discussion was led by Mrs. William Shively on the American Magazine's latest quiz, "Are you ruled by your head or your heart?"

VISIT THE FORD EXHIBITION AT THE CALIFORNIA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION SAN DIEGO

MAY 29 TO NOVEMBER 11

The Ford Motor Company invites you to visit its exhibition at the California-Pacific International Exposition, opening May 29 at San Diego.

The theme of this exhibition will be "From Earth to Motor Car." Scores of moving, working exhibits will tell the story of Ford methods and give you a clear and fascinating picture of the making of a modern automobile.

It is seldom that so much of the panorama of Ford activities is presented beneath a single roof. We believe you will find it one of the outstanding points of interest at this splendid San Diego Exposition.

FEATURES OF THE FORD EXHIBITION

CENTRAL BUILDING—The Ford Exhibition is housed in a large, modern building of striking design. The natural beauty of San Diego lends an imposing background. To the south are the blue waters of the Pacific. To the east, the peaks of the Coast Range.

ROADS OF THE PACIFIC—You will be taken in new Ford V-8 cars over reproductions of old and new roads of Pacific states, including the Chinese Eastern Railway, the Trans-Siberian, the Japanese, the Baguayan of the Philippines, the Gold Road of France, and the old lace road of Peru. The Swiss Fr. Trail and California's famous old Mount Road, El Camino Real.

HALL OF INDUSTRY—Score of moving, working exhibits show the modern automobile in made. Watch a 30-foot opening made—complete in the smallest detail—carry five men from the best to the latest. See the chassis line and watch it draw off late working lath cars. See how a white-hot steel bar is rolled into a slender rod, super-vised by a hand, tested and stamped into finished parts.

FORD METHODS AT WORK—Learn how finished cars are carried in the conveyor—how they are made into cars—how they are finished and used in the plant.

MR. FORD'S SERVICE—Have an idea of the working process in detail. In many instances, you are sure to find Ford's methods are being "scientifically" used.

TWO MILLIONS OF AN INCH—See the world-famous tele-see, 2000 blocks that are accurate to two-millionths of an inch—a measurement 120 times finer than a human hair. See how three steel blocks are used in the making of Ford cars.

MACHINES THAT ALMOST THINK—See the almost human machines that assemble the Ford reduced-car, attaches ink and right tool, holds a tube in place, tests every weld and delivers a finished, tested reduced-car in 10 seconds.

MANY OTHER EXHIBITS—See how Ford Service Clubs are made. Watch how mechanics take down and reassemble a Ford V-8 engine in less than twenty-five minutes. Learn how Ford dealer organizations are trained by seven-year service schools to give you good service. See the machine shop display at Henry Ford Trade School. Henry Ford's best car is on display. A number of large photographic exhibits depict the production process at the River Rouge.

STYROID CALCULUS COLICISTS—Lemonade, strawberry-cream from Florida, read also Ford's methods of using form products in industry—See the progress of the car from form from metal to parts for your automobile.

COMMISSION DENIES FREIGHT RATE LIFT

Pulling Saves Idaho Shippers Estimated $100,-
000 a Year

BOISE, June 8 (AP)—Idaho shippers were spared an additional annual expenditure of an estimated $100,000 in freight when the state public utilities commission today denied an application of five class 1 steam carriers for an increase in railway rates.

Had the increase in intrastate freight rates been granted the charges for all less-than-carload shipments would have risen, and higher schedules would have applied to carload shipments of coal, gas, salt, sugar, lumber, sand, gravel and the several other less common products.

The increase asked would have amounted to 7 1/2 per cent of the total revenue reported by the five carriers for the last year.

C. A. Root, commission rate expert, estimated that the ruling saved the state's shippers "probably as much as $100,000 annually."

There are 13 railroads operating in Idaho, but only five of them apply for increases. They are known as class 1 lines, because their annual gross revenues total at least $1,000,000 each.

The five sought to make the new schedule apply to class 1 roads and "all others similarly situated," but the commission held that none of the other classes were "similarly situated."

Competition Factor
The shorter lists did not want any increase because of competition from trucks.

Those applying were the Oregon Short Line Railway company, Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation company, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad company and the Northern Pacific Railway company.

Protests against the increase outlined in the carriers' petition filed with the commission September 1, 1934, were entered by the Salt Lake Hardware company and the Amalgamated Sugar company, and the commission fixed the date for the hearing on June 4, last Tuesday.

H. B. Thompson, Postoffice attorney, appeared in behalf of the railroads at that time, and H. W. Ansell of Salt Lake City represented the sugar company.

Mr. Root served as the commission's counsel.

The petitioners sought to make the interstate rates conform with increased interstate rates recently approved by the interstate commerce commission.

The commission, composed of Jesse Haskinbaugh, John D. Ripper and Harry Holton, found that the evidence presented at the hearing here this week did not "justify the increase asked for."

Leaders Decide On Modified "Blue Eagle"

A DECISION to work for a codeless "skeleton organization" as a substitute for the NRA was reached at a White House conference by President Roosevelt and party leaders. Some of the conferees leading the White House were (left to right) Senator Harrison, Solicitor General Reed, Chairman O'Connor of the house rules committee, Speaker Byrns and Chairman Doughton of the house ways and means committee.—(AP) Photo.

Jobs For Those On Direct Relief Rolls Aim Of Four Billion Dollar Work Plan

here's one big job the national administration has cut out for itself. Under the new $4,000,000,000 relief program it proposes to provide jobs on work relief projects for all those now receiving direct relief. The map shows the number of cases on direct relief and the number on work relief for each state. The latest month for which official figures are available, "Cases" means families and single persons; the figures not being broken down for individuals by state. (The persons on relief rolls in March totaled 20,538,072, plus 292,500 in transient camps.) If plans work out, those cases on direct relief (the figures in each state marked with a square) will be added to those on work relief (the figures marked with a circle). There is some duplication in the figures, some cases requiring direct as well as work relief. In addition there were approximately 300,000 cases cared for under special work programs, including rural rehabilitation, emergency education and college student aid. The grand total of cases was 5,465,690. Wages for those working on projects under the $4,000,000,000 program will vary by regions and labor classifications established by the administration. Unskilled laborers in region 1 will be paid from $46 to $55. Intermediate, from $45 to $65; skilled, from $55 to $85; professional and technical, from $61 to $94. In the same order of classes, pay for region 2 will be $32 to $45, $38 to $55, $44 to $70, $48 to $70; for region 3, $21 to $33, $30 to $52, $35 to $68, $42 to $75; for region 4, $10 to $20, $27 to $40, $35 to $60, $39 to $75.

SYNOPSIS: Alison Bete realizes that Daphne Sumner, the adventuress who is marrying Alison's father today has confined Mr. Bete that Alison Bete is the daughter of Alison Bete and finally decides to swallow her pride and go to Guy Ramsey, the author who can help her. Daphne has managed to separate Alison and Guy, but Alison suspects that Guy cannot be so black as Daphne paints him.

Chapter 37
STRANGE STORY

Guy peeled off his white overall and vanished.

Alison, sitting on a low chair, laughed again. All the way down the Underground she had wondered what their meeting would be like. But wherever her thoughts had wandered they had pictured nothing like this!

"She had heard the sound of a car back in a minute he was back."

"There. Finished? Come on."

"The shabby dark blue Rover was outside. As they came out into the main road, he looked down at her and asked, "You believed my letter, then?"

"I didn't even get it. You see, my stepmother burned it. And I've run away from home."

His reply was the last thing that she expected.

"Thank God for that!" he said. "If you hadn't come this morning, I was going to the police!"

"To the police?"

"Yes. He answered her amazed look with a grin that now, tell me what's happened."

Alison told him briefly of her interview in the theatre and what followed. He listened with interest and as he heard, he muttered, "Good Lord!" and almost admiringly, "You're clever. A clever devil!"

"Isn't she?" agreed Alison. "So you see, I didn't get your letter. Only I felt that if she could get to the lengths, tearing up my letters, and lying about me, she must be lying about you, too."

"And—she thought I'd come and ask you myself. I just want to know the truth."

"It's all so simple," he said contentedly. "It's all so simple I've been a complete fool not to trust you from the beginning."

"You mean, telling me—"

"That about, yes," he called last night, when you wouldn't listen to me, what an abject, utter ass I'd been. If you knew how I've worried all night I tell you, I was on the point of going to the police."

"It's rather a long tale. Let's find somewhere where we can talk."

"They found a little basement cafe with bright copper covers and it was 12:15. The place was just beginning to fill up but they chose a table out of range of listening ears. Alison and Guy looked at each other, but they just sat and looked at him and smiled!

"I'll have to go right back to the beginning, to just over a year ago," he warned Alison, "if you won't understand why I didn't tell the truth, it was silly. I'm afraid I ought to have known that you couldn't have anything to do with it, but I'd been having a devil of a time and I'd got into a sort of a state where I suspected everyone."

"Poor darling!" Alison breathed that time and Alison and Guy gave an answering glance.

"You see, I'd just started in practice in Nice. I'd made a few cents in it and instead were going rather well. My patients were mostly rich old ladies who had nothing to think about except their hair and they liked me to call and see them even if they'd only a cold."

"I want to know the work I'd chosen for myself but I'd had pneumonia badly and I'd been told the best thing I could do was to live in a warm climate for a bit so I did my best to cheer them up and cure them and keep their minds off themselves."

"Anyway, things were going quite well when one of the villas in my best was taken by an old man and his wife. He was English and called Jam merchant, and pretty well off, to judge by what he spent; he was a bit younger and well. I won't say what I think of her to put her tried to make love to me, among other things which isn't a habit I'm fond of in my patients."

She said impulsively, "Oh, my heart. I am so sorry about the other night! I mean what I said! Only I hurt you too, and—"

"Don't worry! I knew you'd be hearing a lot of lies. I wouldn't have written to you, if I hadn't known that!"

Two hands and two pairs of eyes can say a great deal.

"Where had I got to," he asked, "Oh! well, anyway, this old man was ill, and I was in a bit of a right. But his symptoms weren't in order. Sometimes he'd be almost well for a long time and then he'd have a relapse and nearly die—or so he reasoned at all."

"His wife pretended to be terribly concerned about him but I knew so well that she was running round with a foreign gigolo and I grew rather suspicious. Anyway, I watched, and got my nurse to watch, and we noticed that the old man was always coming in, nurse's time off, when the wife had been nursing her husband herself. So I took the bull by the horns and interviewed the lady."

"You're not a doctor, are you?" she asked and that I intended to move the old man into a nursing home. She said she was with me and I had a right to know what she was up to and I told her that I intended to get a specialist's opinion."

"That scared her and she gave way. I made all arrangements to move my patient the next day and I wrote her a letter to say that she was not to be left alone with his wife. I went round myself to see him and—"

"Gone?"

"Yes. She'd chartered a special plane and whisked him off by air to England. About three weeks ago I saw a notice of his death in the London papers. But I'd one satisfaction, anyway. I realized in the list of wills that he had left nothing as it turned out he'd sunk it all in an annuity. So she didn't make any money by what she did."

The Rev. Pound gave his annual report in which he showed that the district has made gains along all lines, membership, finances, and Sunday school. Following his election, both of them would make short addresses.

INEXPENSIVE LIVING ROOM

Charming Effect Achieved With Limited Funds

A built-in wall provides bookshelves.

(Prepared by the Decorators Club of New York for The News)

Only a small amount of money was available for furnishing this living room, but a clever decorator has succeeded in making it very charming. And as the room will not be redecorated for a long time, she has used durable colors which will hold up readily, and furniture of durable construction.

The wall at either side of the windows was built out with composition board to provide space to conceal the radiator and for the bookshelves. This is a rather inexpensive method of adding a touch of interest and distinction. Simple good reproductions of colonial furniture can be had for little cost, but a clever decorator has used them for this room.

The walls are painted a delicate cream color. The rug is brown, and the chairs used for curtains and upholstery are orange and brown. The curtains against the glass are of orange and brown. One chair is covered in brown velvet and another in orange velvet. A few small objects in a greenish-blue add accents of interest.

The use of the alpacotta is a practical touch, as they can be cleaned easily whenever necessary.

DIES IN TRUCK FIRE

SPOKANE, June 7 (AP)—Planned under a huge freight truck, that crashed into a railroad station and caught fire, Mrs. George Herzog, 37, burned to death at Springdale, near here, yesterday. The railroad station was destroyed.

Intense Cultivation

SPARTA, Ga. (AP)—Pedro Wynn, negro farmer, raised 1100 worth of vegetables and two acres of cotton in a single season on his one acre of land without the help of a horse or mule for plowing.

There are a lot of funny people in the world.

But none so funny as the man who permits himself to get into two pairs of good ones cost so little here.

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP)—Stocks: Firm; mining issues rally

Bonds: Irregular; U. S. government improve

Foreign exchange: Easy; gold currencies decline

Cotton: Higher; covering, trade and Wall street buying

Sugar: Offer: Closed

CHICAGO: 182 Wheat: Higher; silver moves retreating

Corn: Irregular; wheat feeding larger

Cattle: Steady; only 300 here

Hogs: Nominally steady, top $10

By FRANK MACMILLAN (Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP)—Mining shares, which bounded ahead for gains of 1 to 3 points, led another firm market on the New York stock exchange today.

Demand for the white metal stocks was stimulated, brokers said, by Washington reports that the silver bloc in congress would reduce its call on Monday to prod the treasury toward the $120 an ounce mark for silver.

The buying of industrials was attributed by observers to a conviction that the House vote for a resolution N.R.A. would offer no particular inducement to general and industrial progress during the balance of the year.

Railroad issues were said to have been mildly encouraged by President Roosevelt's plea to Congress for legislation for federal control of transport on highways in the air and on water.

The fact the chief executive did not ask for any new type of tax was seen as ruling out the possibility of this additional financial burden on railroads, some pointed out.

The nature of the bill equities to advance more vigorously was interpreted in banking circles as reflection of the street's moderate estimate of freight traffic during the stretch ahead.

Market analysts who scanned track reports for signs of recovery were favorably impressed with a "boom" estimate of automobile production for the week. It indicated a 20% increase over 45,675 in the preceding week, which included the holiday, and 69,107 in the week of June 4.

Continuing of Poland Higher

Advancing Friday's advance the market moved ahead 2 of a point to 42.5 in terms of the Associated Press index of 60 stocks. Transactions totaled only 341,844 shares.

The mining share high-jumpers led the advance up 1 1/2 to 16 1/2. American Smelting led at 43 1/2. Corro de Pazo up 1 1/2 to 43 1/2. King up 1 1/2 to 16 1/2 and U. S. Smelting up 1 1/2 to 11 1/2.

Among the industrials, Columbia Pictures turned in a gain of 3/4 at 62 1/2. The Exchange Building rose 1/2 to 25 1/2. Many others were fractionally higher.

The bond market was steady, featuring higher prices for government issues and some utilities.

The French franc braced up in the late trading to close unchanged at 62 1/2. The London sterling aged 1/4 of a cent to 49 1/4. Belgas, Dutchers and Swiss francs were a trifle lower.

WHEAT ADVANCES AS BUYING SPURTS

Revival of Inflation Possibilities Strengthens Chicago Market

By JOHN P. BOUGHAN

Associated Press Market Editor

CHICAGO, June 8 (AP)—Stimulated by revival of inflation possibilities, the wheat market showed a strong upward trend most of the time today.

Brisk concentrated buying developed following reports that a fresh movement by congress would be started on Monday to force holding of silver to $1.20 a ounce.

Bluntly stated, the buying Friday, talk was current that a big eastern speculator had switched his market position and was covering a large short line of wheat.

After a maximum jump of 1 1/2 cents a bushel, wheat reacted somewhat, closing Tuesday at 75 1/2 cents yesterday's finish. July 83 1/2-54, corn 1 1/2 up, July 81 1/2-54, provisions showing 2 cents to 10 cents gain.

Trading to the upward impetus of wheat values was the fact that many traders were readjusting accounts so as to be prepared for any surprise upward trend in the government crop report, Monday, Besides, advances were at hand that although wheat top readings 82 1/2 to 100 1/2, the extreme southwest part of domestic winter crop territory, only modestly advanced under Friday's very light movement of wheat to 75 1/2 cents.

Despite some bearish developments as to corn, including larger crop offerings, the price of corn as well as of oats and soybeans were responsive to wheat strength.

Provisions had a firmer tone, influenced by silver talk.

FAILURE OF SUGAR CONTROL FORECAST

International Interests Begin to Figure New Conditions

WASHINGTON, June 8 (AP)—Various international sugar interests in the United States already have begun to figure possible means of avoiding chaotic overproduction and price wrecking in case the Jones-Costigan sugar control act is unilaterally abandoned on grounds of unconstitutionality.

The possibility of an adverse decision in line with the supreme court's recent invalidation of the act is being emphasized by the authors of the act, Senator Costigan (D-Colo.) said the possibility was apparent from the nature of the supreme court's ruling.

A voluntary agreement between Cuban, Hawaiian, Puerto Rican and Philippine producers is regarded by the Royal D. Mead, vice president of the Hawaiian Sugar Association, as the most probable case.

Jones-Costigan act is thrown out. "Of course it might be difficult to affect an agreement with residential producers that would be observed by all parties," Mead said today. "But it appears to me after considerable thought that some such plan is the only solution."

Beately Called Impractical

A test case now before the courts in Boston, attacking the control act on general grounds, is regarded as the one most likely to cause the expected upset. A decision in the case, won through by a large sugar mill, is not expected before autumn.

Many regard Senator Costigan's suggestion to seek a direct bounty for western beet growers in case the act is invalidated, as difficult and impractical, while others, mostly among those directly concerned, believe it to be the only solution to the beet farmers' problem.

Mead pointed out that if such a bounty could be provided through legislation, scope of special interests would seek similar adjustments, and congress would have attained something it could not finish.
