RAINS BOOST U. S. WHEAT ESTIMATE

Production of 670,000,000 Bushels Indicated by Federal Forecast

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—A "mighty rain" may boost the government's estimate today of the 1935 wheat crop to 670,000,000 bushels.

The agriculture department's forecast based on June 1 conditions put the wheat crop at 649,000,000 bushels, reflecting a 2,957,000 bushel increase during May.

In addition, the department said spring wheat conditions indicate about an equal chance that production will be above 230,000,000 bushels as that will be below that figure.

Present conditions, the crop report summarizes, "indicate a total wheat crop this year of about 670,000,000 bushels, compared with 659,000,000 bushels last season, 659,000,000 bushels in 1933 and an average of 620,000,000 bushels during the previous 10 years.

Much of the winter wheat in the southwest was said to have been killed before the May rains, but prospects in other sections are improved materially since the drought was broken. The condition of the crops on the acreage remaining for harvest was reported to be 74.2 per cent or about up to the usual average for this season of the year. The condition last June was 65.4 per cent, lowest ever reported.

While conditions were said to have been "favorable to normal" and the recovery of grass crops, the department found the weather so far "very favorable" for corn.

LIGHTS and SHADOWS In Day's Events

Unvanquished—HOLLYWOOD—Totally paralyzed in an automobile accident eight months ago, Mary Blackford, pretty 20-year-old film star, has recently recovered to plan a new career.

She said today she hopes to become a radio singer.

In furtherance of that hope, she maintained her car could be in the wheelchair to which she has been confined for so long and sing into a microphone.

She said she says her voice is suited to broadcasting, the former actress smiled. "So I've been practicing singing. I may not get out of this chair until some day, but I'm going to be back in professional life again."

Saving Tonnes—LOS ANGELES—The latest examples around here of blessings in disguise is the loss of Miss Marian Stephanie, vaudeville performer of Hollywood.

By way of entertaining the public, Miss Stephanie "sawed" 75 of them—then withdrew them, threatened. As she performed at a local theater yesterday, the lot two of the needles get out of control.

After the act, she went to the police hospital where surgeons found them stuck in her tonsils. The needles were recovered with tweezers.

No Place for a Cow—VENICE, Calif.—Conjuring up the dire picture of cows and goats wandering into the roller coasters and dishing out the beach resort town, a 16-page petition filed by numerous Venice residents, warning of prohibiting the use of vacant lots as grazing lots was presented yesterday to the city council.

"These animals may wander down, a roller coaster train and be presented yesterday to the city council. These animals may wander down, a roller coaster train and be presented yesterday to the city council.

It was beyond the council's jurisdiction, so the matter was referred to the health and sanitation committee for a report.

All Chinese officers, the announcement continued, have been warned to "take special precautions against the activities of a movement of unidentified members of the fair sex."

The girls, who were arrested the gang said the girls operated to obtain secrets from government officials by "getting themselves acquainted with these leaders, creating disturbances, and when necessary, assassinating the officials."

A charming girl in her early twenties," was said to be the leader of the spies.

G-MEN STRIVE FOR COMPLETE CLEAN-UP

Hideout House Discovery at Spokane Deemed Vital-to-Probe

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—Complete solution of the Weyerhaeuser kidnaping case with the probability of new arrests was the goal tonight of relentless "G-men" combing the Northwest for William Mahan and possible confederates.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of justice department agents, kept in almost continuous contact with the hunt by telephone from here, during the day he summoned newsmen to his office, to announce the location of the "hideout" house at Spokane where George Weyerhaeuser was held.

Director Excited Visibly excited, the director said this "is a highly important to the investigation" and promptly ordered that "a police guard be reported about the house," then as reporters left his office, Hoover added there.

BOY RETURNS TO 'KIDNAPERS' HOUSE

Government Agents Collect Evidence in Building at Spokane

SPOKANE, Wash., June 10 (AP)—George Weyerhaeuser, 9, of Tacoma spent 20 minutes tonight in a house here which the department of justice has designated as the place where he was held three or four days while a kidnap gang negotiated the payment of $200,000 for his release.

The boy was definitely identified by several of about 20 spectators as he left the house at 8:40 p. m., hanging to the coat tails of a plain policeman, presumably a department of justice agent.

Two men preceded George from the house. One of them notting a newspaper photographer had set up a camera, said, "get that thing out of the yard."

"Are you a government man," the photographer asked. "I don't care," the plain policeman answered.

George's presence close behind him hurriedly in a black sedan bearing Washington license B-1948 which the state highway patrol office said was issued to Mrs. Paul L. Richards, Tacoma.

No other words were spoken by the agents or by the boy as they departed.

Butte Police Promise Hunted Mob's Capture

Impossible to Elude Posses Long, Veteran Avers

BUTTE, Mont., June 10 (AP)—A veteran police officer today promised that the department of justice agents and police officers attempting to capture a mob in Montana would succeed in capturing the mob.

Seventy-year-old Joe "White Joe" Murphy, chief of police at Butte, Mont., said he believed the mob would be captured in Montana.

Murphy and department of justice agents said it would be "almost impossible" for Mahan, who was released by Detective James Moore yesterday, to long elude the police.

The department of justice agents were searching for Mahan in Montana.

Hunt for Remnant Of Criminal Gang Turns to Montana

Police Trap Set For Former Idaho Convict Who Fled At Butte Leaving $15,500 Of Ransom Money In Car

Woman's Disclosures 'Break' Case

(By The Associated Press) SALT LAKE CITY, June 10—Government agencies moved quickly today to culminate the solution of the Weyerhaeuser kidnaping and the arrest of all the participants.

While Mr. and Mrs. Harmon M. Waley were held here under close guard of department of justice agents, complaints were filed against them at Tacoma, Washington, scene of the kidnaping, together with W. S. Grant, alias William Mahan, and an undetermined number of "divers and sundry" others, accusing them of mail fraud in the Weyerhaeuser case.

Identified at Spokane Hideout Announcement from J. Edgar Hoover, head of the federal bureau of investigation at Washington, that the ransom hideaway had been located at Spokane, Washington, was followed by word from there that Waley and Mahan had been identified as the two men who had been seen near the house. Mahan escaped Sunday from Butte, Montana, police who captured his car and $15,500 in ransom notes.

Mrs. T. L. Locket, proprietor of a nearby grocery store, said the two men "with their wives" frequently came to her store to buy groceries. The mention of Mahan's companion brought a second woman identified into the case.

A third man also was identified as a member of the gang when Butte police learned that Mahan had been seen in his car with another man shortly before Detective James Moore recognized Mahan. Jere Murphy, veteran Butte police chief, predicted Mahan and his man associate, together with a woman friend, would be caught in the police net before long.

On Trail of Fugitive Mahan was reported seen today at Dayton, a small wheat town in eastern Washington, by a restaurant proprietor named McGerkin. McGerkin told Sheriff C. A. Woodward a man had stopped his car in front of his cafe and had left two companions outside while he came in and ate lunch.

It was not until after the visitor had left that McGerkin picked up a paper and saw a picture of Mahan and realized his late customer resembled the fugitive. All highways in the country were blocked immediately but at a late hour no trace had been found of the car.

E. J. Connelley, in charge of federal agents working on the Weyerhaeuser case, was declared to have been away from this city today, checking on angles of the kidnaping. It was stated he would search for Mrs. Waley and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Thulin, tomorrow morning.

Woman's Grandfather Talk Mrs. Waley's grandfather, Julian Thulin, conferred with department of justice agents this afternoon and told them his story of having been visited first by the Waleys and then by a man he identified as William Mahan, who escaped when police apprehended him in an automobile in Butte Sunday found to contain $15,500 of the ransom bills. Mahan, he said, left a suitcase for the Waleys and fled when informed later that they had been arrested here.

Thulin declared today he had discussed the Lindbergh kidnaping case with the Waleys several times after their return here from Camden, N. J., and that they said they had attended several sessions of the trial of Bruno Hauptmann. They expressed their belief, the grandfather said, in Hauptmann's innocence.

Previously Mrs. Waley's family here asserted they never had discussed the Lindbergh case with the Waleys and so far as they knew never had attended the trial. Their only knowledge of it, the family here said, was gained by listening to radio broadcasts.

Federal Charges Filed All the defendants were accused in the Tacoma warrants of conspiring to use the mails to defraud and in a second complaint, Mahan was charged with depositing a letter to a friend.

Director Hoover said the Waleys would be removed to Tacoma "in due time" and filing of the complaints today was regarded as indicating that time was rapidly approaching.

John S. Boyden, assistant United States district attorney here, said this evening it will be necessary to bring the defendants into federal court here before they are removed to Tacoma. Previously it had been reported that an arraignment would be held before a United States commissioner.

The assistant district attorney announced that he would promise that the Waleys and any other kidnap suspects who might be arrested here would not be taken secretly from the state.

I Don't Believe It, Says Mother Of Kidnap Figure

TACOMA, June 10 (AP)—Broken-hearted Mrs. Geo. L. Bonney, 56, trap-hammer mother of Harmon M. Waley, held as a member of the gang which kidnaped George Weyerhaeuser, said "I don't believe I can't understand it," when told here today her son and his wife had been arrested in Montana.

Mrs. Bonney, who has been ill since January from high blood pressure, has been on relief pills for some time. Department of public welfare officials said.

Asked early today if she would be told her son was arrested, Charles Torgue, engineer, and an occupant of the old and gray two-story house in which the mother first said she had seen her son, said she would not.

Later, however, Torgue said Mrs. Bonney had overheard heated conversations and asked what had happened they were searching for a "lucky friend" who helped Mahan in the kidnaping.

Confession Details Guarded While the details of Waley's confession were as closely guarded by federal agents here today as were Waley and his wife, one report said he had told them he and his wife,

SALT LAKE CITY, June 10 (AP)—Mrs. Margaret Waley, who federal agents believe confessed her part in the Weyerhaeuser kidnaping, didn't forget her friends of school days when she and her husband, Harmon, received their share of the $200,000 ransom money.

Miss Ida Johanna Bons related here today that she and her husband, Harmon, received their share of the $200,000 ransom money.

SOVIET DEMANDS PUNISHMENT FOR JAPANESE TROOPS

Russian 'Sentinel' Reported Ambushed in Foray Across Border; Chinese, Troubled by Reds, Bow to Tokyo

(By The Associated Press) MOSCOW, June 10 — The Tass official Russian news agency announced tonight the Soviet charge d'affaires in Tokyo has filed a protest with the Japanese foreign office, demanding punishment of Japanese soldiers in Manchoukuo who allegedly entered Soviet territory and ambushed a Soviet sentinel.

Two sentinels on the Soviet side of the border near the mouth of the Shermelivka river were said to have been killed and a warrant of an "unprecedented violation of the Soviet frontiers."

The note demanded the return of the bodies of the two sentinels, and return of his body if he was killed. It also demanded "effective measures" to be taken to prevent further such incidents.

General Chiang Kai-Shek, China's premier, has been forced to divide his attention between the west and the north as a result of Japan's demands in the latter area. Before the Sino-Japanese war, Kai-Shek poured 60,000 seasoned troops into this far-western province to check the westward advance of the reds who are nearing the threshold of Tibet.

Government authorities here are convinced that the Japanese Communist armies will succeed in breaking into the mountain wilderness of Szechuan, "buffer" province between Szechuan and Tibet, they say, but success would be difficult.

China Accepts Demands

Peking, June 10 (AP)—Japanese military China had accepted all of Tokyo's demands concerning North China's status, including the establishment of a "new regime."

Man Sought As Kidnap Paroled By Idaho Board

BOISE, May 10 (AP)—William Mahan, co-convict sought as one of the Weyerhaeuser boys, a 30-year sentence in the Idaho penitentiary for an Idaho bank robbery in 1927 and was paroled in 1933. He applied several times for a pardon, and got it by a two-to-one decision of the pardon board. Governor Ross and Attorney General Bert Miller favored parole and Secretary of State Frank J. Gilman opposed giving him freedom. Ross and Miller had no comment to make today.

Roosevelt Orders Special Study of Abuses of Parole

BY FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON (Associated Press Staff Writer) HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 10 — President Roosevelt today ordered a special study of "abuses of parole" after reading newspaper accounts of the story of the suspects in the Weyerhaeuser-Boys kidnaping on the Pacific coast.

From his Hyde Park home the president sent the following message to Attorney General Cummings after scanning the newspaper report:

"Newspapers report long criminal record in case of two men definitely suspected of Weyerhaeuser kidnaping including not only arrests and convictions but also paroles. Every decent citizen is interested in having parole system re-examined at some time we should seek to prevent abuses of parole especially in cases of habitual criminals. Therefore I am glad that you are having a special study made of those cases investigating all facts relating to their previous records under every jurisdiction where they have been apprehended or paroled."

7,000 CHEER BIDS FOR DEMOCRATIC SUPPORT IN 1936

Republicans From 10 States Give Rousing Demonstration As Lowden Urges Defense of Constitution

(By The Associated Press) SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 10 — Seven thousand Republicans gathered from 10 states in the opening session of their "grass roots convention" today cheered bids for Democratic support for a 1936 campaign based on "defense of the constitution."

The flag-draped coliseum at the state fair grounds rang with applause when rally orators turned aside suggestions for formation of a new party and urged support of the Democratic party as well as Republican to join forces under the G. O. P. standard.

Delegates came to their feet in a rousing demonstration as the former Illinois governor predicted: "Friends of the constitution, old men and women of the Democratic party will rally to our banner in the gravest crisis since the Civil war."

Harrison E. Spangler of Iowa, temporary chairman and mayor of Des Moines, urged that party would only divide the vote.

Immediately following the opening of the first major political convention since the formation of the NRA struck a blow to the first move for Democratic aid was made. Roy L. Brecke of Wisconsin, chairman of the state committee plans maps for a fusion of Democrats and Republicans approved by the delegates.

Philosophes of Lincoln Cheers greeted Spangler's declaration that the issue of the day is the philosophy of Lincoln against those of Franklin Roosevelt.

"There is no room on American soil for the Fascist or Proletariat type of government," and again as he pointed to the applause when Lowden asserted:

"We do not join Mr. Roosevelt in his admiration of the powers of the hoodlums, the ruffians, the clingers and the perversities of Mussolini, Hitler and Stalin."

George was wearing a striped sweater, knee trousers and a little skull cap.

He bade his auditors to leap into the light to regain the way for the Republicans and pointed out the "unfortunate" manner in which the vote was cast in 1932.

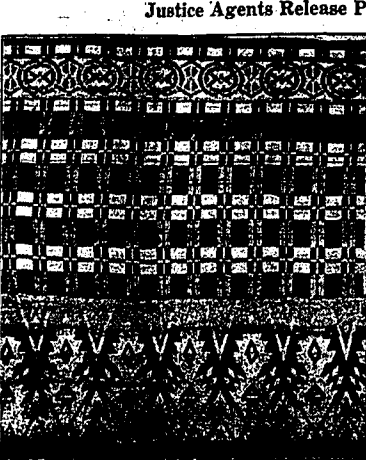

But there was only confused speculation as to what stand the committee should take on the "all-important farm plan."

Hunt For Remnant Of Criminal Gang Turns To Montana

Mahan and another man were involved in the kidnaping. He was represented as saying the identity of the third man is unknown to him and that he met him in Washington state.

The details of the house at Spokane where little George Weyerhaeuser was held for the greater part of eight days while kidnap negotiations were proceeding with his frantic parents, corresponded with the description of his hiding place given by George after his return, even to the closet which he was confined at night.

Department of justice men here maintained a tight-lipped silence although it was reported a complaint will be filed here by the United States district attorney as soon as warrants arrive, and after an arraignment the prisoners will be whisked away to the Northwest.

Disappears On Run

New light was shed on the kidnaping today through a statement by Julius Thulin, 77-year-old grandfather of Mrs. Walcy. He said the Walcys called on him at his Ogden, Utah, home June 1. They left a short time later but last Friday, the day ransom bills were first circulated here, a man who gave him name as Davis left a suitcase for them at the Ogden home.

"Saturday night about 9 o'clock, Davis disappeared with his small green grey motor car," Mr. Thulin said. "Did my friends pick up the suitcase?"

"Yes," I replied, 'and they have both been arrested in Salt Lake.'

"Davis threw his hands into the air and started on the run for his car."

Police officers expressed the belief Davis headed for Butte, for it was in that city that a Ford car was seized yesterday by police who discovered $15,600 in ransom bills in it. The driver, who was identified as Mahan, also known as Davis, escaped.

Postal Mail Fraud Charges Against Three Persons Believed Preliminary to Action by State

(By The Associated Press) TACOMA, Wash., June 10 — Postal mail fraud conspiracy complaints were filed in U. Demands Identification

Fitch issued warrants for the arrest of the three named persons and "divers and sundry others" until they are identified.

Johnston said this fact coupled with conversation with telegram from U. S. Attorney J. Charles Dennis, now in San Francisco, indicated that the man would be tried in the state court here under the new and never used Washington state kidnap law, which would be applied unless the jury specifically recommends leniency.

Fitch telegraph warrants for the arrest of the three named persons and "divers and sundry others" until they are identified.

A second complaint charged Mahan with depositing the extortion letter with the post office and received $200,000 in exchange for the Weyerhaeuser boy.

At the Weyerhaeuser mansion, J. P. Weyerhaeuser, Jr., father of the 5-year-old victim, refused to answer questions until his lawyer favored a death penalty by hanging, under the Washington state law, or ask ask for leniency for the extortion.

Jubilant rejoiced at the home when it was learned the alleged kidnapers had been captured.

The child had not returned to school since his release because of his parents' desire that he remain in the home and be shielded from schoolmates' curiosity, and "hero worship."

The department of justice agents also refused to permit the child to talk with anyone outside his family.

SHIMMERS MARCH INTO WASHINGTON

Parades and Taxicab Strike Mark Arrival of Order's Delegates

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—Thousands of Shimmers marched into the nation's capital today, bringing a band-playing, festal parade and a taxicab strike which will cause many motorists to display of pomp and dignity. That they landed in the midst of a short-lived taxicab strike did not matter to the Shimmers. Train after train unloaded at Union station this morning. Members of the order, some of the ancient Arabic order, nobles of the Mystic Shrine marched in a parade, carrying a banner down Pennsylvania avenue.

The thousands of assembling delegates brought with them more parades than the city of New Orleans, more crowded hotels than a national political convention, more bands than a marching army.

The taxicab strike which met them at the gates resulted from an "order" Washington taxicab drivers had been given them in a warning broadcast to delegates to watch out for a hike in fares.

In protest to what they said was the insulting tone of the warning several hundred drivers refused to take their cars to work, causing a traffic jam. They added, too, they did not like the donation by a motor company of 550 free automobiles to be used by the Shimmers.

Rate Increase Granted

Negotiations which were undertaken by the order to get a rate increase included an apology from William A. Roberts, police chief for the district of Columbia, for his warning. Shortly thereafter the utilities commission granted a request by the taxicab drivers for a rate increase of a slight increase in rates.

The strike was settled in the late afternoon. A few fights, however, and arrests had been the chief consequences of the strike. Most of the cabs were kept off the streets during the morning. Taxicab drivers, however, preferring not to take the chances of their being smashed, the Shimmers most of today was given over to the business of letting people know they were here.

The first luncheon was at the Imperial Palace. Dana S. Williams had an official reception at noon for the incoming delegates.

The Shimmers had a two-hour show for the visitors during the afternoon with various drills, singing and dancing. A fight between Tony Cuzzonelli, the lightweight champion, and Frankie Klicke, the light heavyweight champion, took place in the evening. The fight, which was the chief event of the night show.

"Games don't get your Wind!" FAMOUS ATHLETES SAY

A few of the famous athletes who approve of Camel's mildness

TRACK AND FIELD: Jim Bausch; George Barker; Leo Sexton.

SWIMMING: Helene Madison; Subby Kruger; Josephine McKim; Susan Vilas.

WINTER SPORTS: Raymond Stevens; Jack Shea; Irving Jaffee; Bill Cook; Paul Thompson.

"Let's have a Camel," says Mel Ott, heavy-hitting Giant outfielder, of Harold Gehrig. They agree that Camel has real mildness. Mel says: "I smoke all I want, yet keep in good condition. Camel is so mild, I never get my wind or bother my nerves." And Hal adds: "To my mind that settles it! Camel is the cigarette with real mildness. It walks a mile for a Camel." In baseball, and in all the strenuous sports, leading athletes cite the fact that Camel is mild. And to this impressive evidence of Camel's mildness is added the experience of people in every walk of life who wish to smoke freely and keep fit.

KEEPING FIT IS JUST AS IMPORTANT TO ME AS TO SHAR ATHLETES. CAMELS ARE MILD TO NEVER HURTLE MY NERVES!

I LIKE TO GET INTO THE CONDITION AND TO SMOKE CAMELS. TOO! I SMOKE CAMELS AND NEVER HURTLE MY NERVES!

I PICKED CAMELS LONG AGO THEY ARE MILD WITH A FLAVOR THAT SITS THEM SPARE. NO HURTLE AND WHEN I TAKE THEM I NEVER HURTLE MY NERVES!

I NEED TO KEEP IN "CONDITION" AND TO SMOKE CAMELS. TOO! I SMOKE CAMELS AND NEVER HURTLE MY NERVES!

CONGRATULATIONS

There is solid satisfaction in the news of the arrest in Salt Lake City of at least two of the participants in the Weyerhaeuser kidnaping case, particularly if, as indicated, the confession obtained is of a character to lay bare the entire story of the plot which culminated in this latest example of criminal gang activity.

Herman M. Wailey apparently belongs to that type of criminal which should never be permitted to exist except behind prison walls. His record marks him as by nature instinctively criminal. He has been sentenced to prison often but has always succeeded in avoiding serving the greater part of the sentence. His life for years has been one constant battle with the law.

The arrest of William Mahan is probably but a matter of hours. He too has a criminal record and is reported to be wanted in Idaho on a robbery charge.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the department of investigation of the Department of Justice is to be congratulated upon the success which has attended his efforts and those of his men. More and more the impression gains ground that the business of kidnaping is slowly but surely being wiped from the list of profitable criminal activities.

MIDGET CARS

A research engineer has designed a one-person car which is said to resemble an enclosed motorcycle and would cost not much more than a bicycle to operate. This over-size toy has a wheelbase of eighty-eight inches, and leg room of forty-four inches. Its motor, according to the inventor, will work on anything from crude oil to high test gasoline.

Two air tire wheels are mounted in line as on a bicycle. There are also two side wheels for balance, mounted under the seat and retractable for high speed driving. A speed of one hundred and ten miles an hour is claimed for the machine, which seems more than enough in the present state of highways and traffic in general.

Perhaps this is just what a lot of us need. It is never wise to scornful of new things, but we shudder to think of the highways begin overrun with glorified motorcycles.

SOVIET SKYSCRAPER

The Russian government is planning the erection of a huge building to be known as the Palace of Soviets and to be seventy feet higher than the Empire State Building in New York City. The plans were made by Russian architects and engineers, but were submitted for study and opinion to an American architect. He pronounced them essentially sound. Ninety feet below the surface in Moscow there is bedrock, solid enough to hold the proposed gigantic building.

Certain quite modern features are to be used. For example, there will be no pillars in the interior of the building, but the whole weight will be carried at the perimeter.

The Russians need to watch their step. Building a skyscraper taller than our tallest does not sound very sensible, even if they have a use already in sight for every floor and room in the place. Skyscrapers, in these days at least, are likely to contain a good many unoccupied and unremunerative rooms and suites. They are very suggestive, too, of capitalism. But perhaps the Russian builders know from experience how to avoid our mistakes while improving on our skyscrapers.

TUB PROBLEM

It's hard to tell what to make of a curious piece of news from Chicago. The water department reports that the city uses twenty million gallons less water on Saturday than on other days of the week.

Chicagoans point to this fact with pride, as indicating that they are not bound to the bucolic Saturday night habit. The implication is that they can, and do, take baths on other nights. They may be all cleaned up by Friday night. They may even avoid ablutions on Saturday to show their superiority to the rural tradition.

On the other hand, Chicago people may do their bathing on Sunday morning. Or not. At all. We await further particulars.

DUTIFUL CHILD

The new NRA of pea-wee proportion has been obvious agreed to by congressional leaders, and it is settled that we shall have a minor organization examining into the life history of the grand major general. But shall the NRA Jr. to report on NRA Sr. without being prejudiced by favoritism? That a research body of its own, is now deemed useful by the administration is evidence enough that the administration does not accept the judgment of the Independent Brookings Institution, which was unfavorable to NRA Sr.

It would be rather admirable to have an impartial — if that were possible — fact-finding commission to pass not only on the doings of NRA but on the doings of the alphabetical group. An issue not adequately settled has to do with how much of the meat shortage was caused by drought and how much by AAA production.

The meat shortage is upon us — and because there is less meat to pack, and because prices are so high that consumers have struck, there is a marked falling off in employment in the packing industry. Some 140 by-products of meat are advertised, and the decline in meat shipments is adversely affecting carloadments of the packing industry. We have only the report of the not unprejudiced AAA that AAA had nothing to do with this situation. A planned economy in which the planners make survey of their own work and write their own report has its shortcomings. We note that Donald T. Richburg has an extra pair of socks in his pocket and is headed for the tall timber in search for the Blue Eagle.

INDIA'S CATASTROPHE

A silver river through the mountains that separate Afghanistan and Baluchistan. In a few minutes twenty thousand lives are snuffed out as half a dozen towns and hundreds of villages are reduced to ruins. The story of Formosa, scarcely a month old, is repeated with even heavier emphasis on tragedy because the area afflicted is vaster, the loss of life greater. The disaster was wrought by the economic cost of trade over treaties and armaments, its preoccupation with trade and finance, to sign for the dead and the homeless. And once more this age of science is reminded of its helplessness when treatable cosmic forces are released. While he admits his own inability to avert these catastrophes, the scientist justly attributes the heavy loss of life to society. In less than two thousand years some eight hundred cities have been laid low, and with them perhaps one million five hundred thousand lives have been extinguished. It is not that the earth yawned and swallowed these unfortunates, but that they paid the penalty of sociability. They huddled in communities. Their own works proved to be their undoing. Trapped in cities and homes, they perished under falling walls or in the fires that sprang up when lamps and stoves were overturned.

The lesson taught by Lisbon, Messina, Tokyo, Formosa and now India be learned? No, if the past is any guide. Following its practice the Indian government will send money of retribution to those who call it and it grant to outright to those who have no capital but a handful of grain. The new structures are bound to be as flimsy as the old — bound to crush their inmates in half a year, a decade, a century. It is not that there is no such art as earthquake-proof construction but that it is not within the financial means of the many. The inevitable repetition of the past is all the more tragic because northern Indian lies in a mountainous belt which skirts eastern and southern Asia and which is especially shaky. While towering mountains and oceans are juxtaposed, there the earth most likely to tremble. The crust slips along surface faults in zones of weakness called seismotauri. Java result. Mountains are pushed up a little higher; the deeps of the ocean become a little deeper. Kandahar, Quetta, Mustang, Kelat were communities where the slipping and pushing were almost certain to occur on some indeterminate day.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. MENTYRE

NEW YORK, June 10—This last three blocks of lower Fifth avenue, which approaches Washington Arch in an acute angle, have been under a tumble of bright, awnings; butted trees and sidewalk tables, as though an elf had been here, more than any other section of the city. The awnings are gone, the trees are cut, the sidewalk tables are taken out. The street is almost solidly lined with shops, and the sidewalks are as busy as ever. As early as 10 a. m. many of the shops were already open. The street was busy with a stream of motor-cars, and the sidewalks were crowded with pedestrians. Guiding Your Child

ALICE CLARISSE RICHMOND

My choice for the dynamic drink is the abnestic drip. I experimented with its policy, but only the will of the piece and a real up-plucking name, Donald Dunbar. At the time he was a gross agent at the National Chemicals Co. in Cincinnati. I was on a daily routine assignment from which I rather need to salvage a gratifying dinner. The National Chemicals Co. with Creative's brand playing, "Glow Little Glow Worm" I was persuaded to have an affair with one of the girls. The affair was through a jump of sugar. The world turned upside down, all food limited. I recall looking around in the street with a strange and protesting lady at the next table. The street car going home "the motor-car suddenly became real to me. It was my admiration I presented him with my gold hunting case watch, securing a grave low bow. It is probably a bed in the family now. Likely his grand-children are teaching on it. My next morning headache was built for a hippopotamus.

It might be titled "The Strange Case of John Hunter" real life fiction. He came up spectacularly, a mother's boy, to become the focus of his generation. Legitimate and cinema producers sent him blank checks to fill in the salary list. The world was at his feet. His silent, child-like waitfulness in "Merent of the Maxwell" was one of the memorable roles of the theatre. Other castings distinguished him. Then he went out like a light. Broadway read of him in Variety, playing chance roles with obscure stock companies, walking on parts in lab revues and the like. At the moment under a pseudonym he is broadcasting cooking recipes over a lesser network. The Rialto's inmates.

ENEMY'S KISS

SYNOPSIS: Alison Redd and Guy Lumley are in love. Guy is always finishing some assignments in the story he told Alison about himself. And this story points to the fact that Daphne Summers, who was the woman who poisoned the husband just ahead of her. Redd, Guy was a practicing physician and the murderer and caught Daphne in the murder-almost.

Chapter 38 POISON PEN

"Well," Guy went on, "about a month later, I began to find my practice vanishing. Patients who had been seeing me every day wrote and said they felt they'd like another doctor; people I met began to look at me in a funny sort of way, and I found myself being cut in the street. I stood it as long as I could and then I got hold of a man I knew quite well and asked him what had happened. He told me that there was a most curious story going round about me and a young American girl called Trevor who had disappeared.

"I went to the French police, of course; they tracked the tale home to some anonymous letters which had been sent to my patients. But, though they did their best, they couldn't trace the writer. And that wasn't the worst! I was asked to leave the city."

"My dear!" Alison's eyes were full of sympathy. "How awful for you!" "Not too nice was it?" he concluded. "Anyway, I soon saw that wasn't getting a living any more; I couldn't even sell my practice for a fifth of the sum I gave. I had to clear out. I came home here to England and I put Scotland Yard on to tracing the letters. But by then they were cold and they failed. An old friend of mine, Dundas, let me stop with him and help a bit in return for my board and I'd one consolation, anyway. I was doing good work again, where it was needed."

"He was silent for a few seconds, looking straight out before him. His clear, light eyes came down slowly and rested on her face.

"My dear, I soon saw that wasn't getting a living any more; I couldn't even sell my practice for a fifth of the sum I gave. I had to clear out. I came home here to England and I put Scotland Yard on to tracing the letters. But by then they were cold and they failed. An old friend of mine, Dundas, let me stop with him and help a bit in return for my board and I'd one consolation, anyway. I was doing good work again, where it was needed."

"Not too big." "Not too big. I didn't know that anyone could be as much in love as I am with you!"

"Are you?" she knew it, yet was pining to hear him say so. "You know I am, Utterly. When I thought I'd lost you, yesterday, I went nearly crazy."

"So did I." It was half a whisper. "Directly the door shut I was sorry. I wanted to tear after you down the street."

"Did you?" "The clock struck the half hour. A very fat man with a scowl and a rolled newspaper, waiting for his lunch, glared impatiently at the two who sat at the corner table. He muttered grumpily, "Innocent, I can't sit and look at his watch. A young clerk, looking for a free chair, caught at the back of one by Alison's table, looked down, raised his eyebrows and went elsewhere wearing a very wide grin.

"Totally unconscious that anyone had even looked at them, Guy and Alison drifted back into their interrupted conversation.

"You ought to see how I want." "I think so," she said. "But I don't quite understand where the house at Watley came in."

"I'll tell you that in a minute. More coffee? Not a cigarette? Don't you? Just as well. We shan't be able to afford it."

Alison turned so bright a pink that it clashed with the red ribbon on her hat.

"Be quiet! Someone'll hear you!" "Let 'em," said Guy briefly, "what was I saying? Oh, yes, Watley. It was like this. I'd given up all hope of finding out who sent those letters, though I felt pretty certain in my own mind that it was the woman. I told you about it. I didn't know anyone else who would hate me enough."

"Then one day I was putting through a phone call at that little restaurant where we went in Soho—'tis run by a patient of mine and I often go there—when I saw those two at the very next table. The woman and the fellow she sat next with in France—the scoundrel."

"What was he like?" Alison broke in. "The man? Dark, Spanish-looking—that's why I asked you the other day."

"She asked breathlessly, "What was his name?" "Called himself de Gouy—she was Daphne Summers' friend."

"Yes. How do you know?" "I'll tell you later, said Alison. "Go on."

"Well, anyway, they were having a most awful row. One could hear 'em bellow across the restaurant. She was calling him every name under the sun because he hadn't married her after her husband's death. I

With the anonymous letters? "Yes. On a telephone call I felt in my bones that you were telling me the truth, of course, but—well, I didn't know what they were playing at, and I did mean to be caught. That's why I couldn't tell you I'd a car and take you into Watley and that's the reason I wanted you to wait upstairs. I didn't mean them to catch us together. You see those letters had practically accused me of causing the events to disappear and I thought they might be trying it again. I tell you, I was in a bit of a hole."

"Not a bit, contradicted Alison. "I think it was rather natural after what you'd been through."

"But to anyone who'd seen you," retorted Guy, "I ought to have known—but anyway, that's what I did think of when I saw the card I went through—the drawers in that desk, to see if I could find out who owned the house."

Nothing More to Pay Except Idaho Sales Tax.

This Caravan delivered price includes bumpers, bumper guards, spare tire and tube, metal tire cover and all necessary equipment.

THIS year, the specially-built racing cars swept the boards in the Memorial Day race at the Indianapolis Speedway. Not a car produced by a stock manufacturer was able to last the 500 miles.

The great performance at Indianapolis is still Studebaker's. In 1932 and 1933, the last time Studebaker contested, cars entered by the Studebaker factory finished brilliantly. In 1933, seven of the first twelve winners were Studebaker-powered. In 1932, the leading Studebaker broke all previous time records for the race.

Get that speedway stamina in your 1935 car. Get a Studebaker—a Champion. You can do so now for just a few dollars more than you have to pay for one of the very lowest priced cars.

TREE LOVERS WITH COUNCIL ARGUMENT

sewage or waste material. The ordinance provides that every building inhabited a part of the day must have a sewer connection and Freedheim has had no success in getting that but still nothing has happened and the uncleanliness continues to grow among residents of the various districts as the summer season comes on.

The council last night indicated that as soon as the 30 days of grace as to any person under fire he under the band discussed, large one, Chapin launched a verbal attack on elm trees in general (the two small trees are also elms) and the bugs that they generally contain.

John Johnston, not to be outdone, praised the big tree as a breaker in case of heavy snow during a hard winter, and announced that "I go to hear the music, not to hear the horns."

Upon recommendation of W. E. Taylor, street and waterworks commissioner, the council voted to purchase one and one-half ton Studebaker truck with a 800-gallon water capacity and 14-inch wheelbase for the sprinkling of alleys and an emergency street sweeper.

Taylor reported the price complete at approximately $1965, payment to be taken out of the sprinkling fund which, it was stated, has enough reserve to take care of the purchase. The new truck will replace an old one which is practically useless and will be converted into a dump truck for winter use.

SCHOOL DISTRICT ADOPTS BUDGET

Tentative Figures Call for Six-tenths Mill Increase in Tax

Twin Falls independent school district board of trustees last night adopted a tentative budget for the coming year, which calls for an 18 mill tax levy, six-tenths of a mill in principal tax levied at the rate of the past year.

Reason for the additional levy was explained as deemed necessary due to the facts that the district received $40,000 in school bonds next year with payment on $20,000 more being optional, Superintendent of Schools W. B. Smith last night said that the board was continuing the present plan of payment adopted two years ago and that all bonds would be paid by 1940.

Budget Distribution. The tax millage current expense budget as tentatively adopted calls for an eight mill general levy, the same as last year, two mills for transportation, one and three-tenths for interest, and six and seven-tenths mills for bond payment.

Members of the board announced that H. C. Edmunds, accountant, had been awarded the contract for auditing of the books, but refused to report the figure.

Elimination of the crowded condition on school buses was promised as the contract for seven new and larger buses was bid to the Magal Automobile company, which submitted the low bid, Warberg Brothers will continue to operate the two remaining buses on a contract which has not yet expired.

IDAHO SENIORS HEAR F. D. R. BIOGRAPHER

Ernest K. Lindley Addresses Graduating Class of University

GRANDVIEW, Idaho, June 10 (AP)—Grandview seniors of the University of Idaho today heard Ernest Lindley, New York, Franklin D. Roosevelt's biographer, warn them that if any of them become millionaires they probably would not remain such very long.

"Under no circumstances," he said, "will you be permitted to bequeath a very large share to your descendants."

Lindley's address dealt with the paths which may be taken "as the United States seeks control of a social-economic problem that complexity of living has forced to the fore in the aftermath of wars and physical enhancement."

Support from Idealists. "The problem," Lindley said, "may be attacked on an international basis or as a national problem and in either event by capitalism or gradually. The international plan has strong support from high-minded thinking people who believe in construction of international capitalism or world wide socialism we can save the world it will not."

He expressed a belief that in working out "our destiny in chaos" we should come from ecstacyism, but that if a change in the game gradually must start with the private property system.

Play Safe with Your Crop AVON EMULSIFINE the Proved Fluid Emulsified Spray Oil. You can't afford to gamble with your crop to save a few cents on spray mix. Already you have spent good money to produce your crop. You owe it to yourself to protect this investment with the proved spray oil—Avon Emulsifine. Actually cheap, emulsified oils with a low purity rating (unphosphated residue control) now on the market have nothing at all to compare with Avon Emulsifine. The first cost is the last. And the spread is better, longer lasting. HERE'S WHY: For years, Avon Emulsifine spray oils have proved their effectiveness and economy in the Northwest. With a high unphosphated residue (guaranteed minimum, 90%) Avon Emulsifine is safer than any other emulsified oil. There are oils with an unphosphated residue content of about 72%. Avon Emulsifine oils are superior spreading and give a micro-milligram deposit of arsenate of lead on your crops of 50 to 110 per square inch against the cheap mix deposit of about 55. By using Avon 1871 Spreader you can increase deposits to between 160 and 180 micro-milligrams of arsenate of lead. This is optional at small extra cost. Avon Emulsifine gives positive residual control—insures application prevents infestation from getting started. Control CODLING MOTIL, red spider, spider mites, etc., with the spray oil that has proved its effectiveness and economy over a period of years in the Northwest—Avon Emulsifine. RESIDUAL REMOVAL: Avon Emulsifine used in summer sprayings is easily removed (no residue removal); not one arsenical removal complaint case from the whole Northwest last year.
