LENGTH OF IERA'S LIFE UNCERTAIN AS WPA MOVES AHEAD

Hood Declares Works Progress Administration to Take Over 'Employables' Direct Relief in Doubt

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, June 27.—President Roosevelt today approved allotment of $13,500,000 from the $40,000,000 works fund...

BOISE, June 27.—What may be the death knell for the Idaho emergency relief administration was sounded today by L. Hood, works progress administration director for Idaho.

Shortly after A. W. Jacomini, IERA assistant administrator, announced that Idaho's relief fund on June 30 of this year approximates $2,000,000.

Direct Relief in Doubt The employable men and women will be put to work eliminating railroads, buildings, water reservoirs, reconstructing recreation projects, constructing public buildings and highways and on similar projects.

What will become of the 4,932 direct relief cases, now on 20,000 persons in round figures, now on IERA rolls is a question which Jacomini, and Governor Ross, administrator of the IERA, admitted today.

The federal government, Jacomini said, is expected to assume greater responsibility for the employable and aged, the governor said.

"We do not expect the national administration to withdraw entirely from this field, but we do know that the relief funds will fall far short of the end. What the setup will be for taking care of those who cannot work is a matter to be determined at a later date.

Strikes at IERA The objective now is to close down the IERA, how soon that will be cannot predict. IERA records for 20 showed there are 21,720 cases on the IERA rolls. There are divided into 11,000 cases.

Dawes' Prediction of Depression's Windup Gets Qualified Oke

Farmer and Wife Escorted Out of Congress Gallery Experts Disagree, Eyeballing Political Maneuvers

(Copyright, 1935, Associated Press) CHICAGO, June 27.—Economic and business leaders disagreed today whether the shower of orders General Charles G. Dawes predicted would end the depression this summer had been sighted in June skies.

There was nearly general accord in their answers to queries on the trend toward realization of Dawes' prediction. The Dawes prediction, first uttered last December, that business weather was clearing up. But even those inclined to give the former view credit of the United States encourage-ment qualified their support.

Some observers pointed to the current "atavistic powers" in demand for iron and steel, contrary to usual seasonal tendencies, as offering some substantiation to the doleful general's prediction that a summer upturn would be gained in 1935.

Washington officials declined specific comment on the Dawes prediction but the department of labor gave out statistics indicating employment gains in durable goods industries this year.

Theme Gains Reported The Federal Reserve board this week said the national income for the spring of 1935 was the highest for three years for that period.

Of the comment from individuals, that of Lewis H. Brown, president of the Johns Hopkins corporation, New York, gave heartiest agreement to the Dawes theory, he said: "The collection industry, the most important in volume of durable goods, is showing definite signs of an upturn with May figures the best since 1929."

WEALTH TAX FACES FIGHT IN CONGRESS

Half Dozen Blocs Swing Into Action; Weeks of Delay Loom

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, June 27.—Half a dozen congressional blocs, including "budget hawks" Republicans, began drives today which threatened trouble for those seeking to enact the president's wealth-tax program unchanged.

These behind-the-scenes forces strengthened the general belief that the bill would be vetoed possibly late in August—before even the house could pass the bill.

The actual size of the job ahead of the bill drafters was made clear by one of the leaders' development of the bill on the house ways and means tax sub-committee conference for more than three hours with Secretary Morgenthau, chief of staff, treasury general counsel, Guy T. Heaving, commissioner of internal revenue, and treasury and congressional tax experts.

Subsequently, Chairman Doughton (D-NY) of the committee held a statement of the hearings would start July 8, or more than a week hence. Previously, it had been agreed tentatively to begin hearings next Tuesday.

Throughout the day, also, ways and means committee members were busy with other Roosevelt "must" bills, such as Cuffey coal, nuisance tax extension and social security.

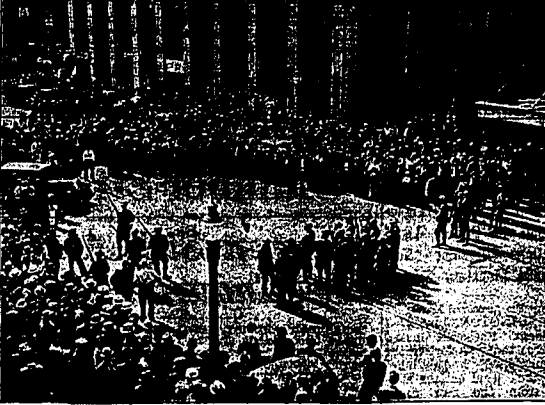

Nuisance Tax Extension
The nuisance tax extension, however, was passed through both houses last week with ease. It continues for two years taxes on the 1-3-cent-per-gallon, a variable wind and outlet posted which otherwise would have expired at midnight Sunday with an estimated revenue loss of $22,500,000 annually.

Rain Falls In Southern Idaho
A broad low pressure trough has developed over the west, extending from the southwest coast to the northern coast. It is attended by higher temperatures in the plateau states, and has caused light showers of sporadic rain in southeastern Idaho, Wyoming, eastern Colorado and Nebraska. Moderately high pressure prevails over the southeastern states. Local showers occurred on the middle Atlantic coast.

Wallace Desires Chance to Deny Baruch Influence

WASHINGTON, June 27 (AP)—Secretary of War George W. Wallace reportedly for some new man to ask him whether Bernard M. Baruch is connected with the farm adjustment administration.

He has an answer on which he was coached originally by his publicity staff, but that staff has failed completely to get the question asked.

The financier suggested that Wallace issue a statement informing the public that Baruch had nothing whatever to do with the AAA.

Then Wallace and his publicity experts went into a huddle. Wallace waited, and the secretary's press conference, the publicity men circled among the newsmen and stropped baruch hints that someone ought to ask Wallace something about Baruch.

PELICANS IN DESQUETE: Mrs. Ellen Davis, full blooded Indian, is reported to have died recently in Colorado. She claimed to be 110 years old and is said to have worn five or six petticoats.

CHEAPER RAIROAD TRAVEL: Improving and modernizing their rolling stock isn't all that the railroads are doing to win back lost patronage. They are lowering passenger rates. Western lines are offering the lowest round-trip excursion rates since pre-war days.

FORGOTTEN JOYS OF EATING AND DRINKING: Andrew L. Simon, president of the British Wines and Food society, is spending 24 days in this country preaching the almost forgotten joys of the table.

HOVERING EAGLE: General industry has been holding pretty closely to the principles of the codes since the demise of NRA, reports a business reviewer, despite chattering reports heard here and there.

With the "skeleton NRA" enacted by Congress, it might be said that at least the bird's skeleton is hovering over business. Some critics will grudge even that much of a tribute.

Obviously, though, it will be a fine thing for everybody if trade and industry can work together effectively for the control of their besetting evils, avoiding alike labor oppression, cutthroat competition and monopoly.

MOVING HEATHER AND YON (San Francisco Chronicle)

The grass is always greener in the other fellow's yard. The psychology behind this homely saying no doubt accounts in large measure for the 500,000 transients population. This carcass migratory army wanders in on the federal government's special relief agency, on the theory that they are not a proper charge of the states where they are found.

And yet in many cases—California, with the heaviest load, appears to be an exception—these migrations are not into the states where the transients are in considerable degree, for instance, New York state according to FEERA figures, has 10,441 non-residents on transient relief, while 19,003 New Yorkers are receiving like relief in other states. Or, take the case of Alabama, with 7,022 non-residents on relief in the state and 1,844 Alabama transients supported by other states.

The lure of softer climate is not a complete explanation. It no doubt is a factor, but Florida, which has 8,000 transients, furnishes 4000 drifters into other states. California has more than twice the transient population on relief than that of the next highest state. This number is approximately 25,000. And yet the effect is just the opposite on relief in other states. Three states alone—Michigan, Oregon and Washington—have on their transient rolls nearly 3000 residents of this state.

The best place for a man out of work is his home community, where he is known and respected, but this well known fact is tending to be forgotten. It may be that there is no work in sight. Perhaps it is a vestigial instinct from the nomadic period. It may also with some be a matter of false pride. Their ego is ruffled less at being on relief among strangers.

TURN LIGHT ON PAROLES (Helena Independent)

President Roosevelt's tightening of the parole system is timely and needed. Along with millions of others, Mr. Roosevelt was deeply shocked at revelations that two men involved in the Weyerhaeuser kidnaping had long criminal records but repeatedly had been placed on parole. His insistence that "we should seek to prevent abuses of parole, especially in cases of habitual criminals," will strike a responsive chord with all decent citizens familiar with parole abuses.

Man after man arrested for major crime turns out to be a parolee. Prisoners with long parole records deserve to find place in any civilized judicial system, but the abuses are so many and glaring it is time to re-evaluate the methods employed.

Practiced and hardened criminals are encouraged to pursue careers of crime by the ease with which they are " sprung" after conviction. The parole system is a big funds, ear-marked for just that purpose—rarely employed to exert political pressure.

The best methods of dealing with prisoners applying for parole is to employ the fullest publicity. Put the prisoner on the defensive. Make him show cause why he should be released. The parole board is entitled to know who desires him to go free. If it is a politician—what is his interest? If it is a highly paid lawyer—where did the money come from to engage his services, and are these services all strictly legal? Skillful lawyer and crookedness too often mark parole petitions in this country. Proceedings should not be tolerated a moment longer.

PELICANS IN DESQUETE (Portland Oregonian)

Mrs. Ellen Davis, full blooded Indian, is reported to have died recently in Colorado. She claimed to be 110 years old and is said to have worn five or six petticoats.

The petticoat, my child, was a loose rather undergarment, in the form of a skirt, worn by women. It was fastened at the waist, first with drawstrings, later with hooks and eyes or buttons; it had voluminous folds, flounces and ruffles.

The purpose of the petticoat was the moral purpose, that is, to effectively hide the curves in that part of the female anatomy which it covered. No decent woman went without several, and very well-dressed and virtuous ladies were reputed to carry as many as a dozen. Bunks once rustled as the wearer walked were a sign of respectability.

It was a wonderful thing for the dress-good manufacturers, and a fearsome one for the laundress. But it has gone the way of the horse and buggy, eating tobacco, wooden Indians, and a host of other things your elders recall with more or less affection. With it went a kindred matter on the superior male side of the day was wont to vent his scorn and pour his thunders—petticoat government, government by women whether in politics or domestic affairs. Today we meekly listen while the women talk of the possibility of a female President of the United States.

FORGOTTEN JOYS OF EATING AND DRINKING (Cleveland Press)

Andrew L. Simon, president of the British Wines and Food society, is spending 24 days in this country preaching the almost forgotten joys of the table. At least two hours, he says, should be required for lunch. A gentleman entertaining a widow should serve three of ome with white washers and rich coffee at a table, and from the tables of the new world, Americans like food with their meals only if it is quick.

Perhaps with the return of wine and beer, the advent of sidewalk cafes and the prospect of shorter work hours, we can reap some of the refinements of dining out which the ancients and pioneer statesmen of dining out which it covered. No decent woman went without several, and very well-dressed and virtuous ladies were reputed to carry as many as a dozen. Bunks once rustled as the wearer walked were a sign of respectability.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, June 28.—Thoughts were stirring that depressing atmosphere of a restaurant slowly falling. Waiters standing around to watch your every movement. Along a wilderness of tables, uncertain buter. Dubious eyes. Those dumb looks. The man in Sam Goldwyn—dumb like a fox!

Look folks: Hoover and Humphrey Dumphy. And Leonard Cohen is another reminder of ten being a tender, juicy steak. Theodor said that most out-of-towners bewildered at the process of ordering, fall back on a plunked steak or for dessert ask for a baked Alaska. Then there is a waiter with a head slipping trade.

O. O. McIntyre Golett, Burgess says: "I wish where the matter about a waiter trying to straighten out the links of a restaurant. One word description of Marilyn Miller—let's see, she's a blonde, but Leon and Eddie's last names? The intelligentsia has about worn out its vocabulary. A Frenchman like look Paul. The doorman with the weeping eyes of the 45th street turn-of-mind cafe.

Wonder if Pearl, Frank and Gene Buck know each other? Hannah Bremer always ambulates one eye with a fine tilt. Those smart ones with loose police dogs. The barber shop goes from salon to studio. William Powell walks exactly like Leo Deltarstein. How Fannie Hurst can detartrate the English!

Washington Square's widely ballyhooed sidewalk art exhibit has grossed $18,000 so far. Most all freeso displays run southward from the square down West Broadway. Art schools seem represented by the bereted, sandaled, and smoked wigs. The human hand that will use this razor blade just once more.

Glooms: Woman with a baby in arms at midnight selling flowers. Bored sleepers covered with newspapers. Gent at theater reading a newspaper. Blank sheet in the typewriter on the edge. But it is around, tries another edge like a cockroach at bay and never makes the little plunge.

At this time of the year when the men on the farms are busy every day and Saturday night is their only chance for business transactions and they cannot possibly get to town before a clock, how can they start and finish work at the same time? There seems to be no questioning of the fact that this is necessary for all employees to start and finish work at the same time.

GOLD DREDGING IN IDAHO PROFITABLE

Outfit Employing 60 Men Doing Paying Business on Warren Creek

BOISE, June 27 (AP)—In the rugged interior of Idaho, a Warren Creek, a modern generation of miners now is successfully panning from nature's gold that was left behind by Chinese who panned out fortunes in the stream three-quarters of a century ago.

Three dredges, a hydraulic outfit and six setups, all of which employ about 60 men, are at work daily on Warren creek and are doing a paying business, Arthur Campbell, state mine inspector, said today, shortly after his return from a field tour of the district.

The activities are typical of those in other districts in which gold was found in earlier days in Idaho, he observed.

Modern equipment, improved transportation facilities, and the higher price of gold have inspired the quest that is on in this state for the precious metal," he said.

Warren creek is in the mountainous interior of the state, and the mining operations are mostly in Idaho county.

Chinese Worked Streams

The Chinese in the last decades of the past century were active in the district, and the dredges today are constantly uncovering evidences of their work, Mr. Campbell commented.

The inspector will leave July 1 to examine phosphatic rock and diatomaceous earth in southeastern Idaho, to determine whether some of it might be released by the federal government for use as fertilizer on Idaho farms, he said.

On his way back to Boise he will stop at Rexburg to attend the annual department convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

This team will compete with teams in Buhl, Piler and Pocatello during the summer months. The members of the Buhl Kiwanis club will be guests of the farmers in the Cassiford district at dinner in the near future.

DICKINSON'S DEATH BLAMED ON HOLDUP

New York Lawyer, Nephew of Chief Justice, Found Slain in Detroit

DETROIT, June 27 (AP)—Howard Cary Dickinson, New York attorney and a nephew of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, was found shot to death in a Detroit park here today. Police said they believed Dickinson, here on a business trip, had been slain by a hold-up man.

After Police Inspector John L. Navarre had completed identification of the body through a telephone conversation with Charles E. Hughes, Jr., two Detroit attorneys, Archibald Broomfield and George Strapp, viewed the body and verified the identification.

Detectives who searched Dickinson's room at the Hotel Cadillac today found no trace of a large sum of money they said they were informed Dickinson carried in a telegram to his brother, Parson, N. Y., Tuesday, he had advised her he was carrying "a large amount of money."

Police reported tonight that an unidentified woman had deposited a brief case belonging to Dickinson in a telephone booth at the hotel. The case contained an assortment of legal papers, but no money was immediately attached to it.

The body had been thrown from a moving car into soft earth along a deserted part of the road, the officers said. It bore two bullet wounds, one in the head and another through the chest.

The number of cases is multiplied by 42 to obtain the approximate number of persons involved, the 42 being the average number of persons in the family of each relief case.

It is the 16,767 work relief cases for which the WPA will assume responsibility.

Work relief cases in particular are dropping off at a comparatively rapid rate as a result of seasonal employment, Jacobson advised.

The actual number of persons on ERA rolls, who will be provided with work by the WPA, will be determined by conditions in private industry, it was pointed out, but it appeared to Jacobson and Hood that the total would not possibly exceed the number of present work relief cases.

District relief and work relief case loads respectively, on June 29 by counties were as follows:

80¢ of your gasoline dollar is spent

4 out of every 5 miles you drive are stop-and-go

Today's short trips waste your money—unless your gasoline has these Three Kinds of Power...

STOP-AND-GO driving gives you 2, 3 and EVEN FOUR MILES LESS per gallon of gasoline than long trips.

You often start your engine 15 times a day. Many of these starts are relatively "cold" starts. That's because the temperatures around your engine drop quickly each time the engine is stopped.

One short run from a "cold" start can use a "mile" of gasoline.

And so today's "short hop" driving—within 25 miles of your door—costs entirely too much—unless your gasoline has not merely one... or two... but THREE different kinds of power.

For economy, your gasoline must combine power for QUICK STARTING... power for HARD PULLING... power for STEADY RUNNING... and must combine them in perfect balance!

Super-Shell is the FIRST truly balanced gasoline. With its 3 kinds of power, it saves money 3 ways.

STARTING—With its even volatility, Super-Shell can save you to a cupful of gasoline on every "cold" start.

SHIFTING—Super-Shell can save up to a cupful in 10 minutes of hard pulling, or rapid accelerating, or on hills.

RUNNING—With its abundant heat units, it can save up to a cupful in every hour of steady running, motorists report.

Super-Shell is on sale at more than 30,000 neighboring Shell stations from Coast to Coast. Start saving money with it TODAY!

READY MADE WIFE

BY CORALIE STANTON

SYNOPSIS: Because she and her sister Gladys faced starvation and worse in Australia, Laurie leaves her home in Australia to find a husband in London. She attracts the favorable attention of Rex Moore, who is lost in the Pacific wastes as the war rages. He was blinded, and returns after two years, his sight recovered. Now he tells Laurie she must assume the obligation to preserve his job with Albery.

Chapter Eight BAD BARGAIN

"From our meeting last week, you must certainly not be kind of girl I'd pick out for a wife," said Moore.

"Then, why do you say I must go on pretending to be the flapper up to you?" Laurie asked. "You don't seem very quick on the uptake. Rather surprising, seeing that you were once a flapper. You must be one of these people, just try to get it this time. I let Albery think I had a job, and you are sure to tell him I didn't tell him I must be an impostor."

"But you can tell him now," Laurie said. "She never forgave me. He can't stand being fooled. He thinks a whole heap of himself under that quiet, silky way of his. As I've just remarked, I'm broke to the wide, and he has my money in his hands. He'd only blame me," she insisted. "It's I who have fooled him. It's I who'd get the sack."

"That wouldn't help me. Don't argue! You'll have to do what I say. I didn't know how right I was the other day when I said you were a woman taking a man's job. And I'm damned if I'm going to let you take mine."

"You're unfair, you're hateful!" there was a sob of rage in her voice. He was so deliberately insulting, so determined to hurt her, to make his own contempt for her as an unscrupulous adventurer. "What do you mean by taking your job?" "If you don't go on pretending to be my wife, you will take my job from me. Oh, how hard it is to get anything into her head! I supposed to be dead. I come back, I lie to Albery from the beginning, and she tells me she has a wife. He gives me her address. I say I am going to see her at once. He thinks a great deal of her. He congratulates me. He praises her work, her pluck. He tells me that I am to go back to my job, but he will be behind me. He was before. But, he says, we can talk about that later on. He is full of sympathy. I leave him to go away with his own ideas. "What would he think if I went back and told him I never had a wife, but I was behind me to see the girl who had played such a trick on us both? I'd never forgive me. I'd think I was either mad or I wanted to make him look a fool. I know how. I would finish me with him. Laurie had listened in stony silence.

"You say the same is set, Mr. Moore," she said coldly. "It is set for you."

"For you, too," he rejoined. "I'll finish you with Albery as well."

"I could get other work, I dare say."

"As you said just now, everybody would know that you were a cheat and a fraud."

"I don't know that I couldn't prosecute you and have you sent to prison."

"I'd risk that, too!"

"Look here, I didn't mean that, of course. If you're such a good woman, as Albery says, you'll be sure to miss-like. Don't you think you owe me something? Haven't you benefited a bit by passing as my wife?"

"I have," she admitted, and again the warm color flooded her pale cheeks with shame.

"You said something about it saving your sister's life. He spoke quite gently for him."

"Well, then, whether you like it or not, don't you think you owe me to go on with the farce, so that I can get on with my job?"

"She was silent for a few moments, looking at him with undugged antagonism."

"Are you sure it depends on me?" "Definitely," he answered. "Unwillingly, she was forced to agree with him."

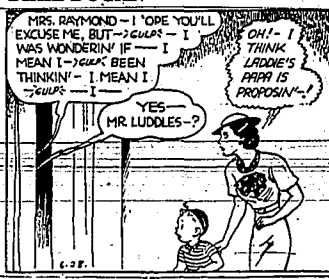

"How long would we have to keep it up?" she asked slowly.

"So you admit my claim on your gratitude? That's something." The mocking smile came into his eyes, and she stared back at him, and from the friction of that glance few sparks of very positive interest. "I suppose it depends on what happens how long we have to keep it up. We can't do, quarrel, and find we are not suited, and part. There's enough of that going on now to make it noticeable. After two years of that kind of association, you know."

"How she hated him, his bitterness, his cynicism!" "You can't like women so long as you say what you want it to be," she said. "I don't suppose I shall get in your way, Mr. Moore. I'll say good-bye."

"Why you did it. What drove you to it. Won't you tell me now? But Laurie was too angry to heed it. She threw up her head.

"I have told you all."

"His voice," she said brutally. "You are like most women. You get what you can, and you want, and when the time comes to pay, you don't like it and you squawk."

"With that he went out of the room, leaving Laurie to have to go down the rickety stairs. She heard the front door bang. The old house was not made for him. He looked a big in it. There was something unloved, fire about him. You felt that his home was in the night of a distant underworld, lost to her forever."

"No, she wouldn't tell him the truth. Wild horses wouldn't drag it out of her. She hated him too much. She was angry with him. She thought of those days in Sydney when her lovely little sister, a child for her years, had disappeared from their lodgings, and she had searched for her distractedly for days, and found her probably dead, had been snatched by a gang associated with their landlady."

"That, if Laurie had not by a miracle been in time, she would have been shipped off to some unknown destination and swallowed up in the night of a distant underworld, lost to her forever."

"That it was to cover their attempted crime that her landlady had accused her of theft. That she had been literally out of her mind when Glad went down with pneumonia, caught in some trap, and why her kidnappers had hidden her, and nearly died. That when deliverance came, and she was in the person of Mark Albery's friend, she had snatched at it - whatever the cost."

"No, she could say to him these things. He would not understand. He was cruel; he only cared for himself and his career. Let him think she had cut out of a sewer."

"She found - what she was looking for, a photograph of Rex Moore that she had cut out of a newspaper. The Rex Moore of more than two years ago. It was a good likeness, as if she had cut it out of a newspaper. She would never have known him from it. Not only had he a moustache, and looked much younger, but she was an eager, happy face, although the rugged strength was there; and the eyes were laughing kind."

ALEXANDRIA, Va., June 27 (AP) - Harry Gregory, 37-year-old painter, yesterday chose to serve a year in jail rather than feel the lash of a huge blacksnake whip.

Convicted of beating his three year old adopted daughter, Gregory was given his choice by Police Judge James R. Duncan.

Montana Salesman No. 1 Three-Gun Man

HELENA, Mont., June 27 (AP) - Gene Hardesty is the country's No. 1 three-gun man.

The small, quiet mannered Helena typewriter salesman to whom a Representative of the United States Rifle and Pistol Association today presented the "association's" marksmanship award, was revealed as having scored 472-500 with the revolver, 423-500 with the pistol and 298-250 with a pocket revolver in the year's target events, a 38 point lead over his nearest competitor.

And this section of the rugged northwest, where, not so long ago pistols were acceptable accoutrements in any society, also produced, for the second successive year, the country's best pistol team—among the novices, the Helena rifle and revolver club.

OLAGES DISCLAIMS MURDER OF FATHER

Mexican on Trial at Burley Says Aged Man Died as Result of Fall

BURLEY, June 27—Francisco Olages, accused in a first degree murder charge of beating his father, Pete Olages, to death on a farm near here in December, 1929, took the witness stand in his own behalf at trial in the district court here today.

He said his father died from a wound on the forehead caused by falling against the edge of a barrel of manure in the basement. He admitted digging a grave on the farm, but said that it was at the suggestion of his then stepmother, Mrs. E. Cavoros, who, he said, urged him not to notify officers because they were handling liquor and she feared arrest for moonshining. He said Esparanza helped him carry the body from the basement to the grave and assisted in the burial.

Olages' former wife, divorced since 1920, testified as a witness for the state at the first day of the trial yesterday that she saw Olages carry his father's body out of the basement after she had heard the sound of blows and groans in the basement shortly before.

Bones discovered

Murder charges were filed against Olages following the discovery this spring of bones that were assertedly those of his father in a field on the farm the Olages had occupied. These bones were admitted in evidence just before the state rested its case early this afternoon.

Mrs. E. Montoya and Mrs. Frances Perez testified that in conversations with Esparanza, Olages' wife at the time of the slaying, she told them that she went to the basement before Olages returned from Burley, found her father injured, and lifted him to a chair.

Olages, in denying any part in the slaying, testified that after lifting his father injured he had given him a drink of liquor, and he washed the blood from his face. He said that he went outside to attend to his horse and upon returning had found the aged man dead.

Northwest Mill Workers Vote On Ratification Of Lumber Strike Agreement

Executive secretary of the Oregon Federation of Labor, said that speaking for the labor movement in Oregon, I will say that the organized workers of the state endorse ratification and also welcome mediation.

Check-out of operating mills—estimated 100—both here and at Tacoma where troops were on guard. No Oregon troops have been called. More than 700 men employed—nearly 100—were reported working today at 10 Tacoma mills.

The agreement today brought withdrawal of pickets from the Vancouver Plywood and Veneer company where 40 men have been at work since Tuesday.

Major George A. Smitley of Tacoma issued a call for representatives and employers of lumber mills to meet here tomorrow for discussion of a possible settlement involving some 45,000 men.

A. W. Muir, a leader of the union men who participated in the Vancouver settlement, said the general situation looked "very, very good"—and indicated a "real settlement" might be forthcoming later.

More workers went back to the Tacoma mill already operating on a restricted but national guard protection. Limited operations were continued by five Portland mills which started on a "slow bell" schedule yesterday. Pickets have been watching the situation here.

Picketing was peaceful in all quarters today and no violence was reported.

Optimistic turn in the situation developed in spite of disapproval by some mill operators of the appointment of a mediation board by Secretary of Labor Francis Perkins with view to settling the long walk-out by conciliation.

Judge Uccietan Judge George R. Smith of Seattle, one of the three named by Secretary Perkins, said he was uncertain as to whether he could accept the appointment, saying "several things" would have to be ironed out.

Pushes Third Party

first, Union leaders declared to comment on the mediation board phase of the situation.

The agreement concluded today involved the Vancouver Plywood and Veneer company where 60 men have been at work since Tuesday. Muir signed an agreement with the manager, Dave Crockett, yesterday, but it was repudiated by the workmen today and no violence was reported.

Farm Girl Loses Dramatic Match To 'Texas Babe'

17-Year-Old Golf Sensation Gives Mildred Didrikson Greatest Game of Career in Women's Championship

By CHARLES DUNKLEY (Associated Press Sports Writer)
CHICAGO, June 27 (AP)—A 17-year-old farm girl, who climbed over her dad's back fence adjoining a golf club just three years ago to take her first lessons in the game, today provided the drama to the women's western open golf championship as America's 10 leading women professionals swept into the semi-finals.

The farm girl who still milks 32 cows a day is Mildred Didrikson, daughter of a truck gardener living on the outskirts of Chicago. She is the greatest game of her career until Miss Soucek was conquered in a 10-hole match to lose by a margin of one up.

Plays for Breaks
Miss Soucek, a determined, plucky, bubbly youngster, played more with her heart and head than she did with her clubs. The Texas Babe outdid her in long driving, but she paid no attention to the short game. Her breaks that carried her to the eighteenth hole all square with the lady girl from the Southwest.
