LAWMAKERS CALLED TO PROVIDE A WAY TO SPEED U. S. FUNDS

Legislature Requested to Revise Laws to Permit Use of Federal Money On Highways in Towns

(By The Associated Press) BOISE, July 1.—The Idaho state legislature will meet here July 8 at noon to enact legislation which will allow the state to expend hundreds of thousands of dollars in federal funds which cannot now be lawfully spent by the commonwealth on highway projects.

The proclamation calling the state lawmakers together was issued a noon today by Governor Ross, who announced that probably not more than two days will be required to complete the legislative task.

Seven-Point Call Five of the seven points in the call deal with highway legislation, the sixth asked for regulation of the business of "caravanning motor vehicles," and the seventh empowered a railway authority to make any necessary appropriation measure.

Highway department officials said that the state has about $1,200,000 allocated to it which can be used immediately if the present laws are amended to permit them to do so.

A decision handed down here a few weeks ago by Judge Charles F. Keeler in a federal court was the immediate cause of the proclamation.

Judge Keeler prohibited the state from carrying out its contract with the James J. Burke and company of Salt Lake City for construction of a railway route from Nampa at a cost of $1,500,000 in federal funds.

No Opposition Expected The suit was brought by a group of Boise and Idaho owners of property situated near the subway line. They contended construction of the project would devalue their property.

Those close to official circles said they believe the suit is a hindrance to the development of the highway program which will develop against the governor's special program.

Keeler's decision was based on the fact that the federal government under terms of the National Recovery Administration act and the recent works relief law.

Judge Keeler's decision prompted B. J. Finch of Ogden, Utah, district engineer of the U. S. office of public roads, to write C. O. McKelvey, state commissioner of public roads, on July 1.

This decision apparently makes it impossible for us, under present laws, to receive money from the state highway department in the construction of roads or grade separations within towns of over 2500 in population.

With the bureau questioning the contracts which are already under way in at least 15 towns and counties, it is believed that with respect to five towns in which

YOUTH SOUGHT AS TOURISTS' SLAYER

Searchers on Verge of Finding Secret Burial Place of Four Persons

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., July 1.—A headhunting party was sought tonight as police, national guardsmen and more than 1000 men, women and children viewed the ruins of a secret burial place of four Illinois tourists.

The month long search throughout New Mexico for Mr. and Mrs. George Lorus of East St. Louis, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heberer of Chicago, ended here today.

Paraphrasing their story, the investigators said that the tourists were killed by a man who was seen between Vaughn, N. M., and Albuquerque, probably the night of last May 22, by the best-drinking eye in the West.

Personal effects of the travelers, including clothing, were found there. The tourists were found in a cave, about 100 miles from the scene of the slaying.

The governor and police also have uncovered information the party stayed the night of May 21 at Vaughn, and that they were on the way to the west coast. Postcards were mailed, signed with initials of the party, from Albuquerque on May 23.

With the bureau questioning the couple was a beer bottle Lorus had an aversion to alcoholic beverages, and the fact that there was a certain none of the party drank beer.

Leaves Trail of Checks A similar check was discovered near the scene of an automobile accident May 23, not far from Socorro, N. M. Police believe the youth who was driving this car identified as the one belonging to Lorus in near the tourists' and then, killed them.

36 Braves Continue Dance Before Packed 'Ringside'

PORT HALL, Idaho, July 1.—While the squaw danced their wild chants to the shrill wailing of dancing brass and beating drums, 36 Indians continued their ritualistic sun dance in a shaded arena on their reservation here today.

Twenty-four hours after the annual dance began amid the howling white rain and the blizzards of rain for "ringside" seats, the "braves" sat all leaning back and forth in the arena and showing few signs of fatigue.

The ancient religious rite, which started at sunset yesterday, has been going on for the past several days. The dance is a part of the Great Spirit for health and strength.

Blind Men Dance Among the dancers were noted several veterans of the World War, who were carried to the dance by stretcher.

Prayers are made to a buffalo head on the central pole of the arena which symbolizes the Great Spirit. Women take no part in the dance, but help with the chanting and tend the children and the tent.

ACCUSED BY 'PARTY GIRL' SLAYED BY LAWYER CONFESSES

'He Wouldn't Put His Hands Up, and I Let Him Have It,' William Lee Ferris Tells Detroit Authorities

(By The Associated Press) DETROIT, July 1.—William Lee Ferris confessed late today, Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea said, that he killed Howard Carter, New York attorney, during a robbery which netted about $150.

Ferris' confession came quickly after Jean Miller, one of three "party girls" who testified that she saw the two men, had told the prosecutor that Ferris killed Carter.

The woman told McCrea that she and the other girls, Loreta and Florence Jackson, were "in that business picking up" a man who thought had money, getting them drunk and then rolling them.

'Wouldn't Put His Hands Up' "He wouldn't put his hands up, and I let him have it," Ferris told McCrea during his confession. "We got about $150."

Key Brothers Set Endurance Mark

Flying Brothers Land After 27 Days Aloft

All Air Endurance Records Smashed in Mississippi

MERIDIAN, Miss., July 1.—Fred and Al Key brought their plane, Ole Miss, to a safe landing at 6:06 p. m. (Central Standard time) today after breaking all existing endurance flying records by spending almost a month in the air.

The roar went up from 10,000 throats as the brothers made a perfect landing on the soggy field 27 days, five hours and 54 minutes after their takeoff on June 4.

The crowd surged around the plane and lifted the fliers from it. Fred and Al were greeted by their wives and children.

'It's been a hard old flight," said Fred.

Both Happy "I'm telling you, I ain't any fun, but we're both happy now," added Al.

J. D. Sellers, Mississippi governor for the National Aeronautics association, directing officials of the flight, immediately wired the association in Washington that a new record had been established.

'Al and Fred Key came down voluntarily at 6:00, establishing a record for endurance flying of 63 hours, 34 minutes," he telegraphed. "Pilots and equipment in good condition."

Sellers, the first person to reach the ship, immediately removed the biograph, an instrument showing the flight record.

Roosevelt Loses In House Rejection Of Utilities Death Clause

Leaders Revert In Part To Methods Of Old CWA

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, July 1.—A stunning defeat today by his House Democratic majority, a group of Democrats and Roosevelt returned to renewed efforts to write a legislative "death sentence" for "unnecessary" utility holding companies.

Immediately after the 216 to 146 house vote smashing down this cherished New Deal objective, Roosevelt conferred with Representative Rankin (D-Miss.), who then rushed back to the capitol to try to reach the party's base.

Counts on Roll Call Outwardly, Mr. Roosevelt's only comment, through a secretary, was an expression of hope that the "death sentence" bill would win a final chamber vote. At that time, a motion will be made to substitute the senate abolition bill for the house measure, and a roll call will be taken as was not the case today.

But despite Rankin's "confidence" in ultimate victory, it is estimated that Mr. Roosevelt may issue a statement seeking to rally his shatteringly forces, leaders looked for little change in the line-up. They estimated that "putting on the heat" for three weeks added barely a dozen Democratic votes to the 127 originally polled as favoring the "death sentence."

The 216 to 146 division today was the largest since the Republicans are outnumbered more than three to one. It was taken in an atmosphere made electric by an intense all-day campaign, exceptional bitterness in debate, charges of lobbying hurried against both the White House and interested parties, and warnings that Democrats crossing President Roosevelt's wishes would be called "traitors" in the polls.

Issues in Senate After the final ballot tomorrow the bill must go to conference with the senate. The issue there will be whether the senate and Roosevelt-approved provision to abolish "unnecessary" holding companies by 1942 should stand—it was this provision the house rejected today—or whether the house language leaving abolition discretionary with the securities commission should prevail.

EDUCATOR REJECTS POLITICIANS' RULE

Federal Commissioner Asks Aid Without Domination

DENVER, July 1 (AP)—A vigorous call for federal financial help in the cause of adult education without "pestiferous federal control" was sounded before the National Education association's 73rd annual convention today.

Addressing nearly 6000 delegates in the Flamingo municipal auditorium, J. W. Budebaker, federal commissioner of education, said: "I want educators, not politicians, to manage the education of adults."

His forum remarks preceded a night session at which Dr. Henry Lester Smith of Indiana university, president of the N. E. A., told the assembled teachers a three-fold responsibility is theirs.

Dr. Smith said the schools must help graduates to obtain employment, assume an even greater share of protecting the "moral welfare of school children" and coordinate education agencies to prevent "a loss in effective social service."

Not well schooled

Budebaker declared "we are not well schooled in the United States." In speaking at the forum on adult education, in which outstanding educators participated.

Budebaker called himself a "rugged individualist" and said he objected to pestiferous federal control of education in our communities.

"The federal government can distribute money from its wealth to finance forums throughout the country for education without objectionable federal control."

Budebaker said he did not "want to see politicians wandering around the country propagating those whom they regard as the concepts of our national life."

Fernand Hale, former N. E. A. president, admonished the teachers "to tell our masses of people to ask questions and when Huey Young says 'shut up,' don't you shut up."

YOUTH INJURED WHEN PISTOL DISCHARGES

Leslie Lincoln, 17, son of Ivan O. Lincoln, 138 Sixth avenue east, and Twin Falls high school athlete who was injured Sunday when a .27 caliber revolver accidentally discharged and the bullet embedded in the hip bone, was removed from Twin Falls county hospital to his home last evening.

The accident occurred at about 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning shortly after the boy's father had taken him and Ray Turner, another Twin Falls athlete, to his ranch near Nampa.

At the time of the accident Leslie was lying on the bed at a sheep camp inspecting the revolver and removing the cartridges after the two boys had spent a few minutes in target practice. Young Turner, in his excitement, fired the shot returned with Young Lincoln's sister, Mrs. Calvin Pickett, and found her lying on the ground.

He was brought to the hospital by Blinley Pickett, a neighbor, and X-rays were taken. The bullet was removed from the hip bone, having missed penetrating the abdomen—fraction of an inch. Physicians just might state that the scum of a heavy leather jacket he was wearing at the time diverted the bullet's course and probably saved his life.

Of that, $2,000,000,000 was set aside for the use of the stabilization fund.

THE HOUSE SPEAKS

Is the House growing more conservative than the Senate? Yesterday its members voted two hundred sixteen to one hundred forty-five against the passage of the Roosevelt endorsed utility holding company bill, whereas the bill was passed by the Senate some weeks ago.

The bill was designed to do away with the whole proposition of public utilities holding companies. It contained no reference to regulation of these. It provided for their complete elimination. It made no distinctions as between the good and the bad, the sheep and the goats. In the words of the President the bill constituted a "death sentence."

The vote is interesting from two angles. It denotes the unwillingness of the House to believe that all holding companies should be grouped, with the great financial structures which served to cloak the wholesale robbery of millions of small stockholders by money crazed "empire-builders"—and it indicates also a reaction against Presidential leadership which is unusual to say the least.

FOOLISH LAW

Of all the foolish features of Idaho penal law the most utterly insane is undoubtedly that which precludes the State Pardon Board from considering the penal record of an applicant for pardon prior to his current sentence. This means that an habitual criminal, with a string of prison terms over a period of years, has just the same rights when it comes to the matter of a pardon as has the unfortunate first timer with an exemplary record back of his single lapse.

This according to Bert Miller, Attorney General of Idaho and member of the Pardon Board which set at liberty the notorious William Mahan after the latter had served but a few years of his sentence. Mahan was and is an habitual criminal. Yet a fool law says the fact has no bearing whatever on the question of his eligibility for pardon.

There are two ways of correcting such a situation. One would be to enact a new set of laws governing such matters; the second to select a new set of Pardon Board members to enforce them. Both changes might be advisable.

FIRE CRACKERS

The younger generation may feel that it is somewhat unfair of us to object to a few weeks of firecrackers in the summer, since we seem to be able to stand the indiscriminate tooting of auto horns, the roar of mufflerless trucks, and the blaring of many loud-speakers the whole year around.

Perhaps it is unfair. But the stretching of Fourth of July fireworks over so many weeks as they are available has no excuse. If the youngsters are forced to save their firecrackers for the actual Fourth, they will have the added pleasure of looking forward to a lot of fun when they finally can use them. And they will find Independence Day to be a great occasion instead of an anticlimax.

It is bit of all the agitation for a "safe and sane Fourth," the day is becoming less safe and sane. The increased use of magnesium powder in firecrackers increases both the noise and the danger; and the inclination of youth (and some of their elders, too) to extend the celebration over the month of June seems to grow greater each year.

works are offered for sale to the Fourth and perhaps a day or so in advance. Or we might make a show of enforcement of laws regarding disturbance of the peace. Or we might even deprive the young ones of fireworks altogether, and let their great resourcefulness find other ways in which to enjoy life.

NOT THE DOLE SPIRIT

(Dolls McNeill) From Covington, Ky. the other day came a letter to the treasury department, short and to the point: "I was one of the work relief beneficiaries in 1933. I now return to you check for sixty-seven dollars and will send you the balance, forty dollars, in a few months. With thanks to the President and his supporters in the administration, I am, respectfully, —No one would grudge work relief or outright dole to the sturdy man in Covington, Kentucky. No one would grudge the dole, if the spirit were general. The letter speaks for itself as the man who accepted government aid as a loan in time of need and is paying it back as an obligation. The success of the relief plan to date depends on whether he is part of the majority, or of a small minority. In any event, the gentleman in Covington makes you feel that in his case relief was well worth while.

SALVAGING THE SUGAR CROF

(Chas. H. New) Here's another plan for enhancing the wealth of our nation. Representative Kenney, of New Jersey, proposes to seek a vote at this session of Congress on his plan to establish a national lottery. Thus, he declares, a billion-dollar-a-year would be taken away from the racketeers and gamblers. The presumption of Congressman Kenney is that the millions of dollars that would be bamboozled politicians can do it with less pain to the victims than when the game is left to professional racketeers.

—Our member serves us correctly, Attorney General Miller advocated some such procedure for Idaho through a license system relative to slot machines. But the legislature did not take kindly to his plan. Nevertheless, we may come to it yet. If suckers insist upon being caught—and a sucker is not a sucker when it does nothing—it may be but fair that politicians should fix the bait and do the catching.

IDAHO FREES 131 PRISONERS

(Idaho Falls Post-Register) More criminals have turned loose from the Idaho penitentiary than received since nineteen twenty-eight. This a startling statement, but records compiled and announced last week by a Boise newspaper show that since nineteen twenty-eight the Idaho pardon boards have released one hundred and fifty-one prisoners as compared with one thousand nineteen received during this period.

An example of the results of releasing convicts was given the nation recently when former Idaho prisoners kidnaped the Weyerhaeuser youngster. Of the one thousand one hundred fifty-one prisoners released in this time one hundred eighty-six have since found themselves back in prison, either in Idaho or in other states, the report says. This is a "repeater" record of approximately seventeen per cent.

Other figures given in the report show seven hundred and fifty-eight prisoners granted since nineteen twenty-eight, of which five hundred and seventy-seven have since been released. This is a "repeater" record of approximately seventeen per cent.

Paroles issued total one hundred thirty-seven, of which only six have been since nineteen thirty-one, the newspaper says. Two hundred and twenty-six prisoners were released during this time at the expiration of their terms.

Following is the newspaper report: The record shows: In nineteen twenty-eight, prisoners received one hundred forty-seven; pardoned thirty-nine; paroled fifty-eight; term expired thirty-two; reincarcerated, either in Idaho or elsewhere, thirty-two; since nineteen twenty-eight twenty-nine; for nineteen twenty-nine: Received one hundred twenty-nine; pardoned sixty; paroled fifty-eight; term expired fifty-one; total released one hundred sixty-six; reincarcerated thirty-one. For nineteen thirty: Received one hundred eighty-seven; pardoned one hundred twelve; paroled fifteen; term expired thirty-three; since released one hundred sixty-six; for nineteen thirty-one: Received one hundred sixty-one; pardoned twenty; paroled forty; term expired twenty-two; total released two hundred twenty-two; reincarcerated thirty-six. For nineteen thirty-two: Received one hundred seventy-three; pardoned one hundred thirty; paroled twenty; term expired twenty-five; total released two hundred thirty-eight; reincarcerated thirty-five. For nineteen thirty-three: Received one hundred sixty-six; pardoned one hundred thirty-seven; paroled none; term expired seven; total released one hundred seventy-three; reincarcerated none.

Those who go back to prisons seem to favor Washington state, for of the one eighty-six, a total of thirty-four are now held in Washington; eighteen in Oregon, twenty in Utah, twenty-one in California, twenty-one in Idaho, twenty-nine in federal prisons; eleven in Montana and the remainder scattered in nineteen other states.

Records from December, nineteen thirty-two, to May nineteen thirty-four, both months inclusive, show a total of two hundred fourteen prisoners received at the penitentiary, of whom forty-seven or twenty-two per cent had previous convictions. During this period two hundred sixteen prisoners were discharged. Of the two hundred fourteen received, one hundred ninety-one had admitted their guilt. Out of the total eighty-three were less than twenty-five years old when received, and one hundred nineteen of the two eighty-seven discharged were less than twenty-five. Only sixty-four of those received were residents of Idaho.

BREAKFAST FOOD

Smith—had a great streak of luck this morning. I found it in $5 bill and was told that it was Jones—Why, how could that happen? I thought you were married.

It was at a national convention of poets. "What inspired this dainty spring poem?" babbled a romantic girl. "I suppose it was coffee and sweet rolls?" "No," responded the man who had won the lightweight poetic championship of the Middle West. "When I'm good, all I need is a big chew of tobacco."

Old Senator—When anybody comes around talking about some theory you always endorse it. Young Senator—To do that? I don't endorse it than have it explained to me.

Rexford—I suppose you think I'm a perfect idiot? Roberts—Oh, none of us are perfect.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 2.—New York's greatest daily newspaper, the Daily Mirror, is daily dishing Mrs. S. Blawie Menken-She, the wife of a prominent lawyer and a blonde countess, as the inspiration for a hundred and one paragraphs in the fashion experts and society chatterboxes almost every week.

O. O. McIntyre

Her sartorial meter smacks so much of something of the nature of the highly pressured lady—indeed, she is a colorist, Joan Beebe Lucius Menken did not wear a single feather at the luncheon and she was warm and she came off in a Cape of Imperial Russian style. Her dapper, what!

Mrs. Menken, tall, willowy and middle aged, extends herself in the big, black, fur-trimmed coat, in almost every instance her outfit is the most brilliant—brilliant as an electric light. At a recent smart restaurant or night club openings she has the choice touch.

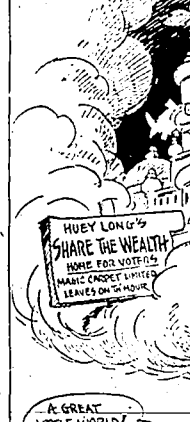

Her supply of jewels is for every occasion and she lustre in the most expertly lighted room. Her well chosen entrance cause every head to turn toward the doorway. She is usually escorted by her son. Her dressmaking bills are said to be larger than Mrs. Harrison Williams'.

New York has sudden touches of old world air. One may turn into 33d street between 8th and 9th avenues and come upon a French quarter, with a small cafe and a French cafe. There are family penitents, window-boxed families and Malsons, who take, that, Nana, knits on the door-step and bearded Papa smokes his pipe and reads his latest copy of Figaro. Children in long black gowns play at the curb. On Bleecker street, the old-fashioned barber shop of August Pinkpank. Instead of the usual glitter, the interior is pleasantly mellow. Shaving mugs with gold emblems are racked along the wall. A pull drawer is the money till. The shoe shiner is a veritable Uncle Tom.

Joan Bennett, Libby Holman and Betty Blawie have the same eye trouble. None can see a great distance and in the evening they wear lenses which cause them much grief. Wearing them, they are accused of being high-bred, and without, they are accused of never speaking of familiar. Oddly enough, all on the stage and screen live remarkably beautiful eyes and fortunately, many are sensitive about the difficulty. Indeed it's a source of much amusement.

Dramatic actresses for some reason are often afflicted with astigmatism. Nazimova and Bertha Kalich had to learn direction all over again when moving from one theater to another. Bernhard once said that in fact every everything was a blur. Lenore Ulric is also very near-sighted. Due could see well in daylight.

But artificial lights dulled her vision to an extent that she had to be rescued. There was Ben Welch who, during his last tragic years in vaudeville, was set out to perch before the curtain arose and wait through his humiliations. Few knew he was stone blind until his death. The former Fritz Widener is also in a fog without a longspoon yet to one of the most prodigious readers in the Social Register.

Likely no Atlantic liner purser has the "following" of the Normandy's Henry Willer. He has been successfully on the same job with the present post. He was a maritime avocet in Havre when he took to sea duty. An excellent seaman, his voice is a lilken purr and he has a way of bending over a lady's hand to touch it lightly to his lips that should be, if it isn't, in the curriculum of charm school. His greatest asset is never forgetting a name or face, plus his experience in bringing the right people together in the cocktail lounge while the ship is on its first leg. He is in his early 40s, Paris, he does not drink, and he never argues do not name his liner in discussing his voyage. They merely say: "I'm sailing with Willer."

The seasonal fad for darkly shaded shirts with collars to match—Bill Corum's is jet black—has made an all-white shirt almost a curiosity. The displays are in coffee-brown, Prussian blue, salmon pink, sea gray, and among every aprils a name or face, plus his experience in bringing the right people together in the cocktail lounge while the ship is on its first leg. From Seattle: "The last little Bob Davis has here he ordered a stack of holes, sized 'em with little pie spoons, leaped German fired, and poured syrup over the whole works." Go on. Don't mind me. Like to sob out loud this way.

Guiding Your Child

By ALICE CLARRISA RICHMOND

OBEEDIENCE IN BOATS.

The Smiths were rowing on the river. Tommy, who was eight, grunted at the monotony of the oar-stroke and started to move to another part of the boat. His father told him six times that Tommy was too eager for the change to pay any attention to the order. Without any further argument, his father headed the oar stroke. He handed the small boy and told him to walk home.

The penalty is not. Again and again something must be done to impress on children the principle of obedience when they are in boats. A captain's word is law. An oar-stroke and the sailor or passenger who disobey can be severely punished. Only by the sternest discipline can the safety of the boat be insured.

Unless children are taught to obey instantly and implicitly the person who is responsible for managing the boat should not be permitted to go on the water at all. Especially is this true if someone in the party is unable to swim. Again and again one sees accounts of boats capsizing and one child who could not swim being drowned. In the confusion of the unexpected docking each may think that the non-swimmer is being looked after by someone else.

It is an excellent scheme for children to learn early the need for organization and discipline where the boat is concerned. They should take pride in their efficient manning of a boat. If an older child is in charge, making it quite clear that the law is law. If he is unreasonable in his demands, the complaints and adjustments should be made on shore later on. Until then, crew and passengers must obey.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

(NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS) (Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

WASHINGTON By Ray Tucker INERT American business men seeking foreign markets are rolling with resentment against Dan Rogers, the politically-minded secretary of the National Chamber of Commerce, who has been pushing opportunities for development of foreign trade. With no real profit from him personnel and facilities useful to the industry have been set out in half Lighthouses, for instance, account for 20 per cent of his department's annual appropriation. His commercial pioneers are allowed only 8 per cent.

The secretary's lack of concern of business with a slowly rising demand for American goods abroad is also comes at a time when Secretary Hull is staging a drive to regain business in other countries. He may explain why the state department has assumed many duties handed over by Mr. Rogers' predecessors.

VELVEY, Harold Ickes and Jesse Jones are putting on an act which ought to be recognized by Hollywood commercial picture-makers. It is the "Art of Foreign Trading."

Secretary Ickes wants to bid $300,000,000 worth of military public works through the RFC. Of course he wants any profit which may accrue. But Broker Jones insists that the money should be used to pay for the construction of the dams of those which have gone temporarily sour. The estimated profit on the bonds is $10,000,000. The total value of these bonds is $100,000,000. They don't talk about it for nothing.

President Roosevelt, incidentally, has increased the value of Mr. Ickes' holdings. By using taxation of future income, he has made a fortune. He has boasted the price of the tax-exempt bonds in his hands. The secretary of the interior has his portfolio.

PROBLEM. Many firms which obtained government contracts before the supreme court's decision have decided to make a tidy and unexpected profit. Government lawyers are staying up nights to discover a solution.

These contract awards were based on code prices and code wages. They contained a clause requiring the contractor to abide by all NIRA provisions. But then came the court's blow. Now, if the contractor chafes, he is to be paid the market price for his labor. The difference will be so much "profit."

In some departments lawyers have held that the code provisions in the contracts are still binding, despite the court's ruling. In other departments there is a tendency to treat all new wages will be based on code hours, wages and conditions, however.

MODIFIED BANKING BILL GIVEN SENATE

Glass Sub-Committee Makes Drastic Revisions of Credit Control

WASHINGTON, July 1.—A compromise administration banking bill to redesign the federal reserve board along the lines of the supreme court and give it a modified form of control over the nation's credit was reported to the senate banking committee today by the Glass sub-committee.

Representing modification of the house-approved bill in its credit control and other features, the measure was described by Chairman Fletcher (D-75) of the whole committee as a "fairly good compromise."

Chairman Glass (D-76) of the sub-committee termed the new measure a "damn sight better than the house passed and predicted quick approval in the full committee. "It is better than I expected," the veteran Floridian commented after the committee had partially gone over the draft. He said the bill, under scrutiny by the sub-committee for two weeks, might be reported to the senate tomorrow.

Composed of three titles, the second—the heart of it—creates the departmental reserve board of seven. All would be appointed by the president for 14-year terms and all would stand on an equal footing with titles of "governor."

The Constitution—Battleground Again

3. Two Clauses, One Amendment Stand Behind Decision On NRA

The constitution has been thrust to the fore again by the supreme court's NRA decision. The debate over its provisions and whether or not they need changing indicates that the 148-year-old document may be a major "candidate" for "this year. This is the third and last article in a series discussing the history of the constitution.

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE (Associated Press Staff Writer) WASHINGTON, July 1.—Standing back of the supreme court's decision, which wrecked NRA and precipitated perhaps one of the greatest political crises in the nation's history, are two short clauses in the original constitution and one brief but potent constitutional amendment.

The first is in Section I of Article I which says: "All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a congress of the United States which shall consist of a senate and a house of representatives." The second is the famous interstate-commerce clause of Section 8, Article I, which says congress shall have power "to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states and with the Indian tribes."

The third is the 10th amendment to the constitution adopted in 1791 which states: "The powers not delegated to the federal government by the constitution nor prohibited by it to the states are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people."

The supreme court held that NRA was illegal because the codes related upon the unconstitutional delegation of legislative power to the president and because the attempt to regulate the purely internal commerce in interstate business was not a valid exercise of federal power.

While the power to control interstate commerce has been expanded steadily by congress and construed up continuously to perplex legislatures and courts. In the NRA case the supreme court pointed out that an obvious attempt was made in the recovery act to bring interstate commerce within federal control by showing that anything which affects interstate commerce is, in fact, commerce between the states.

But the court went on to assert that "in determining how far the federal government may go in controlling interstate transactions upon the ground that they affect interstate there is a necessary and well-established distinction between direct and indirect effects."

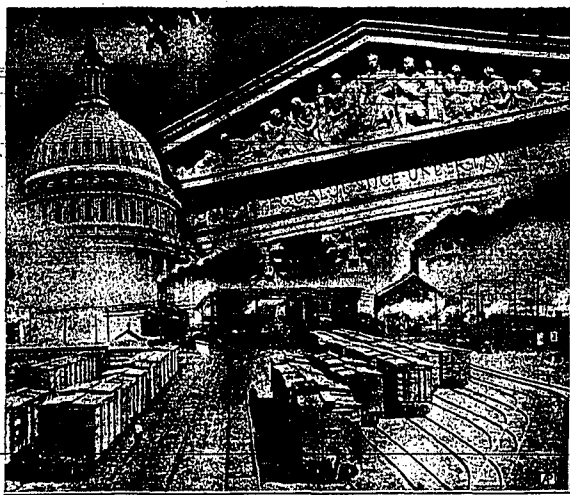

The high tribunal held that "where the effect of intrastate interstate commerce is merely indirect, such transactions remain within the domain of state power. The distinction between direct and indirect effects must be recognized as a fundamental one, essential to the maintenance of our constitutional system."

In the last half century there has been considerable expansion of the federal power to control interstate commerce. Railroad regulation which began with the states has tended to come almost completely under federal control. Great impetus was given this movement by the creation of the interstate-commerce commission in 1887.

Other important extensions of federal control over commerce were contained in the Sherman Antitrust act, the Clayton act forbidding price discrimination to lessen competition, and the creation of the federal trade commission designed to curb unfair methods of competition by citing business enterprises which indulged in such practices.

"President's Challenge" President Roosevelt said the supreme court's NRA decision presented this question to the people: Shall the federal government of the 48 states exercise jurisdiction over our social and economic problems?

Political adversaries have accepted that as "the President's challenge" and it has apparently has arisen a great issue over the constitution.

The federal government's power to control interstate commerce has been expanded by congress and construed broadly by the supreme court at times, but the principle that congress has no power to regulate the purely internal commerce of a state is accepted widely. The supreme court's NRA decision was based chiefly on the fact that the constitution says about interstate commerce. In the background above appear the capitol dome and the portico of the new supreme court building.

CONGRESS VOTES TO SPEND RECORD SUM

Outlay of More Than Eight Billions Approved During Fiscal Year

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Congress reached the end of one fiscal year Saturday with a record of having voted to spend $8,200,690,713, most of it in the twelve-months ending June 30, 1935.

At that the legislators had pruned $131,437,257 off the amounts originally requested by President Roosevelt and the budget bureau.

When the last gavel raps on the financial year sounded in congressional halls, 10 appropriations bills were on the statute books. Two more were in the mill and a third was due before adjournment.

Trouble in Spending By far the largest amount expended of course, was the $4,850,000,000 for war relief, which the executive branch is having trouble spending.

Next biggest was the measure making $603,635,678 available for the treasury and postoffice departments. Around a third of that will be used to pay interest on the all-time record public debt of nearly $29,000,000,000.

The administration's chief legislative national defense accounted for another $550,982,246. To the war department went $401,904,170; to the navy $246,684,370.

ROOSEVELT RETAINS OLD LABOR BOARDS

Operation of Wagner Bill Indicated in Executive Action

WASHINGTON, July 1.—President Roosevelt today extended for a month the life of the old labor relations board, apparently intending to use it in settling up machinery for operation of the Wagner labor dispute bill.

The Wagner measure, sent to the house last week, has been under study by legal and other advisors of the government departments concerned, and has not yet been signed by the president.

Although the old board has nevertheless held any hearings for handed down any decision since the supreme court wiped out NRA codes and their collective bargaining guarantees, it has nevertheless been kept intact.

Today's extension would carry the old board through August 1, although board officials predicted Mr. Roosevelt would sign the Wagner bill and start the reorganization within a few days.

The Wagner bill would guarantee labor's right to bargain collectively, outlaw company dominated unions, and give the labor organization chosen by the majority of employees in a plant the right to speak for all the employees.

Two other agencies—At the same time, the president continued the steel and textile labor boards indefinitely. These boards are to be blanketed into the labor department, to act as mediators in steel and textile labor disputes and to study labor problems in those industries.

Meanwhile, on another labor front, virtually all the steel and industry accepted the United Amine Workers offer to call off the strike set for today and to continue present wages and hours through July 31. However, Poochontas and Tug River producers from southern West Virginia resisted the move to President Roosevelt.

John L. Lewis, president of the mine union, ordered the strike Saturday after weeks of negotiations with the producers collapsed. Later the same day he called off the walk-out at Mr. Roosevelt's request.

Drive far—drive fast —without a worry!

With Conoco Germ Processed Oil in your crankcase, you KNOW the strain won't hurt your motor!

Tests prove this new alloyed oil has 2 to 4 times greater film strength than plain mineral oils and resists heat better!

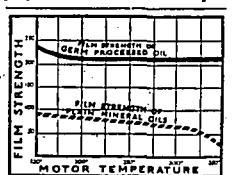

On July 4th or week-end and vacation trips, you'll want to drive far and get there in a hurry. And you don't want that nagging worry of "I wonder if this speed and heat will hurt anything in my motor."

You can't always be sure when you use plain mineral oils, for they have little film strength and oils over-refined by new cleaning processes have even less. Moreover, as motor heat goes up, these oils rapidly lose film strength.

Film strength is the load-carrying ability of an oil, the quality that keeps bearings and cylinders from wearing out. Lack of film strength results in costly damage.

You can drive without a worry when you use Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil! It has 2 to 4 times greater film strength than any plain mineral oil. Heat does not lessen this advantage.

Supervised road tests—over good and bad roads, at low and high speeds, in all kinds of weather—give practical proof that Germ Processed Oil protests motors better. In every test, gravimetric measurement of motor bearings showed that Germ Processed Oil prevented wear far better than plain mineral oils. Tested in a fleet of cars equipped with the new alloy-metal bearings used in many 1935 cars, a high-quality plain mineral oil permitted 45% more wear on connecting rod bearings than did Germ Processed Oil.

CONOCO GERM PROCESSED MOTOR OIL PLAIN MINERAL OIL

HERE'S THE PROOF Note that as heat increases, the plain mineral oils continue to lose film strength, but that above 225° (Minimum Summer crankcase temperature) Germ Processed oil's film strength is not affected by heat. Tests made with Timken machine.

Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil is the first alloyed oil—alloyed, much as metals are, by adding concentrated oily essence to highly refined oil. It is the only oil made by the Germ Process. It is the oil with the "Hidden Quart" that stays up in your motor and never drains away!

Say "O. K.—Drain"—fill with Germ Processed Oil. Drive far—drive fast—without a worry!

TRIAL DISCLOSES BANK SACRIFICES

Hollister District Brings Hearing on Claims to Conclusion

Heavy sacrifices made by some individuals in unsuccessful efforts to keep banks afloat were placed in the records at trial in the district court here yesterday in a suit that Hollister independent school district brought to recover approximately $5000 that assertedly was lost to the district by reason of alleged misapplication of funds by A. P. Craven as treasurer for the district and as cashier of the Bank of Hollister which failed February 13, 1932.

Named as defendants in this action besides the former bank cashier and school district treasurer, were his bondmen, the Fidelity and Deposit company of Maryland, and officers and directors of the bank, and the state commissioner of finance in charge of the Hollister bank affairs.

One of these former bank directors, William Hoops, Twin Falls road contractor and hotel owner, testified on cross-examination yesterday that he had lost between $25,000 and $27,000 in the failure of the Hollister bank, and that his losses included $10,000 payment to Twin Falls Bank and Trust company on account of a note given by the Hollister bank of which he had no knowledge when he was persuaded to become a stockholder of the latter institution and to maintain $10,000 average deposit in it.

A previous hearing in this action was continued when the school district's attorney, Turner E. Hackman of Twin Falls, was permitted to introduce in the district's exhibits the exact words of a charge in the state finance commissioner's correspondence to the effect that the former bank cashier had misapplied some $1400 of the bank's funds.

During yesterday's hearing, District Judge Adair B. Barclay twice overruled defendant's motions for non-suit. The case finally was left for decision by the court, counsel for the school district being granted until September 1 to file a brief, with a 30-day period to follow for defendant to file reply briefs.

Two witnesses, A. B. Wheeler and Fred Klumeyer, school district clerk, testified for the district at yesterday's hearing. Witnesses for defendant were former directors of the Hollister bank, Bryan Glavin, now agent for the commissioner of finance; W. W. Fowell, Chester E. Erskett and William Hoops.

His attorneys appeared at the hearing as counsel for defendant. They were W. Orr Chapman of Twin Falls; Frank T. Wyman of Boise; J. W. Porter of Twin Falls; E. P. Parry of Twin Falls; Frank L. Stephen of Twin Falls; J. R. Bothwell of Twin Falls.

The meeting here is the fourth of a series of others having been held at Idaho Falls, Pocatello and Burley.

NURSERY SCHOOL HAS NEED FOR VEGETABLES

With a 10-month-old child as the youngest "pupil," the IERA Nursery school has opened for the summer season, under the direction of Mrs. Kathryn McGill. The school is operated in the annex adjacent to the Lincoln school, and young children are being enrolled for the summer months. Many of the children are under two years of age, and few are older than three.

Shoes, dresses and other items of clothing are needed for the "toddlers," according to Mrs. McGill. Those caring to make donations may take them to the school or communicate with Mrs. McGill through the IERA office. Fresh vegetables to maintain a balanced diet for the children are also needed, and donations will be appreciated.
