KIMBERLY-FARMER HELD FOR SHOOTING OF FORMER WIFE

Bertsch Brown in County Jail Juanita Murray Dangerously Wounded Both of Pioneer Stock

Son of a pioneer southern Idaho sheriff, Bertsch Brown, 30, of Kimberly, was held in the county jail here last night after an assault on and dangerous wounding of his former wife, Juanita Murray, 21, daughter of southern Idaho pioneer settlers, who became his bride last December 24 and who divorced him last year on grounds of alleged cruelty.

Shot through the abdomen and through the left arm, the young woman had a "fair" chance for recovery, according to attending physicians. She was conscious last night, but county authorities decided to walk until morning for her statement regarding the shooting.

Shooting Unintended Brown made no statement, officers said, except that he did not intend to shoot his former wife when he began talking with her in the Arnold grocery at Kimberly late yesterday afternoon. The coroner, officers were told, continued work about a half hour and terminated the shooting when it occurred shortly before 6 o'clock.

Officers learned that Brown had purchased the gun, a .38 caliber Smith & Wesson, in the afternoon. Proprietors of the store, Wesley Arnes and Arthur Arnes, grappled with Brown after the shot was fired, and the latter wrested the gun from Brown's grasp and pointed the muzzle at the man who the former ran to summon a physician.

Needless of the weapon in the merchant's hand, officers were told, Brown lunged at the store and struck him on the head with it, rendering him unconscious. Williams, a physician from Twin Falls, took the wounded woman to the hospital in Twin Falls, while Brown, in a commandeered Klondike, was taken to the hospital before she arrived there. Examination at the hospital indicated that she was in a serious condition.

Getting to Be a Habit—ALTOONA, Pa., July 15.—Five-year-old William E. H. Smith, 11, was again yesterday for the 13th time. His mother, Mrs. Samuel Ebb, left the boy in the rear of the family car as she went into a store to shop. Upon her return William cried: "Where's the boy? He's gone." She was brought to an Altoona hospital where it was found the child was hooked to the car by the neck and the hip. His condition is not serious.

Physicians say the child's bones are in a fair state, but a lack of calcium in his body. While at a Philadelphia hospital last week, a doctor told the child's mother that he had a chance of a child and his leg. His sister, Susanne, 4, suffers from the same affliction. She has broken an arm once and a leg three times.

Out of Furnace—SPOKANE—A 3-month-old baby found near death in a sedan that had been burned almost to oven heat by the sun, was recovering at his home here yesterday. The baby was found in the car by his mother, who called the sheriff's office. He was taken to a hospital and treated for heatstroke.

Tempered Justice—SAN FRANCISCO—Albert Taylor, 30, an unemployed butcher, was arrested in police court yesterday on charges of assault on a woman, battery, and carrying a dangerous weapon. Taylor was charged with striking a woman on the head with a hammer and carrying a dangerous weapon.

Russia's Custom Of Mixed Nude Bathing Assailed

MOSCOW, July 15.—Mixed nude bathing, long practiced in Soviet Russia, has fallen into official disfavor as "offensive to the dignity of Soviet citizens." An example was made today in the case of the manager of a cool mill in the town who instructed employees of both sexes to bathe together, and, objecting to the presence of a dividing wall in the public bath, called modestly "a prejudice of the old bourgeois days."

WHITE HOUSE AND CONGRESS QUARREL

Tariffs, Taxes and Liquor Control Lead to New Disagreement (By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, July 15.—Congress members and the administration quarreled today over tariffs, taxes and liquor control.

A proposal for immediate adjournment also came from the floor of the house, to be greeted by cheers that echoed out into sultry mid-July air. The tariff trouble flared up during course of Senate debate on legislation to bolster and broaden activities of the agricultural adjustment administration. It involved the recently concluded Russian trade negotiations, which already had come in for critical talk in some Capitol hill quarters.

Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) introduced an amendment to the AAA bill which would repeal the reciprocal feature, beyond which the administration's tariff bargaining operations. Complaint had been voiced against other things the treaty would do, such as opening tariff doors to manganese, used by steel producers and produced in some sections of the United States.

The house, in which sharp words already had been heard for the administration's "brain trust," set its own agenda to work during the drafting of the tax legislation recommended by President Roosevelt. His own prediction, however, an attempt would be made by a group of Republicans to write into the bill features unwelcome by Mr. Roosevelt.

Liquor Now Renewed Secretary Morgenthau's disagreement with the house ways and means committee over a liquor control agency to replace the old federal alcohol control administration, was bounced up again. The committee voted to permit liquor sales in bars and hotels, but subject to restrictions notwithstanding Morgenthau's assertion it would take an "army" to enforce federal regulation under those conditions.

While the new agency was independently being set up, the committee had tossed aside his demand the new agency be independent. The bill, however, was laboring over tasks already before it, word came the president wanted a pure food and drug bill passed. The Copeland bill already has passed the senate and is pending in the house.

Mahan, Fugitive Kidnaper, Hunted As Bank Robber And Slayer Of Officers

RIOT STICKS AND TEAR GAS BREAK UP STRIKE GROUPS Chief and Patrolman of Puyallup Police Department Killed During Chase Along Washington Highway

Posse Follows Trail of Gunman (By The Associated Press) TACOMA, July 15.—Two police officers were shot to death by a robber shortly after he held up the Orting State bank; and a posse trailed the slayer on the possibility he may be William Mahan, fugitive in the Weyerhaeuser kidnaping.

The victims were Chief of Police Frank Chadwick and Patrolman Harry W. Storem, both of the police department of Puyallup, a neighboring town. Department of justice officials admitted it was possible the robber slayer was Mahan, although they did not take the report seriously.

At Point of Gun The man held up the Orting bank shortly after noon. Leslie Stone, bank teller, was snatched up to the window, pointed a gun and ordered him to "hand it over!" Stone gave him about $500 in currency and the robber boldly walked out of the bank 10 miles southeast of here, and jumped into an automobile.

Mahan, before he took to kidnaping and allegedly became the "brains" in the abduction of 9-year-old George. He was the son of the wealthy lumber family, was known to be a bank robber. He is sought for about $200,000 in ransom. Chief O'Neal was declared to have a "fishing chance" to live. The victim, J. J. McCabe, was believed dead.

Corroborated in Corral Chamberlain, self-styled "Santa Rosa two-gun man and outlaw" on cards he had printed several years ago, began his orgy of gunfire ascribed to resistance and help, by cornering McCabe in a corral. As fired four bullets into the man's body.

Leaving McCabe for dead, Chamberlain got into his car and drove to the city. He stalled into the police station and, again brandishing his weapons and shouting, shot O'Neal. The officer fell with two bullet wounds in the abdomen and another in the leg.

Bill Hirlinger for revenge, Chamberlain left the station and called "now for Patton!" witnesses said. A few paces down the street, Chamberlain confronted his quarry. "Are you Sheriff Patton?" he exclaimed, swinging his six-shooter into position.

"No," the sheriff said, and lunged at the apparently crazed man, Chamberlain fired once, inflicting a powerful arm on the right side of the face. After a few moments of fierce grappling and with the assistance of two brothers, Chamberlain knocked the old man unconscious.

He was locked in county jail and later released on parole pending the death or recovery of his victims. Officers Investigate Fourth Feud Slaying LONDON, Ky., July 15.—Two brothers were held in jail here today while Sheriff B. R. Mason pushed-an investigation into the fourth open gun battle in a town less than a month in the eastern Kentucky hills.

Blind Man Held As Girl's Slayer BOSTON, July 15.—Forest R. Weston, 30, blind musician, faced a murder charge tonight for what Police Inspector Harry Pierce said he described as "an act of mercy" in the killing of a nearly blind sweetheart by her death from a hotel window.

BODY OF ACCIDENT VICTIM AT BURLEY

BURLEY, July 15 - The body of Mrs. Myrtle Tiley, wife of Henry Tiley of Burley, was brought to the D. E. Johnson mortuary here today from Lovell, Wyoming, where she was killed in an automobile accident.

A piece of paper - milderewed and yellow from exposure to the elements - was last night brought to light indicating that William Mahan, public enemy No. 1 who is still at large following the recent kidnaping of George Weissenhauer at Tacoma, may be hidden in Rock Creek canyon near here following the "snatching."

The paper, apparently a note from Mahan to Harmon Waley, already convicted of the crime, is addressed "Harmon and signed Mahan."

In a crude scrawl resembling a child's handwriting the note said: "Harmon - am settling here in Twin Falls for about a month. Go on to Salt Lake if they get you or any of the gang don't squeal Mahan."

The paper was taken to Twin Falls police station last night by a small boy who reported that he had found it in "the canyon."

FEDERAL SPENDING PROGRAM OUTLINED

State Director Explains Operation of Work Relief Projects

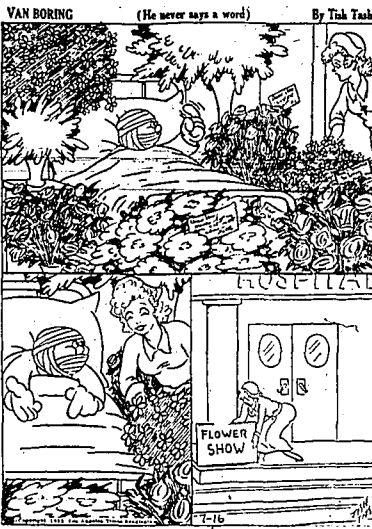

W. T. Lockwood of Boise, Idaho director of the national emergency council, addressing a group of 16 Twin Falls business men and civic leaders at Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce directors meeting at luncheon yesterday, outlined ways and means by which the federal government expects to distribute Idaho's allotment of a lately authorized $4,000,000 work relief appropriation.

A portion of this allotment already has been made available, he said, for a white pine blaster trap campaign in which 1000 men are to be employed, and for forestry operation in which 600 to 800 men are to be employed.

Avenues of Expenditure
In addition to some 60 previously established governmental agencies through which portions of the federal appropriations are to be expended, federal funds are to be disbursed also through the public works administration, the new works progress administration, Mr. Lockwood said.

Designed with view especially to putting men to work WPA is to finance the major share of the cost of projects in which not more than 10 per cent of the total expenditure is to go for machinery and materials, Mr. Lockwood explained. A tentative wage scale for WPA projects on a basis of a 130-hour month gives common labor, $14; semi-skilled labor, $20; skilled labor, $28, and technical labor $29.

In PWA projects, the federal government is to make an outright grant of 43 per cent of the total cost, and will lend the remaining 55 per cent to the sponsoring municipal body for 15 years at a four per cent interest.

MUST MODERNIZE, LIBRARIANS TOLD

Duties to Restless Youth Pointed Out at National Convention

The ideal of the library is to provide all kinds of things available to all men" was the theme stressed at the national meeting of the American Library Association at Denver, according to Miss Jessie Frazier, Twin Falls librarian, who spoke at the session. Miss Frazier said that the speakers also emphasized the fact that all literature, no matter how extreme of the government it advocates, has a place on the library shelves.

"The essence of democracy is free exchange of ideas," was another thought emphasized. "How can we tell what is radical and what is not?" the question was asked, and answered with this thought: "Almost all of our great literature was at one time considered dangerous to the national health."

Emphasis was also placed on the library's responsibility to youth according to Miss Frazier, who said: "The library advocates sacrifice to assist youth. Young America is on the move. The library must make some sacrifice to help catch up with the restless youngsters, dangerously cut off from the main stream of society. Not only must we educate these youngsters, but must also entertain them to the limit of our ability, we determined at the convention."

Newbery Prize Award

This year is the hundredth anniversary of the foundation of the Newbery Prize, which is awarded annually for the best children's book published in the United States. The prize, named for John Newbery, a London bookseller, has been awarded annually since 1822. The prize is presented to the author of the best children's book published in the United States in 1934, estimated to be one hundred million.

Particularly significant this year is the awarding of the Newbery Prize during the convention to Monica Shannon for the best children's book of the year. This book, charmingly illustrated with a touch of the foreign, is now on the shelves of the local libraries.

Shannon has lived all her life in the California mountains and is especially noted for her "fear for the natural world, her soul yearning for luxury but feeling for beauty and for freedom. The story centers about a brilliant personality who lives within the traditions, close to the nature that sustains them. Hobby, a young boy, is the principal character. The excellent illustration, now in its second year and sold for $2.50, has been awarded to the author.

Idaho Tomorrow ROXY TO PRESENT NEW MYSTERY FILM

The mystery of Edwin Dreed, the most mystifying of mystery stories has been booked for showing at Joe R. Ross' Rex Theatre tomorrow, commencing tonight, the "Trade at Home" Pay-Off program. Claude Rains, the famous "Invincible Man" has the leading role, that of a sinister chess master.

Those who have seen the film declare it to be a picture the like you sitting on the very edge of your chair from the opening scene to the dramatic and spectacular ending when the mystery is solved. Four of Hollywood's best-known writers, Leopold Atlas, Bradley King, John L. Balderston and Gladys White, did the screen play, and one of the most successful directors in pictures, Stuart Walker, directed. The film has been produced on a grandiose scale, that has involved some of the largest sets that have ever been constructed for a picture.

Supporting Claude Rains is a cast of big names, such as Beverly Hills in the picture. Among them are Douglas Montgomery, Heather Angel, David Manners, Valerie Hobson, Frances G. Sullivan, E. E. Clive, Harveyn and Walter Kinsler.

"Dread" closes at the Rex tonight.

READY MADE WIFE

BY CORALIE STANTON

SYNOPSIS: Rex Moore has come home from a dangerous flight over Africa to find that Laurie, the girl who is pretending to be his wife in order to save his life, is fleeing with Mark Albery. She employs both of them. Rex is telephoned by Wanda Steele, a woman to whom he owes a great deal of money. Mrs. Steele's generosity has saved Rex's life, but she wants more for love than gratitude. She wants love.

Chapter 24 THE MEETING

It was news to Rex Moore that Laurie and her sister had spent the week end at the Albery house in the country. Well, why not? Albery was evidently in love with Laurie, and when they parted, he and she went to Albery would no doubt marry her. And it would be a great match for her and a splendid life.

"What had it gone to do with him? She would have done very well out of being his widow for two years. He stifled an angry laugh, as he thought to go.

But he was going to do very well out of it, too. He was going to get everything he could out of Albery. This flight, after two years, had been like the taste of blood to a tiger, and it was only through Albery that he could continue his career.

Laurie was alone in the sitting-room when Rex came back.

"Glad you got me out here," she said. Her voice was cold, but she took an involuntary step forward, as her eyes met his. "You must be glad to see me."

"I'm sorry I didn't think of it," he answered. His voice was rough. "I'd almost forgotten that your sister was coming. I must do the proper thing. But, after all, it will make things easier for you for her to be with the first that I'm an unmanly booby!"

Her voice was from the first. "I've had enough of it. You've covered your eyes with glory again, haven't you? Mr. Albery thinks the world of you. Your position with him is quite safe. We can make an end of this. You seem to think of nothing else."

"That was the last question you asked me before I went to Africa," he reminded her. "You seem to think of nothing else."

"Why should I? It was our bargain."

"Yes?"

"And then, all in a moment, he looked at her, and she was quite different. She was not the same girl. He could not explain it, but he did not understand. But for the first time he saw her blue eyes, soft and dark, like sapphires, and her glossy chestnut hair, and he knew that she was beautiful, desirable, wonderful. And he said to himself, "I don't want to make an end of it!"

His eyes held Laurie's, and, strangely enough, it was the same with her. She saw him for the first time, his strength, the fine, lean point of his head, the deep, compelling gaze of his grey eyes, the sudden pulsating humanity of him when he smiled. She saw him, splendid, wonderful—the most wonderful man in the world.

And she said to herself—What the matter with me? He hasn't changed. He's Rex Moore—the he! He's the Rex Moore I dreamed of. I don't hate him any more. I want to be close to him. I want to stay with him. I don't want to go away."

And because a woman is always more frightened when she discovers that she loves a man than a man is when he discovers he loves a woman, Laurie suddenly gave a stifled little cry and hurried to the door.

"I'm tired—I've got a busy day tomorrow. Good-night!"

He put out his hand, but she brushed past him. She was slinking in every limb. She was terrified, trembling down, when he would pick her up and he would be lost.

"Oh, Laurie, I've got a lot to tell you."

"Why, even his voice was new! It was warm; it drew her to him; it stole round her heart. But there was only one thought in her mind—to hide his madness from him.

"Tomorrow, I'll do it," she called out lightly. "Honestly, I'm tired. We can talk much better in the morning."

Through the lone, sleepless hours of the night Laurie said to herself, "I must be mad. I can't be in love with him. I shouldn't be. What would he think? How he would laugh! It would just appeal to his cruel sense of humor that I should end up by falling in love with him! It will be all right in the morning. I'll comfort myself. It must be this ridiculous artificial life. Of course, it's all rubbish. My nerves are in a flutter. When I wake up, there's Mrs. Steele waiting for him. Of course, he'll marry her. What can she do for him? Her money? He'll be quite independent of Mr. Albery—of everybody. The first thing he did when he got back was to go to see her.

And so on, and round and round in a circle, the same thoughts, all merging into the memory of Rex Moore's voice that had suddenly caught her heart, saying—"But Laurie, I've got a lot to tell you!"

Rubbish! What could he have to tell her?

And Rex Moore it was different. To begin with, he was physically and mentally exhausted after his arduous flight, and he slept quite a good deal.

And when he did wake up next day, and especially after dawn, his thoughts did run on something that was like a stab in the heart, although he was not so shattered as she was by the discovery, but more angry with himself.

"I might have made a fool of myself," he reflected. "What ever would she have thought? That I was crazy, no doubt, I think I am. But there it is. I believe I'm in love with her. How ridiculous! She hates the sight of me."

And so on and so on, the same thoughts, all merging into the memory of Laurie's face, seeing it so close to his, the soft blue eyes, the loveliness of the little trembling smile, the sudden appeal to his heart, like a stab in the heart.

And then he took her in his arms. And then the blanket when she hurried out of the room, with light, careless words of rebuff like a slap in the face.

Well, anyhow, he hadn't given himself away.

Presently, he was splashing in his cold bath, and he thought to himself, "What a day on the list of the articles for the American newspaper!"

He had written all the other while of his trip, waiting for the return of a letter, in a missing airman. He had had no sleep for two whole nights. When this one was written, he reminded her to pay back half the money Albery had lent him. That would give him a freer hand.

As to Wanda Steele and his debt to her, he would have to find some way of settling that.

His discovery that he had fallen in love with the girl who was supposed to be his wife, therefore, had undoubtedly altered his outlook on life, but it had not altered his world, as was to be the case with Laurie.

Laurie came into the dining-room when Rex had just finished his breakfast. She looked very smart and cool in her neat dark blue office attire, and she seemed to be in high spirits, although her eyes had a somewhat fixed expression.

Gladys had gone to rehearsal in Flushing Park, where they were opening in another week's time. While they were in the nearer suburbs, she was staying in the flat, but later, when they went farther, the troupe would have to live in lodgings again.

Laurie had had her breakfast with her sister an hour ago. Rex had been for a run around Baterson Park before she came to him. "Well, you said we could talk better in the morning," he said. "Have you time now?"

"If you like, I am not due at the office for three-quarters of an hour."

That touched him on the raw, as from time to time every reference to his association with her employer must do.

"I understand you had something you wish to discuss," he said gravely.

His voice and manner reminded her of the man in the train the first day they had met. And it came to her now that from that moment the spark had been struck from her being that was now alight and that made her furious and miserable at the same time.

Yes, it was true. Morning hadn't changed it. She wasn't mad, he mattered more to her than anything in the world.

noon. Punch and cookies were served. Mrs. Lutzen was formerly Miss Myra Grose of Hazelton. She was married to Harold Lutzen of Idaho Falls on July 1. The young couple will make their home at Idaho Falls.

Friendship club met at the home of Mrs. E. W. Brum, Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Drake, president, called the business meeting to order. After the business meeting, Miss Margeline Clements, district demonstrator, presided over the social hour demonstrating an informal tea and also how to arrange table flowers for different occasions. Open faced sandwiches, cup cakes and punch were served.

The regular meeting of the Good Will club was held at the home of Mrs. Dawson Raine, Wednesday afternoon. Games in the form of a guessing contest furnished the afternoon's entertainment, after which refreshments were served.

Miss Helen Wylie, instructor at Stanford university, Miss Lucena Berryman and Miss Wilma Lacey of San Francisco, who are enroute to Colorado by way of Yellowstone park, were visitors at the George P. Wylie home last week.

Mrs. Martha J. Mangel, contract manager of the Hazelton Telephone exchange, left Sunday morning for Los Angeles where she will spend two weeks visiting her daughter, Mrs. T. L. Wall and Miss Anna Mary Mangel. She was accompanied by her son and daughter-in-law.

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Mangel of Twin Falls. Miss Frances Ward will be in charge of the telephone office during Mrs. Mangel's absence.

"I Had No Idea Electric Water Heating Was Such a Blessing"

... And It's So Economical

Under the New Low Rates...

"When I stop to think of all the fuss and bother we used to go to for the sake of hot water and the uncertainty of our old-fashioned method I wonder how we ever got along.

"What a change since we installed an Electric Water Heater. Our water-heating troubles are over for all time. It certainly is a blessing to have hot water whenever you want it, any hour of the day or night—and without the slightest attention to the equipment. It's simply marvelous!"

The problem of hot water is completely and economically solved by an Electric Water Heater. Direct application of heat to the water by the heating unit does away with radiation. Through insulation keeps heat from escaping to surrounding air. Automatic operation keeps water at desired temperature. We connect it, you forget it. Whether you are away or at home it's perfectly safe.

American League's Veterans Stage Amazing Comeback

Grove, Bluege, Lyons, Lazzari And Sewell Show Old-Time Form

Chicago White Sox Right-Hander Blanks Yankees to Chalk Up Tenth Win And Tipten Pennant Race

By DILLON GRAHAM
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Who says they're washed up, chorus Lefty Grove, Ossie Bluege, Ted Lyons, Tony Lazzari and Luke Sewell. They're among the American league comebacks of 1935.

Enjoying one of his best seasons, Lyons, the veteran Chicago right-hander, shut-out the Yankees Sunday to score his tenth victory and make a closer battle for the American league pennant. One more triumph and Ted will equal his total wins in last year. He's lost only three games.

Outhits Former Now.
Ossie Bluege, the classiest fielder the majors have ever seen, apparently was through when he went south to the Washington training camp last fall. A heavy hitting youngster had ousted him from third base and he was ranked third in the series in the regular position. But Ossie is playing shock regularly now, fielding like a marvel, coming through with timely singles and outdueling his former boss, Joe Cronin.

And the walls over Moose Grove have turned to cheers. The lanky Boston southpaw has at least partially recovered the form that for years made him baseball's best pitcher. He's won in a big way, ready, more than he tucked away all last season. His curve is breaking and there's steam on his fast ball once more.

CEMENT POURING BEGINS AT POOL

Workmen Cover One-Eighth of Surface; Lines in for Power Service

Two shifts of men, 15 in each, working from 4 o'clock yesterday morning until 8 o'clock last evening, poured 3000 square feet of cement, covering the bottom of the municipal swimming pool at Harrison park. One-eighth of the entire surface had been completed when they checked in last evening, according to John E. Hayes, city engineer.

The Idaho Power company yesterday set the floodlight poles and strung the lines which afford illumination for the pool and surroundings.

It has been necessary to haul more rock than originally anticipated, because the men who performed the work, did the job so much better than anticipated that the floor of the pool will be 75 per cent igneous rock, instead of 60 per cent as formerly planned, according to those in charge of the project, sponsored by the Twin Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce. Igneous rock is better than cement, according to construction authorities.

Another project which will turn-lah delightful pleasure to the children of the west side of town, is the wading pool at Drury park, which will be constructed this summer, through the efforts of J. G. Johnson, park commissioner. The pool, 40 feet in diameter, will be of the same construction as the one at the city park. Material was being placed at the park yesterday, preparatory to getting the pool under way.
