IDAHO LIQUOR LAW SUSTAINED IN TEST IN DISTRICT COURT

Judge J. L. Downing Rules Control Measure Valid Despite Provisions Held to Be Unconstitutional

(By The Associated Press) POCAHELLO, July 25—The Idaho liquor law, establishing a system of state stores under the jurisdiction of a state liquor commission, was upheld by District Judge J. L. Downing today.

In deciding the case brought by Attorney General Bert H. Miller and argued here last month, Judge Downing declared parts of the law unconstitutional but held the remainder valid.

The attorney general sought to have the law declared unconstitutional and asked for a declaratory judgment constraining his own powers and responsibilities under it.

Exceeds Legal Limits

The attorney granted the state liquor commission in the cancellation of liquor purchasers' permits was declared by Judge Downing to exceed the limits of the state constitution.

Concerning the board's authority to cancel permits he said: "To sustain this provision in its entirety would permit the granting or withholding of the right to purchase a commodity recognized by the state as lawful, at the mere whim of the caprice of the commission."

Neither can the commission legally require a purchaser to pay a second fee of 50 cents should his permit be lost, destroyed or stolen, the judge held, although the commission might reasonably inquire into the circumstances.

The commission's authority to revoke permits, Judge Downing said, "in addition there is no provision for resort from the actions of the commission to any other tribunal."

The court sustained the contention of the attorney general that the liquor act encroached upon the jurisdiction of the probate court, since it gives the probate court equal authority with the district court in the revocation or cancellation of liquor purchasers' permits.

MEXICO CITY, July 25 (AP)—A threatened uprising of armed Mexican peasants in Tamaulipas was reported under control tonight, but students and supporters of Tomas Garrido Canabal, ousted dictator of Tabasco state, still were in the city.

Reports to the war department said the danger that the peasant movement would spread to other states was still serious. Villarréal in Tamaulipas would turn into an armed revolt apparently had passed.

Villarréal Holds Post

Some "slight possibility" that Villarréal could continue in office despite peasant complaints of oppression was seen after the governor conferred several hours last night at Tampico with Minister of the Interior Ramon Gonzalez.

Villarréal himself, who has maintained throughout his command a reputation for moderation and respect for the rights of the peasants, indicated the possibility of trouble was still serious.

Italy Posts Guards About Embassies of Ethiopia, Japan and Great Britain After Incendiary Speeches

ROME, July 25—Rome rocked tonight to refrain "Ethiopia for us" shouted from 100,000 Fascist throngs as one of the most emotional demonstrations in the country's history gathered at Colonna and Venezia squares to roar approval of Benito Mussolini's African program.

A practically frenzied shout swept through the enormous crowd when the Fascist secretary for Rome, Orazio Orzi, assured the crowd Italy would be ready for war against blacks, yellows and, if necessary, blondes.

Foreign Missions Guarded

Previously the demonstrators had shouted their opposition to Ethiopia and their support for Japan. The crowd then chanted "Ethiopia for us" to refer to Britain, also accused by Italians of interfering in Africa.

Mayor Adheres to Retaliatory Program Despite Adviser's Warning

The German embassy in Washington was furnished with full report on a situation by acting Consul General Gustav A. Mueller, who took the position that the case was one for the state department to handle.

It is not for Mayor La Guardia to decide upon the merits of the case, he said, referring to the mayor's contention that the reciprocal agreement had been voided by Nazi actions and it drastically reduced his suggestion for replacing the present flat tax per cent tax on corporation incomes with a graduated rate running from 10 to 16 2/3 per cent.

Eisenhower, the measure followed with a new law on inheritance, a bill of surplus on income and a $150,000,000 tax on gifts.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 25 (AP)—George Dy Barry, Du Barry, Seattle and Gold Beach, promoter who claims descent from Countess Du Barry, French court favorite, today opened his defense in federal court against charges by an insurance company that he deliberately shot off both hands to collect on a $12,500 disability policy.

Frank S. Barn, attorney for the Aetna Insurance company, declared in his opening statement that Du Barry had approached Otto Morave, one of his Gold Beach employees, and Bill Harner, mining engineer, with proposals they take an accident to collect Du Barry's policies.

Barn said that at the time Du Barry lost his hands in a shotgun explosion his business interests were badly involved.

The insurance company, required by the terms of the policy to pay Du Barry $125 a month for life, is suing to rescind the contract, claiming fraud.

Du Barry's hands were shot away at Gold Beach in July, 1932. Barn said the shotgun which exploded, causing the loss of the man's hands, was formerly the property of Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany.

WALLACE APPEALS FOR FARM BACKING

Secretary Paints Dark Picture of Future Without Crop Control

GREAT FALLS, Mont., July 25 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace yesterday appealed to farmers and stockmen of the Pacific Northwest to join with those in other parts of the nation in seeking a solution of their ills.

The cabinet member told 1,000 persons who packed a theater here that unless "a only hard headed common sense and not sentimentality."

Overall-cloth farmers, laborers, ranchers from the open range, sugar-beet growers and plain housewives heard Wallace lambast the "policy of laissez-faire" and the agricultural adjustment act as the farmers' tariff.

"The big fellows have yet to get to the place where we can all sit down and talk things over and agree on a division of the spoils," he said. "When that time comes there's no judging how far we can go."

Disaster Threatened

He declared the AAA had written into it "more provisions for the needs of the consumer than any other federal legislation," and said in the recent amendments to the act "everything that could be done was done to frame the amendments to meet the viewpoint of the courts."

"We felt," he added, "that disaster to agriculture and business rested in the success of this."

Without the AAA and with ordinary weather and no foreign markets, he declared, "you would find wheat down to 20 cents, and cotton down to 5 cents, and perhaps both unsalable."

"We are convinced that a return to the old tariff on export products would mean ruin," he said. "The processing tax is the farmers' tariff and by it he can adjust himself and keep out foreign imports. Certain individuals believe high tariffs should be restored and the processing tax discarded. These persons I can only classify as brutal."

Wallace charged certain terminal centers with denouncing the AAA as "iniquitous and unsound."

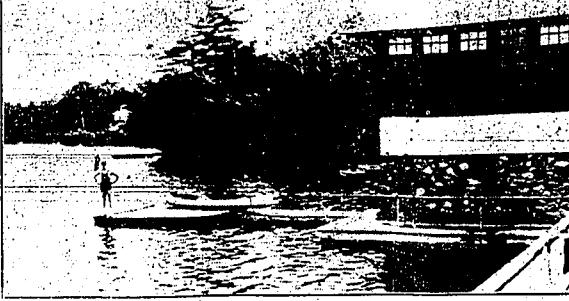

"I'll concede it may be unsound if they'll also admit that the tariff is unsound."

A SAFE TRAIN WRECK: While the new streamlined trains have been given much attention for their speed, comfort and economy, their safety has been but little emphasized.

That this factor has been neglected by the designers is shown by the Union Pacific train, several cars of which were derailed near Kemmerer last Wednesday.

If it had been an old-type train, very likely this minor incident would have been a serious accident, with several deaths, many bad injuries, and the reduction of the train to scrap.

DISCOURAGING PHILANTHROPY: It is hard to understand the President's insistence that philanthropic gifts by corporations must not be allowed tax exemptions.

The only reason which the President has given the public in that many cases such gifts are for the purpose of promoting goodwill for the company.

It would be easy to understand Hitler or Mussolini taking steps to suppress private institutions devoted to education, health, and welfare in favor of government-controlled institutions.

GETTING AFTER GUN MOLLERS: "They're as bad and cruel as the rats with whom they live," says J. Edgar Hoover, head of the "G-Men" who have been rounding up the murderous gangs that so long terrorized this country.

The federal agents of justice, and the state and local representatives of justice, have long practiced the old French "cherchez la femme."

would return to their women. The women themselves were assumed to be irresponsible and allowed to go, or were granted immunity for a reasonable amount of co-operation.

Apparently there is a harsher policy in force from now on. The women are to be treated as equally responsible with the assassins on whose blood-profits they live and in whose guilt they usually share.

UNITY IN THE BALKANS: Unity comes at last to the Balkans. It is merely a commercial unity, in quest of the tourist trade, but that is something.

It will not be long, however, before these countries are so small in area that, when a visitor drops in on one of them, it is easy to see the rest.

New York Day by Day

UTAHAN DEPLORES NAZI 'PERSECUTION'

Germany Ridicules Senator King's Proposal for American Inquiry

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)—Senator King (D-Utah) served notice on the senate yesterday that he will ask an investigation to determine whether conditions in Germany would warrant the United States in "severing diplomatic relations."

"I regard the conduct of Hitler and his regime as cruel, brutal and barbarous," he told reporters, "and I don't want the record to show there wasn't a vote in America that didn't protest against these wrongs."

In announcing on the floor his intention to offer a resolution calling for the inquiry, King asserted that the Hitler government had been "oppressive to Jews and Catholics" and "has failed to discharge its treaty obligations to the United States."

King said he had not had time to draft the resolution today, but hoped to get it in tomorrow.

The resolution would allege persecutions of Jews, Catholics and others, which has been going on for some time. King asked the foreign relations committee, of which he is a member, to conduct hearings to determine the truth in these reports, King said.

German Laughs

BERLIN, July 25 (AP)—A propaganda ministry spokesman chuckled with amusement when informed of the proposal of Senator King (D-Utah) for an investigation to determine whether conditions in Germany would warrant the United States for such policies.

Refusing to treat the matter seriously, the spokesman asked: "Is there a heat wave in America?"

"Would the United States feel warranted in breaking off relations with England over the Belfast riots, or with France over anti-Jewish disorders in Algeria several months ago? Why, the idea is grotesque."

"I'll bet some of our King's colleagues will be chuckling about his proposition the same as I. Tell them in America's Germany don't feel the least bit alarmed at Senator King's threat—if it is a threat."

ONE hundred and forty-three years after it was named by Captain George Vancouver, famed British explorer, Deception Pass, near Mount Vernon, Wash. will be spanned by a bridge. Dedication of the new $325,000 structure, erected with local, state and federal funds, has been set for noon of July 31, and it will be opened to traffic immediately. Governor Clarence D. Martin of Washington and other state dignitaries will take part in the ceremonies. The new bridge, 187 feet above the water, connects Whidby Island, second largest island in the United States, to the mainland.

Inventor Offers Airplane To Compete With Auto

LOS ANGELES, July 25 (AP)—A radically new type of airplane, the cost and operation of which may bring it within reach of the average pocketbook, was announced here today by its inventor who said he would turn it over to the department of commerce.

The new plane, which virtually consists of "wings" about the customary tail and with the engine at the rear, was developed by Waldo D. Waterman who received some financial backing from a motion picture technician.

"We can't put a price on it yet," Waterman said, "as that depends on quantity production."

It was believed, however, the "air-ship" can be sold for around $1,200 and the inventor claimed it can be operated at about the cost of the average automobile.

The plane is one of several being developed by the commerce department to combine a maximum of safety at a minimum of cost in order to promote ownership of aircraft by private individuals with limited pocketbooks and flying experience.

Waterman said he constructed his unusual plane on a contract with the department of commerce, and that it will shortly be flown to Washington, D. C., for tests before officials there.

Secret tests in the Mojave desert during the past few months were concluded by a demonstration today at the municipal airport in which Waterman put his strange appearing craft through its paces, taking off smoothly, circling about, and landing in a restricted space.

The unique features of the plane, said Waterman, were developed because of the rigid specifications laid down by the department of commerce.

For instance, the entire front of the craft is made of a transparent, elastic, fireproof material that gives good visibility in any direction.

The roomy cabin, 14 feet 4 inches across, can carry two persons. The sturdy wings slant back sharply, with a powerful brace attaching each to the stubby body.

The ailerons and rudders are at the wing tips, and because of the unusual construction Waterman says that a tailspin is impossible. In addition, we said, the landing hazard has been almost eliminated by the construction which permits the plane to come down gently whether nose is pointed up or down.

The plane has a top speed of 110 miles an hour, and cruises at 75 miles an hour. It can stay in the air for about three and a half hours. The motor is four cylinders. The wingspread of the craft is about 40 feet.

Land Bank Engineers to Assist in Preparation of Program

Directors and a number of the stockholders of the Salmon River Canal company, meeting with Henry Matthews, vice president of the federal land bank, at the federal land bank in Boise, Idaho, yesterday, extended an invitation to the land bank to cooperate with W. M. McDonald, canal company superintendent in mapping a program for improvement of the project's irrigation system, with view to securing federal government aid through FWA.

Under this arrangement, C. L. Tucker and Dennis P. Woods, land bank engineers, and James Spofford, FWA engineer, are assisting McDonald in working out the proposed program of improvement, and will begin that work next August 15. Several days will be occupied in surveys and drafting of the report which is to be submitted to the canal company directors.

Directors at yesterday's meeting approved a new allocation of 105 acre foot of water per acre of canal stock, making a total of 49 acre feet allocated for the season. Delivery of water through the canal system will be resumed on July 30, and will continue for six months, following a four-day interval while water is out of the ditches, a new run will be started to continue for four days. A total of 273 acre feet is to be distributed during the 10 days.

Rochelle Steps Into Star's Shoes, Making 'Comeback' At Age Of 21

In Hollywood

By HUBBARD KEAVY
HOLLYWOOD—Things have been happening lately to a miniature brunette who should be "washed up" in pictures five years ago when she was but 16.

The other day Rochelle Hudson stepped into a star's shoes when she was given the leading role in "Way Down East." The picture was well completed when Jean Gray and to leave its cast because of illness brought on by a concussion of the brain.

When Rochelle was given this assignment, she still was playing with Shirley Temple and Joan Bonomo in "Curly Top." But more important to her was the discovery, a few weeks ago that she has a singing voice, and she'll make use of it in the Temple picture.

In "Horse Opera"
Seven years ago while still in school, Rochelle did some movie extra work and, first thing she knew she was under contract to Fox. She was used in backgrounds and bios; she attended the school of art for young stock players; she had some fame as a horse opera star that every youngster, with a first contract has.

But nothing ever happened, except that Rochelle, after being kept around the studio for two and a half years was finally "let out." She reappeared for a time, with no success, and then R. K. O. gave her a studio and then she "farmed out" for a western.

"I knew I was through then," says Rochelle. "At least I thought I was. I believed I was a dramatic actress. Well, anyway, that was my ambition. I played second fiddle to a horse in a horse opera and I was certain that, when Hollywood saw the picture, I'd never get another star again."

Neighbor Of Rogers
Quite a few months passed, too, before Rochelle got back onto the screen-go-round. In the meantime, she had grown up and Fox hired her for an ingenue role with Will Rogers in those home town "Claremore Oks." Coincidentally, she was born. The new contract, under which at least two important steps affecting Rochelle's future have occurred, resulted.

IDAHO POWER STORY TRAGEDY FOR KIWANIS

Two local Kiwanis clubs at junction of the Idaho Power company's Twin Falls-Yeremy division manager for the Idaho Power company, attacked the history of hydro-electric development in southern Idaho, and asserted that pending legislation to abolish the history of hydro-electric development would deal a severe blow to the industry in this region.

The Electric Bond and Share company, a holding company, he said, is largely responsible for the abolition of new business and the industry is operating in southern Idaho at the present time, incident to the industry's operations, he said, 90 per cent of the farms are supplied with electric service, and there is a higher proportion of electric ranges in use in this region than in any other in the country.

Indicative of the Idaho Power company's business policy, he said, that when a recent rate reduction was made effective, orders were issued to secure a corresponding amount of new business, and this, he said, had been accomplished.

NAZIS STRIKE AT VETERANS' GROUPS

Steel Helmets Dissolved in Mecklenburg, Property Confiscated

MERLIN, July 25.—Nazism's sweeping offensive against "reactionaries" struck simultaneously today the Catholic press, foreign journalists and the steel helmet veterans' organization, with the latter the hardest hit.

Steel helmet units in western Mecklenburg were dissolved and their property "provisionally seized and sequestered" on the grounds that the veterans had refused Nazi orders, refused to participate in air defense drills and spread "mendacious rumors, bordering on high treason."

Slahhelm Doomed
Indications were that the Stahlhelm, which helped put Adolf Hitler into power, soon would be banished throughout the reich, despite Dr. Fuehrer's reported promise to President Hindenburg to preserve the Stahlhelm leader, not to dissolve it.

Catholic editors found cause for concern in the fact that the three months since their coming to power the newspapers in accord with "the national socialist limit," expired today.

They wondered how soon Max Amann, president of the reich press chamber and boss of the German publishing business, would act on the decree he issued April 15 ordering the newspapers to show they agreed with Nazi party principles or suffer suspension.

A demand for complete elimination of Catholic newspapers, as part of the drive against "political Catholicism," appeared in the Nazi party organ at Baden, "Fuehrer."

Nazi newspapers with one voice scolded the foreign press for exaggerated, biased reporting and exaggeration in connection with the government's anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic campaign, pointing to disorders in other nations to support their contention that the pot was calling the kettle black.

"Foreign Atrocities"
Front page headlines concerning the "foreign atrocities" great revealed "daily lynchings in the United States," religious riots in Belfast and anti-Semitic disorders in Algiers in accusing the American, British and French press of spreading lies or playing up German happenings to distract attention from conditions at home.

A surprising Nazi protest against treatment recently accorded Jews in Germany came, meanwhile, from Dortmund, Westphalia.

Emil Stueertz, Nazi section leader, writing in the party's official district organ "Westfaelische Landes Zeitung," declared such tactics as indiscriminate window smashing and rioting were unworthy of the cause.

He assailed party members who "rush about howling hysterically, Jews, our misfortune, plaster offensive placards on Jewish shop windows."

"* * * (and) was highly indignant over some miserable woman who threw herself away on a Jew."

The idea behind the new move against the steel helmets, it appeared, was the old Nazi idea that all former soldiers' groups should be fused into one Naziized organization.

Increasing demands for such unification included that of the Danzig newspaper "Der Arbeiter," which said unification would bend steel helmet "reactionaries" to the Nazi will.

Charles Stombaugh Drowned When Truck Plunges Into Gardiner River

YELLOWSTONE PARK, July 25.—Stripped of its clothing by the rapid current of the Gardiner river, the body of Charles Stombaugh of Buhl, Idaho, was found today a half mile below the point where the truck in which he was a passenger plunged from the Gardiner-Mammoth highway into the river last Saturday.

Identification of the former Cooke City, Mont., construction worker was made through a ring and the shoes.

Government Funds Aid Work On Huge Black Hills Carvings

Drilling A Nose In Granite

KEESSTONE, S. D. (AP)—Drills are boring into the huge granite Mount Rushmore again as the commission directing work on Outcrop Roosevelt monument to four Presidents utilizes a $55,000 federal allotment by the present congress.

A revised version of the granite carving of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt is taking shape on the Black Hills mountainside. Originally, the monument placed Jefferson's head to the right of the first President, with Lincoln and Roosevelt to the left.

Last year a fault developed in the rock where the Jefferson portrait was being carved. The partially completed head was blasted away and work started on the other side of the now virtually finished Washington features.

Now Federal Project
Under present plans, Washington and Lincoln will be the dominant figures, with Jefferson and Roosevelt somewhat in the background between them.

The monument, known officially as the Mount Rushmore National Memorial, is now a federal project under the national park service. President Roosevelt gave it that status by executive order last year.

Work on the memorial, plus buildings, roads, equipment and landscaping, has cost $20,000 since the project was started in 1927. An unofficial estimate is that nearly that much more will be needed to complete the program.

Exhausts $250,000 Allotment
The $55,000 advanced by the 1935 congress exhausts a $250,000 federal authorization made in 1929. Part of the sum was matched in accordance with original terms of the act, but the matching provision was eliminated last year.

John A. Boland of Rapid City, S. D., secretary of the Mount Rushmore National Memorial commission and chairman of its executive committee, said present funds are expected to last until the end of the fiscal year for later financing are indefinite, but project sponsors hope for an additional federal grant.

Curb Of Social Restriction On Natural Impulses Seen In Psychology's 'J' Curve

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (Associated Press Science Editor)

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—A graphic method of portraying measured human reactions, called the "J" curve, has been worked out by Floyd H. Allport, Ph. D., professor of psychology, Syracuse university.

The measurements on which the "J" curve is based would take the guesswork out of many of the problems now troubling leaders trying to improve social and economic conditions. It is not a one-man product, but the result of studies by several scientific collaborators.

The curve is a reversed capital J, without the tail being turned up. Its tail shows the numbers who fail to conform in varying, progressive degrees. The slope of this tail is always down, indicating decrease in non-conformity.

Most Autocrats Obey Signals
A simple illustration is the conduct of autocrats at traffic signals. Those obeying are the majority, the top of the J. The tail shows exactly the extent to which the regulations fail.

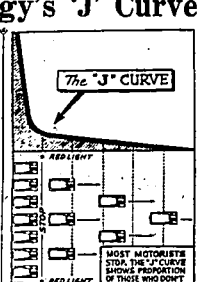

The curve has been tested in numerous other ways, such as singing in church, and getting to work on time.

It is even said to work when applied to cows coming home to be milked. Their internal urging, training and wanting to bring them home in a J curve peak.

Among humans, the J curve shows the conflicts between social restrictions and customs and natural impulses. It will measure the effectiveness and firmness of a leader's control.

It is applicable to all vocations. When a large number of vocations show steep J curves, it means there may be little individual freedom in those callings.

Natural Inclinations Curbed
A thoroughly regimented society would show groups of activities all having high peaks in their J curves. That condition would represent

DEATH SUMMONS COLONEL ROGERS

Wealthy Oil Magnate Succumbs After Months of Ill Health

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y. July 25 (AP)—Colonel Henry Huddleston Rogers, 55, industrialist, military tactician and inheritor of a vast oil fortune, died in Southampton hospital today after a series of operations.

Colonel Rogers, whose marital adventures alternated before the reading public with those of his daughter, Mary Milliken, was taken to the hospital two days ago from his nearby Long Island estate.

He had been in failing health since last October, when he was great efficiency, from the standpoint of socialization and planning.

It might not, Dr. Allport points out, be a sign of happiness among the people, because it might show natural "inclinations" and "wishes curbed to a large extent and individual differences given little opportunity of expression.

It is customary to think of the "machines" as over-regimentation. Dr. Allport suggests that we look more accurate knowledge on this point.

Applications of the technique of determining this curve he believes will answer the question whether an occupation is compelling and narrowing to its participants, much better than the guesswork now employed.

stricken with pneumonia, and had undergone frequent blood transfusions and four operations, the last of which was performed yesterday.

Inherits Estate in 1909
A native of New York, Colonel Rogers inherited in 1909 the millions which his father, the late Henry Huddleston Rogers, acquired as an associate of John D. Rockefeller, sr., in building up the vast Standard Oil properties.

In 1900, while still a student at Columbia university, Rogers married May Benjamin, society belle and daughter of a distinguished lawyer and scientist. They had two children, Mary Milliken, and Henry Huddleston, Jr.

As a young husband and father, Rogers divided his attention between business and military matters.

Commands Artillery
At about the same time he was active in the national guard and was graduated in 1913 from the school of fire at Fort Sill, Okla. He commanded the third field artillery on the Mexican border in 1916 and went to France with the same outfit during the World war.

His first marriage ended in a Holland divorce in 1920, the wife receiving a $3,000,000 trust fund.

In July of the same year, Colonel Rogers remarried, taking as his second wife Mrs. Marguerite von Braun Sewell Killea, widow of an American diplomat. This union ended in a "Hollid" divorce in 1924.

His third wife, who survives, was Mrs. Pauline Van Der Voort Dresser, former wife of an Oklahoma oil operator whom he married in August, 1923.

GLASS OPENS FIRE ON RESERVE CHIEF

Compromise Banking Bill Wins Initial Test In Senate Vote

WASHINGTON, July 25.—A compromise banking bill sponsored by Senator Glass (D-Va.) on the monetary views of Governor Marriner S. Eccles of the federal reserve board, today approved the first title of the bill making permanent the emergency deposit insurance law.

Supporters of the compromise measure, which gives the reserve board authority to order the nation's credit needs, won the first test when they defeated an attempt by Senator Humphreys (Tenn.) to require a provision requiring state banks with deposits of $100,000 or more to become members of the reserve system by July 1, 1937, in order to retain deposit insurance.

Insures Deposits

The town's motion was rejected by a voice vote and then the entire title one approved. Under that section, deposits up to $5000 would be insured. It also lowers the annual ceiling on insured deposits from one-twelfth of one per cent of total deposits and provides for suspension of assessments when the insured amount is $200,000. No more is required when the fund is impaired 10 per cent.

With the approval of this title, the heart of the bill placing control over credit in a federal reserve board and five representatives of the public and the Evans and Johnson fund was taken up. Senator Nye (N.D.) offered a substitute providing for a government-owned central bank. He declared he was "amused" at Governor Eccles' proposal to prevent inflation through legislation more powerful to the reserve board than the compromise provides "because of all the inflationists in this country he has no objection on board."

"It is magical," Glass asserted, "that the chief advocate of inflation is in a nervous state of anxiety lest we should have inflation in this country. He wants to prevent inflation and deflation."

"Well, we already have more deflation than we may be remedied in about the 20th century," Glass said for inflation, "I'm amused that the sponsor of this bill wants to prevent inflation, because inflation has exceeded the group."

Glass said that Eccles, the "next member of the board," never had a day's association with a federal reserve bank in his life, but proposed within 90 days his nomination to propose "revolutionary changes in the system."

"The thing I am sure that the board has never had a magician in its membership and hasn't got one now."

Armored Combat Cars Rumble As Horseless Cavalry Drills

This powerful, 12-wheeled combat car, successor of the outmoded tanks and combat cars of the World War, is typical of the fighting machinery with which the First Cavalry is "mechanized" at Fort Knox. Traveling 50 miles or more an hour, these combat cars carry machine guns in their revolving turrets and have steel plates, with peep holes, for windshields. Every fourth car has a radio.

By G. W. JUDD

PORT KNOX, Ky.—A Cavalry regiment without horses, but with 25,000 tons of fighting machinery on wheels, is going through a period of intensive training on this 23,000-acre military reservation a rock-bound vault to protect heavy stores of government gold.

The First Cavalry is the only mechanized cavalry regiment in the army. Not a man in this fast moving unit is on foot when assigned to active duty; not one rides horseback except for recreation.

Backing up the mechanized cavalry is the department's 6th field artillery, mechanized, also permanently assigned to Fort Knox.

Plan More Mechanization

The next development, after an extensive building program here is completed, is expected to be the mechanization of another cavalry regiment.

The estimated cost of $25,000,000 for new fighting machinery, this would give Fort Knox full brigade strength of three regiments, concentrating the mechanized forces in this growing military center. 31 miles south of Louisville in the Ohio river valley.

To man their 200 vehicles, which will be brought up to the minute combat cars to replace outmoded "moose" and medium sized armored automobiles, every soldier in the regiment has to be a mechanical expert.

Speed And Firing Power

Every one of the 200 wheeled fighters, bristling with machine guns, short-wave radios and armor plate, and every man in the regiment from Brigadier General Guy V. Henry, commander, down to a private, dry or night, to snap into action.

Although the mechanized cavalry, to use an army phrase, lacks the individual mobility of men on horseback, it is speed—officially 45 miles an hour for most units, but capable of up to 70 miles an hour—and its tremendous firing power make it unusual as an "opportunity" arm of the military force.

Their powerful combat cars, with one of the characteristics of the "tanks" and armored cars of World War days, lack the stream lines of modern pleasure cars. Their steel plates come together in sharp angles.

Headed of the armored monsters on duty here are the 12-wheel, 22,000-pound, 400-horsepower Christie combat cars. Deadly machine guns are jacked out from their revolving turrets. Their sponge rubber tires are impervious to bullets. In addition, they have heavy steel plates for windshields, with narrow slits for the drivers' vision. A radio is mounted in the command car of each platoon of four.

Although its equipment in many ways is the most modern in the army, the First Cavalry's traditions are among the oldest. Its regimental banner carries 42 streamers for distinguished service in action over the last 102 years.

forestall Ethiopia's or another nation's recourse to action, 15, for council settlement.

Italian Shift Position

Geneva received notes from both Ethiopia and Italy, each accusing the other of responsibility for the outbreak of hostilities. The Italian note urged that the council be convened.

Some dispatches indicated Italy's previous inclination to try conciliation methods was softening. The Rome government was reported to have proposed to Ethiopia a resumption of sessions of the Italian-Ethiopian conciliation commission which broke up at Scheveningen, the Netherlands, recently.

(A martial spirit prevailed in capitals of both the contending nations, however. Tens of thousands of Fascists massed in Venezia square to show support of Il Duce and opposition to Ethiopia and Japan. Ethiopian women met in Addis Ababa to demonstrate their patriotism, while the Italian legion there ordered 400 Italian women and children, under Italian sovereignty, out of the country).

Few in Britain believed the dispute could be settled. The British ban on arms exports was enforced to call attention to Britain's efforts to avert war.

ENGLAND, BELGIUM BAN ARMS EXPORTS

Practical reasons concerning present circumstances dictated the embargo.

Transpiration Permitted

In announcing that arms exports would not be licensed to either disinterested Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign secretary, told the house of commons Great Britain would permit transit of arms destined for Ethiopia across British territory. This, he said, is necessitated under the treaty of 1930, which determined to exhaust every possible recourse against war, saying: "The government is doing its best to make possible the peaceful outcome of the present unhappy dispute and would not wish to do anything which might prejudice the situation, so it will therefore, for the present, not issue licenses for the export of arms from this country either to Italy or to Ethiopia."

Meanwhile, it was said authoritatively Britain still did not know what Premier Benito Mussolini would do about the ban of Nations council session next week. Britain and France have agreed to discuss all questions dealing with the Italo-Ethiopian controversy, but Il Duce has kept silent.

The French cabinet was considering Premier Laval's four-point program to use every resource of the league's conciliation procedure. Paris would do this, Premier Laval said, but he urged Mussolini to invoke article 12 of the league covenant, providing for arbitration, to nullify and regulations necessary to carry out the administration of the league act.

Meek, today expressed itself as "completely satisfied" with the court decision in Focelle declaring the state liquor law constitutional.

While the majority of commission officials were absent from the city and county seat, the "old-time" state administrator, the secretary said that the minor details of the law which were not covered by the decision "do not amount to anything, anyway."

"The major points of the law decided upon favorably and naturally feel that our victory was a well-deserved one. There really was no controversy about the law which was objectionable and what I mean was struck from the law will not affect the situation in the future."

Attorney General Ben D. Miller, who started the case against the state and fought for a declaration of unconstitutionality, is in California at present.

The consensus of opinion among state officials here indicated that the controversy is ended now and that the case will never reach the supreme court.

Seeing Eye For Blind Man, Dog Leads Him To Success

Constant companions for nearly five years, Reginald D. White, blind World War veteran and Seeing Eye's German shepherd dog, Wickie, are prominent visitors in Twin Falls.

Mr. White is here in pursuit of his work as a member of the General Electric company's sales promotion department, and his four-footed companion is the result of a life work for which she has been specially trained to be her master's seeing eye.

Never since Wickie was turned over to Mr. White by the Seeing Eye institution at Morristown, New Jersey, have the two been separated. She rides with him on the train and shares his hotel room. By means of her heels she warns and guides his every step. At every street crossing she halts. Her master commands, "Forward," and she takes charge, and if he says "clear," she will lead him through the traffic. Three times she is credited with having saved her life, once in traffic and once from drowning.

There is no question in Mr. White's mind about whether Wickie has and exercises intelligence. "The only question," he said here last evening, "is whether I can ever know as much as she does about the world."

Demonstrating the animal's uncanny capability, he requested Wickie, at the News office last evening, to lead him to the city hall and she straightaway led the way through a gate to a desk, moving around a table and bringing him a file at a desk phone.

Her master's request to be taken to a designated door or to a specified store or to a certain street, Wickie led him to the desired destination. He called yesterday to the city hall to see a friend who lives in a parked car at a Main avenue corner, and was taken there by his four-footed guide.

Matched Temperaments

The training that Wickie received before she was turned over to her master is given at only two Seeing Eye institutions, one in New York and the other in New Jersey. Training begins after the dog is a year or 18 months old. It is the institution's purpose to match temperament and capability of trained dog and master, and Wickie was not until she was 18 months old that she had worked together for four months at the institution.

Blinded as a result of service in the navy during the World War, Mr. White was a patient at a veterans hospital "without a dime," he said, when he was brought into the city by the Seeing Eye, leading to his companionship with Wickie. "Since then," he said, "we are doing pretty well."

In the course of his sales promotion work, Mr. White has addressed hundreds of audiences in public schools and elsewhere on care

Davis Says League Will Prevent Clash

WASHINGTON, July 25.—A prediction was made tonight by Norman Davis, U. S. ambassador at large, that the League of Nations would bring Italy and Ethiopia to a peaceful settlement of their threatened war.

The statement was made to newspaper men by Davis as he came from a meeting of members of the Senate foreign relations committee and state department officials at which neutrality legislation had been discussed.

"It appears to me," Davis said, "that France is not going to break with the league and to engage with England at the same time just to support Italy in its present position. The league was not called into session just for a pleasant gathering."

While vivid streaks of lightning flashed, more than one-half inch of rain fell between dawn and 8 a. m. It was still raining several hours later. At 8 o'clock the rainfall total for the year to date reached 12.78 inches, unexcelled since 1926.

The record rain was at the same time beneficial and destructive to crops. In those places where the record rain was not so welcome had been irrigated, too much water was reported. Much cut hay was ruined. On the other hand, grain and crops were freshened and farmers welcomed the moisture.

"She Ought to Take Up Game" Says Famous Trick Shot Artist and Helen Replies "Maybe I Will"

NEW YORK, July 25 (AP)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody returned today from her comeback tennis conquest of England and said she contemplates carrying on, eyes fixed on the American championship.

For the time being, however, her playing program must be interrupted. She plans to leave by rail for the Pacific coast Monday to join her husband, Frederick S. Moody, in San Francisco. Meanwhile she will stay in New York and go out to the grand court at Forest Hills occasionally if she can "take a game with somebody."

Her decision to go home means she will not be available to aid the United States against Great Britain in the Wimbledon cup series at Forest Hills August 16-17. She's made up her mind to pass this up, but is reasonably certain she will try to recapture the national title from her arch-rival, Helen Hall Jacobs, here the latter part of next month.

The player who started in 1922 with her hair in pig-tails and grew into the world's leading player of her sex has decided to stick to tennis for a few more years, possibly limiting her competitive appearances to the American national and Wimbledon championships.

More surprising than that, there's a strong likelihood she soon may be swinging a club on some California golf course.

Takes Lessons

Returning on the same ship Joe Kirkwood, the trick shot artist. She had never played golf or swung a stick. Kirkwood gave her a couple of lessons on shipboard.

"Her sense of rhythm, balance and timing are remarkable," Kirkwood said enthusiastically. "She ought to take up the game."

Mrs. Moody, standing nearby at the time, said: "That sounds intriguing, doesn't it, maybe I will."

Stone Remodels Bowling Alleys

Extensive Improvements and Installation of Two More Alleys Scheduled

Announcement of an extensive remodeling program at Twin Falls Bowling Club was made today by Fred Stone, proprietor, who has just returned from Pocatello where he purchased two additional alleys, making a total of four for the establishment.

Expense involved in the improvement program is estimated at $1000 and will include installation of the two alleys, purchase of two more bowling machines, and the fitting of the two old alleys and refinishing all four, resampling and painting of the bowling alleys, and the installation of a ventilating system.

Work is scheduled to begin today and Stone said he felt that he believed it would take about ten days to complete the improvement. The new alleys among the finest in the state.

A room at the rear of the establishment will be done away with to provide room for the new alleys.

O'Doul Carving New Name For Himself As Manager Of Seals

Lefty O'Doul (center), who is making a hit as manager of the San Francisco Seals, calls his young outfielders, Joe Marty (left) and Joe Di Maggio (right), sure things to make the big league grade within a couple of seasons at the most.

By RUSSELL NEWLAND (Associated Press Sports Writer) SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Scouted out of the big leagues by Father Time, Frank "Lefty" O'Doul, the man who made the green suit a landmark in baseball, is carving out a new career for himself as a minor-league manager.

From the uniform of a New York Giants player last year, O'Doul slipped into a managerial role this spring and in half a season has won recognition as a pilot of the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast League.

He established himself as a manager who sees and seizes his chance, an aggressive leader who works his players up to a furious fighting pitch and demands results. His credo is "make the most runs and you'll win the game." Off the field he gets along with the men who call him boss.

The rangy southpaw who twice led the National League in batting average in his first two seasons as a pitcher is now leading the Seals to a top spot in the Pacific Coast League.

He is not giving away any cosmic secrets, of course, to acknowledge that there are two sides to any argument, but it might be a good idea to keep that in mind when lining up with the American or National leagues on the highly argumentative subject of whether the game or the victory is to be the thing.

It is only natural that the American leaguers, having won all three of the mid-summer clashes, should embrace the thought that victory is the highest desideratum—and conversely, that the boys of the National League, who have been drawn, but serve the purpose behind the original idea.

At the risk of being accused of National League sympathies (not that the N. L. doesn't need some sympathy), it is a simple matter for the leaguers to get together on this all-star business and make something better out of the thing than this far. To one they haven't added a thing to the original idea—which wasn't their own, at that, but something they had to be pushed into by Arch Ward and his Chicago Tribune.

That, they haven't added a thing to the original idea, but they have re-arranged that part of the program would have the fans pick 18-player teams, and the managers of the National League to select the 18 players who might get left out of the popular balloting.

Why Not a Field Day? To get back to the "victory or the game" question, wouldn't it be easy to stipulate that each side use at least three of the pitchers chosen for the field day and that no pitcher be used more than three times?

If the pilots were compelled to do that much, wouldn't the position of pitcher be much more important to the manager than it is now? In the other positions, with the pitcher the fans would be more likely to choose the best pitcher they came to see, and it would be definitely a contest.

Canzoneri Decisions Pacho In Ten-Round Non-Title Struggle

Lightweight King Opens Up in Eighth Frame To Take Unanimous Verdict of Judges Before 6500 Fans

CHICAGO, July 25 (AP)—Tony Canzoneri, world lightweight champion, escaped with a close decision in a ten round bout with Bobby Pacho, Mexican warrior of Los Angeles, at the St. Louis Stadium tonight.

The decision was unanimous, but the votes of the two judges and referee Freddie Gilmore were close. Canzoneri's title was not at stake as he scaled 135 pounds with the Los Angeles boxer weighing 137 1/2.

Freddie Gilmore warned the boxers four times to become more warlike, threatening the last time in the 25th round to throw them out of the ring.

Pacho knocked the champion on his haunches at the start of the sixth round, dropping him with a hard left jab. Canzoneri was hurt, however, as he jumped to his feet at the count of two with a puzzled look on his face. It was the third time he ever had been felled.

Starting with the eighth round, Canzoneri opened up for the first time. He dealt about 10 rights to the head, with Pacho stepping into close quarters to land his punches. At the start of the ninth round, Canzoneri continued to land a hard left and right to the jaw that turned Pacho half way round.

Approximately 6500 paid about $13,000 to see the fight.

Jacobs Asks Guarantee Of $150,000 for Max's Services In Big Fight

Manager Waits for Schmeling to Decide Between Joe Louis and Max Baer; Rival Promoters Active

NEW YORK, July 25 (AP)—Joe Jacobs, the little man with the big ego, bounced off a trainstation here today in charge of Max Schmeling's heavyweight future, he bounced to Madison Square Garden for one offer, to the Twentieth Century Sporting club for another, bounce-back and bounce-forward.

The Garden has made me a five offer for Schmeling to fight Max Baer, he said, and the 20th Century club also gave me a five proposition for a fight with Joe Louis. I like the second because it's Schmeling and Louis will draw about $500,000 where Schmeling and Baer would draw only $200,000.

"I've cabled all the dope to Schmeling for decision, and I expect an answer from him in the morning."

So anxious are the rival promoters for the German puncher's services that Jimmy Dolan, representing the Garden, and Mike Jacobs, head of the 20th Century club, both made the dawn cutter down the bay to the incoming liner Washington, though both were still actively reaching quarantine.

Neither promoter could do that today.

It should be simple. But there has been a distinct lack of agreement on the part of the Nationals—notably in their failure to see that their important pitchers are ready for the Big Day.

It's established himself as a manager who sees and seizes his chance, an aggressive leader who works his players up to a furious fighting pitch and demands results. His credo is "make the most runs and you'll win the game." Off the field he gets along with the men who call him boss.

Another proposal is that next year the managers take a total of three days off the schedule for the game—a day before and a day after the game. The idea is to reduce to embrace a field day, with foot races around the bases, picnic excursions, fun-giving, and other side-shows. In which a few specialists who are not in the game would be otherwise would get a chance to show their stuff, possibly with money prizes as an incentive.

READY MADE WIFE

BY CORALIE STANTON

SYNOPSIS: Rex Moore has returned from a round trip flight to Los Angeles. He had a temporary recurrence of his old blindness upon landing, has found that the way in time goes completely blank and does not tell Laurie, whom he loves, the truth. She believes he has grown cold; their situation is explained by the fact that Rex told Mark Alberly, their employer. It was that they were married. Laurie wishes to tell the real situation to everyone; Rex asks that she wait until he has flown the Pacific.

Chapter 21
PARTING PLAN

"Of course, I don't want to see you found out," Laurie's eyes brightened. "I made a bargain, and I'm prepared to keep it. I don't want to be in it, too. And, as you've so often pointed out, I've made a good thing out of it."

"You're a sport," said Rex. "Well, it's like this. I want to do the Pacific flight as soon as possible. At least I must have a free mind. This month divorce business will take time. It's got to be a fool-proof plan, or we shall look like a couple of idiots, as well as crooks. There's not a soul who would understand our position, who would understand the Pacific flight before me. Will you agree that we let it stand over until I come back?"

"His voice had the eagerness of a boy's. He loved her, but he was a man, and love could not be everything in his life, and for the moment he was in the grip of a fixed idea. His words fell coldly on her heart. "I don't want to interfere with the Pacific flight," she said. "But I won't stay any longer. It's not good for me to go on depending on Mr. Alberly. I've got my own place to go back to. That's what I shall do."

"Of course, as you please. Perhaps it would be better if we just met occasionally at first. We don't want people to talk too much all at once, do we?"

"I suppose not. Am I to tell Mr. Alberly?"

"I leave that to you. Perhaps a hint would be wise. Always remember, when you're playing the end of the game, that it is all my fault!" He laughed again. He was on fire with jealousy of Alberly, just as Alberly was with jealousy of him.

"And you will tell Mrs. Steele," she suggested. "I would like you to tell her, as it would be a good way of getting it about."

"The man gave a twisted smile at this point of their femininity-but he did not say a word."

"Yes, I will tell Mrs. Steele when I have an opportunity. But I shall be glad if you would like to cut an absolute break, Laurie."

"All right, then," said Laurie, and she turned away with a look of relief to get back to normal life.

"Thank you," returned Rex grimly. "I shall be glad to see you and Mr. Alberly and fix things up. You'll stay here the night?"

"Oh, yes, I'll have to. Glad will be three when she gets back from the show. And tomorrow is Saturday and Mr. Alberly won't be up, so I shall have all day to move."

Rex went to the telephone. Laurie went into the kitchen. She was sure she would have some tea. He still looked grey and exhausted and, in a queer way, different. She had dispensed with Mrs. fluid after the early morning while he was away.

"It's all right," he said, coming into the kitchen a few minutes later. "Alberly was pretty breathy at first, because I'd not rung him up from Ireland. But, of course, he's glad that I did the flight. I'm to have the bungalow and start getting ready at once. So now the stage is set again, Laurie, this time for the final curtain!"

He went into his bedroom to pack his meager belongings in his shabby suitcase, while Laurie got the tea.

"He drank two cups, as if he were thirsty, but would not eat anything. "Well, I'll be off, Laurie! I suppose we can both be trusted not to make idiotic mistakes. I'll write to you at your place, then?"

"Rex," she said suddenly, "there's one thing I'd like you to do for me one of these days."

"What's that?" he looked at her, his eyes lighting up with that queer frankness that she had known during their queer comradeship of emity.

"Take me up in a plane before you go off again." She spoke the words mechanically, as if they had been put into her mouth. A moment ago she had not had the slightest idea of wanting him to do such a thing.

"Why, of course, I shall be delighted," he said, looking slightly blank. "That you never been up?"

"Yes, once. Last year Mr. Alberly gave a party to all the staff, and there were little joy trips all day. I went up and I loved it and I would like to go up again."

"Any time you like," he said. "I'll let you know when I can get off. Of course, any Sunday." It was a person in a dream who spoke, but she looked quite natural.

"Right, let me know, Laurie! I'll go and call the porter now to get me a suitcase."

He came back and stood looking at her awkwardly. In his strange eyes struggled a thousand things that no words could express. What he did say was commonplace enough.

"It's a nice hole, this flat, I think, but you'll be glad to get away."

And, suddenly, he came up to her and laid his hand on her shoulder, and said in a hoarse, stifled voice: "I'm glad you're going away. I'm glad I'm not going to see you any more. You're a good girl. I couldn't bear it. Good-bye!"

And he was gone.

Tesla Claims New Invention Could Destroy Skyscrapers

Machine Transmits Mechanical Energy by Means of Earth's Vibrations

"A little machine could destroy the Empire State building."

By VINCENT J. CAMPBELL
International Illustrated News Service (Wire)

NEW YORK—Who could get a little machine on a vital grid of the Empire State building and destroy the whole building?

That was the statement made recently by Nikola Tesla, "boy-crack" "father of modern electricity," who is credited with 700 patents to date.

Edison was speaking of his new perfected apparatus for transmitting mechanical energy by means of vibrations.

"There's no limit to the mechanical vibrations on which my new apparatus is based," he said. "I can produce earthquakes because no object can resist the constant application of a force. The only thing that resists that object's point of resonance. And not only is the machine

It can locate deposits of ore under the earth, not by means of radio but by a system of tuning based on the difference in the quality of the ore. Finally it will enable scientists to learn the physical conditions and constants of the earth.

Invention Explodes Distant Bombs

Only in time of war will the apparatus be used destructively—by setting off bombs from a distance.

Tesla announced his discovery on his seventy-ninth birthday. The inventor refused to give a demonstration of the machine, nor did he present any evidential proof for his statements. He contended himself with stating that the machine was simple in construction and consisted of a stationary part and a steel cylinder floating in air by means of a type of energy already known but amplified in a new manner.

He has discovered a way of transmitting powerful impulses on the suspended part which excites it on the fixed part and through it transfers energy to the earth.

While Tesla himself declared that the discovery would appear almost preposterous, still he hopes that it will come to be recognized as his greatest contribution to the science of engineering.

"She Ought to Take Up Game" Says Famous Trick Shot Artist and Helen Replies "Maybe I Will"

NEW YORK, July 25 (AP)—Mrs. Helen Willis Moody returned today from her comeback tennis conquest of England and said she contemplates carrying on, eyes fixed on the American championship next month.

For the time being, however, her playing program must be interrupted. She plans to leave by rail for the Pacific coast Monday to join her husband, Frederick S. Moody, in San Francisco. Meanwhile she will stay in New York and go out to the grass courts at Forest Hills occasionally if she can "get a game with somebody."

Pat of Cap Mack.

Her decision to go home means she will not be available to aid the United States against Great Britain in the Wimbledon cup series at Forest Hills August 15-17. She made up her mind to pass this up, but it is reasonably certain she will try to recapture the national title from her arch-rival, Helen Hull Jacobs, here the latter part of next month.

The player who started in 1922 with her hair in pig-tails and grew into the world-leading player of her sex has decided to stick to tennis for a few years more, apparently limiting her competitive appearances to the American national and Wimbledon championships.

More surprising than that, there's a strong likelihood she soon may be swinging a club on some California golf course.

Takes Lessons

Returning on the same ship was Joe Kirkwood, the trick shot artist. She had never played golf or swung a stick. Kirkwood gave her a couple of lessons on shipboard.

After some of rhythm, balance and timing are remarkable. Kirkwood said enthusiastically, "She ought to take up the game."

Mrs. Moody, standing nearby at the time, said: "That sounds intriguing, doesn't it? Maybe I will."

Stone Remodels Bowling Alleys

Extensive Improvements and Installation of Two More Alleys Scheduled

Announcement of an extensive remodeling program at Twin Falls Bowling Alley was made today by Fred Stone, proprietor, who has just returned from Pocatello where he purchased two additional alleys, making a total of four for the establishment.

Expense incurred in the improvement program is estimated at $1000 and will include installation of the two alleys, purchase of two more bowling machines, reworking of the two old alleys and refitting all four, kalamander and painting of the interior, rearranging of light fixtures and installation of a ventilating system.

Work is scheduled to begin today and Stone said he might be believed it would take about ten days to complete the improvements, making the alleys among the finest in the state.

A room at the rear of the establishment will be done away with to provide room for the new alleys.

O'Doul Carving New Name For Himself As Manager Of Seals

Joe O'Doul (center), who is making a hit as manager of the San Francisco Seals, calls his young outfielders, Joe Maggio (left) and Joe Di Maggio (right), sure things to make the big league grade within a couple of seasons at the most.

By RUSSELL NEWLAND (Associated Press Sports Writer)

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Expelled out of the big leagues by Father Time, Frank "Big Boy" O'Doul, the man who made the great suit a landmark in baseball, is carving out a new career for himself as a minor league manager.

From the uniform of a New York Giants player last year, O'Doul slipped into a managerial toga this spring and in half a season has won recognition as a pilot of the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast league.

He's established himself as a manager who sees and seizes his chances, an aggressive leader who works his players up to a furious fighting pitch and demands results. His credo is "make the most runs and you'll win the game." Off the field he likes to be with the men who call him boss.

The rummy southpaw who twice led the national league in batting has seen his direct methods in play in the minor leagues with a capital "A." During mid-season his team won three games in one series by scores of 2-0, 1-0 and 1-0. The Seals may not be up on top when the season ends but their base hit bombardments will remain long in the memory of the fans.

A Bench-Blitting Boss O'Doul does his "master-minding" from a bench. "It is a tough job to manage a club from the outfield," he says. "I've tried it with Detroit and Tulsa. Speaker brought Cleveland to a pennant, but generally speaking a manager trying to run things from the outfield is under a bad handicap."

In his first season as a manager, the one time star who favors green civics the year around has had a hand in the development of two youngsters he thinks he will duplicate his own more than 10 years ago.

Like his manager, they're outfielders. One, Joe Di Maggio, already is recognized as one of the finest prospects ever struck up in the coast league. The 20-year-old 180-pound San Francisco Italian will get his first crack at big league ball with the New York Yankees, the club O'Doul broke in with in 1917 as a pitcher.

Di Maggio was sold last year, but the proviso he remain here another year for experience. In 1933, Di Maggio hit safely in 51 consecutive games to set a new league record. A knee injury dimmed his play last season but this year he has been spectacular.

"Herald Harnaby, Hellman" "Joe can't miss," says O'Doul. "He'll rival Harry Hellman and Rogers Hornsby as a first baseman. He's a natural player, does everything right and never lets down. When the night wears on, he acquires the pluck that comes with a big league play. Di Maggio will be a riot in the American League."

Joe Maggio, 21 years old, and playing his first full season as a regular, is a year and a half away from major league manager, but his future looms as brightly as did Di Maggio's when the latter joined the Seals. Maggio, too, is a right hander all around, a big fellow with plenty of speed.

The two Jose aren't taking back the season over the half-way mark. Di Maggio was clouting at the end of June and Maggio had a respectable 300.

Neither promoter could do that offhand.

Seals Once More Humble Missions

ON THE SIDELINES by Edward J. Neil

It is not giving away any cosmic secrets, of course, to assert that there are two sides to any argument, but it might be a good idea to keep that in mind when lining up the American or National leagues on the highly argumentative subject of whether the game or the victory is to be the thing in the annual all-star battle.

It is only natural that the American leaguers, having won all three of the mid-summer clashes, should embrace the theme that victory is the highest desideratum—and conversely, that the boys of the other league hold fast to the idea that a parade of stars, win or draw, best serves the purpose behind the original idea.

As the risk of being accused of National league sympathies (not that the N. L. doesn't need some sympathetic ears and a boost of some kind in the minority, this pillar would like to line up with the exhibitionists).

Naturally I do not hold with the contention that the National leaguers have not been putting forth their best efforts on the field of play in the East. The desire to win, to excel, is so vital a part of the equipment of every ball player who is serious about his game that it is humanly impossible for them to pull their punches, especially when the

CHICAGO, July 25 (AP)—Tony Canzoneri, world's lightweight champion, opened with a close decision in a ten-round bout with Bobby Pasco, Mexican warrior of Los Angeles, at Mills Stadium tonight.

The decision was unanimous, but the votes of the two judges and referee Freddie Gilmore were close. Canzoneri's score was not at stake as he scaled 135 pounds with the Los Angeles boxer weighing 137 1/2.

Freddie Gilmore warned the boxer four times to become more warlike, threatening the last time in the fifth round to throw them out of the ring.

Pascho knocked the champion on his haunches at the start of the sixth round, dropping him with a right to the chin. Canzoneri was hurt, however, as he jumped to his feet at the count of two with a pained look on his face. It was the third time he ever had been felled.

Starting with the eighth round, Canzoneri opened up for the first time. He drew short lefts and rights to the head, with Pascho stepping into close quarters to land his punches. At the start of the ninth round, Canzoneri connected with a hard left and right to the jaw that turned Pascho half way around. The champion then began hooking with low lefts and tied the Los Angeles youngster up in the clinches.

Approximately 8500 paid about $12,000 to see the fight.

"The Garden has made me a fine offer for Schmeling to fight Max Baer," he said, and the 20th Century club also gave me a fine proposition for a fight with Joe Louis. I have not decided as soon as the Schmeling and Louis will draw about $800,000 where Schmeling and Baer would draw $1,000,000.

Papa Baer Frowns On Buddy's Plans For Taking Bride

OAKLAND, Calif., July 25 (AP)—Max Baer's marital ventures have taught papa Jacob Baer a big lesson in the evening Times league. The idea of the younger of the two giant sons, Buddy, getting married at 14, before he is through with his fighting.

Young Baer recently confided to friends in the past he was engaged, or practically so, to a Chicago girl. Hence how papa Baer sums up the situation:

"Look out! It happened to Max, going off and getting himself wedded. Fighters shouldn't be married. They have to take care of their country, they worry about affairs at home, they have little lifts with their wives and then their ring comes off. Why, it's no business but a lot of grief, I laid down the law and Buddy listens to what I say."

GIRLS ARE HAPPY AT CAMP NISSAKI

Visitors at Camp Fire Girls' Grounds Impressed by Harmony and Order

"Everybody's happy at Camp Nissaki!"

That was the enthusiastic comment made yesterday by lookers-on who Wednesday evening witnessed a "stunt" night program at the Camp Fire girls' encampment at the Presbyterian assembly grounds. One of the first activities, after unloading at the attractive camp site, was to select a name. Nissaki, meaning "at the foot of the mountain," was the ideal choice of the girls.

Under the expert leadership of the guardians and counselors, the girls are mastering the various crafts-of-camp-and-outdoor-life, improving their health, and most thrilling of all, winning honor beads by the dozens, many of them specially designed for the local camp by Twin Falls women who are interested in girls. The guardians and leaders are endeavoring themselves to the girls, and the affection and cooperation of the girls is their reward.

"We approached the camp grounds just before 8:30 o'clock Wednesday evening. Filling up the hill toward the picnic grounds, marching two by two, clad in regulation camp outfits, came the girls, so intensely interested that they failed to notice our car, one of the visitors said yesterday.

Hilarious Stunt Night

"The same joyousness prevailed in the stunts, presented later in the evening in the amphitheater, fashioned of rustic logs. Interpretations of Betty Boop, Mae West and numerous other celebrities were especially humorous, and the closing number, a "broadcast" of news of the day before, in which neither guardians, counselors and the girls were spared, brought hearty laughter that echoed through the sur-

Howard H. Burkhardt, assistant administrator, was at the same time appointed as successor to Biggs as Twin Falls county administrator.

Word of the change was received by Biggs yesterday in a telegram.

"rounding pines," the visitor continues.

"Homesickness, one of the worst 'growing pains' of adolescents and sub-adolescents, has been dispelled by gaiety and activity of camp routine. The services of a graduate nurse, always available, and rarely required, and the entire camp is in good health and good spirits. Parents should take advantage of visitors' day next Sunday and see for themselves what a delightful experience is being offered the girls," was the concluding remark of another "looker-on."

METHODIST MINISTER GUEST OF ROTARIANS

Guest of Twin Falls Rotary club was a minister at luncheon Wednesday, Rev. Raymond E. Rees, lately assigned to Twin Falls Methodist Episcopal church, discussed in an inspirational address the subject "Natural Resources," among which he included heronism and love. The Rev. Rees is a past president of the Vancouver, Washington, Rotary club.
