OFFICIALS SEEK TO SALVAGE PROJECTS AS DEADLINE NEARS

State, County and Municipal Authorities Revise Many of 1,908 Applications Turned Down by Hopkins

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—State county and municipal officials sought today to salvage public works projects involving expenditure of nearly half a billion dollars in 47 states.

Working against time, they filed proposals for the review of applications for many of the 1,908 projects turned down by the federal government.

Three days remain before the deadline set by President Roosevelt for the review of applications.

In most instances, Hopkins insisted that the cost of the projects on a man-year employment basis was too high.

While officials of neither agency would comment, observers speculated that effect of the additional review of the federal projects might have been to reduce the number of projects.

It is known to be disappointed because of the mounting number of WPA projects which have been abandoned.

In some quarters, the possibility was suggested that it might seek a showdown with President Hopkins by seeking to have the act.

'Poor People' Must Pay New Deal's Huge Cost, Borah Stresses

$9,750,000,000 Remain to Be Collected Under New Measures Despite Wealth Tax, Idaho Senator Asserts

(By The Associated Press) BOISE, Idaho, Sept. 9.—Despite the recent enactment of a law imposing a tax of $250,000,000 on the rich, "the poor people" of America will be required to pay $9,750,000,000 in taxes to pay the cost of the new measures adopted by the United States senator.

The veteran statesman made his observation in the course of an address before the Idaho State Medical Association.

He referred to a provision that would be included in the "Abnormal Trend" bill.

Decrees by both courts were against the contention of the Twin Falls Land & Water company.

Series of Significant Naval and Military Movements Unexplained; Lid. of Sec. Continues in Effect

(By The Associated Press) LONDON, Sept. 9.—The British navy, equipped for long cruises from their home bases, stood by strategic stations in the Mediterranean tonight.

The movements included massing of virtually the entire fleet in the eastern Mediterranean.

Target For Assassin's Bullet

Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana, shown here in two characteristic poses as he claimed home points of a speech, was early this morning eluding by a threat to file a third blood transfusion to counteract the effects of an assassin's bullet.

(By The Associated Press) BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 10 (Tuesday).—Friends of Senator Huey P. Long expressed fears death was approaching early today as he became delirious at intervals after a third blood transfusion had been administered to counteract the effects of an assassin's bullet.

The third transfusion was made after reports emanated from Our Lady of the Lake hospital that the senator had died.

Placed under an oxygen tent shortly before midnight, the senator appeared to be experiencing some difficulty in breathing.

His brother, Earl Long, said the senator had written irrationally in his delirium about a book he had written relating to his imaginary tenure of office as president of the United States.

At 1:30 a. m., U. S. Shushan, president of the New Orleans law firm, heard and close political adviser of Long, said he was "snoring."

Earlier, relatives and friends had expressed doubt that he would live through the night. No official comment was forthcoming from physicians on the result of the third transfusion.

"It really looks awful but I still think he'll live," Lieutenant Governor James A. Noe, said earlier last night.

As the political engine long built by Louisiana walked toward a reported sufficiency at the hospital that the "dictator" of the bayou and parish country was rapidly declining.

LOUISIANA HOUSE GRINDS OUT BILLS

Lawmakers Adopt Measures Aimed at Federal Administration

(By The Associated Press) BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 9.—In a subdued session which brought no reference to the assassination of Senator Huey P. Long, the house of representatives today passed a number of bills aimed at the federal administration.

Even in the absence of their popular leader, there were held by a bullet fired by Dr. C. W. Kelly, Jr., who himself was slain by the assassin's bullet.

Members of the house today passed a bill which would require the federal government to provide for the maintenance of the state's public health system.

Troops and Warships Swing Into Position

Italian and Ethiopian Soldies Advance As British Fleet Prepares For Action

(By The Associated Press) Italian troops moved in Britain, Ethiopian fighting men started northward from their capital and British ships jockeyed into position yesterday about Suez, gateway to east.

An Ethiopian government communique said, "Telegrams from the northern frontier show that the Italians are making important troop movements on the Ethiopian and Eritrean frontier, indicating an early offensive against Ethiopia."

The government dispatched more men and munitions to the north 30 American made trucks bearing ammunition and supplies.

The movements of the British navy, including massing of the home fleet at Portland and jockeying of the Mediterranean fleet into position about Suez, went unexplained by British officials.

Plans for Italian fleet exercises were reported which would concentrate a powerful surface and sub-surface fleet at Sicily, scarcely 100 miles from the British naval base of Malta.

An Italian spokesman said the nation would refrain from assurances that it would do anything to complicate the crisis.

A German spokesman said his nation, too, probably would raise the issue of a new battle if Italy leaves the league.

Premier Pierre Laval of France hastened back to Geneva from Paris for what French officials feared was a "little effort" to open a frontier to Italy.

Italy's ultimatum to Greece charging it with negligence in the Balkans, which had been rejected by the Greek government.

At least 600 additional troops had been ordered from France to guard the Italian frontier.

FINIAL RITES FOR DOHNEY ARRANGED

Funeral Services to Be Held in St. Vincent's Church, Los Angeles

(By The Associated Press) LOS ANGELES, Sept. 9.—Last rites for Edward L. Dohney, oil-line operator and prospector who created one of the world's great fortunes from the oil fields of California and Texas, will be held Wednesday morning in St. Vincent's church.

Dohney, who had been ill, died last night at the age of 77.

The regular high mass will be sung by Most Reverend John J. Cantwell, bishop of the diocese of Los Angeles and San Diego, and officiated by Rev. Francis Kelly, O. S. A., an old friend of the family.

Official estimates of the fortune he amassed at the height of his career are placed at $20,000,000.

His net worth at the time of his death, said his estate, was over $10,000,000.

Friends said only this amount of Dohney's estate would be able to pay the $4,000,000 of his debts.

Dohney's spectacularly successful career was darkened in his declining years by a long illness.

He was married to Mrs. Dohney, who was a native-born girl from Falls Church, Va.

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION

That an attempt should be made on the life of Senator Huey Long is not surprising. He has expected it himself, and for a long time has been prepared for an assault. But it is not because of his bodyguard, but because of his almost incredible luck that he is not now dead in a hospital with a chance to recover.

The United States, not even Louisiana, has not yet drifted so far from democracy that assassination of public officials can be given any approval as a political method.

But it must be seen that a continuation of the tendency typified by Senator Long, to subvert democracy in favor of political dictatorship, must lead to violence. In many Latin American countries such dictatorships have been the usual thing, and in such countries it has been accepted that the only way to change an administration is through revolution and bloodshed.

There is going to be a great deal of conversation about military matters. Maps of Ethiopia are in demand. Statistics about tonnage of fleets. Discussions of mistakes made in the last war and how they can be avoided now. Comparisons between the conventions binding the conduct of the Suez Canal and the Panama. Warriors from Italian-Soviet land descending to enlist with their own people in Ethiopia. Munitions. Ships. Neutrality. Embargoes. Sieges. Propaganda. Oil.

The American should remember that this is all conversation, nothing more. Interviews with noted-Britishers-saying they hope the United States will stand with them—what else could they say?—are conversation. Out of all the welter of news and pictures and headlines very little information which is important or of vital importance appears.

Americans are very tired of talk about depression. They are glad to see better business and they weary of talk about that. The prospect of war offers an entrancing, new interest, especially when it has such picturesque features as Abyssinia. Newspapers, magazines, movies, soap—this demand for more and more detail about the present situation and try to get it as best they can. The job of any newspaper is to meet the instinctive human year for knowledge about what's going on.

But there is a sharp distinction to be drawn by every thinking citizen between conversation about war and war itself. So far, the idea of war is merely graphic. Actual war is hell. It's not only horribly death by being torn to pieces. It's rotting food and lice and filth and wounds which never heal. Let Uncle Sam stick to his own work and build up his own country. It needs it and the world needs to have it built up. None of this tearing-down staff for your Uncle. He's had enough.

AMERICAN ATHENS

Governmental operations at Washington have obscured another big wave of activity. A building era that may become historic is under way. Washington is said to be the fastest-growing American city today in new construction as well as population. Living accommodations have to be provided for the great numbers of new federal employees. But we had that during the war. The really notable thing is the construction of monumental and usually beautiful public buildings. On every side magnificent public structures are rising up. We build such structures as former super-built cathedral. So thickly are these modern temples rising in the vicinity of the Capitol that old-timers are said to have difficulty finding their way around. Visitors are dazzled, and foreigners astounded by the profusion of massive architecture.

We may soon be able to make a fair comparison with the famous old Roman Forum. Or even with the less tremendous but more beautiful Athens built in the time of Pericles—what the poet Browning called "the great white city."

CONSTITUTION DAY

September 17 is Constitutional Day in the United States. Some patriotic organizations as the American Legion are focusing public attention on the fact-making recommendations for observance of that day in such a way that its import will be registered upon the American consciousness.

The stress and strain of our constitutional system or of the system of free government in America will not come upon the executive branch. It will rest upon the legislative branch. Both may be weak and vacillating; both may be ambitious for power. But it will rest at last upon a free, upon a courageous, upon an upright judiciary, and when that fails upon all else will fail.

SYNOPSIS: Emily has run away from Twin Falls on her wedding day. Her mother, Mrs. Barnes, is frantic. Her father, Mr. Barnes, is a doctor. Emily's best friend, Charlotte, is a nurse. The story follows their search for Emily and the various adventures they have.

Chapter 24 NEW HOME

Emily came to the hospital twice a day at first and stayed on four or five times. She usually got over her nervousness in two or three days. She had learned to live with her mother's breakdown with the help of Mr. Barnes, who got a job in a mining camp, along with his friend Charlotte. It was good. But her managing mother, Frances Ellen, writes that Ederia is greatly ill with pneumonia, and she is very nervous. Emily does not realize that now, at last, she must endure Edwin and forget David Carson.

In fact, Lucy Barnes prided herself upon a great many things. Upon the fact, for example, that Mr. Barnes was her lord and master instead of her companion; that he told her what to believe, and paid all the bills; that she had no friends, and had no heart for figures; that she had completely forgotten Emily for having behaved so disgracefully on her wedding day; that she had her clothes made at home because the materials in ready-made dresses were so expensive; and that she had in time to pass judgment on what she asked for.

"The living-room draperies," Emily had said. "I want them made of a blue material with a white floral pattern. Mrs. Barnes, having abated Francis' wild excessive cordiality, stood looking at her the space of several minutes. "Won't they fade?"

"No," Emily assured her. "They're made of a material that won't fade. Mrs. Barnes looked disappointed. Her own draperies were dark red and had been in use, with the exception of the summer months for twelve years. In June they were taken down and cleaned, and in September they were put back. They were very durable curtains.

"They're very bright and cheerful," she conceded. "You've well suited to this type of house," she felt. Francis stated, "Emily wanted to laugh. Whatever mightings Frances might have had her daughter's taste would be a bad communication to the world. Francis also prided herself on her communication to the world. Her own draperies were dark red and had been in use, with the exception of the summer months for twelve years. In June they were taken down and cleaned, and in September they were put back. They were very durable curtains.

"I was through anyhow. I'm glad of an excuse," she said. "Francis too," she said. "I must send William for your father, so I'd better go." She considered offering to drop Mrs. Barnes at home and decided that it would save too much of spending the parting guest. Now his father had been in chauffeurs, and during business hours. Mrs. Barnes walked, "If you and Emily would go home, I would be glad. I hope you'll go to dinner tonight."

Emily sighed with relief. Her maid had been out for two days and she was rapidly coming to the conclusion that her domestic accomplishments would never be the same. "We'll be charmed, in addition to the company the idea of eating food I haven't prepared is enticing."

When Francis had gone, Mrs. Barnes said resignedly: "I'd dropped by to ask you to supper with us tonight, but of course we can't offer the attentions that Francis can. Emily wanted very badly to kick up a fuss and was suddenly ashamed of herself. "I'm so sorry I didn't know! And if you think you haven't any more invitations, see how quickly we accept it!"

She took her mother-in-law's plump arm. "Come and see the chest of drawers I had Turner do over for me."

(Copyright, 1935, by Marian Sigs)

Emily was hearing caution. She adjusted the folds of a drape and stepped back to consider the effect. "It's all right." Francis cocked her head. "The garters are a little thing under your right hand. I thought we might go down tomorrow night."

Emily continued to arrange the drape. "It was a funny thing, with all the things that I had done for you."

Francis dropped in often to offer suggestions, secure in the conviction that her sister's experience was a masterpiece. She was particularly so in the furnishings of Emily's home. She dropped in this morning. "I notice in the paper that Kathleen is having a marvelous job of Oriental," she announced.

Francis dropped in often to offer suggestions, secure in the conviction that her sister's experience was a masterpiece. She was particularly so in the furnishings of Emily's home. She dropped in this morning. "I notice in the paper that Kathleen is having a marvelous job of Oriental," she announced.

Emily was hearing caution. She adjusted the folds of a drape and stepped back to consider the effect. "It's all right." Francis cocked her head. "The garters are a little thing under your right hand. I thought we might go down tomorrow night."

Emily continued to arrange the drape. "It was a funny thing, with all the things that I had done for you."

Francis dropped in often to offer suggestions, secure in the conviction that her sister's experience was a masterpiece. She was particularly so in the furnishings of Emily's home. She dropped in this morning. "I notice in the paper that Kathleen is having a marvelous job of Oriental," she announced.

Elder Denies Need Of New Constitution

BOISE, Sept. 9—The federal government is broadening its power to regulate interstate commerce, a move which, according to the Idaho Federation of Labor, is a step toward the creation of a new constitution. The federation's executive committee has rejected the proposal, stating that the current constitution is sufficient. The federation will continue to monitor the situation and may take further action if necessary.

Twin Falls County's Fair Offers Wealth Of Exhibits, Diversion

Fairgrounds Hum With Activity In Last Minute Preparations for Five Day Run of Community Exhibition

Twin Falls county fair grounds at Filer hummed with activity until late last night and over all there hung an air of expectancy and well-being, as exhibitors, entertainers, race horse owners and rodeo performers completed final preparations for the opening this morning of the seventeenth annual fair that is to continue for five days, closing with the final rodeo performance and a fireworks display on Saturday evening.

The fair was the first to be held at the new grounds at Filer. It was the first to be held at the new grounds at Filer. It was the first to be held at the new grounds at Filer.

Exhibitors are all ready to complete that phase of their labors last night, and judging of entries to be held today to that the judges' awards in all departments will be made known to exhibitors by the close of the day.

At the center of the fair is a large building where a throng of busy workers was collecting and arranging what is being called the "biggest and best exhibit of farm and garden crops ever brought together in this county."

In the women's department, entries were all in place Monday and Tuesday, and the community exhibit was a generous display of the products of the county.

Live stock entries were completely filled yesterday with entries coming from as far away as California.

Seen and Heard On Fairgrounds And Midway

Midway presents a unique exhibit in Zero, the Human Icicle. This is the man created by Dr. Williams of the Hawaiian Islands, at Los Angeles, to be frozen, and then revived in the interest of science, and the medical profession. He claims he can stay frozen sixteen hours. The management files the medals.

RESERVE FIREMAN DIES AT HOSPITAL

Injuries Suffered While on Duty Prove Fatal to Elmer Alnip

Elmer Alnip, 35, 400 Elm street, reserve fireman, died at the hospital here today after a long illness resulting from injuries suffered Saturday evening when he fell from the fire truck and was dragged under the rear wheel as it was returning to the fire station.

The fire department has just extinguished a blaze, believed to have been of incendiary nature, at the H. A. Drake residence, 210 Blue Lakes boulevard. The fire destroyed a clover huller.

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Twin Falls mortuary and interment will be in the Twin Falls cemetery. Rev. W. E. Hartman of the First Christian church, will probably officiate.

Burial of his wife, who is visiting in the east, and four children, Robert, 12; Elmer, 11; Harold, 9; and Evelyn, 7, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marjorie Alnip, with whom he made his home, was born in Kansas, June 13, 1900. He had lived in Twin Falls since 1914.

Former Resident Dies in California

Mrs. S. A. Miller, 91, better known as "Aunt" Miller, who made her home for a number of years with her sister, Mrs. L. M. Holloway, Knoll, died September 2 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. D. H. Rogers, in the city of Los Angeles, California. She had been in California for several years.

Original Art Work of Local Boy Helps "Bruin" Win Distinction

The Bruin, Twin Falls high school's journalistic publication, has been the recipient of another high honor according to word received yesterday by Miss Eva Dowagrain, former Bruin editor. The Bruin has won the distinction of being the best of its kind in the state.

Many Attend Rites - For Mrs. Lundy

Mrs. Clara Lundy, who died last Thursday at her home, was paid final rites Sunday afternoon at the church of the Resurrection. Rev. L. D. Smith officiating. Floral tributes in profusion expressed the esteem in which Mrs. Lundy was held by her friends.

Pupils Come From Many Other States

Sixty-five foreign credit students from 14 different states have enrolled in the Twin Falls junior high school this year, according to records in the office of Mrs. Vera C. O'Leary, principal. Kansas with eight students came first of states other than Idaho. Thirty-one came from other schools of Idaho.

from other schools of Idaho. Students from Jasper county and Bloomington, Illinois, Enid, Oklahoma, and Sturgeon Bay, Wisconsin, came the farthest. The number of those from other states are: Colorado, four; Nebraska, four; California, two; Wyoming, two; Washington, three; Oregon, two; one each from Utah, Nevada and Texas.

DAUGHTER-PETITIONS TO PROBATE ESTATE

Mrs. Lila Terry of Bliss, a daughter of D. D. Wade who died at Filer on June 23, 1934, has applied to the probate court here for appointment as administratrix of her father's estate which includes personal property valued at $2000. Her name are five daughters and five sons.

Her name are five daughters and five sons. Hearing on the petition was set for September 16. Bayborn and Rayborn are petitioner's attorneys.

CASTLEFORD INFANT PAID FINAL RITES

Gravestone services for the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Strouse, Castleford, were conducted Sunday afternoon at the Twin Falls cemetery, under the direction of Rev. L. D. Smith, pastor of the Church of the Resurrection. Twin Falls mortuary was in charge of interment.

New Attendance Mark Indicated

That a new record is in the making in the local high school is quite evident yesterday as the registration in the senior high passed the one thousand mark. A grand total of 1009 in the senior high school and 807 in the junior high school was announced by the office yesterday, and expectations are that the number will continue to increase for some time.

Although the smallest of the classes, the seniors have over 200 in the senior high with 100 class members. This number is fairly close to the number that will graduate next spring, according to the principals' office.

The freshmen had the largest class in size. Their total of 331 is followed by the sophomores with 287 and the juniors with 200.
