GOVERNOR PLEDGES $100,000 MONTHLY TO IDAHO'S NEEDY

No Special Session, Ross Declares Promising Sales Tax Proceeds for Relief of IERA Unemployables

(By The Associated Press) BOISE, Nov. 21—Governor Ross announced tonight that he "absolutely will not call a special session of the state legislature to take care of the relief problem in this state."

"We will use the $700,000 from the 2 percent retail sales tax for unemployables now on Idaho emergency relief administration rolls, and the federal government will take care of the employables," he declared.

"The same cooperative plans will continue—only instead of the federal government being the sole source for both the employables and unemployables, the state will take care of the latter and the federal government will take care of the others."

The governor made his statement after Mayor Duncan McD. Johnson of Twin Falls spent some time in the office of Attorney General Bert H. Miller, seeking information as to whether the sales tax will be so cooperative as soon as the federal government ceases to contribute direct relief funds to Idaho December 1.

The attorney general intimated, Johnson said, that special legislation might be necessary.

The same question as asked by Johnson today was submitted to Attorney General Miller by Willis Moffatt, Ada county prosecutor in attorney.

The Idaho emergency relief organization will be cut approximately 63 percent of its present and the administrative cost will be cut materially, the governor said.

One of the linemen has false teeth and before today's scrimmage handed the coach a tooth. He placed them in his pocket.

As Bouslin chatted with spectators near the sideline, a nearby linemen made a wide sweep, fell on the coach and plowed into him.

Bouslin sidestepped on the turf, the tooth flew by him. He slipped to the dressing room. Assistant coaches supervised the rest of the scrimmage.

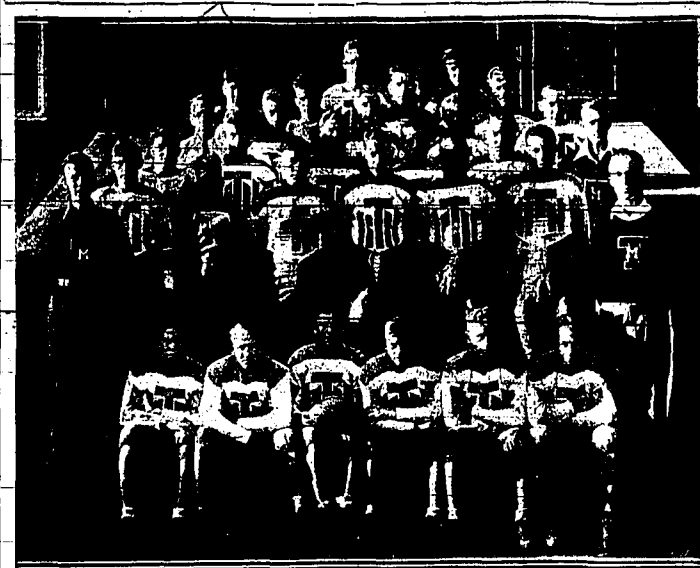

Potato Revolt—BOISE—Because about 30 of the inmates of the Idaho state prison didn't like the way the potatoes were being cooked, about 16 of them were taken out of their cells last night.

A miniature uprising broke out in a dining room Tuesday, Warden Ira Dyer wrote of the prison, revealed today.

"On the day in question, the prisoners had two lines of potatoes mashed and boiled with carrots, but they didn't like 'em," Warden Dyer explained.

The disturbance was quickly put down by the guards and there were no injuries, the warden said.

Ohioan Urges Borah To Seek Presidency

Former Senate Colleague Reports Strong Support For Idaho Republican

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Nov. 21—William E. Borah today was impugned by a former senate colleague—Roscoe McCulloch, Ohio Republican—to run for president, but the Idahoan declined politely to declare himself.

"Matters stand about as they were," Senator Borah reported after his talk with the Ohioan. His statement recalled to observers that last week he replied "I can't say I won't" when asked whether he would enter presidential primaries.

Borah, himself, denied this state of affairs in a newspaper interview. "I have had an interview with Senator Borah and, of course, it was in regard to presidential politics," Senator Borah has a strong opinion in Ohio on the presidency. Nothing has been determined definitely as yet, I am one of a great many who would like to see him make the race."

McCulloch, the prominent Republican congressional committee, issued a frank attack on President Roosevelt. In a statement it asserted that "Roosevelt is attempting to shift responsibility for the failure of the farm program and for the waste involved in the mass of ludicrous projects initiated by the Works Progress Administration."

"The committee said further that the amount of legislative writing (Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator) can change the picture of the most absurdities in the relief program."

This attack came as Chairman James A. Farley of the Democratic committee and Charles McNamara, publicity chief of the committee, (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

GRANGERS FAVOR REVISION OF AAA Organization Urges 'Permanent and Economically Sound Program'

(By The Associated Press) SACRAMENTO, Calif., Nov. 21 (AP)—The members of the AAA to shift from a long-term program for agriculture was recommended by the National Grange.

The farm fraternity, shaping its agriculture policy for 1935, recommended changes designed to increase farmer control, adjust production to a quantity rather than an acreage base and write in copartnership guaranteeing the farmer his labor and seed in the event of crop failure.

"The time has come," said the grange report, "when we must definitely begin the shifting from an emergency program to a long-term permanent and economically sound program. We farmers must cooperate to take over the machinery of our agricultural plan."

WYOMING SEARCH SURPRISES FLIER

Nationally Known Aviator Lands on Ranch After Fighting Wind

CHRYSLER, Wyo., Nov. 21 (AP)—A nationally known aviator, well known for his frequent long distance flights, decided today to make no further attempt to reach Wyoming skies after the spectacular flight he "over-see" on Thursday, for whom an anxious search was started yesterday, returned to Cheyenne by automobile today, having flown from an airfield 22 miles northwest of here.

The young pilot turned out not to be the one who had been reported as he realized he "couldn't make it" across the Teton mountains "because of the hostile wind in his back. He said he intends to wait until the wind dies before continuing his trip to Los Angeles.

Kurts landed on the ranch of Hugh McPherson only a short time after he took off from Cheyenne at 3:30 p. m. Tuesday, searching for an automobile and saddle horse when a farm woman telephoned Sheriff George J. Carroll that the missing flier was safe at the McPherson ranch.

The search had been pushed in the Teton region, searching for him and in the Elbow mountain area near Rawlins all day yesterday.

Kurts, who has made several transcontinental flights, explained he thought he was "causing any trouble" and said that he had made an effort to communicate sooner with authorities.

He said a United Air Lines plane flew over him and that he was shot down, so I thought they saw me."

Likewise authorities had no information to back up the information theory. The fact that the soda contained no particles of glass elements not ordinarily used together in chemical synthesis—components the accident investigator said.

The "fact" that the soda was taken from damaged original packages and put into barrels for distribution to retailers did not deal in poisons.

LeLand said it was possible the soda might have been scraped up from the wreckage of a ship that also contained poison contamination.

FIGHTING STARTS IN AAA BATTLE

Manufacturers, Farmers and Government Prepare for Big Test

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP)—Blows were struck by manufacturers, farmers and the government today in the supreme court battle over the new state's farm program.

In quick succession were these developments:

John W. Davis, one time Democratic presidential nominee and member of the American Liberty League, sought permission to join the House committee of Massachusetts in challenging the constitutionality of AAA processing laws. The House committee is to report on December 2.

Veron A. Vrooman of Des Moines filed a plea to join the government defense in the same case on behalf of the League for Economic Education, an organization supported by farmers and four of the farm belt states—Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska and South Dakota.

The government, replying to a plea of eight Louisiana rice millers for an injunction against processing plant payments, contained an injunction was barred by law and that the remedy of the millers was to "go to the market."

Davis' big plea was joined in by Nathan L. Miller, former governor of New York, and William B. Perkins. They acted in behalf of the Hygrade Food Products corporation, the National Milk Producers' Union and P. Lorillard company.

AAA was assailed by them as an incidental legal test of NRA, which the supreme court voided last June. They also rebutted the broad "general welfare" constitutional argument advanced recently by the government in several new deal cases.

BULLETS' COURSE TRACED AT TRIAL

Murder - Charged - Woman's Attorneys Object to Engineer

FAIRFIELD, Idaho, Nov. 21 (AP)—Attempt of the state to introduce evidence showing the course taken by bullets, which pierced the body of Mrs. Frances Murphy when she was slain here September 28, brought strenuous objections from the defense today in the trial of Mrs. R. M. Angel on a first degree murder charge.

The argument made it necessary for District Judge Lear McDougall to excuse the jury, while he listened to contentions of the attorneys. The defense objected to picking up the bullets, a Twin Falls city engineer, was not qualified to testify as a ballistics expert.

Various witnesses were called during the day to testify as to the condition of the body and its position when found in the field operated by Mrs. Murphy, Sheriff R. T. Blandish marked a path showing the position of the body when it went to the street to call for help.

He said he summoned Dr. W. B. Postlemon from the hospital and later had the body removed by E. J. Mellan, local undertaker.

The sheriff testified that he saw Mr. Angel, husband of the defendant, and proceeded to pick up the bullets from the street a half hour after he first entered the Murphy home.

Mr. Angel is serving for the defense. Special prosecutors were appointed for the trial.

THINK IT OVER! FOLKS—"That we didn't think" has from time immemorial cost us humans, not only endless sums in money but endless pangs and regrets. Not so much for what we did do but for what we did not do, or might have done. For the next few weeks we are all burdened with the question of what shall I give him or her? Let us tell you what happened a few days ago: We were talking here in the store with one of our customers, whom we shall call Mrs. X, about Christmas buying and Christmas presents. I said to her: "Mrs. X, think of all the money wasted for presents ("zeegaws and gimcracks") that often don't last until Christmas night. For years the Diamond Hardware has made a specialty of having a fine line of SENSIBLE, USEABLE, Really WORTHWHILE presents at REASONABLE prices. Presents that will last for years, often for a lifetime. "Suppose you give your husband a Hand Saw; Nail Hammer, Pipe Wrench, a Razor Strop, Shaving Brush or Pocket Knife, a good Fish-Rod-Fish-Basket-or-Reel, a set of Golf Clubs, a Shotgun or Rifle, a Bill Fold or Coin Purse, an Electric Dry Shaver Razor or Electric Hair Clipper. "Suppose he gives you an Electric Iron, Percolator, Toaster, Sandwich Toaster, Waffle Iron or Mixmaster Mixer, or a set of Fine Silverware, Heisley Glassware or Chinaware, a National Pressure Cooker, a Fire Place Grate or Screen, or a Charter Oak Floor Warmer, or if you need it, even a Wash Boiler or Galvanized Tub! "Contrast the years of use to be had of any of these items with anything else." Mrs. X, looked at me for a minute and said: "Why Mr. Hunt, this line of thought is entirely new to me. The idea is excellent and will certainly help me to be a more sensible and useful Christmas shopper." FOLKS: At our store you will find sensible presents for each member of the family. FLEXIBLE LAW

There was nothing tame or dull about a recent session of the United States Supreme Court. During the day every one of the nine justices differed with his colleagues in the opinions handed down. There were twenty-nine dissents in all. Not all of them were written. In some cases the justices were merely recorded as disagreeing with the majority opinion.

Five oppositions alike were recorded for Justices Cardozo, Brandeis and Stone. There were three apiece for Justices Sutherland, Roberts, and McReynolds. Chief Justice Hughes and Justice Butler dissented twice each. Justice Vandevanter, though absent from the bench, turned in one dissent.

The law is not a cut-and-dried matter, as it sometimes seems, if the nine men who are "tops" in legal interpretation are so frequently in disagreement. There is reassurance in this fact. If mistakes are made, they may be corrected.

So, too, with the Constitution. It may be misinterpreted and interpreted many times, but it remains a living document. Distress at any single Supreme Court ruling, and particularly at five-to-four decisions, may be lessened by realization that so far in our history there is nothing final and unalterable about them. They settle a point for a year or a generation, but not forever.

ENGLAND IN EGYPT

It is awkward for Great Britain to have Egypt complaining of "British tyranny" just when Britain is championing the independence of Ethiopia. Americans who enjoy "twisting the lion's tail" may have chortled with glee at the demonstrations on the seventeenth anniversary of Egypt's "independence."

It is just as well, though, not to chortle too much about that sort of thing. Britain is having a deuce of a time just now, holding her leg, lose empire together, and it might not do any of us much good if the world began falling apart just now. The chief beneficiaries would be the ambitious Caesars of Europe and Asia who are now threatening world stability.

Britain granted nominal independence to Egypt in 1923, but kept a hand on the Cairo government to safeguard the Suez Canal and the Sudan, and also on general principles.

It may be that Britain overlordship of Egypt will last as long as the British Empire. The English are pretty good rulers of subject peoples—responsible and helpful on the whole. Yet there is at least one serious flaw in this "White man's burden" policy. Subject peoples may prosper more economically, but there is less prosperity of the human spirit.

NOBEL PRIZES FOR CURIES

Once more a Curie wins a Nobel prize. This time it is Mme. Irene Joliot-Curie, daughter of the late Pierre and Marie Curie. She shares the prize with her husband, Prof. Frederick Joliot.

Carrying on the work of the elder Curies, the Joliot's are at work in the Curie Laboratory at the Radium Institute in Paris. They have been seeking radium substitutes in order to provide the sick with an ample supply of inexpensive healing rays. Radium itself is scarce and costly.

THE CANADIAN TREATY

Publication of the terms of the Canadian reciprocal treaty reveal that the northwest's worst fears are realized in the 50 per cent reduction in the lumber tariff. A scanning of the long list of provisions of the entire treaty gives one the impression that Canada receives more benefit than we; the replacing of them, contained in the same agreement, means benefit, not color to this belief, but if the United States does receive compensating advantages they are not at all evenly distributed geographically.

The industrial east gets the lion's share of the benefits in the form of a large number of manufactured articles upon which Canada is to reduce duties.

In the western sections the reverse is true. Western Canada appears likely to benefit heavily through its cut in lumber and shingle duties, while the Pacific northwest of this country will suffer for the same reason.

The Baker district will share in the blow, to a less extent than the coast because western Canada's lumber is not directly competitive. But as one local lumberman said yesterday, every board of foreign stuff that comes into this country destroys the market for a board of our own, and some of this will be eastern Oregon pine.

Whether American domestic policies figured in the treaty the writer does not know, but it may be significant that the section that shows signs of forsaking the administration gets valuable favors, while the west, which is supposed to be "in the bag" for next year's election, gets the reverse.

The first experience with reciprocal tariffs will be distasteful to this section. Protection is withdrawn from a large and vital industry, while no offsetting advantages of comparable size are realized.

A MUSEUM OF MODERN MUSIC

Recently it was announced that Williams College would build a museum of modern American music, the first to be established, and that the endowment would be provided by Paul Whiteman. The orchestra leader is making a gift of scripts, orchestrations, arrangements, phonograph records and musical instruments.

He has provided that this collection should be accessible to all qualified persons interested in the development of American music, and has expressed the hope that Williams may become a modern music center, with laboratories, instructors and lecturers.

The college, it appears, has received the idea, along with the gift, enthusiastically. And, indeed, there seems to be much to recommend the project. By modern American music one means essentially popular music, and popular music means jazz. Think what one will, there is no doubt that jazz is the most important of American expression and that, as he also remarks, it "has a great chance of growth."

A SLOGAN TO END SLOGANS

A fan may sip a sparkling drink a consuming fire or tell a person to sleep. Moreover, it may do both these things at the same time.

These reflections are aroused by the recent assertion of Dr. Adler of Vienna, a psychologist of note, that metaphor is the finest source of ideas. He probably just a psychologist's longer word for slogan.

For Dr. Adler cites such familiar catch phrases as the "bulwark of civilization" (the home, army) and the "destroyer of democracy" (the other nation's army).

Slogans or metaphors, they have a reminiscent ring, a variation of the term "making the world safe for democracy" and that slogan "The war is to be won." War, Adler says, is a slogan. He also observes that rather uncomfortable reading for those who remember how the slogans current during the years 1914-1918 fanned national prejudices and passions into flames and put reason and judgment to sleep. He says:

Metaphors are used to arouse heroic words. They are uttered by means of propaganda, the people come to believe them as a religious or a cultural mission.

He might have added that there is a marching music that leads on to megalomania.

Slogans, of course, are not confined to war times. They have their little day in trade. "America First," "Buy American," "Buy U. S. Goods," "The war is to be won." They are heard in the stores and in the streets. They are induced largely by fear. In times of national crisis a slogan to end slogans might be useful. With fewer fans individuals and nations could think more and should less. The one comforting thing about the slogan induced by slogans is that it seldom lasts long. The quick and devastating effect which usually follows acts like a shower of red water on a slumberer.

Don H. Bark, Early Settler Here, Wins High Place In Alberta

Known among Twin Falls third settlers as the able leader of land and later recognized as an authority on the duty of water, Don H. Bark had been employed for 20 years in development of agriculture in western Canada before his death at Great Falls, Montana, last September 26, from injuries received in an automobile accident near that city two days before.

Officials of the provincial and federal departments of agriculture, many of them comrades from the staff of the Canadian Pacific railway and many comrades and friends from Brooks, Lethbridge, Calgary, Edmonton and other places attended funeral services which were held at Calgary.

Editorial Tribute
In an editorial tribute to Mr. Bark and his work, the Brooks, Alberta, Bulletin, notes which have been reprinted in Twin Falls, said:

Don H. Bark was born at Hinckley, Illinois, 44 years ago. He had an extensive career in scientific agriculture in the western United States, specializing in irrigation work. In 1913 the Canadian Pacific railway secured his services for development of agriculture on their irrigation projects in the case of Alberta from Boise, Idaho, and first lived at Swarthmore, but subsequently came to Brooks where he lived for some 18 years. His position at Brooks was superintendent of irrigation development. Recently when the project was turned over to the settlers, Mr. Bark was transferred to Lethbridge, but was enjoying a holiday prior to taking up his new duties.

Mr. Bark was instrumental in forming the Orgrim Alliance Seed Co. in this section, one of the most thriving local industries. He had developed seed peas, growing as a major crop of the district and it was on behalf of this work that he had taken the fatal trip.

Oliver Unsettled
The early field of agriculture to the late Mr. Bark had given unstintingly of his energy and ability. He made the irrigation project an important branch of agriculture in many parts of his province. He developed the extensive lamb feeding industry in this district.

Mr. Bark was recognized as one of the foremost men engaged in agricultural promotion work in western Canada. G. O. Porter, manager of the Canadian Pacific railway department of natural resources, said: "He was a man of outstanding ability and was highly esteemed by his associates both in the service and in the community. His loss will be felt throughout the entire west."

The late Mr. Bark is survived by his widow, one daughter, Mrs. Florence Damon, and one son, Don; also his aged parents in Hinckley. The people of the Brooks district and all over the Eastern Irrigation block were grieved and shocked to learn of the passing of one who meant so much to the whole countryside.

PIONEER OF MALTA PAID FINAL TRIBUTE

BULLOCK, Nov. 21—Final tribute was paid the memory of George H. Scott of Malta, Cassia county pioneer, at the L. D. B. church here Monday at one o'clock with Rev. Charles O. Hymns 8, Levita of Deola and Orson Banders of Malta spoke briefly and Rev. Arns delivered the sermon. On Tuesday morning the body was taken to Shoshone where burial was made in the family plot.

Mr. Scott was one of the oldest pioneers on the project. Friends with reminiscence of many were indicative of the many friendships Mr. Scott had made during his more than a quarter of a century's residence on the project.

VULCAN COMPANY ENCOUNTERS VEIN

Danver Mining Record Describes Nevada Mine Development

The Vulcan Mine company, an organization of Iowa, California and Twin Falls investors operating in northeastern Elko county, Nevada, has encountered the face of a tunnel the big Vulcan vein from which lessees in higher workings have taken some high grade ore, says the Denver Mining Record. The Record's story:

The Vulcan Mine company has been carrying on extensive development work consistently for many years in its property in northern Elko county, Nevada. It has been rewarded by encountering the big Vulcan vein from which lessees have produced some high grade ore in the workings directly above the present face of the Vulcan tunnel, according to Vulcan company officials.

The vein was cut into at a point 1240 feet from the portal at a vertical depth estimated at 400 feet and the officials of the company were very much enthused over the outlook as finding this vein proves the location of a rich source of ore. It is the contention of the geologists that this type of ore should be at least at the level and the prospects are good for pay ore soon, as the vein can be explored more fully, they point out.

The water flow was unusual due to the fact that the property is located in a low country and the same was of such proportions that it covered the rails and ran full width of the tunnel for some time before it finally settled down to a flow that is now taken care of by a six-inch pipe at the tunnel portal. Due to the water pressure and the nature of the ground, a bulkhead was installed and exploration abandoned at the present face and a prospect is in progress from which a drift will be run to tap the vein at a point where it is deemed that full exploration of the vein will be more feasible. So far milling ore of which the principal values are gold have been encountered, but it is the aim of the management to recover the high grade ore shoot that came to the surface and from which assay returns are valued from $100 to $150 per ton.

FLORICULTURIST GIVES TIPS FOR THANKSGIVING TABLES

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)—Franklin J. Ruedel, Oklahoma A. and M. floriculturist, has some floral ideas for Thanksgiving tables.

He believes the decorations should not be in the low-carrier way. The flowers should be high enough for the guests to see under, or short enough to see over.

Small, highly-colored gerbera or colorful chrysanthemum leaves are appropriate, he said. Fruit centerpiece are nice, and may be built around a pumpkin.

A pumpkin may be hollowed and filled with fruit—this is improved by grapes over the top, hanging over the sides and at the base, he said.

HIGH COURAGE

by Jeanne Bowman
SYNOPSIS: Dramatically, Anne Kellogg, Anna Farnsworth's oldest and best friend, has returned from South America and taken charge of Anna's trial. Anne is accused of murdering her foster uncle, Lee Farnsworth. With the help of John Parley, who is a witness, Kellogg has found and produced witnesses who materially alter the trend of events. Now it is up to the jury to tell where he was at the time of the shooting.

Chapter 4
THE NET TIGHTENS
"My boat, the bell and all right at that, girl," the indomitable Kellogg said.
"Where happened there at the time?"
"Lady, she climb up on boat like she get to get. Somebody say loud, 'Anne! She run round. Show me sound. You got boat not dip or was she shot die?'"
Anne sat horrified; then her smile was correct. By the grace of a wave which had rolled her boat, Lee Farnsworth and she was dead. Anne and Crocker. Bob Crocker, the doctor, had bought cartridges for the weapon which had fired the shot. The White Deer, did you see any of the occupants in her boat close to Miss Farnsworth?"
The Indian's lip set in a stubborn line.
"Come on, Charlie, you wouldn't have this girl hang because you're afraid to talk?"
"Niika 'traid," the man protested. "Don't know sure. Only know got shot."

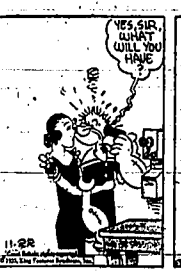

"Well, tell us what some of the men nearby looked like."
"All dress same. All wear slickers, but hats. One closest to her was fancy sweater under coat. Red."
Judge Kellogg searched for a bundle of news papers. He turned to the witness and disclosed a turtle neck sweater of scarlet with interwoven lines of purple and blue. After introducing it as an exhibit, he turned to the witness.
"Could this be it?"
"Yes, Preety." The black eyes glittered with enjoyment of the gay color.
"Are you sure?"
The witness brow wrinkled. "No, sure," he compromised, "just think White Deer wish to be right. White Deer American, woman in boat."

"That's fine idea, Charlie, too bad others haven't the same feeling. You're excused."
"Male Kellogg's next, if you please, Mr. Bailiff."
"Anne, watching Parley and Bob Crocker, saw them exchange a look of glad glance as the sturdy canonier man entered and was sworn in as a witness.
"Carson, what are your duties?"
"General caretaker of the Farnsworth cemetery."
"Where were you the night of August 21st?"
"Handing around the cemetery. There was trouble there, because the fisherman and we figured I'd better keep an eye to the buildings."

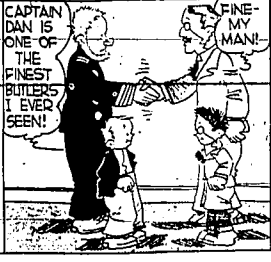

"Did you see any of your employers at the time?"
"Sure, that is, the young ones, Mr. Crocker and Mr. Parley. Crocker was there all evening.
"Anne signed with relief. Then the murderer couldn't have been he, and perhaps her trust hadn't been so tragically misplaced.
"Mr. Parley took off in a glitzy suit after the fisherman left."
"Did you remember how Parley was dressed at the time?"
"Did you remember how Parley was dressed at the time?"

KIWANIANS VIEW NEW PLANT AT TWIN FALLS

The new Twin Falls plant of the Idaho Power Company will close its headgates Saturday preparatory to beginning the distribution of electrical power to the system early in December, officials of the company told the membership of the Twin Falls Kiwanis club which yesterday inspected the works and were guests of the company at a luncheon at the new plant.

Practically the entire membership of the club with the high school football team as its guests were present and facilities were provided whereby the visitors were given every opportunity to view the new works. John D. Orr, assistant to the president, was present from Boise, together with "Iank" Genser, chief engineer and other company officials. A number of explanatory speeches were made during the luncheon and among the points of interest developed was the fact that this is the only place of privately owned electric power in the country now going on anywhere in the country. A further fact of interest was brought out when Mr. Genser explained the construction of the dam. According to the chief engineer an entirely new principle was embodied in the fact that the dam and its foundations are entirely separate pieces of construction with the dam resting upon a layer of tar paper placed on the foundations proper. Expansion and shrinkage due to heat and cold are thus provided for.

STOCKTON AGAIN IN TOILS OF LAW

Young Man, Given Another Chance by Court, Taken for Shoplifting

Stockton and Sprinkel were also taken to have stolen clothing at a Buhl department store.
