STUPENDOUS OVERHEAD

Administration of the Social Security Act which goes into effect January first and by means of which—the government—hopes to raise, by means of graduated taxes upon pay-rolls assessed against employer and employee, an annual sum sufficient to relieve all social distress, probably will require more records and record keeping than the Census Bureau, the Veterans' Bureau and all the insurance companies combined.

Under the law it will be necessary to keep records covering the cases of thirty million employees with a complete employment history of each. In addition similar records must be kept with respect to all employers of eight or more persons. The actual collection of the tax—will require—still—further, bookkeeping and accounting and every change in the status of either employer or employee must be duly noted and recorded.

There is little discussion to question the necessity of some such law as this but it does seem as though some less intricate system could be devised for the collection of the tax. Huge sums of money will be raised by such a levy but the expense of administration will be enormous.

This substantial addition is made to the expense of government the cost of which is already higher than ever before in the history of the country.

PRIVATE RIGHTS

It was more than the crime menace, more than fear of peril for their second son, that drove Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife from their native country. It was also petty persecution, in the form of sniping and intrusion upon their lives and work, in public and in private, until they sickened of it.

Here is a family that is warm-hearted, nation-loving men. The persecution which has finally alienated them is, more than anything else, a persistent, shameless exhibition of bad manners.

Not all of us have been guilty, not half of us, but enough of us to destroy the privacy of people who have a right to privacy, and send them fleeing to a foreign country. To a country where a man's home is his castle, and the private rights of himself and his family are respected, and where in public places a distinguished person may come and go without being followed by a curious and excited mob.

In this shameless persecution, it must be admitted by honest editors, the newspapers have played a part. They, too, with their thousands eyes and ears, their swarms of reporters and photographers, should ease up in their effort to supply a clamorous public with all the petty information about its heroes and its villains that it is capable of consuming.

All of us could assume, to advantage, more self-restraint and dignity, more respect for ourselves and more consideration for other people.

SAME OLD EDEN

People living outside of Italy are amused by an incident in Rome. There was a restaurant there called "Eden." The name had no reference to Anthony Eden, the handsome and dashing Englishman who has been representing Great Britain at Geneva and dabbling about from capital to capital as the traveling salesman of British diplomacy. But when the British government was forced to abandon its effort to make peace by giving Italy two-thirds of Ethiopia, the citizens of Rome blamed Captain Eden for it as much as anybody, and got madder and madder as they looked at that name on the restaurant. So there was a boycott.

The restaurant proprietor thereupon made a neat compromise by changing "Eden" to its Italian synonym, "Paradiso," and patronage was resumed as usual. They are satisfied with that name. Some take it as a symbol of Ethiopia, the colonial paradise they hope to conquer. But they will probably find a serpent there, too.

FARMS AND ZOOS

A zoo superintendent and a parks director in a metropolitan center are discussing the addition of a cow and several calves to the zoo collection. It seems that a lion or tiger is no more of a novelty to city children than the plain and gentle cow that provides their daily milk. The mayor in the same city adds the suggestion that there really ought to be a model barnyard with pigs. And if pigs, and outdoor inquiries, why not sheep, horses and poultry?

There aren't enough grandpas and grandmas on farms any more. City children have no natural rural havens in which to spend summer vacations helping with chores, climbing apple trees, playing hide-and-seek in barns, wading in woodlot creeks and picking wild blackberries.

Instead of establishing incomplete farm exhibits in zoos, however, shouldn't cities look into the matter of acquiring genuine farms in the nearest rural sections, where defrauded little city folks can visit?

CZECH PATRIOT

Omaha World-Herald

In the contrast between Germany and politics that has existed in Europe since the World War, Czechoslovakia has loomed as an island of democracy and peace. Although the country was made by the Versailles map drawers out of lands which had belonged to other nations, its people have been undisturbed by the eruptions of communism and fascism which swept neighboring countries. Credit for this must, go not alone to the character of the population, but to the wisdom of a great leader, Benes, and a great diplomat, Dr. Edvard Benes.

They managed to get up a stable republican form of government to bring about agrarian reforms which helped redistribute huge Austrian land estates among the peasants as small farms, and to maintain in foreign affairs a safe middle course, which has avoided calamities. In the event of a European war the country would be almost certain to be drawn into the conflict, and the efforts of the leaders have always been for the maintenance of stability.

Now Masaryk has resigned. He is an old man, and tired. Even though a grateful people extended to him the privilege of being president for life, he prefers to retire. America has had an affectionate admiration for him, based upon his residence and work here as well as his success in helping form his independent, capable of the Czechs and the Slovaks. His policy seemed always to spring from a wholly unselfish love for his people and his actions have been marked by a patriotism unmarked by greed or personal power. This seemed in marked contrast to the motives influencing other powerful figures in Europe. Perhaps in this may be found the reason for the secure basis of government in Czechoslovakia, as compared with that of neighboring states.

Czechs and Slovaks feel about their first president very much as Americans have always felt about George Washington. To them he is the father of his country, and deservedly so.

The analogy is drawn closer by Dr. Masaryk's resignation. Because of the gratitude of the young American republic to its founder, the revolution, the confidence of its judges and the admiration of its citizens upon his leadership Washington might have remained at the head of the government to the end of his days. Notwithstanding the constitutional requirement for a quadrennial election, the Senate was marked until Washington himself firmly put his foot down on it. He thus exhibited a faith in republican government which his people needed and established a precedent for the office which has had the force almost of statutory law.

Perhaps Dr. Masaryk's resignation is the sign of a similar faith. For it is true that republics, if they are to prevail, must learn to lean not too much on a few leaders, but must develop the ability to get along with changing leadership in such manner as will not greatly disturb an established and continuing order. It is a good thing that the Czech leader should show that it is capable of standing alone without him.

THE NEZAM'S GOLD
 (Portland Oregonian)

Most of our readers will have observed the story about the Nezan of Hyderabad, whose wealth is at least twice that of the Ford or Rockefeller families, who has ordered 10,000 silver plates for his silver jubilee, to be held next month.

Even more interesting than the estimated value of the Hindu prince's estate, as compared to the value of the estate of the richest families, is the matter of "type of wealth." The prince's fortune is in gold, silver, jewels, sheep, cattle, formations and horses, rather than in the form of stocks and bonds or less liquid wealth, whereas the American fortunes are in complicated systems of factories, gas pipes, wells, refineries and shipping lines. These have no worth at all except when they are in operation.

The difference is highly significant when one considers the problem of redistribution of wealth put forth by the Roosevelt administration and present in many people's minds. Obviously the riches of the Nezan of Hyderabad could be broken up and handed to millions of people without loss. The Rockefeller and Ford properties would sink toward the valueless if they were not remain complete and busy. There can be transfer of ownership, public or private, there must not be dispersed.

Wealth may be dispersed, it can never be redistributed.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—There are times, I presume, when almost every day of the writing clan longs for a stab at being serene, even ponderous. To pick out one of those first-moment moments as W. L. Kipling or Bolitho. I sat down at the typewriter flitting with such a fantasy.

But a few desultory taps of the space bar, an aimless meandering of the pen, a stare out of the window and the hall-echoing egg-into ink-wrinking dilemma. So here I am, ready to go but with nothing important to say. A donkey, so to speak, with the meandering pen.

From a letter in Arizona the other day I received a note from a lonely valiant fighting back to reality. "I have named Rocky Waterson or Reddy Waterhaken. It's one or the other. I know, but which? Well, it is Waddy Rothacker to be precise.

It strikes me that's about as near as you can get to a word of correct human. Indeed I would shrink from meeting one who had not reached that perfection. I have a definite hunch the result is a terrifically long word.

I warn to people who accept a few things by faith. I am a realist. I've got to meet the 100 per cent. If you're not, you're not. I've got to meet the 100 per cent. If you're not, you're not.

COMBED, in the March 31, will become clear that Colonel Lindbergh's departure for England—his flight—was motivated in part by threats against his family and expedient cooperation between Britain and the United States in the air transportation field. The British are keen for Anglo-American worldwide air routes, and Lindbergh's flight was a test of his leadership. The news that perhaps the most-mentioned name in connection with the trans-Atlantic air transport is Lindbergh is a many projected steps along this route. Lindbergh was not only Alfred Nobel's son-in-law, but also a chance to expand his professional opportunities.

Cooperation in aviation is only one phase of rapidly-lightening relations between Britain and the United States. English capitalists have learned that their talents cannot be employed as well at home in the United States as in the United States as they intended to use the United States as a springboard for their expansion into the West Indies. They are looking for the conservative elements in our political and financial life and some of these men are perhaps unconscious labor of looking to London for leadership.

English investments in American corporations are already much more substantial than most people realize. The British are also taking an increasingly active part in the affairs of ours. The price we pay for goods has given them a tremendous 40 per cent discount on their American purchases and they are making full use of the remarkable bargain. Some of these men are already well established in the United States from end to end in search of opportunities which promise the richest return in profits—and in influence.

LACKING. Two new faces have appeared on Dr. Townsend's general staff in recent months without attracting much attention. They are worth noting as giving significant clues to probable future developments in these important movements. One of them is Huey Long's former secretary—Chasteberry—has been brought into the Townsend office in connection with the handling of the health bills. The other is Boyd Kuyler, who was a prominent Republican Times some years ago when he won the Pulitzer prize for exposing the Ku Klux Klan.

Mr. Kuyler is publicly identified with the health bills, but although he doesn't care to be identified as such, he is also editor of the Townsend weekly, which aims at a circulation of 2,000,000. His price jacked up to $2 a year. Kuyler is responsible for the new policy of building strong county and township organizations as the backbone of the movement instead of trying to handle everything from a central headquarters. His organization in a township can always get out enough voters to make an impressive showing locally.

Even Dr. Townsend's several critics admit that his plan of action which has motives are above reproach. They are not so kind in their appraisal of his entourage. His principal advisers do not have impressive records.

Guiding Your Child
 By ALICE CLARKE RICHMOND

MORAL COWARDICE
 "What will the neighbors think?" The world is full of moral cowards brought up on this code of deferring to the opinions of the neighbors. People who are afraid to make an independent stand even for right and justice call "others" talk.

This moral cowardice has its roots in a childhood spent at the mercy of the neighbors. The mother corrects her children when they are not the door neighbor, and threatens with the big stick of public opinion, "It is true that the neighbors will be angry if you do it, but it is more important to be obedient than to be right."

In the end the decision must be left with the individual, and he goes against the wishes of the neighbors if he lives in, he must make his own equation and be answerable to himself.

Children should learn basic rules from the outset, and these rules should be universal in application. He should be taught not to disturb others, not because of what the others may think, but because thoughtfulness of others is essential to right and beautiful living.

There are too many children to whom it is urged that they should question of immediate convenience with no rational basis for being. It is wrong to create a fuss because Mrs. Jones may think it is wrong to hang out clothes on Sunday because the neighbors will be shocked; it is wrong to stand on one's feet because no one will trust you; it is wrong to snare and drag because the people one meets are "not" to be trusted.

The answer the child makes is of course, "Put down the clothes." Do what you like so long as you don't know, and in the end live as a coward and someone find out.

APPLE CROP YIELDS TO SCIENCE

Idaho—Official Reports—Reduction of Codling Moth Damage

DOISE, Dec. 27 (AP)—The codling moth, a parasite that lives on the bright red apples that helped make Idaho famous, is on the increase.

Through the combined scientific efforts of the Idaho fruit growers and the state department of agriculture, damage caused to the crop was reduced from more than 16 per cent in 1934 to 6.16 in 1935.

The Idaho apple crop totals approximately 5,000,000 bushels annually. Last year brought $7,170,000 to producers, figures at the office of Richard C. Hoar, federal agricultural statistician for Idaho, showed.

The saving is 10 per cent. He noted based on these figures the loss prevented this year would be 500,000 bushels, Wicks observed. The value of this year's crop was fixed by Hoar at $7,076,000.

Through the teamwork of the orchardists in applying spray to the apples on the dates indicated by our district agents, and by removal of 47,628 infested trees, a saving of many thousands of dollars has been made, Wicks said.

The legislature last winter appropriated $100,000 for the department of agriculture to carry on the work.

The number of carloads of apples lost on account of codling moths was 353 and the total number of trees produced was 5,703 in 1935, Wicks' figures show.

The loss from San Jose scale, an apple tree disease which attacks 75 per cent of the total production.

NEVER MIND THE LADY

by David Garth

SYNOPSIS: Terry Willett's first meeting with Allaire was when she was in the tropics...

Chapter 29

Forget him, but—about Allaire. You sweep a hand across his forehead...

Willet had never seen this composed, strong man flustered before...

He went over and opened the room door. Fox and two other men were standing there.

They arrived tensely at each other's door. "Who's there?"

Terry regarded them unfavorably. "Who are those birds, George?"

Who are those birds, George? Fox closed the door behind him. "They're private detectives, Terry."

"Don't get angry, son. Allaire's been missing two days. I have you any idea where she is?"

"Hold on!" he said, "who asked you?"

"Yes?" Willett asked. "I don't know," repeated Terry.

"Well, then, give us the harm if we see who she is. It's a hope of your damned business."

"There was a brief discussion, clearly the apartment, though it is their duty to make certain, but finally they left."

"Harden H. Terry. Were all worried about Allaire's disappearance."

"This business at the dock has come up. LaMarr's threatened to release the story."

"The hell he did!" he pulled himself up. "Probably back double-crossing everybody's light and let again."

"I don't get it."

"You left town. Blitzy was still there with both feet."

"What's that?"

"It's simple. He wanted to be sure of how much you knew. You probably appeared on the scene just as he was about to spring the story and he wanted to make sure nobody could call his bluff."

"Blitzy?"

"That's what I mean. He was sure of how much you knew. You probably appeared on the scene just as he was about to spring the story and he wanted to make sure nobody could call his bluff."

STATE LIQUOR LAW
FACES NEW TESTS

Injunction—Proceedings Involve Questions of Constitutionality

Constitutionality of penalty provisions of liquor law "incur considerable question" in district court here yesterday by attorneys for three Twin Falls resorts which Twin Falls county prosecutor Edward H. Beck, is seeking to have permanently restrained from selling liquor.

it's raining, and you can't drop

LONG ILLNESS CLAIMS
RESIDENT OF FILER

Oliver Clinton Johnston, 55, filer, died at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his home, following an illness of 6 years' duration. He was born April 1, 1880, at Edgar, Nebraska.

The body rests at the White mortuary chapel. Funeral arrangements will be completed at the mortuary. Johnston was a member of the Presbyterian church and of Masonic order No. 67, at Edgar, Nebraska.
He is survived by his wife, Mrs.
Bertha Johnston and three children, Robert H. Helen and James H. Johnston, all of Filer; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Johnston, Linden, Nebraska; two brothers, Dr. J.
F. Johnston, Twin Falls, and Dr.
L. H. Johnston, Lincoln, Nebraska;
and one sister, Mrs. Riley Haynes, Billings, Montana.

VAN LEUVEN ASKS FOR ADMINISTRATOR'S POST

On behalf of his mother, Mrs. Julia Van Leuven, Alfred Van Leuven, son of William Van Leuven who died in Twin Falls last December 1934, applied to the probate court here yesterday for appointment as administrator of his father's estate. The estate was valued at $30, and included a house and lot in Buburbin Park addition to Twin Falls. There are no minor children.
Alfred Van Leuven is a resident here as represented in the probate proceedings by J. H. Barnes, Twin Falls attorney.

CRUELTY ALLEGED IN PETITION FOR DIVORCE

Alleging cruelty and intemperance, Mrs. Inez Calacorta, mother of two children, 6 and 14 years old, started suit in the probate court here yesterday for divorce from John Calacorta, sheepherder, to whom she was married in 1924. Mrs. Cal-corta applied to the probate court yesterday for custody of the children and for $20 a month for their support, and applied for an order to restrain Calacorta from interfering with her or the children. E. V. Larson of Twin Falls is her attorney in this action.

SENTENCED FOR DISTURBANCE

Accused in a misdemeanor charge of disturbance of the peace, the chiefly of Twin Falls pleaded guilty in justice of the Peace H. M. Holder court, and was sentenced yesterday to serve a 30-day term in Twin Falls county jail on $100 fine and $5.00 costs. He was arrested by police officers, Clifton Deweiser signed the complaint.

NEW DEATH CHARGE
AGAINST VAN VLACK

He was selected to assist in the prosecution of Van Vlack.
The prosecution last evening said he had no information as to when Van Vlack would be arraigned on the new murder charge.
Discussing whether the state would continue with prosecution for the murder of the man who killed officer, or rather to demand Van Vlack's life for the slaying of his father with Mr. Decker said the latter case is perhaps stronger in some respects although he added, more circumstantial evidence is involved.

PASQUALE DI CICCIO
GOES BEFORE JURY

"I haven't even seen her, alone, in six months."
Di Cicco who arrived here by airplane from the East today, said he last Monday to her home "between 12 and 1 o'clock Saturday night," and then went home himself.
He gave satisfactory account of his movements Saturday night and Sunday. Deputy District Attorney
Ugno Blackack said.
Meanwhile, detectives reported they were unable to confirm report Miss Todd had been severely beaten several days before her death by a man her name.
Roland West, her business associate, and R. H. W. Solifer, manager of the Bidwalk cafe laughed at the report.
"It's ridiculous, like most of the mysteries here," West said.
The grand jury deferred taking testimony of West until Monday, when the inquiry will be resumed.
Charles (Duke) York, who reported "Lord Landdowne" wrecker, were dismissed after questioning by deputies. They were not submitted
"Nothing to it," Foreman George Rochester said. "Their stories don't make sense."

THREE ORGANIZATIONS

ed yesterday for Dr. Emma Crossland,

Presbyterian church, paid high tribute to her as a teacher for a number of years in the Presbyterian Sunday school, and to her interest in community affairs. Quantities of floral tributes bore message of
