Government, Business, Labor Hail New Year's Improvement Promise

Optimism Marks America's Welcome Of 1936 Bringing Hope Of Continuing Recovery Gains

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—Spokesmen for government, business and organized labor—generally in optimistic terms—welcomed the new year tonight with suggestions for carrying forward in 1936 the recovery gains of 1935.

The expressions of optimism, however, were not universal. One business leader saw obstacles should government improve "businesses" or employers. A labor chief said was concerned with the fate of new deal legislation in the supreme court.

Secretary Roger summarized

the government's outlook as follows:

"On the basis of the broad gains recorded in the economic and social life of the nation in 1935 and in view of the cumulative strength of the recovery record, we may expect the year to move forward courageously in the new year with long term programs looking forward to sound and stable progress."

Business Viewpoint

Harold G. Moore, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States: "With all of the evidences of the new strength and vigor cumulative, we look forward with confidence into the new year with long term programs looking forward to sound and stable progress."

William Green

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said that the improvement in economic and industrial conditions which set in during the present year will continue during 1936.

President—Very

Terminating the next 12 months as a "fateful year" for labor, Green said the ruling court of the nation had given the go-ahead to the Wagner labor law, and the battle against the Gulfy coal regulation law and other labor legislation will have a profound effect upon the condition of labor," he predicted.

George Perkins

"Integrated activity and sound constructive cooperation between management and labor, and family wage scale, will bring about increased purchasing power, and with the government standing by to aid in accomplishing this objective, well contented—the gains made along the way point of the direction."

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—

Creating a now precedented in congressional history, senate and house leaders tonight arranged for an extraordinary session next Friday night to receive personally from President Roosevelt his annual message.

Never before has a presidential message been delivered at night. Only once, when Presidential delivered his war message, has a chief executive appeared before Congress at night.

At a recent, officials said,

many employees probably would not know for several weeks whether they will be subject to the taxes. The taxes are not payable, however, until Jan.

1937.

Hampered by lack of funds, lawmakers were unable to draft regulations covering the type of records which employers must keep,

showing the total amount of wages paid during the year.

Officials said yesterday complete regulations describing employees affected by the laws, methods of collection and penalties for non-compliance, were to be issued before January 1, probably not before February 1.

The social security act, under which unemployment insurance as well as old age pensions are provided, was enacted last night.

Social security law has been completed by the Senate, but the House has not yet passed its version of the bill.

NEW YEAR BRINGS NEW TAX LEVIES

Collector Quotes Provisions of Social Security Measure

BOISE, Dec. 31 (AP)—John B. Wiley, general manager of Internal Revenue, reiterated tonight that employers of eight or more persons must keep employment records beginning January 1, so that the amount of tax to be imposed upon them under the unemployment insurance provisions of the social security act would be determined at the end of the year.

"The unemployment insurance feature of the federal law will become operative January 1, and does not require any particular appropriation," Mr. Wiley explained.

There is considerable confusion in Idaho over provisions of the law, he said.

Other phases of the act, such as such-and-pensions welfare, require appropriations.

The law exempts employers of domestic servants, federal and state employees, religious and charitable organizations from keeping employment records, Wiley said.

"In other words," he observed, "if I hire a maid or a cook."

A farmer, who hired eight or more men, he would be exempt from keeping the records and from paying the tax.

Indications Found Of Coal In Idaho

TWIN FALLS, Idaho, Dec. 31 (AP)—Frank Michaels of Carbondale, Illinois, representative of a Chicago coal company, Junction, said today that no coal deposits in the state had been found in this district.

Michaels visited the region a year ago, and his report caused his company to send him back for a thorough examination.

Although he did not reveal where the deposits were indicated, a crew is drilling in canyons below this village.

Canadian Stockmen Invade U. S. Marts

CALGARY, Alberta, Dec. 31 (AP)—The first important test of the U.S.-Canada reciprocal trade agreement, which comes into effect tomorrow, will be made by a group of prominent western Canadian stockmen.

Canadian stockmen—100 men, with an entourage of 40 cars of prime Alberta cattle—here at Paul and Chicago markets on a special train.

Averaging 1,000 pounds per head, the cattle will come via 600 railcars—or about 80,000 pounds of beef for American tables.

Reduction in the cattle tariff opens a large avenue of trade to cattle growers of the Dominion.

Government To Buy More Idaho Apples

BOISE, Dec. 31 (AP)—W. H. Goldrey, Idaho director of the Federal Apple Commission corporation, which distributes food to persons in many of Idaho's need, announced tonight that authorization has been received by him for the purchase of 50,000 bushels of apples.

The state now has approximately 1650 carloads of apples now on hand, he estimated.

Not in many years has Twin Falls been as convivial as just evening, when the old year was bidding adieu and the new year was ushered in. One of the gayest events of the evening was the annual New Year's eve ball attended by members of the Elk's Lodge and their partners. Dancing began at eleven o'clock and continued until two-thirty o'clock this morning. No hard dinners and "at homes" preceded the dance and early morning breakfasts served buffet at numerous homes, followed the dance—Norman-Sinclair's orchestra of Burley chair's orchestra of Burley

Hotels, tea rooms, restaurants and coffee shops were open late and crowded, and the city was dressed for celebration.

Equally enjoyed were the special theater programs at the Oriental, Idaho's Fox Theater, and musical shows presented by the distribution of carnival favors, highlighting the performances.

Advance reservations indicate numerous dinner parties will be held at the residence of the rich and eating establishments and hotels. Innumerable dinner parties will be given at private homes New Year's eve and the long-honored custom of holding house parties will be observed by hundreds of Twin Falls residents.

He is now six months old and is a healthy, active, happy baby.

Robert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Morris and a grandson of W. A. O'Donnell, Iowa board of education secretary.

After his birth, Robert survived as well as any baby—he lived two months, but then he suffered a ruptured appendix.

Well, it's another year, and to most of us it looks like a good one. Or, at least, a better one than we have known lately.

We may not be actually better off than we were a year or two ago—but a wise man once said, "It matters not so much where you are as in what direction you are going."

Most of us feel now that we are going forward. We can begin to see ahead again. We think there is a future. And it is the future, more than the present or past, that makes life worth while. At least, that is the way with people of faith and imagination. Worth while and inspiring people are likely to be living less in today than in tomorrow or next month or next year or ten years from now.

This is a good way to take your mind off your troubles. And it's a curious fact that trouble, when you don't think about it, doesn't exist.

No blessings exist, either, when you don't think about them. Right here is one of the quietest and easiest ways to become prosperous and happy: just thinking about what you've got instead of what you lack.

More philosophizing is it? Well, this is the time of all times in the year, to philosophize—to look forward and picture and plan, some real work in the realm of mental creation. This year is going to be, for all of us, to a very large extent, what we make it.

TOM AND ANDY

Some folks have been wondering what Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson would think of Democrats holding a Jackson Day dinner at fifty dollars a plate.

They would probably both be shocked. Fifty dollars in their time was a lot of money to spend for food.

Still, as long as the subject has been brought up, it may be just as well to get those particular American patriots straight.

They were not poor men, nor frugal men, though they chose to champion the underdog rather than the top dog. Jefferson was an aristocrat who had one of the finest homes in America, as all the world can still see at Monticello, Virginia. He was always improving the estate, and his property kept him poor. Many Americans today know how that is. He was almost eaten out of his home after his presidential terms by feeding the people who came to see him.

Jackson, born terribly poor, made money in land and also married money, and was in his time the richest man in Tennessee. His "Hermitage" shows that he appreciated good living, at least in outward things. And like Jefferson, he was generous when he had it. Jackson, more than Jefferson, would have appreciated the real point of this fifty dollar dinner charge. Nearly all of it goes into the campaign fund. Jefferson was a bore in such matters. Practical politics of a hundred sort began with Jackson.

MIGRATORY FARMING

Thomas Campbell, former Montana "Wheat King" and later agricultural consultant to the Soviet Government, announces that he may become a traveling farmer. His idea is to follow the seasons with his tractors, plows, harvesting machines and workers. He will grow wheat in summer in Montana and rice in California. He explains:

"When the Department of Agriculture found in India a flax which will grow in the winter time in the Imperial and San Joaquin Valleys, it occurred to me here was an opportunity to make grain raising a year-round affair. Why shouldn't the boys move with their men as they strike out for warmer climates when winter sets in on the northern front? At any rate, I decided to give it a trial, in a small way at first."

Mr. Campbell has not yet purchased any land or moved any men or equipment. He will have to try out his experiment several years before its practicality will be shown. He has certainly had a provocative idea, however. With early and heavy snowfalls all through the northern part of the United States, many people are wishing they could go south for the winter. Few of them, it must be admitted, have had such a plan as Mr. Campbell's. Their idea has been chiefly a winter vacation, which is difficult to achieve.

A seasonal occupation might solve the problem.

RECEIVED-DILLS

A clothing store owner in Tennessee was moved by the Christmas spirit to cancel the bills of seven thousand persons who owed him a total of thirty-eight thousand dollars on accounts. With many persons involved the average indebtedness must have been low, but not so low as to make the debtors indifferent to the gift.

There was only one flaw in this man's generosity, and it may have been a flaw in the reporting rather than in the deed or its manner. He is quoted as saying:

"I'm wiping the slate clear. From now on when I meet old acquaintances and patrons I want to be able to say, 'Old boy, you don't owe me a cent!'"

Wouldn't the giver of the perfect gift decline to remind his former debtors of his own generosity?

A HEALTH PLAN FOR IDAHO

(Lewisburg Tribune)

Potentially one of the most healthful states in the union, Idaho has been a laggard in public health work, a situation which in the past has given rise to much bitter recrimination between the organized medical body and the state health authorities. In per capita state expenditures in this field, Idaho remains near the foot of the list and in many localities preventive work obviously is pitifully inadequate. For the 1935-36 biennium, the average yearly expenditure for health work in the United States was 50 cents in Idaho it was 48 cents. Only 2½ per cent of each tax dollar has been expended for health in Idaho, compared to 42 per cent for Pennsylvania. For education, 4½ for charities. The state is that measured in public expenditures—the health of Idaho citizens has been most neglected.

Now, if this condition there should be general gratification at the announcement that the state in 1936 may for the first time have an adequate health department—in the federal security program. Commissioner of Public Welfare Williams anticipates that a sum of $162,000 may be available for the budget, $121,000 of which would be contributed by the federal government. Congress provides the expected amount.

It is proposed that the state's share of $18,000 would be diverted from the sales tax fund, and while there may be serious question of the propriety of this revenue—without legislative authorization, there can be little doubt of the merit of the proposed use.

In view of this condition there should be general satisfaction at the announcement that the state in 1936 may for the first time have an adequate health department—in the federal security program. Commissioner of Public Welfare Williams anticipates that a sum of $162,000 may be available for the budget, $121,000 of which would be contributed by the federal government. Congress provides the expected amount.

Thus, is not an unhealthy state, in health status considerably below the rate for the entire United States, to be, for all of us, a fine example.

They would probably both be shocked. Fifty dollars in their time was a lot of money to spend for food.

MEN AND MATCHES

(Mississippi Sentinel)

From April 21 to October 31 of this year, electrical power will be much more reliable. Power load demands could have been done by 5,700 men, all working day and night, but there is no such thing as a power load. There should be a warning to the people who are worried about the sudden need for additional power, since it will not be caused by a sudden increase in the demand for power.

Thus we see how man has neglected his puny strength. The mechanical children of his brain can do many, many times as much work as he can.

These machines, to be sure, go away with many jobs that men might do, but they also make possible such things as the Peri-Pekk dam, the largest of its sort in all of the world. Five million men could not be assembled to round this dam, the site of which actually remained a secret for a long time.

BREAKFAST FOOD

(Ogden Standard-Examiner)

A simple countryman saw a gaudily-painted parrot on the roof of his cottage.

He climbed up to capture it. The parrot looked at him sharply. "What do you want?"

The countryman touched his cap. "My pardon sir, I thought you was a bird!"

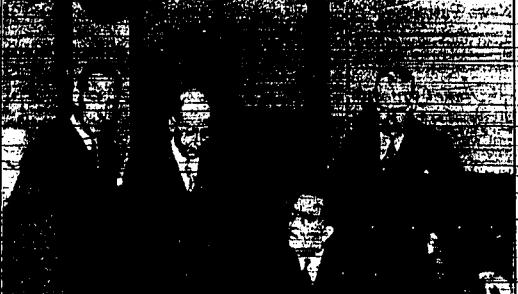

"Gimme an all-day sucker," the youngster demanded of the candy man.

He reached out and snatched one.

"I'm a bird," remarked the youth, looking back doubtfully.

"Well, the 'ys' are getting shorter."

WASHINGTON

STRATEGEM. President Roosevelt's conservative advisers are trying to sell him a bright idea for the New Year. They want him to install a stop-and-go system as complete as possible.

What they have in mind is a formal and frilly statement presenting evidence that he has kept his three-month-old pledge to Edith Howard. If he accepts their counsel, he will then issue a formal statement that he has kept his promise.

EDITH. Mrs. Roosevelt has been a thorn in the side of the New York office of the Federal Reserve Board, looking complacently at Wall Street celebrations that Henry Morgenthau has been unable to stop.

Wall Street celebrated that Henry Morgenthau had sold his stock in the new password to the White House—that water-power profits and production are moving steadily upward despite TVA ("stickups").

VAN VLACK FACES NEW MURDER TRIAL

Alleged Triple Slayer Held to Answer for Death of Former Wife

Douglas Van Vlack of Tacoma, alleged slayer of his former wife and two police officers, today faces trial on two murder charges.

He was held yesterday to answer in the district court on a charge of murdering his ex-wife, Miss Mildred Hook of Tacoma, Washington. He is scheduled to go to trial in district court here January 20 on a charge of murdering Fontaine Cooper, state trainee officer.

The Hear Proceedings

Federal U. S. Commissioner Guy L. Hansen held Van Vlack on the second murder charge at his command on a preliminary hearing here yesterday that charged only that he had been found with witnesses testifying to the discovery of the 22-year-old woman's body in a railroad cutter south of here nearly a week after Van Vlack had claimed to have abducted her from Tacoma.

Cohoe was shot and killed when he stopped the pair near Burley, Idaho, Henry A. Givens, deputy sheriff, said. The body was found several days later. Van Vlack was captured early next morning November 28 as he lay exhausted in a roadside ditch.

Cohoe, express messenger, without shifting his position throughout the proceedings while he watched the witness and listened intently to testimony. Van Vlack remained without any evidence of any trace of emotion the story of the discovery of his former wife—crushed and bullet-torn body, frozen in the railroad cut, was told him. Cohoe had taken her after shooting the officers at Burley.

Retraces Footprints

S. B. Elrod, chief of police of Twin Falls, told of his discovery of the body of his former wife, after retracing the footprints of a man and a woman for six miles through fields and sagebrush desert. The prints, he said, were so faint he traced them on a hillside, where they continued south and where the woman's disappearance disappeared. The man's footprints, Elrod believed, were found, at first on the hillside, where the woman's body had been taken.

Elrod, a police officer, said:

"I told him, 'Get out of here. You're too close to the scene of the crime.' He said, 'I'll get out of here.'

Before then, the sheriff said, he had asked his former wife to come to him, as he was good friends, to better his chance of escape. The clothing on the dead woman's body, the sheriff said, corresponded exactly to a description given by Van Vlack, before the body was found.

Causes of Death

Death was attributed by Coroner H. C. Gandy to a blow to the head and a bullet wound through the head, either of which he testified would have been fatal, although not immediately.

State's attorney, Carl H. Gruch, manager operator of the Twin Falls News, testified concerning Van Vlack's surrender of a pistol when he got out of the car first. It was then shot her in the head as she was crawling out.

E. V. Larson of Twin Falls, Van Vlack's attorney, made no request for a dismissal of the charge but questioned the police chief and the sheriff on cross-examination.

The attorney said Van Vlack is alleged to have shot Miss Hook and the two others flailed in terror, but was not shown in the courtroom.

State's attorney, Edward Babcock, prosecuting attorney, and J. W. Taylor, assistant attorney general, had agreed to show by evidence that the police chief and the sheriff were guilty of perjury.

Van Vlack, who was arrested January 1, 1935, and held until January 28, was released on $15,000 bail.

Newspaper reports said Van Vlack had agreed to stand trial for the death of his former wife.
