Rescue Ship Snatches Two Explorers From Death in Antarctic

Lincoln Ellsworth And Co-pilot, Herbert Hollick-Kinyon, Safe After Facing Threat Of Starvation

(By The Associated Press) LONDON, Jan. 17.—Lincoln Ellsworth and his co-pilot were safe after a rescue ship tonight, dramatically snatched from death in the icy Antarctic on week before starvation threatened their lives.

Both were well, although Ellsworth, noted explorer, was suffering from a slight cold.

The rescue ship Discovery II, sent out jointly by the British and Canadian governments, found Ellsworth and Herbert Hollick-Kinyon, his English-Canadian co-pilot, yesterday in Little America.

The airman, who started out from the Weddell sea to make the first flight across the Antarctic continent, had been in the ice only to sustain them until next Friday. They had been unreported since November 22.

Paul Givert Out Wireless messages from the relief expedition "rescued" Ellsworth, Hollick-Kinyon ran out of fuel on their daring and successful flight across the south polar wastes.

Ellsworth and Kinyon are both alive and well, it is said. A later message said "ships party" returned with Ellsworth January 16.

The rescue was described more fully in this message:

"On first arrival in the Bay of Whales, an orange colored cloth with a 'Y' was observed on the beach.

"A rocket fired from the ship was hoisted. A small airplane flew to Little America, five miles distant, and was seen to land. The rescue party was dropped with letters.

Meets Ship's Party "Kinyon advanced and met the ship's party. He was received on board at 12:35 a. m. January 16, and was taken to his quarters. He was suffering from a slight cold.

"The ship's party is advancing to meet Ellsworth. A subsequent message stated the explorer was taken aboard.

"The American-Indian state they ran out of fuel 20 miles from Little America, becoming ill of 150 degrees, and stayed in.

"Kinyon is very fit.

"A transmitter switch caused the radio trouble.

Commander Hull was sent message of congratulation by Premier Lyons of Australia and other high officials for his success in maneuvering the ship and the land party to the first time in reaching the Bay of Whales, where the ship forced its way through ice.

VIRGINIAN LEADS SCATHING ATTACK ON SENATOR NYE

Outraged by Charges Against Woodrow Wilson, Glass Shouts 'Demagogue' at North Dakota Lawmaker

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Senator Glass (D-Va.), today heaped a scathing attack upon Senator Nye (R-ND) for calling Woodrow Wilson a "falsifier."

Not in the recollection of the senate's veterans had such a scathing indictment echoed through the chamber as that of the outraged Virginian, shouting "demagogue" at the "falsified" senator from North Dakota.

There were others to join in the attack upon Nye—majority leader Robinson of Arkansas, Byrnes of South Carolina and Connally of New York.

Earlier Nye spent an hour railing against the "falsified" senator, as chairman of the senate committee, he based the charge that Nye had "falsified" the record of Woodrow Wilson.

"It is not possible to know that he has accomplished his mission," said Nye.

ITALY'S OBJECTIVE GETS APPROVAL OF NAZI SPOKESMAN

Warning Coupled With Pledge of Non-Interference in 'English-Italian-Ethiopian' Clash of Arms

(By The Associated Press) Adolf Hitler's minister of propaganda declared Friday night Germany has no intention of interfering in what he called the "English-Italian-Ethiopian conflict," but he warned that Germany eventually will demand colonies for itself.

"The Italian people also must live," said Dr. Joseph Goebbels, Germany's propaganda chief, in a speech before a mass meeting of 25,000 persons.

Governor Defends Hauptmann Reprieve

Hoffman Defies Impeachment Proceedings, Denies Solution Of Kidnap Murder

(By The Associated Press) TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 17.—Governor Harold G. Hoffman defended his reprieve of Bruno Richard Hauptmann today, attacking the prosecution and exposing his own doubts that the condemned man was ever in the Lindbergh nursery.

Only a few hours before Hauptmann would have walked the six paces from his death cell to the electric chair but for the thirty-day reprieve, the governor struck back sharply at critics of his mysterious activities in the case.

Chief Enforcement Agencies and several state law enforcement agencies to bring about the solution of this case, the books may be closed in the thought that another great crime has been successfully solved.

One of these critics was the chief of the New York State Police, James J. Connelley.

In a cablegram to Dr. John F. Connelley, Hoffman said he was not sure of the solution of the case.

HUGE NEW STORE OPENS AT BURLEY

Skaggs Purchases Building for Installation of Safeway Store

BURLEY, Jan. 15.—Safeway store opened its doors here Wednesday morning in the remodeled building formerly occupied by the L. C. Barlow grocery and the Butler Hardware store. Later Kimball, manager of the Safeway store here for the past three years, will continue as manager of the new store.

Mr. B. Skaggs of Oakland, chairman of board of directors, recently purchased the building here, occupied by the new store and has remodeled it into one of the most up-to-date and modern in the Pacific northwest. The interior of the building is done in a light green and ivory combination of colors, shining and ready to match.

"B. Skaggs, the founder of Safeway, although in his declining years, has been a big factor in the store in Oakland, having lived in American Falls where he started the first Safeway store 20 years ago, needs no introduction to the people of Idaho and in turn Mr. Skaggs does not need to be introduced to the possibilities of Idaho, therefore he has chosen Burley as the site of one of the finest, if not the finest store in the great chain of Safeway stores which covers the entire west.

The old Burley store has been closed all of the stores started about 10 years ago and has succeeded in buying and selling Idaho products. Many of the stores have been closed and the store has been sold by the Safeway company in their many stores.

LOCAL WOMAN WINS RECIPES ENDORSEMENT

Mrs. L. G. Batterlee, Elizabeth, Twin Falls, Idaho, has just been awarded a certificate of recipe endorsement by Better Homes and Gardens for her recipe, "Chicken Macaroni."

In awarding these certificates, it is the magazine's aim to provide proper recognition for the creative work done by women in their own kitchens and to make the word of accuracy and dependability of recipes as a whole. No other magazine or institution gives this personal recognition to its recipe contributors.

Mrs. Batterlee's endorsed recipe follows:

- 1 pound macaroni
- 1 pound American cheese
- 1 pound cooked beef, chopped
- 1 hot red pepper, chopped
- 2 green sweet peppers, chopped
- 2 onions, chopped
- 1/2 cup tomato catsup
- 1/2 cup ketchup

Break the macaroni in small pieces. Cook in salted boiling water until tender, then drain, rinse, and drain again. Grease a large casserole or pan with oil. Heat a layer of macaroni, then grated cheese, then chopped beef, pepper, onion, and tomatoes. Repeat these layers until all the ingredients are used. Cut bacon in small pieces and skate until light brown. Bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees. (Batterlee may be used instead of macaroni). Remove from oven and serve hot from the casserole. Serves 6 to 8.

THEIR NAME IS LEGION

Vast Variety of Foods Now Come in Tin Cans

HAVE you ever stopped to consider the vast variety of foods that are now available in tin cans? The kinds of canned food, including the different varieties of the same product, are more than three hundred and include fruits, vegetables, meats, fish and shell fish, specialties and ready-to-eat entrees.

All these foods are prepared for you by strictly modern scientific methods. Their selection for canning is carefully made, and the cans are packed in the parts of the country that are the best production areas—and the foods are harvested at their prime.

Canning is cooking. The foods are put into cans, then sealed airtight, and the right amount of heat, applied for a proper length of time, makes them keep. No further cooking of the foods is necessary. They are ready for use as soon as opened, and are perfect foodstuffs for making delicious and unusual dishes.

Moreover, the entire contents of every can is food. There are no fillings to throw away, and no time is required to clean or cut them. Little or no fat is needed to prepare them for the table, and, stored at home, canned food will keep as long as the can is unopened.

Finally, the food value of products in cans is as high as that of similar fresh foods available in the home, according to scientists who have studied nutrition. The liquid in the can is food, too. All vitamins are retained in canned foods as much as in similar foodstuffs caught at home.

Vegetables and Fruits. The vegetables that can be obtained in cans include artichokes, asparagus, beans, beets, Brussels sprouts, carrots, cauliflower, celery, corn, peas, peppers, plums, mushrooms, tomatoes, turnips, and whole wheat.

The fruits include apples, apricots, blueberries, cherries, cranberries, currants, figs, raspberries, grapes, strawberries, lemons, peaches, pears, pineapples, plums, and raisins.

Small breads, the French call them, these various rolls, biscuits, muffins, pretzels, popovers and scones which, when served hot, are a pleasant and delicious complement to the luncheon and informal supper. The bridge club will most assuredly "go for" scones when they serve them at their next meeting. The dough may be rolled 1/4 to 1 inch thick and cut in squares or circles (4 inch cutters) or may be made into balls the size of a walnut and flattened with the hand until 1/4 to 1 inch thick. Sometimes a cross is cut across the top. The ingredients of the scones are 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt and 1 cup milk. Place in greased baking sheet and bake in a hot oven until light brown, about 20 minutes. Or bake on top of stove or griddle greased with flour, about 10 minutes. If you prefer, replace milk with cream.

Meat. From morning club refreshments to midday supper, from beach parties to get-togethers, or at any meal of the day or night, no beverage is so universally popular as coffee. It is the almost perfect answer to the quest for something hot and refreshing, suitable in any season.

Be sure, then, to follow the rules for making good coffee. There are many kinds of coffee-masters which are good. For special desires, follow the manufacturer's directions. The following rules hold for all types of equipment.

1. The utensil must be thoroughly clean—free from traces of old coffee, soap, soda or other cleansers and from substances such as other foods, particularly fatty of any kind. It is best to wash the coffee equipment right after it is used, in clear, hot water, cleaning all parts with a brush reserved for that purpose. Rinse and drain well and allow to dry in fresh air and sunlight if possible. A pot used every day and cared for in this way needs no other cleaning. However, for equipment that is not used frequently, a special cleaning is necessary. For example, if the pot is used for anything other than coffee, it should be cleaned with a solution of soda water, boil some clear water for the pot, wash again, drain, and dry.

2. For average strength use two level measuring tablespoons of ground coffee to each half pint measure of water.

3. If hot water is used, heat fresh, cold water in a clean container just to the boiling point. Water that is reheated or kept for a long time extracts less flavor because it has lost much of the free air that is present in fresh water.

4. If the drip type of pot is used, have the lower part hot, and keep it over low heat while the water is dripping through. With a standard grind of coffee, the water must drip slowly. If it drips too fast, the filter paper is too wet, and the process or pour the coffee over the grounds again.

5. In the filter type of pot, the desired strength can be secured by percolating as long as necessary. In percolating coffee there are no harmful substances to be freed by longer percolation and the coffee will not develop a bitter flavor.

6. In the filter type of pot, the hot water can be kept in contact with the coffee grounds long enough to extract the desired strength.

7. Dates is cup of coffee to 1 cup of water. Chopped or ground nuts may be added.

8. Orange 1 cup of coffee to 1 cup of water. Measure separate orange into sections, cut in 3 pieces. If an orange is very juicy, it should not be used in this way. The orange candy that is shipped to imitate sections is delicious for this. Or 1 cup of orange peel may be added.

9. Popovers, those crisp and crusty delicious small breads, with molasses centers, are a real treat, but they must be handled and baked quickly. Croissants aren't really hard to do, and they make such a great contrast for creamed fish, meat, poultry or vegetables. Cut stale bread in two thin slices and remove crusts. Cut in diamonds, squares or circles. Remove centers, leaving a box or case. Fry in deep fat to a golden brown, two or three minutes. They may be dipped first in the French Toast mixture, 1 cup milk, 1 egg beaten, 1 teaspoon salt, dash pepper, 1 cup hot water, 2 tablespoons butter, or brushed with butter and browned in a hot oven at 10 minutes.

FOLLOW THESE RULES FOR BETTER COFFEE

From morning club refreshments to midday supper, from beach parties to get-togethers, or at any meal of the day or night, no beverage is so universally popular as coffee. It is the almost perfect answer to the quest for something hot and refreshing, suitable in any season.

Be sure, then, to follow the rules for making good coffee. There are many kinds of coffee-masters which are good. For special desires, follow the manufacturer's directions. The following rules hold for all types of equipment.

1. The utensil must be thoroughly clean—free from traces of old coffee, soap, soda or other cleansers and from substances such as other foods, particularly fatty of any kind. It is best to wash the coffee equipment right after it is used, in clear, hot water, cleaning all parts with a brush reserved for that purpose. Rinse and drain well and allow to dry in fresh air and sunlight if possible. A pot used every day and cared for in this way needs no other cleaning. However, for equipment that is not used frequently, a special cleaning is necessary. For example, if the pot is used for anything other than coffee, it should be cleaned with a solution of soda water, boil some clear water for the pot, wash again, drain, and dry.

2. For average strength use two level measuring tablespoons of ground coffee to each half pint measure of water.

3. If hot water is used, heat fresh, cold water in a clean container just to the boiling point. Water that is reheated or kept for a long time extracts less flavor because it has lost much of the free air that is present in fresh water.

4. If the drip type of pot is used, have the lower part hot, and keep it over low heat while the water is dripping through. With a standard grind of coffee, the water must drip slowly. If it drips too fast, the filter paper is too wet, and the process or pour the coffee over the grounds again.

5. In the filter type of pot, the desired strength can be secured by percolating as long as necessary. In percolating coffee there are no harmful substances to be freed by longer percolation and the coffee will not develop a bitter flavor.

6. In the filter type of pot, the hot water can be kept in contact with the coffee grounds long enough to extract the desired strength.

7. Dates is cup of coffee to 1 cup of water. Chopped or ground nuts may be added.

8. Orange 1 cup of coffee to 1 cup of water. Measure separate orange into sections, cut in 3 pieces. If an orange is very juicy, it should not be used in this way. The orange candy that is shipped to imitate sections is delicious for this. Or 1 cup of orange peel may be added.

Strength by regulating the heat as desired.

7. For so-called "boiled" coffee, measure coffee and cold water in the pot. Bring to the boiling point slowly and simmer until the desired strength is obtained. Remove from heat and allow to stand a few minutes to "settle."

8. Serve "coffee" as soon as prepared. If it must stand for a while, keep over a uniformly low heat so that it will remain just below the boiling point. Do not cook and reboil.

Household Hints

Spiced apple sauce, made by adding cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg to the regular recipe, is a pleasing accompaniment for pork or ham dishes.

Lemon halves, filled with grape or currant jelly make effective garnishes for roast ham, beef or veal.

Mushrooms and cauliflower blend well together when cooked together and serve with butter or cream sauce. Good for a luncheon dish.

THESE FACTS ABOUT BRAN HAVE BEEN PROVED BY TESTS

Supplies Gently Acting "Bulk" to Aid Regular Habits

Now and then, in talking with your friends, the subject of bran has come up. So that real facts might replace unsupported opinions, the Kellogg Company has asked for some research in testing nutrition laboratories.

Studies made on a group of healthy women showed that two tablespoons of bran daily, continued to relieve constipation over a period of months. How different from cathartics—where dosage often must be increased.

Another series of tests on men indicated that, with some people, the "bulk" in bran was much more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables.

Further tests showed that Kellogg's All-Bran provided vitamin B and iron as well as "bulk." This "bulk" absorbs moisture, and gently exfoliates and cleanses the system—the right way to correct constipation.

Serve All-Bran regularly for regularity. Either hot cereal, with milk or cream, or in cooked dishes. It is a natural laxative food—sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

"Constipation due to insufficient 'bulk'."

Introducing 'FRANKIE'

Resourceful Lady Frances Derwent—"Frankie" to her friends—didn't know the Bassington-Frenches, but simply had to meet them.

So—was it an accident that she wrecked her car at their front door?—was it coincidence that found her in their guest room, with Mrs. Bassington-French in sympathetic attendance?

It was not. It was cunning design, aided and abetted by her friend, Bobby—both of them picking down a mystery they must solve to save themselves. Behind the respectable front of Merryway Court might lie the answer to everything.

abounds in situations as surprising as this, a succession of experiences calling on these two adventurous young people for every ounce of courage, perception and sharp wits they can muster. Likewise for the reader, each chapter has its share of new thrills, new ideas, new surprises.

CHAPTER ONE

IN THE CHASM

JOEY JONES teed up his ball, gave a short preliminary waggle, took the club back with the rapidity of lightning.

Did the ball fly down the fairway straight and true, rising as it went and sailing over the bunker, to land within an easy mashie shot of the fourteenth green?

No, it did not. Badly topped, it scudded along the ground and embedded itself, firmly in the bunker!

There were no eager crowds to groan with dismay. The solitary witnesses of the shot manifested no surprise. And that is exactly explained—for it was not the American-born master of the game who had played the shot but merely the fourth son of the Vicar of Marchholt, a small seaside town on the coast of Wales.

Bobby uttered a decidedly profane ejaculation.

He was an amiable-looking young man of about eight-and-twenty. His best friend could not have said that he was handsome, but his face was an eminently likeable one, and his eyes had the honest brown friendliness of a dog's.

Not worse every day," he muttered dejectedly.

"You mean," said his companion, Dr. Thomas, "a middle-aged man with grey hair and a red, cherry-sal-fac, his himself, never took a full swing. He played short, straight shots down the middle and usually beat more brilliant but more erratic players."

Bobby attacked his ball fiercely with a club. The ball flew a short distance from the green which Dr. Thomas reached with two creditable iron shots.

"Your hole," said Bobby.

There proceeded to the next tee. The doctor drove first—a nice straight shot, but with no great distance about it.

Bobby slipped, teed his ball, reeled it, wagged his club a long time, took back stiffly, snatched his eyes, raised his head, depressed his right shoulder, did everything he could not to have done—and hit a scream down the middle of the course!

He drew a deep breath of satisfaction. The well-known golfers' gloom passed from his eloquent face to be succeeded by the equally well-known golfers' exultation.

"I know now what I've been doing," said Bobby—quite truthfully.

A perfect iron shot, a little chip with a maulie, and Bobby lay dead. He achieved a birdie four, and Dr. Thomas was reduced to one up.

Full of confidence, Bobby stepped into the green, and the next thing he knew he was lying on his back, and this time no miracle occurred.

A terrible, magnificent, an almost supernatural slice happened. The ball went round at right angles.

"If that had been straight," said Dr. Thomas, "I might have been a little better off."

"I thought I heard a shout! Hope the well didn't hit anyone," he said.

He peered out to the right. It was a difficult light. The sun was on the point of setting and looking straight into it it was hard to see anything distinctly. Also there was a slight mistling from the sea. The edge of the cliff was a few hundred yards away.

The footpath runs along there. The doctor came to the cliff edge. Bobby, "that the ball came possibly have traveled so far as that."

All the same, I did think I heard a cry. Did you?

But the doctor had heard nothing. Bobby went after his ball. He had some difficulty in finding it, but not to earth at last. It was practically unplayable—embedded in a furze bush. It had a couple of hags at it, and then Bobby called out to his companion that he gave up the hole.

The doctor came over towards him since the next tee was right on the edge of the cliff.

The centurion was Bobby's particular bugbear. At it too had to drive over a chasm. The distance was not actually so great, but the situation of the depths below was overpowering.

They had crossed the footpath, and Bobby was standing on the steep, skirting the very edge of the cliff.

The doctor took an iron and just mined, resounded. "That's aye, he thought, were probably blue."

And just as he reached that point in his thought, the ball was suddenly opened.

They were blue, a clear deep blue. They looked staid at Bobby.

There was nothing uncertain or hazy about them. They seemed completely conscious. They were waiting and at the same time they seemed to be asking a question.

Bobby got up quickly and came towards the man. Before he got there the other spoke. His voice was not weak—it came out clear and resonant.

"Why didn't they ask Evans?" he said.

And then a queer little shudder passed over him, the eyelids dropped, the jaw fell.

The man was dead. Bobby knelt down beside him, but there was no doubt. The man was dead. A last moment of consciousness that sudden question and then the end.

Rather apologetically Bobby put his hand into the dead man's pocket and drew out a small, round object. He looked at it for a moment, then he looked at the man's face. There was nothing more he could do.

Then he noticed that in his action he had jerked something out of the pocket. It was a photograph, and in the act of replacing it he glanced at the picture.

It was a woman's face, strangely haunting in quality. A fair woman with wide-spaced eyes. She seemed little more than a girl, certainly under thirty.

POPEYE

NIGHT BATTLES!

SHOTS IN THE DARK! WAR IN THE DARK! KING WILL DO BATTLE WITH HIM!

POPEYE HADN'T GONE TO BRUTIA

Every single dashed time," said Bobby bitterly. "I do the same dashing thing!"

He started the chasm, peering over. Far below the sea sparkled, but not every ball was lost in its depths. The ship was still in the top, but before it shifted again.

Bobby walked slowly along. There was, he knew, one place where one could scramble down fairly easily. Caddies did so, hurrying themselves over the edge and reappearing in the distance and panting with the mauling ball.

Suddenly Bobby stiffened and called to his companion: "I say, doctor, come here. What do you make of that?"

Some forty feet below was a dark heap of something that looked like an octopus.

The doctor caught his breath. "By Jove!" he said. "Somebody's fallen over the cliff. We must get down to him."

Side by side the two men scrambled down the rock, the more athletic Bobby helping the other. At last they reached the ominous dark bundle. It was a man of about forty—and he was still breathing, though unconscious.

The doctor examined him, touching his limbs, feeling his pulse, drawing down the side of his face.

He knelt down beside him and completed his examination. Then he looked up at Bobby, who was standing there feeling rather sick, and slowly shook his head.

"Nothing to be done," he said. "This number's up, poor fellow. His back's broken. Well, well, I suppose every family with the man and when the mist came up he walked over the edge. I've told the couple more than once they ought to be a killing just here."

He stood up again. "I'll go off and get help," he said. "Make arrangements to have the body gotten out of it. It will be dark before you know where we are. Will you stay here?"

Bobby nodded. "There's nothing to be done for him, I suppose," he said.

The doctor shook his head. "Nothing," he said. "It won't be long—just a few minutes at most. Just possible he may recover consciousness before the end—but very likely he won't. Still—"

"Rat!" said Bobby quickly. "I'll stay. You get along. If he does come to, there's no drug or anything—" He hesitated.

The doctor shook his head. "Tut-tut! he's no pain," he said. "No pain at all."

"Turning away he began rapidly to climb up the cliff again. Bobby watched him till he disappeared over the top with a wave of the hand.

Bobby uttered a wily or two more. The doctor was a wily or two more. Bobby was a wily or two more.

The doctor came over towards him since the next tee was right on the edge of the cliff.

The centurion was Bobby's particular bugbear. At it too had to drive over a chasm. The distance was not actually so great, but the situation of the depths below was overpowering.

They had crossed the footpath, and Bobby was standing on the steep, skirting the very edge of the cliff.

The doctor took an iron and just

LOUIS FLATTENS Bomber Sneers, Cuts Loose With Barrage When Game Foe Lands First Hard Blow

Paralyzed by Terrific Rights And Lefts, Bold
North Dakota Rancher Makes Courageous Attempt To Continue

By Charley Dunkley
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—Charley Battalini, raw-boned North Dakota rancher, finished lying on his side, his glassy eyes staring at the ring lights, exactly one minute and 25 seconds after he pulled his hands for his scheduled 15-round fight with Jolting Joe Louis in the Chicago stadium tonight.

Thus, Louis, most murderous puncher since the days of Jack Dempsey, scored his 23rd knockout in 27 fights to the accompaniment of screams and cheers from 16,488 spectators.

The knockout was complete. Battalini, paralyzed by the furious barrage of punches, tried to get up at the count of nine, but sank to his haunches and tried over to be counted out. He had to be helped to his corner, where handlers were waiting.

Walter Lee Lewis, Battalini's manager, walked fearfully into the ring and threw the towel, a light ray to the fact that the fight was over.

As Louis moved to the center of the ring, he apparently had decided to make the fight a something like a boxing match, but the North Dakota rancher, who had been a three-division world champion, got to his feet at the count of seven, but his legs were wobbly and he was badly hurt.

The brown boxer, no longer heeding to protect himself out with both hands to the head and body.

Battalini walked quickly under the ropes and tried to get to his feet, but he was too weak to attempt to fight.

When Battalini's feet touched the floor, he was so weak that he could not stand.

Boys' And Girls' Teams Of West End City
Defeat Twin Falls Basketeers

BUHL, Jan. 17.—A rampant tribe of Buhl Indians entered the fray in a basketball game tonight and after an overtime period managed to score a thrilling 30 to 26 victory over the invading Bruins of Twin Falls high school.

The boys' game was in doubt from the first basket as the team continued to change hands and the overtime period was necessitated when Ray Turner, giant all-state center of Twin Falls, dropped in a foul shot to tie the count as the game ended.

Twin Falls broke into the lead at the close of the first quarter, 6 to 2. At the close of the second quarter, the Bruins led 12 to 10.

Buhl scored 12 points to tie the game at the close of the third quarter. At the close of the fourth quarter, the Bruins led 26 to 20.

VAN VLACK WON'T PRESS FOR CHANGE

Tacoma Kidnap-Slayer Suspect Elects to Stand Trial Here

Attorneys for Douglas Van Vlack of Tacoma, alleged kidnaper and slayer, who is to go to trial in the district court here next Monday on a charge of first degree murder of his former wife, Mildred Hook, probably will not ask for a change of venue to remove the trial to another county, E. V. Larson of defense counsel said here last evening.

Defense however will ask for postponement of the trial, Larson indicated, on grounds that instituting a trial here has been alleged for preparation.

Defense attorneys, Larson and Leo Tonia of Tacoma, and Van Vlack's mother, Mrs. Carl Van Vlack of Tacoma, conferred with the murder-charged man, Jacob Jacobson, Wednesday in his solitary cell on the fourth floor of the court house.

CARRIERS' MOVE BLOCKS DEBATE

Shippers, Truckmen Await Outcome of Parley on Freight Rates

A meeting of shippers, railroad and truck transportation men and other interested persons convened under Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce auspices last evening came to a sudden close when P. E. Haasch, Union Pacific agent, read a statement stating that a proposed freight rate reduction that this meeting had under consideration was as to be satisfactory.

The message came from A. J. Seils of Salt Lake City, Union Pacific assistant traffic manager.

The message was read by Seils to secure authorization from the interstate commerce commission to withdraw a supplementary statement, and this withdrawal would add Idaho receives a basis of rates that will be satisfactory.

Situation explained.

The supplement in question, designated 227-D, Mr. Haasch explained, would extend to southern Idaho a reduction in rates that was made effective about a year ago between Utah connections and San Francisco and Los Angeles.

These rates applied to most commodities and ranged from $1 to $1.25 per 100 pounds.

The "proposed" supplement, extending the reduced rates to southern Idaho would have made effective the rate between Twin Falls and the California terminals at $1.10 to $1.40 per 100 pounds, a reduction of 20 to 50 per cent under present rates, the Union Pacific agent said.

Utah interests took the lead in protesting against extension of the reduced rates to southern Idaho, the Union Pacific agent said, and secured an order by the interstate commerce commission suspending the proposed supplement.

Protest indicated.

The object of last evening's meeting was to determine what if any action Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce desired to take with respect to this situation.

The Utah objections, however, old R. Harvey, secretary of the chamber, said, that some shippers and truck operators would oppose the proposed freight rate reduction on the grounds that it had been forced by truck competition, and that an excessive reduction would seriously cripple that competition.

About 30 persons attended last evening's meeting which was arranged in connection with dinner

Miss DeMott Tells Audience That Organization Develops Skill

"Camp Fire was organized to deal constructively with the leisure time of our girls," Miss Edith C. DeMott, associate field secretary, said at the initial session of the guard-dance and training course last evening at the Twin Falls high school auditorium, to which the public was invited.

"It offers the possibility of acquiring skills in any chosen direction and in so doing it fires the imagination and focuses it on something definite to be done," she continued.

Miss DeMott spoke highly of the achievements of the Camp Fire girls in Twin Falls, and commended particularly the high type of leadership offered by Laurinda. A number of the various crafts taught the girls likewise received favorable comment. Mrs. R. P. Parry introduced Miss DeMott.
