HOUSING PROGRAM TRIMS ESTIMATES

President's Advisers At Odds Over Sum to Be Sought

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.) today said administration housing experts would agree on a long-time slum clearance early next week followed only by introduction of legislation.

At the same time it was disclosed that a bill to extend the federal housing administration's power to insure modernization and repairs loans had been drafted and would be presented to congress Monday or Tuesday.

The president's housing advisers have been at odds over the amount of federal money to be provided and how to carry out slum clearance work.

Wagner declined to say what sum would be sought, but indicated that it would be much less than the $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 originally estimated for the first year. In some quarters the amount was estimated at $100,000,000.

Chapter 48
KENTVA

Bobby handed back the letter and with a sigh Frankie took it. "It's really a very remarkable person," she said.

"You always had a fancy for him," said Bobby, coldly.

"He had charm," said Frankie, "so had Moira, who added."

Bobby blushed. "It was very queer that at the time the clue to the whole thing should have been in the vicarage," he said. "You do know, don't you, Frankie, that Candace had actually written to Evans-to-Mrs. Roberts, that is?"

Frankie nodded. "Telling her that he was coming to see her and that he wanted information about Mrs. Templeton who he had reason to believe was a dangerous informant."

"And then when he pushed over the cliff she doesn't put two and two together?"

"That's because the hint went over the cliff with Pritchard," said Frankie. "That identification was a very clever bit of work. If a man called Pritchard is pushed over, how could it be a man called Candace? Think how the ordinary mind works."

"The funny thing is that she recognized Cayman," went on Bobby. "At least she caught a glimpse of him when Roberts was letting him in to see him who it was. And he said it was a Mr. Cayman and she said, 'Funny—he's the dead spot of a gentleman I used to be in service with.'"

"Can you beat it?" said Frankie. "Even Washington-fretted gave himself away once or twice."

"But like an idiot I never noticed it."

"Yes, when Sylvia said that the picture in the paper was very like Candace's, he said there wasn't much likeness really—showing he'd seen the real man. And then later he said to me that he never saw the dead man's face."

"How could he do that?" said Frankie.

"I think it was the description of Mrs. Templeton," said Frankie.

"Precisely," said she was "such a nice lady. Now that didn't seem to fit with the Cayman woman. No account would describe a nice lady. And then you went to the vicarage and Moira was there and it suddenly came to me—Suppose Moira was Mrs. Templeton?"

"Very bright of you," said Frankie.

"With Moira dragging Roger into it, it's been a terrible lot of publicity for her. But Dr. Nicholson has asked by her and I shouldn't be at all surprised if he and Sylvia ended by making a match of it."

SCHOOLS HELP TO CURB EPIDEMICS

Idaho Medical Advisor Questions Advisability of Closing

BOISE, March 7.—Closing of schools is not always the best method of curbing an epidemic, Dr. E. D. Dunbar, state medical adviser, wrote in his monthly department of public health bulletin released today.

"Where schools are closed children continue to play with one another, frequently go to the movies and generally go about without restriction or observation," he wrote.

"For these reasons, most health authorities believe that regular attendance in school is a more effective means of preventing epidemics than do more to detect early cases and prevent spread than will closure of schools."

"We believe this is true if teachers are alert and sufficient public opinion is maintained to require regularly to make the necessary inspections and investigate nature of illness—be it influenza, measles, mumps or diphtheria—absent from school."

"If such precautions are not taken, and particularly in rural areas, epidemics may be better to close schools."

SIX DECADES BACK

By CHARLES SHIRLEY WALGAMOTT

A Series of Historical Sketches of Early Days in Southern Idaho

What the West Said to Me
I was the only boy in a family of seven, three older and three younger, myself the youngest.

My father was a pioneer settler in southern Idaho where my parents settled in 1843; and a term of frontier living was early inducted into my young blood.

As I listened to father's tales about our life here by the river and in the mountains, I was reminded of the boyhood experiences as a leader of a string band now called an orchestra. My father was the leader of the first string band in the valley of the Snake River, and later when my older sister with her husband came to California in the employ of the Ben Halliday Stage Company, and my father made frequent visits back home, bringing with him the atmosphere of the West, this term of frontier living developed into a pronounced love of Western life that proved as contagious as it was pronounced.

My father was contracted also by a boy friend.

The two of us made heavy preparations to depart over the Chicago and Northwestern route, which had recently laid rails as far west as Council Bluffs, where it bridged the Missouri river and landed us in frontier town of Omaha, Nebraska, to mingle with a crowd of emigrants seeking passage westward over the newly constructed Union Pacific railroad. It was supposed to find in this crowd of treks or fifteen cars of emigrants, bound westward, only two women. Both were en route to meet their husbands in California.

My friend and I, and myself were the only two passengers on the train.

On the platform of the Union Pacific depot an old man with a long gray beard and gentlemanly appearance was employed by the railroad company as train director and entertainer. I remember that his name was Captain White. I had considerable conversation with him. He told me a great deal about Idaho, and the main thing where we were to travel was the Snake River valley. He told me that the Indians and the still worse Indians were in the Snake River valley. He told me that the Indians were in the Snake River valley. He told me that the Indians were in the Snake River valley.

We set out on Idaho and intend there to remain. One of the verses in doggerel was to And if the Indians capture you you will be lucky to save your head. They have a habit of taking four scalp unless your hair is long.

As Captain White gracefully slipped out of sight, the train slowly crept out of the siding onto the main line, heading into the mysterious West, with all on board in happy expectation except my friend Johnny, who was a trifle homesick. He had seen all the West he wanted, and he was not averse to a description of the West, but he had had an effect on him. As our train for hours each they plowed slowly over the western plains, we were aware that an excitement of the nerves and unbalanced condition of the road it would REPERFECT days to reach the mountains. We were thankful when we remembered that, only a short time before, the only available transportation was by ox or mule team, comprising an entire season to make the trip. After stage service was established, it required in the neighborhood of a month to travel from the Missouri river to the coast, and our fastest stage was a week.

From the car window we peered into the distance to get a glimpse of a remnant of the once great herds of buffalo that only a few months before had furnished meat for the construction crews of the Union Pacific railroad through western Nebraska, and we watched the carmen's antics while their white leaded and seeking shelter in the distance, or viewed with some suspicion groups of Sioux and other Indians from distant plains. We saw straight as arrows on their ponies, whirled our twin gear as they sped.

At Laramie, Wyoming, to wait for a train, we could see from the car window an animal we took to be a wolf chained to a post. I persuaded my friend Johnny that we go and see it. It tucked nervously at the chain which fastened it to a post in front of a saloon. We could see through the open door the walls decorated with animal hides. Casually we stepped inside the door. Three or four men who occupied the room were watching us. One of them said to the long-haired hunter, "You would see that the long-haired hunter, and we were seated to a curiosity to them; and one of the men, wearing a six-shooter that hung conspicuously over his hip, approached us and inquired if we were preachers. We told him that we were not. He seemed to doubt us and remarked that only preachers and monks wore that kind of coat in that country."

At this point two men alighted from a wagon and rather boisterously entered the saloon. One of them, being a lively fellow, whom the bartender addressed as Tom, tossed a dollar on the bar, ordering drinks for himself and partner. They were about to drink, the man who had interrupted us approached western atmosphere, and the hunter them and said: "Tom, it has been some time since you danced for us." Tom retorted: "Yes, and (as he looked at me) you are a good dancer." "It will be a d-d night longer," but the intruder bent him to it and "danced" as the ballet from the intruder's gun entered the "floor" and "danced" as the bullet began to "dance" on the floor. Johnny: "Let us go before they make us preach," and since I was badly scared as Johnny was able to keep up with him as we raced for the train.

Lincoln County Five Undefeated During Tournament

SHOSHONE, March 7.—Displaying the same brand of ball that has carried them through the South Central Idaho district Class B tournament, the Lincoln County five defeated the Ogden team by scoring a 25 to 21 victory over the rugged cagers of Glenns Ferry high school.

Prize for the tournament was trophy presented by Superintendent J. J. Buckholz of Glenns Ferry school, and the right to enter the tournament was held on a neutral floor next Friday at Sandpoint. Cooling coils were saturated with water and the contest of battle, but no decision has yet been reached by Twin Falls and Shoshone officials.

To the runner-up outfit from the Fry, Superintendent H. E. Williams of Shoshone schools presented the tournament ball.

Shoshone came out with a 6 to 0 lead at the quarter and was never threatened by the Glenns Ferry made a futile attempt to deadlock the count in the final stanza. Halftime score was 12 to 7 and the lead was 20 to 7 at the end of the third quarter.

Gray of Shoshone and G. Morgan of Glenns Ferry exchanged ten points to lead the game's scoring.

Earlier in the day the two teams were met for the first time at the Shoshone handling Eden, a 40 to 21 victory by the Perrons, coached by Ken Gardner who has set led Shoshone to state title success in 20 consecutive years. Shoshone's double victory over Eden—twice—matters after the Grizzlies copied the Class B title from Coach Lambert Dolphina's five last season in the final game of the tournament.

FRANK FRISCH

Frank Frisch was awarded by the plants in 1923 to the Cardinals for Rogers Hornsby in a deal that caused much howling among St. Louis fans. For Hornsby has now brought the Cards through a World Series. Since then Frisch played through four World Series. The pilot of the pastime game on the West coast for three years is now directly by the Cardinals since 1919 after floundering out for six or six in his last game for Southern University against Virginia. He played in more World Series games than any other man, 50 in all. His 1928 record of 38 wins was topped by nine. Frisch was most valuable manager in 1931 and 1932. He was married today to Joe Hernandez, concert and album dancer.

Great Three-Year-Old Equals Discovery's Mark For Mile And One Furlong In $20,000 Race At Hialeah

MILWAUKEE, Fla., March 7 (AP)—Brevity, a great three-year-old, wearing the red and white colors of Joseph E. Widener, coasted easily to victory in world's record time in the ninth running of the $20,000 mile and one furlong Florida Derby today.

His time for the distance, 1:48 1/4, equaled the world record Discovery set at Aqueduct in 1935 and clipped one-fifth of a second off Hialeah Park track record.

It was not Brevity's winning—so confidently was that expected by his trainer, jockeys got only $2.50 for each 1/2-mutuel win ticket—but the manner of his winning that struck a new note in support of other Kentucky Derby favorites.

American Mermaids Have 'Even Chance' In Olympics, Says Coach

(In the following article, written exclusively for The Associated Press, Ray Daughens, swimming coach of the Washington Athletic Club, Seattle, gives his observations on the chances of the American women swimmers competing in the Olympic Games of 1936 in Berlin. He is best known for developing Helene Madison for the 1932 Olympic and 1936 games.)

By RAY DAUGHENS, Swimming Coach, Washington Athletic Club (Written for The Associated Press) SEATTLE, March 7.—From my observations of women's swimming in the Olympic Games of 1932 I am convinced that the American girls have an even chance of winning in this year's games at Berlin.

Naturally our strongest competitor will come from the "famous" girls of Amsterdam, particularly the 100-meter distance in 1 minute 15 seconds, and the 200-meter distance in 3 minutes 15 seconds.

The best performance by an American girl at 100 meters since the last Olympics has been by Helene Madison of the Washington Athletic Club of Seattle, who has won the national A.C.U. outdoor championship the last two years.

Mangan Winner Of Race, Judges Decide

After Much Delay Officials Award Victory To New York A.C. Miller

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 7 (AP)—Joe Mangan of the New York A.C. caught the judges' eyes when he ran what appeared to be a dead heat with the world record holder, Glenn Cunningham of Kansas, tonight in a special three-man mile race that featured the New England A.A.U. track and field champions at the Auditorium. Mangan was timed in 4:28.8.

"It was the rubber meeting of the current indoor season for those outstanding milers," Mangan and Cunningham, who reached the third run a yard behind Cunningham, wiped out that lead during the last 50 feet of the going.

"They appeared to be in a dead heat," the judges said. "The shoulder to shoulder, but Mangan broke the tape."

German Predicts Win Over Louis

Schmeling to Quit Fight Game For Good If Negro Triumphs

By GAVIL TALBOT (Associated Press Sports Writer) BERLIN, March 7 (AP)—Looking back and after a winter spent in boxing gear and a 150,000-acre game preserve near Manchester, Max Schmeling told the Associated Press today he intended to quit the title game for Louis in June.

The former champion, only four pounds over his best fighting weight of 168 pounds despite the fact that he has taken only the lightest kind of exercise for several months, expressed the boxer's conviction he would stop the boxer tomorrow.

Wants Title, Not Money "If I want you I could beat him and then you could beat me," Schmeling said. "I wouldn't have taken this fight."

"I don't care if I'm interested in the money," Schmeling said. "I don't care if I'm interested in the money, I don't care if I'm interested in the money."
