U. S. ENTERS NEW NAVAL AGREEMENT

Three Nations Limit Battleship Size, Building of Cruisers

LONDON, March 21 (AP)—The United States, Great Britain and France accepted today the final draft of a new naval treaty limiting the size of battleships and the building of cruisers for six years.

The document will be signed next Wednesday.

The draft treaty is finally approved would restrict battleships to a maximum of 35,000 tons, 16,000 tons as the maximum for large cruisers and provide that none of this ship should be constructed during the six-year period.

U. S. Makes Conditions

Norman H. Davis, chief of the American delegation, served notice, however, that the United States would consider itself free from the large cruiser holiday if Great Britain should build more than 100 cruisers.

Unsuccessful in keeping Japan and Italy pledged to naval limitations, the conference was unable to reach an agreement on the treaty which would permit them to disregard the limits of Japan and other nations who exceeded them. Japan walked out of the conference because her demand for equality was rejected. Italy refused to participate because of sanctions for her attack on Ethiopia.

An opening for other nations to demand similar restrictions was left by the conference.

High School Girl Bids For Youngster

CHICAGO, March 21 (AP)—The pretty 17-year-old sister of a Chicago doctor has bid for the custody of "Sonny Boy" in today's session of the court hearing over his parentage.

Born a senior in high school, Mary Margaret McCallister, called as a witness for her father, agreed with his contention that "Sonny Boy" was born to the late Mrs. McCallister and was the illegitimate child of Mrs. Margaret Mann Fischer, 24, who seeks his custody.

"I never, however, saw Fischer," the maiden was "sure" to his wife and asserted she did not believe Mrs. McCallister would have wanted him to law the boy's mother.

She just surprised the court room by saying she wanted to keep "Sonny Boy" herself.

Snow Blanks Search For Missing Flier

SALT LAKE CITY, March 21 (AP)—A ground party searching for a lost flier, missing department of commerce flier, returned here tonight after a hunt in the mountains against snowdrifts and 50-foot drifts of snow.

Slides and snow forced the searchers back after they had advanced to a point approximately three miles from the summit.

Start-dispersed during a snow storm while flying from Rock Springs, Wyoming, to Salt City last January 19.

Lloyd L. Jenson, department of commerce aviator, sighted the wreckage after a "dry" year with searching for Star.

Green was granted a reprieve by Governor Henry H. Blood last January 23, the day before he was scheduled to face a firing squad in the Utah state prison. His counsel asked the district court for a sanity hearing, contending that Green was sane at the time of the slaying.

Golden Rain

SYNOPSIS: Iris Kanning has found her brother Owen, and has been kept out of her life by the Aunt Ella with whom she lives. Aunt Ella has turned out to be a famous cosmetics, which excites Iris because she never has had proper clothes in her life. The money that she has had been spent on her had always gone to her father, supposedly a genius. But Owen tells her that her father's paintings really are mediocre; that the sacrifice has been a vain one.

Chapter 13

Iris seemed to herself the only one who knew the difference. Aunt Ella sat in her usual demure. Uncle Willie with a relish and prided the food; Morgan was a little quieter than usual.

So was Iris; she was inclined to be more reserved. Anyway, she saw things so queerly; he acted as if Owen were trying to avenge her. Uncle Willie, with a keen interest in everything, had to hear all about the visit, so they had to seem, at least to have made up.

"It's a splendid boy," he said to Morgan proudly.

Morgan praised Owen highly and switched the conversation to the day's routine at the courthouse, and Iris was widely amused.

"Iris told me if you were going to see your mother," she tried to win her way to leave him. "Tell her she is that I can't call on her, but you think that's a remarkable woman, your Aunt Josephine?"

"Yes, I do," Iris answered, lifting her shoulders as if to say, "Daddy William was wonderful. From somewhere, in that life of his which had so little outward semblance of happiness and success, he had become possessed of a fund of inner happiness and serenity which made him almost to him."

But Iris always went from such a serenity the while his aura pleased her. When she was fifty, perhaps, not so now, with the whole exciting world holding out unexpected handfuls of presents!

"They went out after three o'clock," Iris said. "After all, he had had a good day. She felt ungrateful. But he only gripped her hand so tight that she said, 'Iris, Iris, promise me—'

"What?"

"Nothing, you wouldn't understand."

And he was going away. She didn't understand. Morgan had been so cold since Owen and Phina had come, in spite of having found their way together.

"Phina's outside, championing the bit to take you in to Philadelphia shopping—burry up!"

"Iris began, but he would bear nothing of all that."

"He doesn't keep Phina waiting," he said with a grin. "She's like time and tide—leave—she waits for no man. He's staying here a while—she'll be here and she'll be waiting—add to visit with Uncle Willie and the ancestral mansion. This Uncle Willie is a man with a beard shows you and locks you up in a cell."

Owen was younger this morning, gayer. It must have been a very nice day—probably from Gladys. He took her out, just as she was except for her coat and hat where Phina stood waiting.

"Heaven's child," she greeted her. "You have charm, as well as a good figure and face. I can make anything out of you."

From Phina Weatherly this was praise indeed. "Oh, will you?" said Iris, glowing. "It will indeed. The moment we get out the train, let me see that first!" said the great cosmetics who mirrored as her aunt, eyeing her as if she were a bolt of unmade goods, when the right shade was picked. Then she can handle the rest.

For three delicious hours, dating from the moment they left the Broad Street Station, Iris was led from handmaiden to concierge, from luggage boy to gown shop, under the hand of a mistress of her trade. She became frightened presently at the amount of things Aunt Phina was buying and asked in a pouting "No. But this will carry you for the moment. I'll finish with my own stock and connections," said her aunt, in New York.

Owen was meeting them at the Bluebird Station for luncheon, and he was herself in one of the long mirrors entering by her aunt's side; she smiling, her hair—how she shined!—except for the reflection of Phina beside her. From her smart odd end with his curving brim and small feather, to the most exquisite shoes, she was correct.

A heavenly feeling of self-respect and courage swept over her. She, this thin dull-red velvet suit with his broad plique collar and cuffs, the smart rough-textured shoes that just brushed her shoes and hands—her own delighted, excited face, with a faint trace of rouge and lipstick, her eyebrows arched and large gray eyes, her hair shrouded just enough in short lured ringlets across the back of her head—Iris stared with open delight.

Owen stood up at the table where he was waiting.

"—my dear—my dear—my dear—Iris—demanded rapturously. 'Don't I look like other people?'"

"Alms," said Owen regarding her with pride and affection. "When Phina's showed her genius is in keeping you not quite."

"Iris has an air of glamour, thank goodness," her aunt said complacently. "It's coming in!"

Iris, intent on the menu, scarcely heard. She asked if a child, if she might have anything she wanted, and then went ahead with a chicken salad because she liked it. Coupe Jacques because she wanted to find out what it would turn out to be. They smiled at her unashamed pleasure.

Phina was lunching prudently on a fish and chicken and rare sliced tomatoes. Owen had a chop and baked potato—"Just what he could get, anywhere," Iris marvelled at their varied opportunities.

They talked of one thing and another till Iris' Coupe Jacques was a quiet measure.

"You father—I want you to come—and live with your brother and me. Your mother left you with me. Now that your father is no longer living, it is the logical thing to do."

"I want you," Owen said earnestly. "I want you," Owen said earnestly. (Copyright, 1933-36, Margaret Wilder)

Pocatello and Twin Falls Capture Tournament Finals Freddie Steele Gets Big Opportunity In Bout With Champion

Indians Defeat Blackfoot In Championship Battle; Bruins Swamp Boise, 41-14

Magic City Quintet Breaks Through Capital City Quintet to Score At Will In Consolation Contest

POCATELLO, March 21 (AP)—Pocatello high school's Indians' battling neck and neck down the stretch in their third thrilling game of the state high school basketball tournament, stopped a determined and aggressive Blackfoot rally in the final period and won the Idaho championship here tonight 22-18.

In a preliminary game, the Twin Falls Bruins outclassed the Boise Braves 41-14 for the consolation title. Pocatello started to work against Blackfoot in almost perfect form and poured in seven out of its first nine tries from the field. Blackfoot was checked by a light broncos' defense and failed to get in for close shots.

The first period ended with the score 11-7 for Pocatello. The Indians kept up the barrage until the half ended, 19-10 in their favor.

Only one Point Behind Coming back after the rest period, the Bruins opened up a rapid fire attack that netted four field goals in a row and placed Blackfoot only six points behind the local five.

The third period was ended after Blackfoot's third goal of the rally leaving the visitors trailing 18-22 at that point with the situation appearing to favor the broncos. Pocatello was riding towards their first state title.

The Bruins landed one for Pocatello with three minutes left to play and Cook, stellar Blackfoot guard, fouled him, who converted to tie the Indians at the 22-22 mark. Pocatello held the final goal.

Pocatello beat Twin Falls 27-17 and Reburg 26-22 in two half-courts during Thursday and Friday nights to gain the finals. Blackfoot's second straight year in the playoffs 25-25 both from north Idaho, in opening games.

THE BRUINS PILED HIMSELF AND broke through Boise to score at will. Andrews and Turner led the way with 11 apiece for the winners.

'Tacoma Terror' Battles Risko In 10-Round, Over-Weight Duel

BABE RISKO

Promoter Unable To Lure 'Babe' Into Title Fight

By FRANK GORRIE (Associated Press Sports Editor) SEATTLE (AP)—Freddie Steele, the "Tacoma Terror" who has sky-rocketed up among the top-fighters in the middleweight division, has gained a crack-at Eddie 'Babe' Risko, but not at the championship.

Risko, the little-holder, will give Steele a chance to test his fighting mettle in 10-round, over-weight, non-title bout here Tuesday night.

Virtually unknown outside the Pacific northwest until he gave Vince Dundee an unmerciful beating last summer, Steele is aiming to make a name for himself in the sport when he smashes former Champion Vince Dundee to the canvas in three rounds.

Champ To Take $5,000 Promoter Nate Druxman of Seattle, unable to lure Risko into a title battle, guaranteed a purse of $10,000 for the over-weight bout. The champion will receive $5,000 for risking his reputation and Steele will get the other $5,000.

Druxman said Risko demanded $25,000 to bring his title along. If Steele is victorious, or at least makes a good showing against the champion, the promoter said he may attempt a title bout in an auditorium here this summer.

For this fight Steele and Risko will clash in the civic auditorium seating around 2,000. A capacity crowd will make it Seattle's biggest boxing gathering. Hundreds of spectators were expected to be on hand, particularly Tacoma, where Steele is the idol of sports followers.

Freddie has had 84 fights since he started boxing professionally in 1929, winning 36 knockouts and 41 by decisions. He has had five draws, the last one with Gordie Jones of Akron, O., in 1934. He lost the points bout to Tony Furst of Seattle in 1931; and the other to Tommy Herman of Los Angeles in 1932, but he later avenged both.

Steele is 23 years old, stands exactly 6 feet, has a reach of 70 inches, and weighs normally to the fine between 135 and 137 pounds. Against Risko he will have to weigh over the limit of 130, and he has been training on a diet to reach the champion, Risko likely will scale about 164.

The Tacoma boy is of the "lifter" type, carrying dynamite in either flat and usually knocking his victims groggy with his left and finishing them with his right. He has scored 11 knockouts in his last 15 fights, most of them in one or three rounds. He has a broken nose, a broken jaw, and a broken back.

Trosky Forgets Babe Ruth's Record, Satisfied Now To Try For Base-Hits

HAL TROSKY

By PAUL HICKERSON (Associated Press Sports Writer) NE WORLEANS (AP) — Big Hal Trosky is going to forget about Babe Ruth this year and just keep swinging for base hits.

The husky blond first-baseman for the Cleveland Indians never figured himself out as a successor to the great Babe by many fans hailed him as such that he developed a terrific case of preening in a serious effort to come close to that record-breaking goal. As a result, his batting average tumbled last season to .21.

"This year, I'm going out there swinging," Hal promises. "To the devil with that Ruth stuff. I don't know where anyone got the idea that someone above all myself — come along to follow Babe Ruth. It isn't going to be done. Yet I heard and read so much about it that for a while I tried to knock the ball out of the lot every time I came to bat. I began to press badly. I became jittery. I ran into long, or less strikes, one of them for 40 times at bat. My batting average of .330 in 1934 fell to .271 in 1935."

Reverts From All-star Trosky's close-up with Ruth wasn't the sole reason last season with Trosky, who wasn't exactly a star, that he was fourth in his league runs across the plate. He failed to mention it during a long talk with the writer last week in New Orleans. He was determined by a stomach ailment during the latter part of the season.

He went under medical care for his ailment during the winter. He says and reports that he is a few feet over Trosky, a big enthusiastic fellow only 23 years old, believed he was in the best of his prime during the latter part of the season. He is before the time came for him to leave. Scout C. C. Spink, now assistant to President Alva Bradley of the Indians, spotted him.

Spink signed Hal on the spot. After signing his time with the Indians in the Milwaukee Valley league, Quincy in the Three Eye and with Toledo of the American Association, Trosky donned an Indian uniform in 1934. He made good by hitting .350, hammering out 35 home runs, 43 doubles and ranking second to Lou Gehrig in runs batted in.

And then the fans started hailing him as Ruth's successor!

Grunt-and-Groan Experts Attempt To Explain 'Act'

Mat Moguls Adopt Policy of 'Watching Waiting Before Moving to Retain Prize-Heavy Championship'

By HERBERT W. BARKER (Associated Press Sports Writer) NEW YORK, March 21 (AP)—Thrown badly off stride by what now appears to have been an entirely unchallenged "shootout match," moguls of the wrestling industry have adopted a policy of watchful waiting before moving to retain their most cherished possession—the heavyweight championship.

Not since Joe Gotshall took away the title from Jim London, the stream-lined Grek, has the industry been so pathetically upset. The "victim" of the plot, of course, is Dick Eklund, who made Dan O'Mahoney yell "undo" here a couple of weeks ago, took away the Irishman's crown and fled the western coast to take shelter under the wing of Al Haft, Columbus, Ohio, promoter.

Blazes Own Act The situation is not entirely clear but the consensus among grunting and groaning experts is that Shikat tried of a do-or-die, decided to put on a scenario of his own, neglecting to inform the proper authorities.

There have been suggestions that with Eklund expelled in Haft's "trump," the title may be expected shortly to pass into the hands of Everett Marshall, the La Junta, Colorado, grappler whose claims to the championship heretofore have fallen on deaf ears.

Idaho Coach to Attend Olympics

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, March 21 — Mike Ryan, Idaho trainer and track men, plans to attend the seventh consecutive Olympic games in Berlin this summer.

For consecutive active attendance Ryan is believed to hold a record that is equaled in the sports world only by such men as Ott Kilby, president of the American Olympic committee; Lawson Robertson, University of Pennsylvania track coach; and George V. Rhoads of Boston.

In his first two games, Ryan was a large distance competitor, going to London in 1928 and Stockholm, Sweden in 1932. For the last four games, he has been on the staff of coach and trainer, going to Antwerp in 1920, Paris, 1924, Amsterdam, Holland, 1928, and Los Angeles, 1932.

Terry Demands Colorful Team

Manager Takes Steps to 'Convert Giants Into 'Go Get 'Em' Club

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 21 (AP)—True to his promise of last winter, J. P. Terry has taken steps to convert his team into a colorful one. He is planning to add a few hustling, hoisting, popping-off ball club.

He has created a brand new "whop-it-up" department, with that well known baseball "jockey" Dick Bartell, in charge. "One of the best 'holer guys' in the business, when he isn't worrying about a batting slump, Professor Bartell is imparting the last word in pop-off tactics to a picked group of enthusiasts and highly specialized players."

Every day going to be colorful, hard-hitting, and pop-off with plenty of holering on the side," he declares.

Uniform Handicap System Proposed NEW YORK, March 21 (AP)—A uniform system of handicapping was recommended today by the women's committee of the United States Golf association to state and sectional associations. The system, based upon women's yardage and the five box, dated and patented scores played under U. S. G. A. rules, will be used as a basis for entries in the 1936 championship at Summit, N. J. Players with handicaps of six strokes or less are eligible for the title tournament.

Sprinter's Mark Not Recognized

CHICAGO, March 21 (AP)—Bobby Oriole, University of Illinois sprinter, learned to his dismay today that his mark of 88 seconds in the 40 yard dash set in the central A.A.U. indoor track and field championships last night was not a world's record.

No dirt-track indoor performance are recognized as world's records, national "A" "U" officials said. Oriole's time bettered the existing record of 88 seconds and equaled the world indoor mark, made on a board track by Jesse Owens and Evn Johnson in 1935.
