ROOSEVELT CALLS FOR RENEWAL OF EFFORT TO REGULATE COAL MINING

The effect, he said, but added that this particular legislation apparently was not successful. Then came his statement that his administration would keep on trying to reach those objectives.

The president declined to say whether new legislation would be pressed by him at this session. He said he would continue to bring every effort toward adjustment by June 8. Later, however, in response to a question on the subject, Mr. Roosevelt reiterated that so far as he was concerned there were no "new" bills on the program—relief and taxes.

Like Attorney General Cummings and Ford and C. Truett, director of the restoration commission, Mr. Roosevelt said yesterday's court of appeals decision was of narrow import.

Questions Rise

The Guffey decision raised in some quarters the question whether the Wagner labor relations act would withstand a supreme court ruling in favor of the coal miners. It is expected at the next session of the court.

The "Guffey" question was whittled the pending 1936 relief act, already approved by the house, would have to be amended in the senate to meet the objections expressed by the District of Columbia court of appeals.

It is pointed out that the act, two, criticized the 1933 act as providing too great a delegation of authority to the federal government, the $4,800,000,000 appropriated under it.

A long trough of low pressure stretched from Montana across western Wyoming and Utah to Arizona last night. Its major center was at Salt Lake City, bringing southerly winds resulting from the wind circulation of the trough-shaped depression—brought high temperatures to the Rockies, the eastern plateau area, and to the great plains. "The 1936 STUDEBAKER is the Easiest Car EVER DROVE"

"I think it's the best-looking car this season—"

"We've owned big cars and little ones, but of all the cars I've ever driven the new Studebaker is my first choice."

"I'm judging by more than the surface appearances. Of course, they are grand cars to look at—by far the most graceful and youthful of any produced this season."

"But when I speak of 'easy to drive' I mean just that. For example, I speak of a car I know of having to stop and restart on a hill. Some men I know don't like that either."

"Studebaker's Hill Holder has banished all of that worry. If you have to stop on a hill you can do so with the comforting assurance that your Studebaker won't roll back an inch when you restart."

"And another improvement that I like is the over-drive. It's a fast device, but there are plenty of high-ways where I can drive safely at 40 to 50 miles an hour."

"The overdrive goes into action automatically at 40 miles an hour and then driving is just like gliding! No motor roar and no vibration to distract you. And with the overdrive we get perfectly wonderful gasoline economy. I expect, the 1936 Studebaker is the easiest car I ever drove."

*Studebaker was two first places in the Gilman, Yosemite Economy Run. The Studebaker Six averaged 24.77 miles per gallon, while the Big Packard Eight averaged 20.14.

anti-foreigner talk of which so much has been heard lately.

GOOD-LOOKS NOT REQUIRED The girls in Florida State college reassure the male students by their specifications for the "ideal man." He must be honest, ambitious, humorous, thoughtful and neat. But he doesn't have to be handsome. Thus the notion that a good-looker has a huge advantage with the fair sex is exploded. Really, it is strange that any such notion exists. It is based on an all-sided view of the number of handsome girls who have obviously married homely men. Indeed, it often seems as if the handsome girl is the more she likes homely men around her. And why not? Perhaps one of the things every woman knows is that the uglier the men around her, the lovelier she looks.

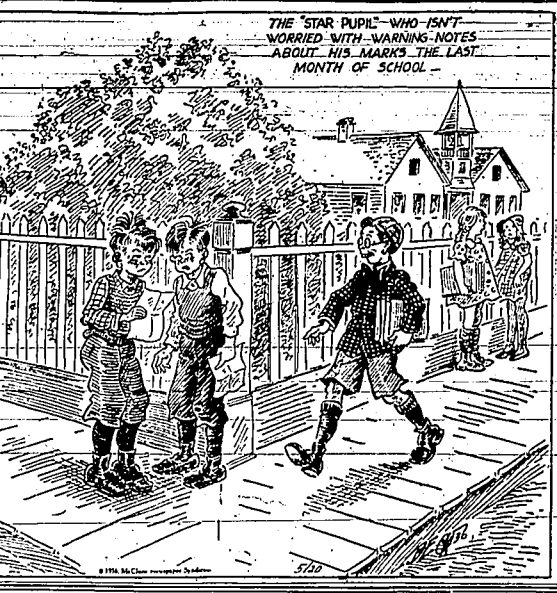

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG (NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS)

WASHINGTON By Ray Trecker LULL. One of the nation's smartest politicians predicts that Governor Landon will be the Republican nominee. The prospect is Franklin D. Roosevelt. There are private indications that the President was not indulging in wishful thinking when he called his own terms to his closest friends. The Democrats' research bureau calls it the "smear game"—is concentrating on the Kenyon Governor as an all-around rival. They are not trying to dig-up material on Candidates Knox, Borah, Dickinson, Vandenberg, Hoover and Frank. Kansas newspapers on all the Congressional Library have become popular and enforced reading for the Michelsons, whose compilation under "L" grows fat. If Mr. Roosevelt is right, he'll have a head start in the campaign. He will be able to open up immediately with a new attack on his opponents. Democratic orators and propagandists can obtain advance speeches from headquarters. Which means that there will be no usual July-August lull in the campaign this year.

CALM CRITICISM

John Goebels—Propaganda—Minister—Paul Joseph Goebels has had another bright idea. His attacks down on musical and dramatic critics for being too lusty and impetuous. After viewing performance, he orders, they must take time to reflect before writing critical reviews for the newspapers and magazines. Just how much time it takes for adequate deliberation is not clear, but Dr. Goebels tells them the morning after a performance is too soon.

It's a good thing they don't have professional baseball in Germany. If the sports writers had to reflect for a day or two before they reported the games, they would certainly blow up. So would the fans. Soon Goebels himself will be telling all the art critics what to write, as he does already with respect to governmental affairs. But that's quite a job for one man to assume.

TRAFFIC HORSEWHIP

The burgess of a Pennsylvania mining town threatens to horsewhip jay-walkers. The punishment selected may be too harsh, but there is no question of the need of drastic measures—a good many places in the United States are suffering from its traffic. They cause too many highway fatalities. They not only risk—and often lose—their own lives; they endanger other lives. Everyone agrees on curbing reckless drivers, but too many persons, particularly the offenders themselves, ignore the lawbreaker's reckless actions. He needs to be taught that crosswalks need to be used, traffic signals to be obeyed, and motorists and other pedestrians given their rightful share of courteous consideration.

HONORED IMMIGRANTS

The other day the National Institute of Immigrant Welfare gave awards for merit to the distinguished citizens of foreign birth who have made significant contributions to American life. They are Dr. Alexis Carrel, Jonas Lie and Walter Damosch. Dr. Carrel, born in France, came to the United States in 1905. He has received many honors and distinctions, including a Nobel prize, before this one, for his skill as surgeon—and his varied research work. He has been described as having "a deep and genuine feeling that science was the reward for the credit of a better order."

BREAKFAST FOOD

NOT GENUINE The little group of country folk had been watching the band play for several minutes. They were waiting for the leader to appear. The player of that instrument received particular attention. Finally the farmer nudged another. "Come on," he said, "his fat's hot! He ain't it every time." CORRECT The clerk was attempting to sell a bicycle to a farmer. "They're good and cheap," used the salesman. "You'd do well to buy one. You'd find it useful, you'd find it handy to ride around on your farm. I can sell you this one for $40." "Forty dollars! I'd rather put my money into a cow."

PET PROJECTS ADD UP TOLL OF TAXPAYERS

Ogen Shadlock—Examiner The "scientific" method of track-ribbed Maine are furnishing the best-cad-camera shot of the American system that we have seen in a long time. It was up in Maine, you will remember, that the government launched the Passamaquoddy project—a gigantic engineering endeavor to harness the St. Lawrence for the production of unlimited power. Millions already have been spent on Passamaquoddy, and a model city has been built to house the engineers and thousands of workmen.

Here was to be created the first power plant of its kind in the world—the 14-14-turbo-combustion engine for its completion. But they haven't, and that is where Maine comes in. Hardly had congress refused to appropriate the money for the project when Maine voters set up a tremendous howl that echoed down the coast to Washington. At the same time delegations were dispatched to the nation's capitol to demand additional funds.

The heat, for that matter, still is being applied to congress and the president. And when enough delegates are sent to congress, they will turn home with a promise in their pockets of more millions for Passamaquoddy. But that is not the really important thing. The significant fact is that other states are tarred by the same brush. Northern Florida is now in the center of the contest. In its pockets of more millions for Passamaquoddy.

ALIBI

ALIBI Confidential reports from the field are giving a headache to administrators of the "R" and will not curtail production and maintain high prices on farm products. Though the farmers seem to credit Messrs. Roosevelt and Wallace with the best of intentions, the worable details of the plan to substitute soil-producing for cash-producing crops before the war are not such as to be commended as they received under the outlawed allotment system; they prefer to take a chance by growing what they can. The benefits of present high prices, the result may be bumper crops, especially in corn, with a declining return to the grower. The politicians are scared at the prospect. A smaller agricultural income may inclose the farmer to his back to his traditional political ally, the city, when Maine voters will reply that the Supreme Court was responsible for knocking prices down. But they're not afraid, and whether this alibi will serve as a political substitute for cash.

STRATEGY

STRATEGY Although the G.O.P. cannot finish its 1936 platform until it learns who will try to walk the White House on its behalf, the master minds have fixed up tentative planks on relief and agricultural problems. They are looking for "adequate relief," but they insist that all federal funds appropriated to furnish work be turned over to the states for handling. Any man named to run for the White House is committed to this policy as a result of discussions among the inner circle. The proposal was defeated by a strict party vote when introduced in the House.

Likewise the G.O.P. will "me too" the general principle of making farm prices, but they will insist on "adequate relief" for the farmer. NOTICE

NOTICE Harold Ickes, who boosed so many jobs in the early days of the administration that he was dubbed "Poppy," is being stripped again by one of his possessors and proprietors. President Roosevelt blocked further grants to FWA, and Mr. Ickes has already started to take his own medicine. The administration is backing the flydigs bill giving independence to Porto Rico, and passage would virtually bury the FWA. The G.O.P. The Democrats are more worried than they care to admit over the prospect that this strategy may succeed.

NOTES

NOTES Maryland farmers are dropping the hoe and taking up the pick for Best Truckers' credit union at $178 per month. Report of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York that the relief-fund was grossly exaggerated—no. 61 of Madam Adeline Patti reports "G.O.P. members who are in the cabinet members must phone ahead for an appointment."

BY NEW YORK

BY NEW YORK By James McMillin VANDENBERG. There has been a notable spur in Vandenberg sentiment among financial and industrial leaders in the past couple of weeks. Admiration is expressed for the skill of his New Deal talking in the Senate and his consistent record in the past couple of weeks. That's the vital point with anti-New Dealers in business circles. They want the O.O.P. nominee to be the man with the best chance of beating the New Deal. Vandenberg is the man who has been the most consistent in his record and policies. This feeling hasn't crystallized into any definite move to elect Vandenberg, but it is a feeling that some of the people who share it carry plenty of weight in high G.O.P. circles.

DECISION UPHOLDS AUTO-CARAVAN TAX

Supreme Court Rules New Mexico's Levy Constitutional

WASHINGTON, May 19.—A supreme court decision today established New Mexico's right to levy taxes upon caravans of automobiles transported in or through the state for sale.

In an unanimous opinion delivered by Justice Stone, the tribunal held that the New Mexico caravan tax law constitutional, and that it did not interfere with interstate commerce, take property without due process of law or deny equal protection.

The decision approved the ruling last December by a three-judge district federal court in New Mexico, which upheld the act.

The state imposes a $7.50 tax on vehicles moving under their own power, and $5.40 on those towed.

The opinion explained that the tax was applicable both to vehicles transported in interstate commerce, and those transported within the state for the purpose of sale, but that the law did not apply to the intra-state movement in cases where state dealers licenses were attached to the machines.

The court distinguished the tax from one levied on the actual use of highways and declared it a tax for the "privilege" of using the highways.

BOISE, May 19.—The Idaho automobile caravan act, said by attorneys to be similar to New Mexico's, was declared unconstitutional by the United States supreme court, it is now in the process of appeal to the state supreme court.

It was declared unconstitutional a few weeks ago by District Judge C. E. Winstead on the grounds it violated due process and interstate commerce clauses of the federal constitution.

The law provides a $5 tax on each motor vehicle transported into Idaho or taken through the state on the highways for sale.

SYNOPSIS: Rupert Jork, of the old Jork family, has wanted to see the mystery. Hope, his wife, has come to him mysteriously, and although Rupert seems unconcerned over the mystery, his younger brother Dirk does not. He is trying hard to trace through Hope's past—and all he has ascertained is that she is going to a room in Madison Square Garden, where she seems very interested in a blond barber. Martin, Hope's chauffeur, is acting as spy; there are also two detectives on the trail. Martin is reporting to Dirk.

Chapter 2
BROKEN WORD
"Well, and after she came upstairs," Dirk said.
"Why, then she walked east, and at Eighth Avenue she took a taxi," Martin replied. "I hoped she would one. But she was only going back to Chez Simomette. I watched her go in at the back door, and then I saw the car and called for her." In front of "What color was the taxi she took?" Remember?"

"It was a yellow taxi. Took the number in case I'd need it. But she got out, like I say."
"You don't think that during any of this she saw you?"
"I know she didn't. Forty-eighth Street was crowded, and I was careful never to close to her till she reached the Garden, and then she could have seen me if she'd looked around, but she didn't. I've been around, but she had gone down behind her."

"I don't want detectives going down behind me, at any rate. She's a fast time, at any rate. She's a fast enough, with you in the office. I've got detectives watching the gates at night."
"Gosh, I'm glad of that. Is it that car that she sits across in Coloford Road without any lights on, and you've been doing and without being seen, without alarming Mrs. Jork. And to report. I'll take care of the rest."

"But to think," said Martin, "I left her at Chez Simomette three hours last Saturday."
"On Thursday, thought Dirk. A maline day. She had not been in the bowl watching the blond cowboy wrestle alone. The rodo was over now. Was that the reason for her relief for the party with which she had—was tonight?"

"As you said, he knew who Mrs. Jork was. And the blond cowboy, Dirk felt sure, was no other than the clown—the foobard, painted face and all, who had been that night in Merrill's showbo show."
"He would tell the detectives to get on the traces of Torrobin and the clown."

"There was no further reports. The rodo was gone, the horse show had taken his place, and Hope's access of shopping fever had ceased. She stepped in closely during the succeeding day, working Rupert having abandoned his practice of taking her out in the evening. Once she let Martin take her for a lovely drive when she did not leave the car."

"The day of Elinor's wedding came, a gray day, chequered with sunlight, and cold with an easterly wind. Rupert had been drinking when he came home. Dirk, who had been with him all morning in the office, heard him on the stair and witnessed the scene. He went down and attend the wedding. Hope, Dirk knew, was dressing in her room. Rupert had no intention of attending the wedding. He was waiting as to why he had come home, and he sat now slumped beside his bed, listening to a little sound that came from Hope's room. It was a song about a dog, little whether it was "Oh, alone, doggie, doggie!" She sang it plaintively, as she moved about dressing."

"It amused him; he wanted to strangle the sound, to tighten his fingers about it as if it were the throat of a bird. He wished that he might be strangled too, so that he would not hear anything. The soft throat of a bird... He went toward the sound, walking evenly, yet with the acute feeling of unsteadiness. He had not been like this since the night Elinor had told him... He did not think of that night as the night he had married Hope, but as the night Elinor had told him she meant to marry Elinor. He stood at the door between the rooms, listening to the sound. Then abruptly he opened the door. Hope stood before the mirror. She was only half-dressed, and had just started to dress. Her hair was in the room was filled with the odors of bath-salts and powder. She was looking at herself in the mirror, but she made a faint attempt to slip away from him, there was only the light of her, and presently she stood still."

"He seized her in his arms, kissing her, pushing her toward the door, pushing the kimono away. He crushed her against him hard, without tenderness. He could have broken her body if he had not held her. She stood rigid within his arms. It was perhaps the best resistance."

His arms relaxed, and he looked at her, at her averted face, and disheveled hair. In that instant she wrenched away. Catherine, who had been in brief sulphuric syllable. Rupert had fallen against the bed, dazed and somewhat sobered. He laughed again when Hope had finished speaking.
"Child, I know you could swear, my dear. Did you did your papa, the person, teach you those... had... words?"
She got to his feet.
"But you're right. You're... perfectly... right. Everything... also being taken... I broke my word. But it won't happen again. Ever again. Understand? Good-by."
Hope had turned away from him. "Good-by," he said again, waiting. "Good-by," she finally replied, not turning.

Hope went to the door, closing it softly. Her hand hovered over the bolt, but she did not draw it.
"Margaret Bell Houston."

BOARD LAYS PLANS FOR SCOUT CAMPS

Camp Sawtooth and Camp Independence—Each to Be Held for Two Weeks

Summer plans for two Boy Scout camps, Camp Sawtooth located near Kelchum and Camp Independence south of Burley, were outlined last night when the executive board of Snake River Area Council met at the Park hotel here.

The board determined that the camps this year will be divided into two periods of one week each. Camp Sawtooth being occupied by Scouts from the west end of the area from July 12 to July 28 and Camp Independence being occupied by Scouts from the east end of the area from July 27 to August 10.

In charge of the camps will be the camp committee, headed by Milton Powell of Twin Falls. Other members are J. B. Fairchild of Heyburn, D. E. Johnson of Burley, Ben Patten of Caldwell and Stanley Larkin of Twin Falls—committee members not having named from Buhl, Jerome, Gooding, Lincoln and Blaine districts.

Troop Type
The board voted to continue the troop type of camping with each troop furnishing its own transportation, including tenting, program and cooking under supervision of the council.

J. W. Davis of Kimberly reported on the regional scout committee meeting which he attended last Sunday at Spokane and L. A. Thomas of Kimberly, area training chairman, reported completion of a course in elements of scoutmaster-ship at Burley with the awarding of 11 certificates. Thomas also reported that a course in the principles of scoutmaster-ship was completed this week at Rupert with the awarding of 11 certificates.

POPPY SALES BENEFIT VETERANS' CHILDREN

More than 250,000 needy children of World-war veterans have been aided during the past year as one of the results of Poppy Day. Mrs. Grace Turner, child welfare chairman of the Twin Falls unit No. 7, American Legion Auxiliary, stated yesterday as she worked on preparations for observance of Poppy Day next Saturday.

Funds gathered by the Auxiliary women who distribute memorial poppies on the annual Poppy Day form one of the principal sources of support for the nation-wide child welfare work of the Legion and Auxiliary.

"The American Legion and Auxiliary decided $100,000 to aid children of veterans last year," Mrs. Turner said. "Much of this money came from the contribution boxes carried by the Auxiliary's volunteer workers on Poppy Day last May. The dimes and quarters given in exchange for the memorial flowers build a silver foundation for the Legion and Auxiliary efforts to help children deprived of a father's support by the war's illnesses or injuries. The poppy, made by the disabled to honor the dead, serves also for the children of the dead and disabled."
