Rev. Coughlin, who has announced his personal support of Lemke, said he would not attempt to influence the convention's action, which may come tomorrow.

Severe Lightning Reported as New Fire Breaks Out on Border

SPOKANE, Aug. 14 (AP)—Several lightning storms and a new Nevada forest fire menaced timberlands in Idaho today, according to reports from the Forest Service today, after the forest service had reported all fires under control and started reducing crews. The Spokane warzone of the forest service received a report of a new fire on the Canadian border between Kincaid, E. C. and East Hill, west of where the Hunters mountain blaze has raged for several days. A spread of the flames would endanger the Kanikani forest. Rains, ranging from a trace to nearly half an inch, added forest fire fighters to the 500-foot level.

Roosevelt Voices Apprehension Over Conditions Abroad

"I do not believe in the gold standard any more than I believe in a pig standard."

"Fourthly, I do not believe in U. S. private individuals to create money."

"Fifthly, I do not believe in the practice of usury. Today, just today, we are a Christian and believe in the practice of usury."

"Sixthly, I cannot subscribe to the present attitude with the present setup of the federal reserve banks because they are usurious."

Coughlin declared today's session brought vigorous resolutions from the delegates. "These resolutions made widespread appearance in the morning to acknowledge greetings and again when the keynote, Senator Hugo B. Reid (D-W. Va.) attacked the federal reserve system.

The resolution against endorsement passed by Gordon W. Hays, chairman of the New York district's delegation, would confine any endorsement to congressional candidates approved by the national union.

Disorders Attend Newspaper Strike

The Star commented that the right of publication had been usurped by the force of a minority in its own interests.

"By the order of a labor leader the Post-Intelligencer, Seattle's oldest newspaper, was compelled to suspend publication today."

"Out of the fingers of a competent mayor and chief of police, slipped the government of this once great city. Today it rests in the hands of Dave Beck and his brazen crew of teamsters, loggers and lumbermen."

Beck, president of the joint council of teamsters in the newspaper plant, did not mean that the council had any connections with the strike. He said he sympathized as a labor leader with the strike against the Post-Intelligencer but he felt the strike should be settled through conference rather than violence.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 14 (AP)—Convicted of pulling a jirikisha out a red traffic light, Edward Newman was fined $25 in police court today.

Magistrate Eugene Capibianco said he saw no legal difference between the jirikisha and a wagon, even if it couldn't fire a horse and did penalize Newman. The runner's passenger went free.

Shepard and Burns were brought out shortly after midnight. Willis and Barr were carried up the shaft this morning. Heaviness of the gas made it impossible for regular men to work in the ladder compartment and recovery of the last two bodies was not effected until a four-man crew was brought in from Salt Lake City with special oxygen helmets.

Grain in Storage Burns At Lewiston

LEWISTON, Idaho, Aug. 14 (AP)—Fire destroyed a string of elevators and warehouses and 26 freight cars of the Camas Prairie railroad at Sweetwater, 17 miles from here, last night, causing loss estimated by the owners at $100,000 and $200,000.

The Hazelton man was accompanied by his wife and E. Mendham of Hazelton. Dehobson was cut by flying glass and the others were unharmed.

Car Clears Ditch in Highway Wreck

Five tourists escaped drowning by inches yesterday morning when their car was thrown clear of a ten-foot canal carrying a full head of water

The car, driven by Fred Myers of Tacoma Island, Washington, collided with a Cooperative Oil company "taxi" truck driven by Don Martins of Hansen, the accident occurring at 7 a. m. Myers was accompanied by his wife and three children, Betty, Lois and Lathen, and were on their return to Tacoma Island following a trip to Washington, D. C.

Martins reported that he was turning into a lane at the Vance Mayor farm when the Myers car struck the truck broadside, force of the impact hurling the Washington machine across the culvert. The car landed on the other side of the canal, the two back wheels hanging into the water.

State Traffic Officer Jesse K. Carlson, who investigated the accident, last night said that there was sufficient water in the ditch to back up and submerge the car if it had landed in the ditch. He estimated damage to the Myers car at $200 and to the truck at $50.

Myers received a dislocated thumb and severe head bruises. Lawrence Myers received a fractured nose. Others involved in the accident were uninjured except for minor cuts and bruises.

10,000 PERSONS WATCH HANGING

OWENSBORO, Ky., Aug. 14 (AP)—A crowd of 10,000 white persons some jeering, others festive, but generally orderly—watched a prayerful black man put to death today on Davis county's "jit and gallows," authorized by Kentucky law for the hanging of a convicted rapist.

The country, mainly plump wharf, Mrs. Florence Thompson, saw to the crowd sentence that Rainey Bethea, 22, Negro, "be hanged by the neck until dead" for the assault-murder of a 70-year-old white woman, was carried out.

She did not appear publicly, however, before the hanging in the three-acre lot, scene of the first public hanging in the county's history. Arthur L. Hahn, former Louisville policeman, sprung the trap.

Despite precautions of county officials who placed a cordon of guards about the scaffold, a few persons near the gallows grabbed bits of the hood as souvenirs after two physicians pronounced Bethea dead from a cleanly broken neck.

The Negro, who in unsuccessful court appeals repudiated confessions that he ravished and slew Mrs. Edwards, a widow, the night of June 10, knelt at the scaffold base toward the rising sun and mumbled an inaudible prayer.

From the crowd came scattered shouts of "take him up! . . . up on the scaffold where we can see him! . . . Let's go!"

Union Convention Delegate Killed

Witnesses said a dark car slowed up as the party emerged and disappeared immediately after the crash was fired.

The suspected car was found later abandoned in a street not far away. Police were told by a resident that two men had passed the machine there, jumped into a sedan following them, and driven away.

"Two revivers were found in the abandoned car."

Keenly had figured conspicuously in a bitter door debate yesterday. Chief Copenhagen and Captain Andrews declared they believed the union might be behind the shooting.

Mother Takes Child With Her In Death

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 14 (AP)—A mother took her nine-year-old daughter with her to death here today, police said, by persuading the child to drink poison and then gulping a dose of the lethal poison herself.

The dying child, Lorraine Prince, told emergency hospital attendants: "Mother was terribly excited and I was afraid. I didn't want to drink that stuff but mother said it would be good for my complexion."

Mrs. Evelyn Prince, 21, the mother, died without regaining consciousness after the child's agonized screams attracted Mrs. Louise Brown, their landlady.

Get Out Preserving Kettle And Reap Summer's Harvest

The satisfaction of having a cupboard filled with shining jars of fruits and vegetables will more than repay you for the hours spent now in canning and preserving. With them you can make your fall and winter meals as interesting and varied as they are in mid-summer when all manner of fresh foods are at hand from garden and orchard. Be sure that you follow all recipes carefully and prepare your canning equipment so that it is perfectly sterile.

Through the suggestion of Christmas presents seems not quite apropos at this season, any number are now being concocted with the aid of the preserving kettle. Luscious fruits are being converted into jewel-toned jellies, rich-flavored preserves, tasty fruit butters, rich-flavored conserves and satisfying marmalades, to be festively wrapped in cellophane at Christmas-time, bearers of Xmas messages of good cheer, thoughtfulness and hospitality.

Probably nothing recalls the beauty and fragrance of an orchard or vineyard like the aroma and delectable flavor of a good glass of jelly. A clear, sparkling mouth of jelly is a refinement to any table and has a subtle appeal to the appetite. Have you ever combined lemon with your grape jelly?

Grape and Lemon Jelly
Wash 5 pounds grapes, slice three lemons very thin. Cook slowly, stirring often, until skins have almost entirely separated from pulp. Drain in jelly bag. Measure and bring extracted juice to boil, and add 4 cup sugar to each cup juice; boil rapidly 10-15 minutes. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses.

For the lamb roast this winter, don't neglect to prepare a few glasses of orange and mint jelly.
Orange and Mint Jelly
Remove outside thin yellow rind from 6 oranges, leaving as much of white as possible. Peel and cut through food chopper. Add juice 1 lemon, 2 cups water and bring to boiling point; boil 5 minutes. Stand over night, then add 1 cup chopped mint, 4 cups water, bring to boil and boil 10 minutes. Drain in jelly bag. Measure and bring to both add equal quantity of sugar; boil rapidly to jelly stage. Tint delicate green with vegetable coloring. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses. When the apex of the East comes face to face with the rising blue grapes, an extraordinary tasty jelly

Melon Rind Preserves
Take the rind of watermelon and cut in small dice. Soak in mild salt water over night. Drain, soak in fresh water 2 hours—drain. Flay ready heavy syrup to which 2 sliced lemons have been added for rind of each watermelon used. Cook until rind-looks clear. Pour into sterilized jars and seal.

Peach Preserves
Peel peaches and remove the pits. Do not use too ripe fruit for preserves. Use 2/3 as much sugar as fruit by weight and make a thick syrup, into which drop the peaches after the syrup is boiling. Let cook until the fruit is well saturated through with the syrup, and of desired consistency. Pour into sterilized jars and seal. Avoid over-cooking as this tends to darken the fruit.

Pear Preserves
Pare 1 quart pears, sliced or chopped. (If hard, cook until tender in water.) Make syrup of 1 1/2 cups of sugar and 1 cup water or juice. Add fruit to partly cooled syrup and bring gently to boil. If desired add 2 or 3 slices of lemon. Boil rapidly until done and tender, cool rapidly. Stand in syrup to plump. Pack fruit into sterilized jars and add prepared syrup to within 1/2 inch of top. Seal immediately.

What better accompaniment to buttered toast or waffles at breakfast than this Quince Marmalade, the fruit appearing in small pieces throughout the clear, transparent, jelly-like product, possessing eye-appeal as well as appetite-appeal?

Quince Marmalade
Peel and quarter equal portions of quince and apple, barely cover with water and cook until tender. Remove from the fire, chopping as fine as possible. Do not pour water off as they cook down low. Use 3/4 cup sugar to 1 cup fruit and cook until thick. A little nutmeg or any flavoring may be added. Pour into sterilized jars and seal.

Repeat to conceal partially and add egg slices. Chill until firm, add rest of ingredients to remaining gelatin mixture, pour into mold. Chill. Trim carefully and serve cut in slices.

Cover 1 1/2 pounds veal by 4 inches cold water to which 2 celery leaves, 2 onion slices, 2 green pepper rings,

Broiled Lamb on Brochette
Squares of lamb, tomato and onion slices and a slice of bacon are threaded onto a skewer and broiled for this dish. The lamb is usually cut from the shoulder, although any section of lamb might be used along every part is tender. These are cut into 1/2 inch cubes. Small wooden skewers may be obtained from the meat market, or small metal ones may be found in stores which carry kitchen equipment.

First thread one end of a bacon slice on the skewer, then a square of lamb, a slice of tomato, one of onion and then repeat until the skewer is filled. Lastly, thread the other end of bacon slice onto skewer. Preheat the broiling oven and place these skewers of lamb on a rack far enough from the source of heat that by the time the meat is nicely browned on top it will be half done. Then turn and allow to brown on the second side. When done, arrange the skewers on a hot platter and serve immediately.

NATIONAL REPRESENTATIVES

FRANK KENNAN, WASHINGTON, D. C. Wednesday evening Mrs. Kennan was the honored guest at a dinner given by Mrs. Kennan.

BOONDOGLING

The word "boondoggling" will not stand. It is a rather ridiculous collection of syllables at best and just exactly what it means no one appears to know.

As to the critics of the term, authorized by the President differ. The most reasonable explanation so far encountered is that Daniel Boone is largely responsible.

There is a note of irony tragedy in the story which came from the files of Leon Trotsky, long driven from pillar to post by friend and foe alike.

It was not many years ago that the name Trotsky was a force to be reckoned with. He had gone down and from the top of the ebullient political post in Russia.

The difference of opinion which shunted Trotsky out of the Soviet picture probably began to appear in the latter part of 1927.

Stalin and the Soviet have gone up and Trotsky has gone down and down and down he is again a man without a country.

Too late to be of any value relative to the Idaho primary elections of today, this newspaper recalls the words of a columnist.

It made pure beewax candles which, last year, accounted for forty per cent of the business. The wood working machinery which had been used for the manufacture of bee equipment was set to work on toys and Venetian blinds.

STEEL DEMAND

Steel is the chief cause of the extraordinary increase in industrial activity. The chief cause of steel's near-capacity operation at this season is not so easily named.

A LONG CONFLICT

Observers mostly seem to believe that Spain is in for a long siege of civil war. Neither the Loyalist nor rebel factions is strong enough to crush the other.

bing the power and taking hold of the situation which has so often been seen in South America is apparent. In other words, Spain isn't having a surgical operation, with swift change of condition and a short recovery to renewed vigor.

One of the most serious factors in the situation is that the policy of neither side satisfies the needs of the nation. The Spanish people do not want to go back to the old days and ways which the Rightists would like to restore.

BREAD

Says the outspoken Dorothy Thompson: "If our grain farmers, so well organized and so powerful, and if our consumers, so unorganized and so feeble would insist that the bakers of this country sell us, for our money, chiefly wheat, instead of a product largely compounded of water, starch and wheat paper."

TRUCKLE, A head-on collision has developed between the secret and the G. O. P. politicians and "brain trusters" at Chicago headquarters. It is the second chapter of a feud which seethed at Washington only a few weeks ago.

The Saxon-Bell attitude resulted in a shake-up of the Washington force, the discharge of several key writers and the setup of an entirely new staff at Chicago.

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

A New Novel by Herman Siles

SYNOPSIS: Carol Torrance has left two of her cars behind her by returning to her family in Ashboro for the Christmas vacation. One is Denis Ford, whom she might have loved; Denis is in Washington. The other is Mike Ashboro high school, Mike is in the clothes of Annabel Monroe, assistant principal, and Carol is his helper. To her relief, her brother Pat tells her that Don, who three months before had begun Carol's marriage life, is now going for her younger sister Jill.

Chapter 17. FROM DENIS

Jill gave a buffet supper the next night to start the ball rolling. The sure and it didn't do the ball usually ruled in their direction without assistance. She and Carol spent the morning cutting up houses for Christmas. "Carol, the Negro cook 'did the house.' They talked steadily and happily, and small, unimportant things. Annie popped in and out, bearing, inventing opportunities for conversation with Carol, whom she had said in greeting, 'you looks younger an' prettier than ever!'

Carol grinned skeptically and affectionately. "You darned little, how's that no-count husband of yours?" Annie shrugged blithely. "I ain't even speakin' to 'im rat 'low, excu'usin' when I tell 'im to bring in some stove wood."

Annabel and Jill led a tumultuous life, alternating periods of fierce loyalty with intervals of very articulate contempt. And Annie's accounts of their battles were well worth preserving. "Milly cut the conversation in short. 'The sure and go over the furniture well, Annie.' Annie departed reluctantly. 'Teah, it was just to do that.' At seven the guests began to arrive, and the house became noisy and alive. Like most small town groups here crowded with heterogeneous friends of Jill and Pat and Carol, and one or two of Milly's own contemporaries who had Milly's own remoteness of spirit. They were very glad to see Carol and their welcome filled her again into a niche of her own, a niche she could never occupy as a teacher in Ashboro. Don came a little late, and Carol guessed that he wanted the impression of a crowd to help him over the first few minutes. She met him exactly as she had met the others, and then resumed an interrupted conversation. His eyes found Jill and greeted her above half a dozen heads, then swung back to Carol. Over the shaker Pat watched him unobtrusively; saw him weighing and comparing; saw uncertainty mirrored in a faint smile on his candid face. Carol chatted gaily on, ignoring him, and the uncertainty began to show. He seemed to be warmly acquiescing both her hands, and then began inexorably to force his way towards Jill. Across the room Carol and Pat exchanged a single exasperated look, so brief that it scarcely lived. Pat bent over to fill a glass, but in his heart the gesture was an obsequiousness to his older sister. They played bridge for a while after supper and then deserted the tables for the hilarious unity of guessing games. The party reluctantly broke up at midnight. With his overcoat on Jim Stamper grumbled: "We haven't played no 'umble up all night." Pat leaped into the breach, with both thumbs upright, and Jim in turn elevated him. "Simon says 'umble up.' Simon says 'wings! Stop!'" Jim obediently stopped, and Louise smiled. "You're not so hot."

Some on, idiot; you've got to drive the sister home, and tomorrow's your week to take Milly to Sunday school. It's been perfectly elegant, folks. . . . They all drifted out, and the house was suddenly very still. Carol smiled. "It was a swell party, darling. And very different, she thought, from the one and Tom's. Carol said fair that had been her introduction to Ashboro's social whirl. "Leave the house as it is," Milly had begun bristling things, "and Annie carry to it all before we're even awake."

The days before Christmas were crowded and swift, dropping away like beads from a broken string. There were hurried trips to town; Milly ran about in jumps and ribbon, everybody ran short of Christmas cards. Carol frowned as the cards poured in. "This business is driving me crazy. Carol groaned as the cards poured in. "This business is driving me crazy. Carol groaned as the cards poured in. . . . Pat shrugged. "Do you get all that heart the driving and a card and don't get one back?" "Of course not."

"Well, then, give 'em credit for the same amount of sense. Quit stewing." Christmas day was crisp and clear. Milly had hoped to see her brother, but that there would be a flurry of snow, but Pat discouraged her. "Sugar, there never is. Don't get your hopes up."

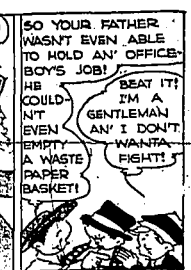

When the packages had been opened and admired the inevitable sense of flatness and reaction settled over them. "Let's go play nine holes of golf before the callers begin to descend." They went, Jill in the lead, but realizations that something had gone out of the day and the season. That was the worst of Christmas, Carol thought, that you were in it, and then after all it was just another day. And she was crowding back into her heart the thought that there had been no word from Denis; not even a Christmas card. Don had very diplomatically sent flowers to her and Jill and Nancy to Milly, but Denis was silent. Silly of her to mind, because he'd said he hated it, and she'd said she'd hate it. The course was rough and heavy, but the golf was only a pretext so they waded gently through nine holes and came home wet and cold and pleasantly tired, to a huge Christmas dinner. At half-past two the callers began to arrive, and the last sound departed at midnight. When they had gone the Torrances went gladly to bed. One more bead, Carol thought sleepily, had slipped off the string. Two days later a package arrived from Denis. Accompanied by a few faded notes, Carol read the note first. "Sweet, I'm grovelling. I went out with a couple of fellows two nights before Christmas and got gutted drunk, mainly to drown the worry and care home wet and cold. In Georgia and I was in Washington, it took me two days to sober up enough to remember where I'd put this. . . ."

"This" was a beautiful copy of "Signs and Symbols," numbered, with a card: "For Carol who deserves the world with a fence." "But I don't want the world with a fence, she thought, "I want a very small corner, with Denis in it, and I'll never have it. Even if Denis were there he wouldn't stay put. She tore up the card and the note, and looked the book on the table. "The light in Pat's eyes faded. "Well, Christmas usually calls for celebration, doesn't it?" he asked earnestly.

glanced inquiringly at her and she nodded. "It was late because he got gutted drunk on the evening before. The light in Pat's eyes faded. "Well, Christmas usually calls for celebration, doesn't it?" he asked earnestly.

Somehow, Carol realized in the remaining days of her vacation, that she was not the same as she had been before. . . .

She dared, before she left to breeze through Jill's reserve and discuss Don with her. Jill was flushed and uncomfortable as she told her sister's casual air alarmed her. "Being the sort you are," Carol said calmly, "you've probably got a choice notion that Don still loves you. You've got a divine disposition. It's your sort that blazes trails for my sort to follow. She laughed harshly. "Not I. I'll string all my life."

For the rest he spent her time with Milly; driving her on errands, playing bridge and golf with her, talking endlessly of pleasant, unimportant things. She took a train on Sunday afternoon, and the scene of four months ago was re-created, except that for herself it was no longer a voyage of discovery. When the train had pulled out she turned her face to the window and collected her thoughts and closed her eyes against searching tears.

Utah Speed King Tests Big Racer

Ab Jenkins Finds Salt Flats Too Wet For Record-Seeking Run

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah, Aug. 16 (AP)—Ab Jenkins took his "Hormon Meier" across the salt flats today, but found the flats too wet for his record-seeking run. The Utah driver said his machine "performed very satisfactorily" at 135 and 136 m.p.h. for the two runs. The tests, Jenkins said, were to determine gasoline mileage and top speed.

Jenkins, tanned from long days on the desert, said he was confident his streamlined, rugged racer has enough speed to smash virtually every record up to and including the Utah state record of 140 m.p.h. for 24 hours of continual driving.

Jenkins said he would have a new 100 mile track laid out on the sparsely saline flats that have become the world's choice racing grounds. He plans to put his big car through new tests Monday.

By FRANK McMILLLEN (Associated Press Financial Writer) NEW YORK, Aug. 14 (AP)—Stocks fell for a while today and the stock market slid briefly into red.

Financial circles said the lack of bids in some sectors reflected merely the withdrawal of professional investors to appraise the outlook in terms of a somewhat slower rate of industrial activity.

Down fractions to 3 or more points were U. S. Steel at 64 1/2, Westinghouse Electric at 14 1/2, Allied Chemical at 23 1/2, Bethlehem Steel at 34 1/2, American Can at 11 1/2, Consolidated Edison at 42 1/2, Douglas Aircraft at 70, Radio at 10 1/2 and Copper Carbide at 9 1/2.

CHICAGO WHEAT PRICES TUMBLE

Huge Rural Deliveries and Small Export Buying Result in Losses

CHICAGO, Aug. 14—Huge rural deliveries of wheat at Winnipeg, together with next to no export buying, did much to tumble Chicago wheat down 2 cents late today.

Contributing to what market weakness was an official announcement that total supplies of wheat in the United States for the 1938-39 season are large enough for usual domestic requirements.

Wheat closed unstable at almost the day's bottom figures, 1 1/2 to 2 cents under yesterday's finish.

For the most part, provisions were higher, responsive to hog prices the maximum of the season.
