Greeks Win Sweeping Victory In Battle Against German Allies

LONDON, April 17.—The Greek army went into battle against the German allies today for the first time since Greece entered the war and won a victory, the British war office announced today.

An important success was achieved in the sector of the Struma river, north of Thessalonika, in Greek Macedonia, and a number of villages were captured from the Bulger-German forces.

The Greeks alone captured five villages, while the British captured another. Forcing a crossing of the Struma early in the night the Greeks drove the Bulger-German forces from five villages on the eastern side. British troops that were operating with the Greeks occupied the important village of Kuml-Ormani, between eight and nine miles south of the Bulgarian frontier.

HUN HORDE HURLED FROM MATEREN, FROM WYTSCHAETE AND BOYELLES

Allied Grip on Important Paschendale Ridge Seriously Menaced—Furious Attempts of the Boches to Gain High Ground Near Ypres Defeated—Failure Results From Terrific Attacks on British Lines at St. Jans and on Road Leading to Hazebrouck—Famous Strategist Returns From Italy and Takes Charge of Part of Defensive Forces—French Win Some Minor Actions—Premier's Optimism Electrifies Britons

(By Frank Charlton, I. N. S. Cable Editor) While the British in brilliant counter assaults, have thrown back the Germans at three points from captured ground, Field Marshal Haig has been compelled to withdraw his troops from advanced positions on the Paschendale ridge, east of Ypres.

In the Wytschaete sector, at the northern end of the Messines ridge, the British drove forward in a night counter attack, which the British war office in its official report today described as "successful."

There was another British success at Materen between one and two miles west of Bailloult. The Germans had gained a foothold in the village yesterday but in desperate hand to hand fighting they rolled back leaving the British in complete possession of the village.

The flure up of fighting near Boyelles, on the front south of Arras, again left the English the victors. The Germans penetrated a few trenches, but the British pressed home a quick and powerful counter thrust which completely restored the situation.

While thrusting against the British heights positions of Messines ridge, the Germans renewed their efforts against the British lines north of Bailloult. Blows were struck in the direction of St. Jans and along the Hazebrouck railway but no success was attained. The attacking forces came under direct fire of British artillery and were mowed down in heaps.

The fighting on Tuesday night was along a nine-mile front and was marked by its ferocity. The British held to their positions like grim death and fulfilled to the letter Field Marshal Haig's order to hold their lines or die trying. They held.

General Plumer, one of the greatest soldiers of the war has produced, has been recalled from the Italian front by the British war office and is now commanding the second British army which is holding the line along the Bailloult-Wauvillers-Messines ridge front.

Paris, April 17.—Artillery duels raged between the Oise and Somme rivers (Picardy front) during the night, the war office announced today. French troops made successful raids at various points.

Artillery was active on both sides from the Somme to the Oise river last night, the communication said. "French forces carried out several successful raids at Meuzil, Butte De Tathure and north of Eligny."

The Germans attacked west of Samogneux last night. LONDON, April 17.—The British struck back hard against the German in an successful counter attack on the northern end of the Messines ridge last night, but were forced to withdraw slightly east of Ypres, the war office today announced.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—It was planned last night that so far General Foch has taken no part in the present struggle with the great reserve army, which was created by the supreme war council at Versailles.

Officials here say that it is impossible to guess at this far range what the next move of the general will be. They are confident, however, that the understanding between Foch and Haig is complete and that when the time comes, a decisive counter-attack will come.

Further speeding up of all war activities of the United States is the chief recommendation of the Secretary of War Baker makes as a result of his overseas inspection trip. Men and material are being sent to the front.

The British are fighting against overwhelming odds. But they have not yet abandoned their hope of a decisive victory in the West. Aid is in anticipation of the time that American forces now are being released from England. They already have released many men to Field Marshal Haig. Aid in proportion to the number of men that this country can send to England, others will be released to reinforce the army.

ALL THE NEWS ALL THE TIME

There are just three great corporations furnishing daily news service to papers in the United States.

Of these the Associated Press is the oldest, and still stands first, although in some departments its work has been—and is being—excelled, especially so in the foreign field by the International.

There is no question among those who really know and are also honest, that the second place is occupied by the International News Service, now used by the TIMES. The International has the highest paid men and every facility of capital and organization; and its daily reports will bear comparison with those of any other service any time and all the time.

Frightful Story of Hun Atrocities Related by Sergeant Suffering From Nervous Breakdown

NEW YORK, April 17.—Frightful stories of Hun atrocities against American prisoners are told by Sergeant James J. Enright, of the medical unit of the 101st Central Postal Directory, who has just arrived from the front.

Sergeant Enright was honorably discharged from service because of a nervous breakdown due to overwork in a base hospital directly behind the American line in the Toul sector of the front.

MILCH BARK

In his campaign to increase poultry production the United States department of agriculture is emphasizing upon the importance of early hatching, because that is the key to the whole situation.

It has weeks of high prices for the American soldier. "It was impossible to mess to those French towns," he said. "The people would not let us do it, they would come out of their homes and just drag us in over our objections."

Contagious Diseases Big Factor in High Death Rate in Early Years

The contagious diseases of infancy and childhood are big factors in the high death rate during the early years of life.

Early hatching develops before summer, when only six cents a day and the Yanks were so plentifully supplied with money the girls marveled at them.

Scientific diet not found a cure of a preventive for measles, scarlet fever, infantile paralysis, mumps or chickenpox, but whooping cough can be helped by the use of the specific vaccine, mumps and typhoid fever can be prevented by vaccination and cerebro-spinal meningitis can be aided by the use of serum.

Production may not be reduced at all, and the production is estimated only a few weeks. When late hatching is not satisfactory the crop of poultry is cut short and the production falls.

FIELD MARSIALS OF MAJOR LEAGUES

Being Close-ups of the Men Who Will Battle for American and National League Flags—By Jack Veiock, International News Service Sporting Editor.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Fleider Jones was one of the greatest players who ever cavorted in the outstadiums for any club.

In his heyday as a player he was rated as a great fielder, a timely and consistent hitter and a clever base runner as well. In addition to these assets the fielder combined practical baseball knowledge with an active brain.

His fame as a player and the reputation he made as manager of the famous White Sox, world's champion of 1905, known to the baseball world as the "Hitless Wonder," resulted in bringing him back to the pastime after he had retired in 1908 to go into the lumber business in Seattle, and he came back as manager of the St. Louis Browns.

His regime in St. Louis, while not as successful as his reign in Chicago, has been satisfactory to Phil Ball, the owner of the Browns, and the fielder will pilot a team in this year's American league race that can be looked on as a dark horse—a team which is liable to make a lot of trouble for pennant contenders.

Jones has rebuilt his team almost completely, and he is going to make a new start in the Mondia City with new blood in the line-up. His active brain and managerial ability should do wonders for the Browns, for he is known as one of the finest managers in the game. On one occasion in St. Louis, some years ago, one of the fielder's White Sox pitchers filled the bases. He showed his resourcefulness by warming up all of his pitchers and sending a fresh man to the box for every batter McAleer trotted out. The Browns went down one, two, three.

Long years in baseball have made a shrewd manager of Jones. He seldom makes a deal which turns out poorly for his club, and he is considered a great judge of players.

He started playing professionally in the Oregon State League as a fielder and catcher, and soon worked his way into the majors. He led the American league as a centerfielder in 1903-1905 and 1907.—He was outfielder, manager and captain of the White Sox from 1909 to 1908.

Jones was born in a farmhouse, Pa., in 1871, and in his job as baseball and commercial endeavor proves that he is a man who does things.

YOU CAN'T REFUSE

By Strickland Gillilan, the man who wrote "Off with the Head," "Gone with the Wind" and "The Sammy came in from the trench, and says he: 'There's too many calls on the course of me. I answered the call when they asked me to come. To fight that my countrymen might have a home. I've fought ever since we've been quartered in France. I've seen every time I was told to advance.' This order 'You give, to go over the top. To-day, it's too much—I am going to stop. There's no limit to what I can rightly afford To give to my country with cheerful accord.

The officer's eyes stuck a foot from his face To hear this halbutton who courted disgrace. And the private was sent where all his fellows were. To be shot 'em—just sunrise—he hadn't a show. I think that with me you will promptly agree. That a fitter would's right for such gutters as these. But hasn't he just as much right to declare His whole duty done and his job to do. As you in your home that he fights to protect. When you're told that there still is some coin to collect? His sworn to obey every call that his government makes. To risk his existence without being driven, by force.

You, safe here at home, take advantage of their sacrifice. And claim no disgrace when a duty you miss.—You seem to believe you've a right to refuse. To lead of your board for the Allies to 1919. In paying your land and the land of all others Who claim human rights in their homes and their brothers. You have no such rights in them. duty you're bound To GIVE, with a coin in your coffers to be found.

THIRD BATTLE OF YPRES DESCRIBED BY SERGEANT

CHICAGO, April 17.—The thrilling eye-witness story of the third battle of Ypres was told here by Sergeant Reginald Grant, of the first Canadian field artillery.

"We were in a sanitary wagon talked a mile southeast of Ypres. We were the sacrifice battery and were to stay behind and cover the retreat of our comrades if there should be a retreat. Well, our boys went out of the trench and were met by the Germans in mass formation.

They were smothered—but not before they had wreaked frightful havoc. They died to a man. The Germans then on rolling with all their lungs and as they neared we blew great holes in that formation. But we kept our shot here by firing at running and yelling like wilds of hell.

"Our ammunition was gone. We grabbed parts of the guns and our rifles, and retreated with the rest, stopping now and then to drop one or two of the enemy.

"The battery to our right didn't have a chance to use all their shells. The Boche was upon them too quickly with smoke shells that started great fires. The boys there were burned alive.

"Yes, they are fighters, the Germans. But so are the British."

The Great Opportunity

By Booth Tarlington, creator of that real boy, "Benrod," and many other famous, fiction characters.

When we intrust our savings to a bank, we like to know that it's a sound bank. We feel safe then to store our money in charge of that bank and its officers. They will use it in various ways which seem good to them—but we'll get it all back. If the bank is sound, we'll be happy in the United States of America can be so sound as the United States itself. Therefore, when the United States government turns banker, the safest place for our money to be put is in the hands of this government. Anyone who says that, without heaving to look twice. Uncle Sam himself will take care of our money, and his word is his bond. We know that. His word is so good that we can get the money back whenever we need it, because his bonds will sell, any time, for just what he says he'll pay for them. A few years hence, of course, they will sell for more than we pay for them.

During the time we have lent our money with Uncle Sam—what we call the Liberty Loan—he pays us interest. Well, I've had a higher per cent than he pays for a loan because I had to pay taxes that reduced the per cent to 1-1/2—but on investments, it was 4 per cent. And as an investment, it was 10 per cent, but it only paid it once, and then the fellow who talked me into it left town without telling anyone. Good-bye!

Well, I think that I can get my money back, and I can get it back better than Uncle Sam's rate in the long run. When will I can, usually the factory has to have new boilers, after its first dividend comes in, or the ore isn't quite the quality we had reason to expect, and I bet the long squirm to get out with something reasonably near what I put in. No, nowadays I think the government rate is about all I'm going to get from any investment, which I place with regard to the investment's safety.

Therefore, I got all I can of Uncle Sam's Liberty Bonds because they are today, of all the possible investments in the world, the one that's absolutely safe. Nobody except Uncle Sam will or can give us his rate and the same absolute certainty that we'll get our interest paid promptly and the principal when it is due.

That's the solid side of it; we can't do better. The other side of it is that Uncle Sam uses the money for our own boys in France and our boys on the seas—our boys whose hard and terrible daily work is done so gallily and dead-always and they aren't even getting a penny more than they should for the war. Our idea of freedom may not be lost forever and that we shall not become the dependant nation of any one country. It's a matter of the money and safety for our ideals, and for our liberty—that's what we get when we invest in the Liberty Loan!
