

Endless Rules and Regulations of Draft Known to One Little Girl—'Major Billy'

By EDNA HUBER CURCH

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The thousands and thousands of drafted men in the national army realize but little how important a part a little woman played in the great gamble which sent them into the military forces.

When senators and congressmen and war department officials sing the praises of the drafters, they give no mention of the brave, hard-working, tireless woman who has given her life for the nation.

All of these questions come in floods, by word of mouth or by letter. "Major Billy" answers them all and answers them right away, because she knows all about the draft regulations.

Secretary of War Baker can't commission women in the army, but if he could it is a safe bet that General Crowder would ask for a commission for "Major Billy." Her associates have given her the recognition of her ability, however, because they have dubbed her "Major." The lieutenants, captains, majors, colonels and even a brigadier-general all salute "Major Billy" as a good thing.

All of this is written after observation, and there isn't a quote in this story from "Major Billy," because she refuses to be quoted, but just the same her associates will tell of her efficiency. She is only a little girl of the prairie type of an average country town.

"Major Billy" always signs her name "Mrs. W. W. Hubbard." Her name is removed, though, that her parents shouldn't be ashamed of her. When she is called "Major Billy," she is called "Major Billy."

That it is not only the soldiers who are the "major" in the war's most crying needs.

This is the opinion of Annie Goodrich, federal supervisor of military hospitals, president of the American Nurses Association, as expressed today in an interview.

She helped plan the course of study for the nurses who are training in the camps, but they must pledge themselves to follow this theoretical course with two years' practical hospital work.

"When I enter the army hospitals filled with hundreds of soldiers," said Miss Goodrich, "I am inspired. Some times I am almost oppressed by the opportunity for education, but that lies in the hands of nurses who come in daily contact with these men."

"Some of the nurses who lack social vision, never realize the splendid opportunity for service. Think of all that could be done for our soldiers through direct or indirect guidance and help by women of intelligence and understanding."

do with the budget on this summer, the managers around the American League circuit had better prepare to have some of the fences torn down, for "Franklin is hitting 'em hard and far away."

It is nothing new for the slugger from Trappe, Mo., to break into print, for years without number have been printed about the "Homo Run King." But his big hit has been swinging with deadly effect on the managers and he shows few signs of falling down. Driving home runs that win ball games is Baker's stock in trade.

Armed Men Visit The White House

First Time in History—French "Blue Devils" Arrive at the President Without Slacking Their Guns.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Men under arms accented the White House this afternoon for the first time in history. When 92 of France's "blue devils," heroes of the Somme and Verdun, were introduced to the president, they did not as is customary, stack their guns in the White House grounds, but under the coat room in the corridors of the first and second floors.

After being presented by Andre Tardieu, French high commissioner to the United States, the "blue devils" were greeted by the president. He was glad to welcome men fighting for the greatest cause in the history of the world, he said, and was glad that Americans were fighting shoulder to shoulder with men such as they.

PATRIOTIC DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Right entertained at a charmingly appointed six-course dinner at the Popover Sun-Club in honor of Mrs. John Mc-Gilchney of Payette, prominent club woman of the state and General Federation director of Idaho.

The after dinner course was enjoyed in the stately home of the host and hostess, where Mrs. Regan delighted her guests with selections on her beautiful piano. Her guests were: Mrs. John McGillchney and Hon. M. J. Sweeney, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Right, Dr. and Mrs. Claude M. and Mrs. Wilbur G. Hill, Dr. and Mrs. McCrete and Mrs. Chas. S. Hart.

THE DAILY TWIN FALLS TIMES

Published Every Day Except Sunday by the

TIMES PRINTING & PUBLISHING COMPANY

Twin Falls, Idaho News of the World to the Hour C. L. Longley, General Manager E. D. Whelan, Associate Editor

(Entered at the Twin Falls postoffice as second class matter as a daily publication, April 11, 1916)

The TIMES is an independent Democratic newspaper, but it knows no politics as opposed to the most unbridled and vigorous prosecution of it as well as is possible. Therefore, it is AGAIN, man, Democrat or Republican, caught throwing hardware into the machinery—either with his hands or with his mouth. If this be "partisan," make the most of it!

WHICH BUNCOMBE IS DANEPULI

Apparently the word has gone out over the state that it is high time for the Democratic press to "start something," as a number of the state papers of that faith have recently been laying the foundation for future events—figuratively getting in the emplacements for the big bombardment that will soon be opened up, says the North Side News under the heading, "Banquet Buncombe."

The Twin Falls Times is one of these and in a recent issue had a long editorial under the caption "Mop-up Plans for Campaign in Idaho." In support of the caption the Times charges that "powerful influences" are at work in both the leading parties and even now are being planted in the ranks of the Non-partisan league "to control the legislature so as to prevent state legislation that will run counter to the combine, and elect Republicans who will oppose the policies of Woodrow Wilson."

Follows then the big drum in the usual generalities without getting anywhere specifically. It would seem as though Idaho would be about the last place where "powerful influences" should worry. Through reform measures passed by the combination of both parties such influences seem to be in no immediate danger of oppression in Idaho. All our public service corporations now enjoy a virtual monopoly through the workings of the public utilities law. They may be on watch to see that the public utility statutes are not repealed, but it is difficult to conceive of anything more that they could want.

As to Republicans who might be opposed to the policies of Woodrow Wilson, the Times should examine its own household. Judging by the noise and tumult that is coming out of congress, this might do double duty as a threat against a number of one party as of the other that are opposing these policies. And simply because one man might be a candidate on the Democratic ticket and another on the ticket, one should not be hasty in placing him as to his support of these policies. Outside of the war activities and war policies there are still the same reasons for division of opinion as between Democrat and Republican. The same judgment as to governmental affairs as there ever was. It all goes to show that the old howl about monopoly and combine and trust and going to be repealed, and that the war is to be utilized also if these are not considered sufficient.

The TIMES hates to presume to make a suggestion to the editor of another newspaper relative to the manner in which he should conduct his affairs, but in this case, since this paper is under discussion, it will take the liberty to intimate to the North Side News man that it is always advisable to read the other fellow's statement before he starts in order to find out what he says before taking him to task, and to take due care in quoting.

For instance the News says: "The Times charges that 'powerful influences' are at work in both leading parties and even now are being planted in the ranks of the Non-partisan league to control the legislature so as to prevent state legislation that will run counter to the combine, and elect Republicans who will oppose the policies of Woodrow Wilson."

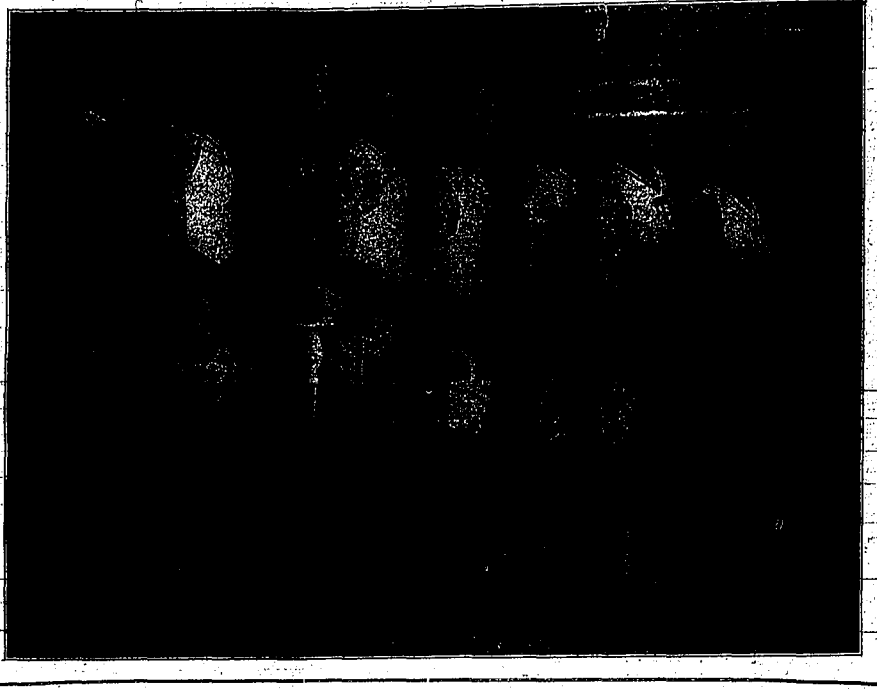

The last part of the above sentence is a positive, though undoubtedly unintentional, misquotation and attributes to this paper something that it did not say. Here is what THE TIMES did say:

"Two great immediate objects are in view: to control the legislature so as to prevent state legislation that will run counter to the combine; and to elect a Republican who will oppose the interests of the combine on Woodrow Wilson, to take the place of John F. Nugent in the senate. This information is sufficient to enable the influences seeking to manipulate things do not especially like Senator Borah and will work in the campaign such way as to get the combine's may dictate so far as concerns the senatorial office. Should a fundamental Democratic ticket, they will support Borah. Should a true Democrat be nominated on the Democratic ticket, they will support him as they think he can win; otherwise, they will 'double-cross' him and point to his record as evidence of his unfitness for the office of senator."

It will readily be seen that the News construction would make the re-election of Borah one of the main objects the combine have in view, while THE TIMES very clearly states that this is not the case. In fact, most they will simply identify him, and should the trusts element control of the Democratic party, may even throw him over for a nominal Democrat at the fall election. Moreover, the News misquotation would imply that THE TIMES suggested that the Non-partisan league would be utilized directly to control the Republican party, something that it did not say, as the true quotation shows. The general methods which the trusts hope to utilize in the attempted control of the league were sufficiently indicated in THE TIMES editorial on which the News comments. They are familiar to TIMES readers and will be to the News editor, should he carefully read the article; as it probably would have been "wise for him to have done" in the first place.

Snipers Nest Is Wiped Out by Boys

Party Goes Forth and Gets Into Sharp Skirmish With the Outposts of the Boches.

Newton C. Parke, (L. N. S. Staff Correspondent) WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 14. (P. M.)—The American patrol which was last reported to have "gone out" on the Lunerville sector following the night fighting at an enemy strong point, returned to the scene of the engagement looking for missing Americans. A party of Germans was encountered and there was a sharp fight.

When the patrol returned, one man was found to be missing. "What casualties the Germans suffered is not known. Two officers went back to look for the missing American but were blown by a German outbreak and promptly an action started. One dead German was left close to the American line and brought back to our lines for identification purposes. Other Americans went out and in all three scout officers and four men were engaged.

The entire incident was caused by the determination of the Americans to wipe out a nest of snipers who had killed one of our officers and one of our men. Three American snipers, dressed in camouflage suits, went out but could not resist the temptation to open fire when they saw a German officer standing beside a strong point.

Clearing up after a Monday afternoon brought the first aerial activity on the Toul front for several days. Sausage balloons were up on both sides. American airplanes patrolled behind the enemy's lines, despite the hot fire directed against them. No German machines were up. Our artillery laid down a heavy barrage fire throughout the night on enemy troops moving along the roads in the rear of the German front.

MAKING WHOLE DAMN WORLD DEMOCRATIC, IS INDIAN IDEA OF THE WORLD WAR

MUSKOGEE, Okla., May 14.—An Indian soldier was walking down the street of Muskogee today when he met a white man friend who stopped him with: "Well, John, I see you have become a soldier."

Native Texan, Caught After Cattle Raid, Confesses—Now Captain in Carranza Army

LAREDO, Tex., May 14.—A rather interesting story has reached Federal officials here to illustrate the kind of men that are recruited by the Carranza army as qualified for honorable recognition and being made officers in that army.

On the night of Thursday, March 7, a gang of about twenty bandits, said to have been Texas-Mexicans, raided the San Antonio West (east) ranch near Hobbsville, in Jim Hogg county, and after having made the occupants of the ranch prisoners, gathered everything they could lay hands on, including many valuables and a herd of fine horses, and made a dash toward the Rio Grande, closely pursued by a posse of Texas Rangers, stockmen, cowboys and Jim Hogg county officials.

Most of the bandits are supposed to have been killed in the running fight and only one man, named Szasz, is said to have crossed the Rio Grande to the Mexican side, where he was captured by Mexican soldiers near Guerrero.

Szasz confessed to his Mexican captors that he was a native of Texas, that he had been in the gang which raided the ranch and wanted their protection. Mexican military officials informed the American officials of the capture and confession of Szasz and said the man would be later turned over to the sheriff of the Texas county in which the raid took place.

Szasz was accordingly taken to Matamoros, arranged for trial before a military tribunal there and was acquitted, and that same day, it is said, he was honorably commissioned a captain in the Carranza army.

Szasz is now said to be one of the officers of the garrison of Matamoros, opposite Brownsville, Texas. This information was received by Federal officers in Laredo through reliable sources.

AT OUR HOUSE

Eyes O'Blue and Tousehead Learn About the Red Cross

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

We have talked it over at our house. Talked it over as we have never talked it over before. We did not want Eyes O'Blue to know about it nor did we want to lay any part of the world's heavy burden upon the heart of Tousehead. We have taught them that the world is a good and a beautiful place, but last night, gathered beneath the light in the humble little parlor at our house, we talked it over between us. Eyes O'Blue and Tousehead were told that, while the world is good, it is not all good; that there are men who have started out to enslave the world and who in the furtherance of that ambition have done awful things. Gradually as the tale was told they drew nearer until we sat with our arms about them. We told them of hands backed from baby writhing of death rained from the sky upon helpless little ones, of murder rising from the sea's green depths to feed upon helpless soldiers and babies. And then we told them how these splendid mother boys we see every day are going to the far front to fight and, if need be, die to keep this home from our land. We told them of horror and wounds and suffering. And then—we told them of the Red Cross. We had a number of Red Crosses in our windows but they had not known of them. We told them of the bandages and supplies needed to ally suffering. We told them of the noble women who are giving their lives to the binding up of hurts of the boys in France. We told them of the great need of money with which to carry on the work of mercy. Then Eyes O'Blue in a voice which choked with pity for the distressed spoke of her savings, and Tousehead clasped her hands at the thought. This morning went to the bank and withdrew their savings, $25.00, and they are to be put to work—to a better work than they have been doing. At our house for the duration of the war we expect to wear cobbed shoes and patched clothing, and if we ever hesitate in our sacrifice I shall see the faces of Eyes O'Blue and Tousehead as, with tears on their cheeks, they smiled at the thought of the help they might be to the Red Cross. Are you helping us to carry the Red Cross?

FIGHTING SISTERS OF FIGHTING MEN

Twenty Thousand Nurses Now Enrolled in American Red Cross.

Of the eighty odd thousand registered trained nurses in the United States about 20,000 have enrolled as Red Cross nurses, volunteering their services at the front, in camps and hospitals or in any other needed capacities. This enrollment is the nursing force of the United States Army Navy Corps and the United States Army. It is also drawn contingents for service under other allied flags than our own. The enrollment goes on at the rate of 1,000 volunteers a month. On a basis of an army of a million men over 30,000 nurses will be required for active duty in the present year. Up to the last of February over 1,000 nurses had been actually detailed to duty or were ready for immediate mobilization. So it is seen that there are none too many, in view of the requirements of the service, since between time of enrollment and actual assignment to duty the nurse must undergo a period of special study and training for war service, and the work of organization and mobilizing this "army of mercy" is no small thing. A Nurse is a Soldier.

Surgeon General Gorgas has called upon the Red Cross to supply 6,000 nurses for the Army Nurse Corps by June 1, and if this quota is forthcoming the total number detailed will have reached 12,000. So the mobilization of another 18,000 to 20,000, by Jan. 1, 1919, will be a big problem to solve. Now, a nurse is a soldier. She is recognized officially by the government and included in those eligible for soldiers' and sailors' war insurance. A nurse goes into actual danger of wounds and death by shell fire and bomb explosion. Her work is arduous, and she is liable for the same penalties of mind and heart. She is of the right hand of the surgeon. So, because nursing is primarily a woman's work, she will be properly the peculiar responsibility of the women of America. While the trained nurse is urged to volunteer the risk of her life at the front, the American woman at home is commanded by every dictate of patriotism and humanity to support her "fighting sister." The nurse fights pain, disease and death-making her sacrifice with increasing cheerfulness and enthusiasm.

Somewhere in France, April 22, 1918.

Dear Folks: I have mailed several times since I last wrote and so, of course, have been pretty busy—too busy in fact to write. There was no time to write our vicinity either, so everyone fell behind in their correspondence. Most of our regiment is billeted now, and headquarters comes up and down among the various battalions. The batteries are drilling every day, and a few of us go to school every day in which I was working when I last wrote.

I take pleasure in adding that I have been made instructor which is just what I wished for. As for the school, the mechanics go to school in the repair shops and the rest receive lectures from instructors along lines in which they are supposed to become proficient. We have quite a bit of practical experience in the shops, but there are so many to learn all they can that everyone is crowded for time and space. Most of our work is done by an expert mechanic, who I know is very good along certain mechanical lines.

My sergeant was giving us an interesting lecture yesterday with regard to the motor in general. At the close of school we return to our respective batteries via truck and supper and set out on their evening promenades. Not very exciting nor adventurous to us now, but we are getting ready for something that is pretty much saturated with both. The time is not far away when we will get a chance to show the world that we are not just for a purpose, and until that time we are all doing our best to improve and systematize our habits and our work.

I want you to continue sending the tobacco if possible, for at times it is a practical impossibility to procure here. And a person cannot very well put in a supply when it is available because one can't get it at the time in the line. Your choice of the brands so far has been nothing short of wonderful. Kindly administer future doses with the same care that I received a dime and a nickel in change today, and began to get homesick for American money. Nearly everything we use here has come up to—I don't know what. A dime here is equal to about "equivalent" or fifty centimes, and will buy a glass of beer or two apples and most barber shops, a haircut. You notice we reckon French money as to value the same as the dollar, but in comparison to American money.

I can't think of much else to say except that headquarters, supply, ordnance and hospital corps are meeting together and that we sure are having good ood for soldiers. Also that Barrett is now away off partly submarine. Please notify the Irwin brothers of Kimberley farm that I was pleased to read a letter from them quite recently. I am delighted with the remarkable taste they show in choosing their stationery.

Your loving son, TOM IRWIN.

Somewhere in France, April 5, 1918.

We have landed safely in dear old France, and that after having just one little scare with a submarine. We landed on way off partly submarine. It seemed to be pausing, wondering where to strike and then dived. That was the last sign of it so we were too late to get up for Fritz. The excitement was great, but not enough of it.

There is no room to stretch your legs and on French lessons. A French interpreter is arranging to give us lessons on the way off partly submarine. I had the opportunity to ride on a French railway. It is very different from the American. The French first-class car contains anywhere from five to eight compartments. These compartments have no partition communication with each other and once you get in you must stay there until they are done. They are hung on the sides of the cars and doors lead into each compartment. At night one must sleep sitting nearly upright, for there is no room to stretch your legs and the seats have perpendicular backs. The second and third class cars are the same except for the lack of padded seats or lace decorations.

We are required to exchange all of our money for French money, so now instead of American dollars we have the dollar we use the word franc. We have been so accustomed to the dollar that we do feel in transition. It takes more in the long run, since it takes about 66 francs to make a dollar, we keep on spending francs because we have no other money. The French people are very courteous and "going," but in a way do not seem to be in a hurry to associate with them. There are many many many prisoners at work here by various John. I like to practice my school German on them whenever I have the opportunity. They say that they don't like the Kaiser and are tired of the war, but you can't tell whether they are in earnest or not. The Y. C. C. A. is doing a wonderful work for the boys. They have something doing every night to amuse them and occupy their time. There are a lot of nice little French, girls and boys over here. There are also many tough little fellows, many of them wear a red shirt and black armbands. They are great beggars. Whenever they see a soldier they will ask for pennies or tobacco or most anything.

"It Was One Grand Surprise," She Says

"I Gained Twelve Pounds On Two Bottles of Tonic," Says Miss Bohne. "I have gained twelve pounds on two bottles of Tonic and feel every bit of five years younger," said Miss Bohne, 11 Bohne, cashier at Ross's Drug Store, and residing at 1215 E. 1st St., Houston, Texas, the other day. "I was in a very much rundown condition," she explained, "from being so fatigued with my work that I thought I would eat, give me trouble. My food would sour on my stomach and form gas that made me miserable for hours. My nerves were all on edge, so I got little rest at night, and when morning came I was most as tired as I was when I went to bed. I had terrible headaches most all the time and felt so wretched and so uncomfortable that I hardly had any life or energy left to do anything. I heard so many people talking about the good that Tonic had done them that I decided to try it. The way it took hold of my troubles was one grand surprise and I hardly know how to begin telling of all the benefits I have derived from using it. I can say though that it has made me a new person out of me, and as soon as I get home from work instead of mooping around like I did I now have a grand time romping with the kiddies just like I was a child, too. My complexion has cleared up wonderfully. I have no trouble with my digestion and I sleep like a baby. Tonic has been a fine thing for me and I certainly am glad to recommend it from my own experience with it."

Six Billion Dollars For Heavy Ordnance

Large Sum Requested by General Barrett in Addition to That Asked by Baker

WASHINGTON, May 13.—An estimate of $6,000,000,000 to be expended during the next twelve months for heavy ordnance was submitted to the house appropriations committee this afternoon by Brigadier-General Barrett, acting chief of coast artillery. The appropriation asked is in addition to the $15,000,000,000 estimate submitted to the military affairs committee by Secretary of War Baker. The money will be spent for heavy guns for use on the western front and for coast fortifications. The major part will be expended for great guns with which to protect American shipping abroad. There will not be available until one year after the contracts are let. General Barrett told the committee. Barrett's explanation of how the money will be expended were amplified by the chief of engineers, General Black.

SHOT BOY OVER BOTTLE OF MILK

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 13.—(To have a bottle of milk W. H. Brown, a building contractor, this morning fired four bullets into the body of Robert Williams, 13 years old. The contractor justified the shooting by saying the boy was taking the milk from his porch. The boy is in a dangerous condition. Overman is being held by the police.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Officials here doubt the story of the transfer to Germany of large quantities of munitions sold by Americans to Brazil. They say that such transfer would be impossible, as the ways are blocked.

JOHN MADISON'S FAMILY

When John Madison sailed for France there were no indications that his family would suffer in a pecuniary way while he was away. John's younger brother, Henry, a printer, was helping out the family budget. When John's father was stricken with pneumonia, his earnings power stopped. Henry met with an accident. If John had stayed home he could have carried his mother and little sisters through the crisis. But John was with Pershing overseas. His family's situation was reported to the Red Cross and promptly placed in the hands of Home Service. As a result the best medical attention was secured for John's father and brother. Immediate funds were placed in the mother's hands to provide for the household before the family income stopped. In the brief space of a few hours Home Service had driven poverty from the absent soldier's home. The whole aim and object of Home Service is to protect the welfare of the soldier's family while he is away and to maintain as far as possible the same standards of home life that prevailed while he was at home. More than this, when the standard of living is low it is the duty and the opportunity of Home Service to raise the standard. This is what it means to take Madison and his legions of comrades in khaki and in blue to realize that in their absence their loved ones will be safeguarded as carefully and as constantly as they themselves would have done. Think what it means to the morale of these brave lads to know that whatever may happen in the perils of warfare the future of their families will not be jeopardized.

Probably you are a lover of well bred and handsome horses. If so, then you are sure to see the parade, for this circus has with it the finest horses-both draft and saddle horses-the world famous "Blue Ribbon" of those equine beauties are in the stables of this show. It would be hard to find a horse in the entire line on the day of the exhibition so as to secure a good-point of vantage before the parade leaves the grounds, which will be promptly at 10 o'clock unless the unexpected happens.
