On June 14th, 1777, the Congress of the United States at the suggestion of General Washington, declared the national flag to consist of thirteen stripes, seven of which should be red and six white, and thirteen stars on a blue background.

French Drive Forward From the Ourcq—Gains by Gauls and Americans on Paris-Chateau Thierry Road—American Advance Was Two and Half Miles Over a Six Mile Front—Situation extremely Favorable.

French Were Fugged and Worn When Americans Arrived in Time to Save Them From Defeat at Marne.

The flag represents the nation. To those not a part of the nation it signifies what they consider to be the real aim and purpose of the people composing the nation. If the nation is predominantly commercial, and is soiled and unscrupulous and dominating according to its strength, and has no respect for the rights of others, the flag, which represents her, though it may be a beauty of harmony in mechanical construction, is despoiled, although she may be outwardly respected on account of the strength she represents, in all foreign lands and courts.

Powerful counter assaults were driven home by the Germans in that sector but they were smashed by the allied fire and the attackers were flung back to their old positions leaving the field covered with dead and dying.

Port Ford (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent) WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY AT THE MARNE, June 7-8 (p. m.)—American marines, who are standing with the French between the German machine guns, have advanced to a depth of nearly two and one-half miles over a front of about six miles northwest of Chateau Thierry, capturing several villages and 300 prisoners. Not one of the marines has been taken prisoner.

Now, therefore, I, F. F. Dracken, mayor of the City of Twin Falls, Idaho, do hereby declare, Friday, the 14th day of June, 1918, and the anniversary of the one hundred and forty-first birthday of our National Emblem, and most respectfully request that all public places and private business places in said City be closed on said day from the hour of one o'clock in the afternoon to the hour of six o'clock in the afternoon, and that all persons cease from unnecessary labor and that such observance of the flag be shown as may be fitting to the occasion.

(Frank Charlton, I. N. S. Cable Editor) The mixed Franco-American forces that rallied the Germans back in the French fighting northwest of Chateau Thierry on the Marne front has proved just as valiant in holding their gains as they were in making them.

A railway station on the right wing of the line was the scene of the most gallant fighting where the men fell fast, but they hear that the enemy losses were very great.

Issued at Twin Falls, Idaho, this 8th day of June, 1918.

Meanwhile the French and Americans continue to extend their gains and fighting still rages over a large portion of the western flank of the Marne salient.

No time nor on any other front has the enemy massed such a formidable array of machine guns. In fact, the fighting developed into a machine gun duel.

REPUBLICANS TO FIGHT INCREASE IN TAX PLANNED

Our troops drove back the Germans steadily, despite the hot fire from batteries of bocho machine gun batteries. The Germans have been unable to charge our men somewhat, but as fast as a platoon head showed it was checked off by an American sharpshooter.

HUN THREATS UNAVAILING IS U. S. STATEMENT

It was like the old time Indian fighting, with the men holding out their rifles and shouting and the wind would flatten the grain and the grass, thus exposing the Americans. The German would open up with his machine gunners.

DEATH WILL BE INFLECTED WHERE POSSIBLE UNDER THE LAW

Some of the captured machine guns were afterwards turned against the Germans. Tracks of Prussian troops mowed machine guns and one powerful cannon and made desperate efforts to break up machine gun battalions and flying their machine guns into the water.

From the Ourcq to the Marne the French have driven home vigorous thrusts which advanced their lines.

The gains scored by the Franco-American forces during the past two days were made on the most vital part of the battle front—along the Paris-Chateau Thierry road and to the north of this highway where the German line extends nearest to Paris.

The Americans advance is now reckoned at about two and one-half miles over a front of six miles and the attacks were delivered in the face of the most determined resistance.

All the allied countries are ringing with praise for the gallant American marines, who plunged into the battle with the valor of seasoned veterans.

The situation looked more favorable for the allies today than at any other time since the Germans began their drive on the Aisne-Marne field thirteen days ago.

The full on the Pierard and Flanders fronts continues. This was the eightieth day of the German grand offensive.

PARIS, June 8.—French and American troops have continued their advance on the Marne front, northwest of Chateau Thierry, meanwhile smashing German counter attacks and inflicting heavy loss upon the enemy, the French war office announced today.

A powerful counter thrust was launched in the Bouresches sector about three miles northwest of Chateau Thierry, but it was broken up by the allied fire.

The French have advanced south of the Ourcq, where the German line is in a violent cannonading has developed in the sector of the Aisne river.

PARIS, June 8.—A French liaison officer attached to the American forces today told of a German move toward the American position in the sector of Vesully wood (Marne front) which ended in disaster.

French troops, a slight retirement of the German tanks, a company and a half of German advanced to the southeastern corner of the wood. The German captured the position and then changed the enemy, whose strength was about one company and a platoon.

The French Germans were cut off and all of them were killed except 12 who were captured. Since the capture of the Americans unassisted have captured the machine gun.

The officer said that the Americans refused to wait to be attacked but while making the American shells holes with fixed bayonets and "No Man's Land."

Ernest P. Orr (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent) PARIS, June 8.—France's aviators have scored a little important success in Thursday's flying attack northwest of Chateau Thierry, striking long the Marne front.

The Buffalo men saw their positions were not moving in front. A German soldier tried to bayonet a raw boned Buffalo corporal in the front lines.

A Buffalo corporal is one of the bravest little groups of Americans who literally fought their way to the German command posts. The Americans inflicted the positions where German troops had taken place. They were captured, firing with open sights upon the attackers.

Red Cross Reports Of General Interest

Some of the Active Workers in the Red Cross Organization of This County Set Forth Needs and Accomplishments.

Mrs. W. F. Edwards, chairman of the Woman's Department of Military Relief, upon her return from Seattle where she attended the Red Cross Institute of the Northwest Division, submitted the following report to the Executive Board of the Twin Falls Branch:

There is a much more definite plan for work in the future than there has been in the past. The quota will be in the nature of emergency calls. General Pershing will advise the Red Cross at Washington what is needed. Washington will divide the work among the different divisions and they in turn will give out to the different chapters. We are asked to fill the quota and no more. At the front the soldiers have so many days in the trenches, that a certain time off duty. We are to follow out the same plan, if the quota given us takes only ten days each month, we have twenty left for other things.

The Red Cross is asked to deliver on September 1st, 100,000 refugee garments, including hosiery, and 50,000 hospital garments, including one pair of pajamas, hospital caps, bed socks and bed jackets. At any time a special emergency call may be received, then we are expected to lay aside all other work until the special call is answered.

In the past the refugee work has been neglected. Too much has been done for the soldiers themselves, in proportion to what has been done for their families. It has been found that especially the French and Belgians at the front are worried about their families, not knowing in many instances whether or not they have children, and if so, whether their efficiency is much reduced and they are low spirited. So by providing the things needed the Red Cross is not only performing its duty but furnishing good ammunition to the men. We are to be given definite quotas in the refugee work as well as in other work, and we are asked please not to send anything else. You have no idea of the strange unacceptible things that are sent. You have no doubt all heard such remarks as "If I was in the position they are, I would be glad to get anything." A garment will be made in the most slipshod manner with the same spirit in evidence. Then, if used those for my own baby, guess they are good enough for them." In this connection let us presume the conditions reversed. We are the refugees, France and Belgium with us and get us. The result is many thousands pairs of black elastic pianoforte for boys from seven to sixteen, and Holland with us and women shoes. Then we often use things for the sake of economy that we would not care to present to friends, and we are asked to consider these, French and Belgian refugees as friends, and to remember the sacrifices they have made and let the garments we send carry the message we wish it to. The gift of one proud nation to another.

In regard to materials, the quotas will not be sent out till the materials are in the warehouse from which to make them. We are asked to buy nothing more in the open market. Where chapters have a stock of materials on hand or in transit, the allotments will be made to include these materials. Seattle expects to carry a 90-day stock in advance of the quota. The Red Cross dollar will be on the same footing as the government dollar, arbitrary in France, do you not see? Who chapters have a stock of materials on hand or in transit, the allotments will be made to include these materials. Seattle expects to carry a 90-day stock in advance of the quota. Hail is H

When your crop is devastated and you did not carry hail insurance. What would you do about those obligations you have to meet if your crops were wiped out by hail?

You never before had so much invested in your crop and you never had such urgent demands on you for money. Where would you come from if you were halted out? Such a loss this year would mean financial ruin to many.

You can not afford to take the chances. Think it over and then come in and insure your wheat, beans, etc. before it is too late. Landlord or tenant can insure a share of crop and pay insurance only on the part insured.

Reading of Germany's advance, the ten or fifteen miles added to German territory in France, do you not see? "What are the allies doing, what is Foch's plan?"

Foch is a BASQUE, and comes of a race that for centuries has had bull fighting for its chief athletic study. He seems to be fighting the Prussian bull, as his Prussian ancestors fought and destroyed many a black bull in years gone by.

The bull fighter lets the bull make his rush and attack the slinky harrier in the flesh. The bull, tired, bleeding, rents and attacks again. Again the bull fighter watches him, waits for him, terrifies, and wounds him.

At last comes the final, fatal rush, when the sword of the MATADOR goes through into the bull's heart.

And that is the last of that particular bull.

In Foch's methods you see the bull-fighting tactics, and are justified in the hope that before long the crowd will applaud, and the dead bull be dragged out, bleeding, by the heels.

For further comfort remember this: Germany is on French soil.

And the allies have not set foot on German soil.

He is not CONQUERING FOREIGN TERRITORY. He is TRYING TO BREAK OUT OF PRISON.

He is shut in, shut away from freedom, from property, from supplies, from food.

This attack in the west is another effort to break out of jail.

And Foch, the bullfighting jester, is there to watch his direction, stab him as he comes out, give him plenty of room to run in, bleed, and at the moment GEM HIM.

KANSAS FARM HANDS TO GET 80 MICH PER HOUR

Hoys, Kan., June 8.—No more will the Kansas hired man be compelled to get up in the dark at 3:00 a. m., feed the horses, milk the cows, carry swill and do other farm chores before breakfast. Nor will he have to do the same chore after a twelve or fourteen-hour day in the field.

Western Kansas farmers, following a conference with E. E. Fritzell, state farm labor commissioner, have agreed they will pay by the hour instead of the day.

Eastern Kansas farmers have agreed to pay from thirty to fifty cents an hour for farm work.

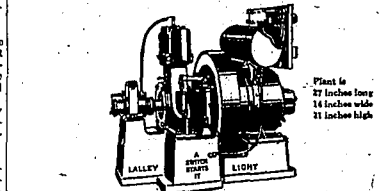

Butler newspaper headquarters is at the TIMES office, where they will be printed at any time, in their turn, in any other job.

Y. M. C. A. Leaders, in Session Today, Plan to Replace Saloons by Justly Famous Army Huts

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., June 8.—As substitutes for saloons, the establishing in industrial districts of modified Y. M. C. A. "huts," of the sort so popular in the war zone and cantined camps, was suggested today at the morning session of the conference of the Association of Employed Officers of the Young Men's Christian Association of North America.

The suggestion, which carried with it the possibility of retaining such saloon features as the lunch counter, tobacco, music, pool, billiards, news service, games and lavatories, was considered in the report offered by Charles H. Towson, of New York, chairman of the commission on "Un-occupied and Underdeveloped Opportunities Among Industrial Workers."

The report exhaustively explained the need of carrying the association program to the unprecedentedly great number of men now in the nation's industries and suggested that while these millions of workers might not be attracted to the ornate, large central association buildings, they could be reached by the invasion of industrial zones by the "huts" in competition to or as substitutes of saloons.

"If the social needs now provided for by the saloon are to be met," said Mr. Towson, "places must be opened that will afford former patrons of saloons more of the features that appealed to them in the saloon. To find out what these features are, experiments must be conducted.

"Such a substitute for the saloon should make possible some or all of the following: Democratic conditions, low costs, rooms, refreshments, billiards, adapted to the economic level of the men; recreation, billiards, bowling, etc.; creature comforts, sociability—congenial atmosphere, intellectual stimulus, freedom of discussion, employment features; the kind of contacts that will develop Christian character.

"Arrangements of the interior should be as appropriate as that of the usual saloon—checkers, pool, counters, newspapers, games, music, pool, billiards, lavatories. Possibly tobacco should be sold. The location should be determined by practically the same factors as enter into the location of a saloon or cigar store."

JEWISH FRATERNAL BODY REJOICES IN PROMINENT PART TAKEN IN STRUGGLE

BALTIMORE, Md., June 8.—Seven hundred delegates representing more than 55,000 Jews in 105 cities and 23 states will assemble here tomorrow on the occasion of the thirteenth annual convention of the Independent Order Brith Shalom, one of the leading and most influential Jewish fraternal orders in America. The convention, it is expected, will be of unusual importance.

A special feature of the convention will be the part taken by it in the war—being one of the youngest Jewish orders in America, it has a large percentage of men fit for military service. In this annual report, which will be presented to the delegates on Sunday, Mr. Martin O. Levy, grand secretary of the order, has the following to say on this point:

"It has always been our boast that we were successful in attracting the younger element among the Jews of America. Because that is true, our order has felt the brunt of this war more than any other. Our young men have displayed wondrous valor; their self-sacrifice will redound to the everlasting glory of the Independent Order Brith Shalom. By their very action they have inscribed their names in gold in the annals of our order. God grant they will come back to us as we have given them, but we may rejoice with them in the redemption of the world.

"Over a thousand of our finest and sons are today in the camps and at the battlefields. While we are here assembled to provide for the immediate future of the 12,500 members of the Independent Order Brith Shalom, they are fighting for a glorious future for all mankind. They contribute our honor and we have a right to be proud of them.

"Of course, they are exempt from all financial obligations. Wherever there is a case that requires special attention we are doing our utmost to render aid to those who are remaining at home.

"Our order has helped considerably in every step taken by the government to educate the people of America in the great problems confronting the world today. We have also done our share in raising funds to help conduct the war. Thus we have taken an active part in the sale of Liberty Bonds. Our lodges, as well as our members individually, have purchased liberally of these bonds. The same is also true of the war savings stamps. As some of you probably know, the office of the grand lodge has become a station for the sale of Thrift and War Savings stamps. Every day a great mass when we do not sell some of each.

"We have also helped in the general propaganda conducted by our government, as was demonstrated in the literature your lodge received through us relative to the food conservation and other matters of interest of the government."

Governor Harrington of Maryland, and Mayor Frost of Baltimore, and Congressman Charles P. Coakley will address the convention at the opening session Sunday morning. Addresses will also be given by a number of prominent Jews. An invocation has been extended to Lord Reading to address the delegates.

One of the features of the convention will be the "Golden Record," a large label showing that in the course of the war the Independent Order Brith Shalom has contributed $1,128,350, war savings and thrift stamps, $34,847.75. Thirty-three members and 324 wives have been in the service of the United States government. These are entitled to all the privileges and benefits that are free from all financial obligations.

BOY 68 PER CENT DAD ADMITS HIS LOVE FOR HIS MOTHER

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 8.—The search for the "worst boy" goes merrily on. They thought they had found him in Cleveland, but investigation proved that he was but sixty-eight per cent bad, so he was rejected.

Representatives of the Boys' Brotherhood Republic of Chicago are making a tour of the largest cities of the country in search of the worst boy in the United States. When they find him they are going to take him to Chicago and try to reform him.

After a couple of days' search in Cleveland, a boy, name not given, was brought in for examination. He is fifteen years old, associates with thieves, bets on prize fights, drinks whiskey, gambles, uses tobacco, plays pool, "hangs" and "grabs" and roams the streets at night, uses vice and obscene language, ran away from school, has been at the state's farm for boys, is a gang leader, has been arrested three times, was chased by policemen many times more, says Cleveland is a small "hell" and "London" of the mid-west, calls reform schools "pans" and can't talk two minutes in succession without swearing.

But he is sixty-nine per cent bad, for he admitted that he worked for three months at one time and confessed that he loved his mother and would write to her if he knew where to reach her. Still, with so many points against him from his record as the country's "worst boy," the judges for "badness" may prove that there is no 100 per cent bad boy, and that sixty-nine per cent is the limit.

Ordinarily when a paper does not appear on the street at its regularly appointed time, the publisher immediately rebores into print with an apology. This is not an ordinary report, which we and refuse to apologize.

Of course an explanation is due and that we will gladly give as follows:

To begin with the operator of the typesetting machine left town between trains and his classic form has not been seen since. Then the pressman became inquisitive as to what made the wheels go round and—found out (his finger will get heated in time). Then on paper after we had made all right trying to get ready, the power was cut off for a while which caused us unusual mental anguish. Still we kept our temper and the sound of the scriptures being taken in vain was heard in the office. But! Who? When we started up at last the rollers on the big press which were made for winter use, were unable to stand the sudden rise in temperature. The journal proceeded right joyously to melt and to percolate again, but thoroughly into the type forms. Here, kindly reader, let us draw the veil. We cannot print our thoughts upon seeing the abject rat.

We refuse to apologize. On the contrary we think we are lucky to get out a paper at all. Of course, we will try to get better but in the meantime we will say this much: that Job had a "catch."

LATER—Just as we had written the above epilogue, since pure Hedges rolled in another lick at us and the cylinder press rose on its hind legs and proceeded to smash. Fortunately we have good rollers. The journal form (may their shadows never grow) came to our assistance with a vengeance from men money and it is owing to their kindness that we are able to appear this issue. Our friends, we thank them and if we cannot pay them back on this cash we will say a good word for them to St. Peter—Somerset (Ky.) Semi-Weekly News.

Walt Johnson Has Field To Himself

Washington Chucker Greatest In Major Stars Alex Danned Klank of the United States.

By Jack Welock (N. S. Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, June 8.—Walter Johnson, the Washington wizard, is a boning among major league pitchers.

He stands out boldly and conspicuously among his brothers of the abiding fraternity on a baseball pitcher, pure and simple, and though there are a number of hurters in both American and National leagues against a world of class, Walter is supreme.

John Ruth, of the Red Sox, is just as valuable a man as Johnson. Some critics will argue that he is more valuable, but from a standpoint of pitching ability alone Johnson appears to have the call. The great Kansas is not a hitter like Ruth. He is not a pitcher who can grab a glove and run can, but as a past master in the art of pitching alone, Walter is the best.

Since the great Alex left the Cubs to don the khaki Walter has a rival in other league who quite measures up to his high standard as a pitcher of the slab. Alex was as great as Johnson during his active days in the majors, but Alex is gone.

A most vivid example of Johnson's greatness was established May 15 when he pitched and won an eight-inning game for Washington against the world's champion Chicago Sox, beating them by a count of 1 to 0, and helping to win the game by a long run that put a runner in position to score.

That game of ball will go down in baseball annals as one of the cleanest-kept and most perfect pastimes played in many a year, for there were only nine plays used by both teams during the eighteen innings and not a misplay was made by either side.

Considering the fact that Johnson has been pitching big league ball for eleven years—pitching in masterful and brilliant style and winning a big per cent of his games with a second division club, he had him—there is no good argument, as we see it, to offset any claims of superiority, that are made for him here.

CHILD LABOR LAW AND POWER OF SUPREME COURT

Representative Dillon of North Carolina, presumed a great deal on the ignorance of a bill yesterday when he introduced it last yesterday to limit the right of the supreme court to declare laws unconstitutional. That congress has power by any more enactment to so limit the right of the supreme court is absurd. If it has such authority, then it can with equal right enact a law that the supreme court shall be abolished and with it the office of president and the constitution of the United States.

The Times believes that something should be done to remedy the power exercised by the supreme court tribunal in declaring laws unconstitutional by a divided court, but such changes should themselves be made in a constitutional way: that is it should be changed by constitutional amendment.

The situation is this: A constitution was adopted by the people of the United States. It contained certain provisions among which were many intended to protect the rights of the people. All provisions were to stand until amended as provided very clearly in the document itself. The powers of congress were clearly defined. No suppose that congress should pass a law declaring the office of president abolished, and should by rushing the matter through by a two-thirds vote, carry the measure over the presidential veto, and should bring proceedings to oust the president in accordance with such allegations, what would happen? Clearly any measure contrary to the provisions of the constitution is not law, the power of congress to enact measures is limited by the terms of the constitution. When this measure, thus rushed through would come before the supreme court, it would say, what anybody else would say, that it would refuse to enforce it because congress had usurped power, and therefore, the supposed law was in fact no law at all. Now, any measure affecting the rights of the poorest citizen, is no law, if it violates the terms of the constitution.

Hence, the power to declare laws unconstitutional, that is to determine whether laws are in fact really laws, must lie in the courts, sworn to obey the constitution and to enforce the law. If they are trifling, enforce enactments that were passed in violation to the constitution, they are trying to enforce as laws, measures which are, in fact, violations of law.

It is true that Thomas Jefferson at one time protested against this right, and The Times believes that Thomas Jefferson was in many ways the greatest exponent of fundamental democracy that ever occupied the presidential chair. He is remembered at that time had no power was granted by implication, so that while this power logically lay in the court it did not legally lie in it. The whole trend of American ideas, not only in this case, but in all cases involving the same principle, have been away from the Jeffersonian conception.

Not in this, it was specifically pointed out by Jefferson, others at the time that the constitution was before the people for ratification, that congress and the president were curbed if they attempted to exercise unbridled power, by the fact that the courts would declare all arbitrary laws intended to oppress them to be invalid, because contrary to the constitution. So that the American people voted for the ratification of the constitution with the understanding that at the same time, the spectacle of courts setting aside laws by a mere majority vote after they have been enacted by congress and signed by the president is somewhat incongruous. The Times believes that where the court is unanimous its decision is invariably correct law, and it is inconceivable that nine eminent lawyers would unanimously misconstrue the meaning of a constitutional provision. But where the court is about evenly divided, there is grave doubt as to the meaning of the law evident on the face of the decision.

The Times believes that a constitutional amendment providing less than a three-fourth, or, as the court is now constituted, less than a seven-eighths of that body, congress should have the right to again pass the same law with the declaration that the minority opinion should be considered the real interpretation of the constitution. This would result in few violent departures. Had one of the judges changed his mind on the child labor law and voted for what is now the minority opinion, lawyers would not have been shocked at its bad reasoning. The Times does not question the honesty of the judges.

It was really a close question. The business of the court was to decide what the constitution provided, not what they might personally think it should have provided. What the majority voted for, before congress, the lawyers in that body were divided on whether it was constitutional or not. Still, there should be a little more latitude in cases of this kind. The income tax law passed in 1894, was based on a principle that had been sustained, by majority opinion of a divided court for a century. It had the support of an opinion of a divided court on the Civil War Income Tax. It was declared constitutional by a federal district court, and sustained by the decision of a supreme court divided four and four. On re-hearing when the justice who was absent at the first hearing returned, one of those who voted for the constitutionality of the law the first time, changed his mind, and while the previous majority voted to sustain the law, it was declared unconstitutional. Thereby the government lost millions and the old Wilson tariff law got the reputation of being a deficit producer, whereas those who enacted it had every right to assume that it would raise enough revenue with its income tax provision.

The Dillon bill is not, but a constitutional safety valve is needed.

forming a line of gleaming steel in the late afternoon sunshine. The roar of battle resounded around them with the machine guns and the shells bursting with continuous crashes.

Our left and center found it easier going than the machine on the right. The soldiers of the sea ran into a veritable wall of machine guns instead of the machine on the right. The soldiers were struck across a clearing in solid line side by side. Despite the rain of bullets the machine went on in waves of fire.

After hours of hard fighting the Germans were crushed. The morning paid the American wounded by the French was one of the most impressive features of the war, especially the tributes of the children who stood in quiet attention and gazed in the way their bodies had taught them. Girls and boys were seen in the ambulances. The drivers and patients looked as though they had been taken with fear, as if they were in the middle of a battle.

At the dusk, the ambulances in the form of long trains on the road. Paris, the train was converted into a triumphal procession. Every ambulance and every ambulance was filled with the cheer of the American wounded were borne through the streets with children lined the streets with cries of encouragement as they caught sight of bandaged heads and bare bloody shoulders. Even the girls in the middle of dusty, homelike trench coats sticking from the end of an ambulance were seen to cheer and strike the people.

U-Boats Still Inset the Atlantic Coast

Four to Six Believed Operating—Several Ships Report Sighting Them Since Last

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Despite various reassuring statements that the German submarines now operating off the Atlantic coast containing a very serious situation as regards the coast, it is to the present time they have succeeded in keeping well out of the way of the pursuing squadrons which have been combing the coast for them. And, although shots have been exchanged with them, it can be stated that possibly not a single one of the many u-boats craft has either been sunk or captured. Stories making this claim, widely circulated, are based on the ground of rumor which when traced to its source, fail to make good the assertion.

SHEDDING down all of the information that it is possible to obtain, it appears that there are four or six of the German submarines now operating off the coast. They are believed to have a base on some of the innumerable islands of the Azores, in the vicinity of the Gulf of Mexico, or in the vicinity of the West Indies where their reserve store of oils and fuel are hidden away in some of the islands. They are believed to be equipped with wireless so they can keep in touch with the American vessels which are making the same patrol that they are endeavoring to get the American transports is considered a certainty. Reports that a submarine chased an incoming liner for nearly half a day until the American vessel was destroyed by destroyers recently by American destroyers, the last night. Navy department officials withheld all information on this point. Coastwise and trans-Atlantic vessels now are taking the same precautions as they take on the other side, while in western Atlantic waters. Several instances in which large made eastern Atlantic ports during the last 24 hours, have reported the presence of submarines. By orders of the navy department, however, the reports are withheld.

Officials are not unduly alarmed. They worry significantly say that the German submarines are not so numerous as they are reported to be. They meet the menace, but that, because of the great amount of ground that must be covered in the hunt, and the fact that the submarines have the advantage that, if closely pressed, they can submerge, the chase must be a long and arduous one. It is believed that they are being taken eventually will result in the driving out of the submarines from American waters, and they believe that they will come and go for the period of the war and that constant vigilance will be necessary to control them.

President Moves to Prevent the Strike

Determined That War Work Shall Go on Without Interruption—R. E. Telegraphs With Union.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—President Wilson today moved to prevent the threatened strike of commercial telegraphers and hasten an adjustment of other pending labor difficulties by telegraphing the railroad strikers in several sections of the country. The president believes the situation one for immediate action was borne by the fact that he summoned Secretary of Labor William C. Brown to the White House for a Saturday conference. It is only upon urgent occasions that the president's appointment pad contains a Saturday entry.

It was learned today that the president has determined there shall be no interruption to war work and is prepared to take drastic action. It is understood that pressure is being brought to bear upon New York Carlton, head of the Western Union, whose refusal to recognize the jurisdiction of the labor board, has caused the crisis, to give ground, and Carlton may be summoned to the White House. Secretary Tammity was busy all day yesterday in collecting references to existing labor troubles, and as a result a mass of information was laid before the president. This was given over to the labor board, which went into conference with the labor secretary. It was expected in some quarters that a formal proposal in which the president would call upon labor and capital to abide by the provisions of the labor law, as a national war labor board, might follow the conference.

CHICAGO, June 8.—Representatives of the railroad telegraphers of whom there are 30,000, will be in Chicago today to confer with the president. Telegraphers in event the strike which is pending, is called. E. J. Thomas, chairman of a railroad operators' committee, conferring with E. J. Conkcamp, of the commercial men, said that they themselves have grievances against the telegraph companies. He promised that while continuing work for the railroads, operators will do nothing for the commercial companies, provided the strike occurs.

Mrs. Ida M. Booth, who has been making her home with her sister, Mrs. F. C. Babo, left this morning for Los Angeles to spend several weeks with relatives and friends.

METHODIST NOTES

We will have with us on Sunday at both services, Dr. J. D. Gillilan, district superintendent of Boise district. Dr. Gillilan is an old timer in Methodism in the Northwest, having been a missionary in Utah in the early days. Since then he has been in the States to coast Oregon and Idaho making the trail for many a Methodist preacher and organizer. Dr. Gillilan is a deep thinker and a good speaker. Do not fail to hear him Sunday evening on "Why America is at War." He is also a writer of short stories and poems, and the brother of Strickland Gillilan the noted humorist and writer.

Children's Day program last Sunday was considered very fine by all

The children's day program last Sunday was considered very fine by all who were present. The credit is to be given to the persons who so faithfully drilled the young people in their respective parts. Mrs. Dearyhart charged of the entire program and was assisted by Mrs. Wm. Baker, Mrs. F. C. Babo, Mrs. Aldrich and Miss Vera Fickett. The choir, under the direction of Mr. Rudolph had red of the music.

Thursday was Red Cross day at the church and fourteen ladies arrived at the church bright and early with their hands and their fingers were to be seen with needles. After lunch they were joined by about sixteen others and an enjoyable afternoon was spent on the following garments, which were completed: 3 tape strait, 5 bed jackets, 4 convalescence robes, 25 bed covers, 20 wash cloths, Mrs. E. Smith, our able and efficient chair woman, plans that we will meet every first and third Thursday of the month.

Last Sunday evening the new E. W. Smith officers were installed and by the way they are making plans for the new year there should be a large increase in membership and general logo activities.

The new president, Mr. Rudolph, and his assistants have passed several letters to our members in the last week. We shall miss our boys who have gone "over there" but we need you and believe you need us.

A choir picture on Tuesday evening was an enjoyable affair and a hour was spent practicing the new cantata under the direction of the best teacher here. If you sing come and join the choir.

Edmunds Explains Function of Muffler

"What is the purpose of the muffler, what cars does it require, and to what troubles is it subject, are questions that our service department is obliged to answer very frequently," added Sales Manager Edmunds of the Overland automobile company, local Willys-Overland distributors the other day. "For the information of motorists in general," continued Edmunds, "the purpose of the muffler is to diminish the noise of the exhaust. The gas escapes from the exhaust valve at high pressure and strikes the car with disagreeable force unless muffled. It is necessary to reduce the pressure from each explosion and to allow the gas to escape, so that a great deal of it force is dissipated. The gas then passes out quietly with only a slight pulsation, or throbbing. This is done in a simple manner. A gas passing along an ordinary pipe will slow down and spread out. But this arrangement would require too long a pipe. So baffles are used to make the gas turn corners and force its way through small holes in the plates. "Or else, as in Willys-Overland cars, the gas enters a series of expansion chambers. All this time it is losing heat and so contracting. This slows down more and more, leaving the muffler in a steady, quiet manner. "The muffler does its work without attention. The only time to think of it is when you want to listen to it, if the engine is making explosion. Then cut out the muffler and stand to the sound of the exhaust. "If the sound of the exhaust is not sufficiently loud, it may be increased by retarding the spark and opening the throttle a bit. The sound of each cylinder will then be brought out and any weakness will be noted immediately. "Sometimes the muffler becomes clogged with soot. This may be due to too rich mixture from the carburetor, and will be indicated by a black smoke from the exhaust. Or it may be caused by oil working up on top of the piston, giving the black-white smoke characteristic of too much lubricant. "Sometimes carbon that is scraped from the cylinders falls on the piston and is carried into the muffler. "To clean the muffler, take it apart and remove all the carbon deposits. If the small holes are clogged with soot, they should be reamed out with a three-cornered file or bearing scraper. "It is easy to tell if the muffler is clogged. Run the machine up a fairly steep hill. If the car does not make the cut-out open the muffler is clogged. "A muffler should not cut down the power of the engine more than 10 per cent. This difference will hardly be noticeable on an ordinary hill. So the fact that the car slows down would indicate back pressure due to clogging."

Bought and Sold on Their Reputation
Haynes cars are bought on reputation. J. H. Weaver, Haynes dealer at Charlestown, W. Va., has the prospect of 14 extra sales, all made in two days, recently before even his demonstrating car had arrived. "The total for the week was nine sales," said one of the buyers had an opportunity to see or ride in the car before purchasing. "And just to clinch his point," Mr.

GERMANY TRIED TO CORRUPT U. S. BY MAKING TREATIES
WASHINGTON, June 7—How Germany attempted to corrupt the United States government into surrendering territory by army, navy, and air force officers, was revealed by the state department late this afternoon. In the attempt, Berlin practically threatened to execute an American officer, Brigadier Paul Lonson, condemned to death after his arrest at Warsaw, but whose sentence

22 Cadillac Cars Used At One Movie Studio

Motor cars long have been an important part of the equipment of motion picture production studios, and of the individual film-folk; but as a rule, the cars in use at studios sometimes represent a dozen different makes. The exact opposite of this is true at the Hollywood (Cal.) studio of the Famous Players-Lasky company, where twenty-two Cadillacs are owned by the company and various executives and stars.

"Motion picture people have an excellent opportunity, in their daily work, to observe the actual performance of cars other than their own. Their trips to locations where scenes are filmed are frequently hours, and they always see how their own cars and the others behave. The fact that so many Cadillacs have been put into service at the greatest studios, both by the company and the players themselves, is a testimonial to the car's efficiency in the exacting and continuous service demanded."

The latest Cadillac added to the fleet at Hollywood is a sage green imperial limousine for Cecil B. De Mille, the producer. Other Cadillac owners at the same studio include Mary Pickford, Jack Holt, Allan Dawn, John Fairbanks, Sessue Hayakawa, Julia Ellingo, Jack Pickford and James Young.

The Cadillac has a vogue among motion picture people in other quarters, as evidenced by the fact that a list of owners includes Edna Mayo, Olga Petrova, Dorothy Kelly, Edna Brown, June Elvidge, Emily Wehlen, Earl Williams, Henry B. Walthall, Clara Kimball Fisk, Sessue Hayakawa, Mrs. H. L. Hunt, Robert Florey, Mrs. Florence, Blanche Lasky, Donald Crisp, Mrs. D. W. Griffith, Robert North and the Gessany Film company.

Uncle Sam's Dollars Swatted the Kaiser

The men and women employees of Nordyke & Marmion company, who very evidently two fisted patriots who believe in the long strong arm of Uncle Sam's dollar. Not content with subscribing $25,000 to the third Liberty Loan, they turned right around and swatted the kaiser on the other cheek by contributing $50,000 to the Indiana Liberty War Chest which supports the Red Cross and other war charities. As the Nordyke & Marmion Company itself has contributed $25,000 to the war chest, the total contribution of the plant is well over $100,000 or something like $250,000 for every man and woman employed under the Nordyke & Marmion banner.

In the three Liberty Loan campaigns the employees of the company have subscribed to $425,000 worth of Liberty Bonds to attest their faith in America and their desire to speed the war and the final overruling defeat of the Hun. In the first Liberty Loan Drive, the number of employees of the company was but 2100, while there are now more than 3000 names on the roll.

Certainly it is that such subscribing to national loans and such giving to the Red Cross and other war charities, shows there is no lacking in the men and women of the plant. Such deeds will cause thoughtful writers to return to the custom of our fathers. We can no longer refer to the "heads of a plant" but must return the fine old Yankee reverence for the Queen's English and for men and women which made our forefathers habitually speak of the number of "souls engaged in an enterprise."

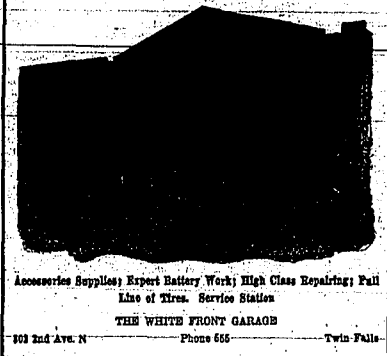

OLDS MOTOR WORKS

"Judging by the present trend of conditions," J. H. Emerson, sales manager of the Olds Motor Works, "is based on a pretty careful study of conditions here and there, we have had the opportunity to make practically every large distributing center in the country."

"Of course our railroads suffered severe setbacks during the terrific winter. But though they are now able to greatly increase their carrying capacity, this is largely offset by the movement of war materials which are being completed in steadily increasing numbers."

"How very fortunate it is that automobiles can be delivered to their destinations under their own power. For if it were not for the daily drive, there would be mighty few new cars put into use this season."

As a result of the mass meeting called by the Greater Twin Falls club to discuss ways and means for the coming 4th of July celebration, the celebration was planned under the direction of the following committee: each person named is chairman and will pick his own helpers: General chairman, L. T. Wright; publicity, Stuart H. Taylor; streets and concessions, J. J. Hahn; entertainers, W. V. Fricke; races, E. M. Sweetley; parade and decorations, C. E. Munson; speakers, E. A. Walters; finance, C. J. Hahn; entertainers and rest rooms, F. M. Kendall; purchasing agent, V. H. Ormsdell; fireworks, James McMillan.

These chairmen with a man from each Red Cross auxiliary and chapter in Twin Falls county constitute the executive committee of the celebration.

Chairman Taylor, of the publicity committee, said today:

"The sum of twenty-five hundred dollars was appropriated for the expenses of the day and it is planned to make this fourth of July the biggest and best fourth ever pulled off in southern Idaho. It is a county celebration and every man, woman and child here receives a personal invitation from the committee to be here and enjoy themselves with us."

"All concessions, dances and stands are to be operated under the direction of the Twin Falls county chapter of the Red Cross and all proceeds from everything connected with the celebration will be turned over to the chapter. Each auxiliary in Twin Falls county is invited to be represented by booth, stand, dinner, or other feature in the celebration and a place is being reserved for their particular features."

"The usual high class celebration given here before consisting of fireworks, games, races, band concerts together with lots of fun and good attractions will be in order and Twin Falls is ready to entertain the biggest crowd in the history."

"A big Red Cross auction and other features to get money for this most worthy cause will be in order and anyone having anything to donate should get it ready and turn it to the committee which will be announced later.

"The almost co-operation of every citizen is asked for in this celebration and when asked to contribute either time or money to help make this celebration the biggest, thing ever, think of the worthiness of the cause and be as liberal as you possibly can. The Red Cross needs the money."
