NEW FRONT DRIVE IN CENTER

PRUSSIANISM IS DOOMED TO DIE

FALSE CONCEPTIONS AND INTOLERABLE OBEDIENTIES MUST GO.

Conflict Must End With Democratic Victory

Great War Must End In Decision That Will be a Blessing to Mankind

Prussianism with its distorted ideas, its false conceptions and its intolerable obedienties must be brought to an end.

Our war aims as stated by President Wilson must be attained. There is no other way for peace.

The secretary of state dealt at some length with the elements of Prussianism which made the war inevitable.

Prussianism, characterized with modern materialism and a degenerate type of Christianity, broods today over Germany.

"So, if the German government, as it is now constituted, should succeed to extend its efforts and expansion."

"This great war must end with a decision which will be a blessing to man."

"Let us, as loyal citizens of the republic, serve in this mighty endeavor."

Kansas Men Will Protect Their Grains From Ravages of Pro-German I. W. W. Fire Bands.

Two companies of Kansas men, who can shoot straight, have been formed in Elk county, Kansas.

Although organized like old-fashioned vigilantes, the men have been commissioned as deputy sheriffs.

The subject of the address was "Democracy and Old Fellowship."

The address was followed by a solo by Mrs. F. M. Bell, a prayer by Rev. A. J. Adams.

Eighteen Vessels Now Credited to U-Boats

Plnar Del Rio Bank Off North Carolina Coast Last Evening—Crews Released.

An ATLANTIC PORT, June 10.—Captain McKenzie of the Plnar Del Rio, the latest victim in American waters of the German boats launched today with sixteen numbers of his crew.

The United Fruit freighter "Fruit" picked them up at sea. Fears had been felt for the safety of the crew of the Plnar Del Rio and the rest of the crew were landed at the Marine life station on the North Carolina coast yesterday.

In District Court Sentences Given

For Treason and A. L. Huber—Both Received Sentences—The Fred Cox Trial Resumed.

In the district court at 9:30 this morning, in accordance with an appointment on Saturday, the two men above named, one of whom was convicted by a jury—the other pleading guilty just before the jury panel was completed, appeared before the honor, Judge W. A. Babcock, for sentence.

The first man is Frederick J. Ira Fredwell, appeared to be quite a young man, and stood before the bar of the court with bowed head. Accounting for the details of the case and his trial, including the jury's finding of guilty, the judge announced the sentence of the court to be confinement in the penitentiary for not less than one nor more than fourteen years. In conformity to the "indeterminate sentence" laws of this state, this sentence probably means that, with good behavior, the confinement will last but one year.

The second man is Fred Cox, who was charged with the murder of the late Senator A. L. Huber, after the same preliminary results of explanation, and after eliciting from the defendant that he had already been in prison for a number of years, the court sentenced to imprisonment in the county jail for three months. The court then resumed the trial of Fred J. Cox, who is under indictment for theft of an auto alleged to have been the property of E. B. Hencke. An indictment in this case was returned by the grand jury on Saturday, and the trial was held on Monday.

House Committee Is Investigating Profits

Thinks That Estimates of Excess Is Too High Owing to Price Fixing by the U. S.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The ways and means committee of the house started today to find the excess profits made during the first year of the war in the purchase of war taxation in the new treasury bill.

Members of the committee were yesterday concerned by the testimony of the late Senator A. L. Huber, which was given in the senatorial session, that the excess profits of the first 12 months of the war had been greatly exaggerated in the preliminary reports.

SLIGHT ADVANCE OVER RUSH OF WESTERDAY MADE BY BOCHES

Allied Wings Hold Firm And New Dent In Line Is Insignificant—Seventeen Divisions In The Offensive—Compiegne Seems Immediate Objective—American Positions at Montdidier Shelled—Yankee Boys and French Drive Back Germans at Brassieres and Capture 250 Prisoners—Huns Fail In Assault on U. S. Lines Near Chateau Thierry.

(By Frank Charlton, I. N. S. Cable Editor)

That the latest German drive between Montdidier and Noyon (where the Picardy and the Aisne-Marne battle fronts link up) was ended as a real offensive, instead of a diversion, was made virtually certain by the continuation of the heavy German assaults all along the twenty-one-mile battle line during the night.

In the violent fighting which raged on both flanks and in the center, the Germans were able to advance about a mile at one point by using masses of reinforcements. This insignificant gain was made on the center at the cost of heavy losses. Both allied wings held firm.

In the center at the cost of heavy losses. Both allied wings held firm. In fact, as now indicated, the Germans planned a grand scale drive down the Oise river, it is fourth to be launched since the Germans launched their first offensive against Amiens on March 21.

It appears from the developments of the past 36 hours that the chief local objective of the Germans is Compiegne, which is now less than ten miles from the zone of battle.

Compiegne is a town of high strategic value on account of lines of communication (railway and highways) which converge there. The city lies at the junction of the Oise and Aisne rivers and is 45 miles from Paris.

The German crown prince has employed enormous forces since he opened his latest drive on Sunday morning. It was estimated that more than 17 divisions (approximately 205,000 men) have been thrown into the battle.

Without using any of his reserves, General Foch's troops have been able to stem the German rush and last night it was held practically at a standstill.

In the initial stages of the new battle the Germans were able to extend their lines from two to four miles, but as the Germans continued their pressure they found allied resistance getting stiffer and stiffer.

The strategy which prompted German attacks in a new theatre, in their efforts to break through toward Paris, evidently arose from a desire to widen the base of the German salient, to flatten the bulge in the French front between the Picardy and Aisne-Marne fighting zones and to shorten the German line between Montdidier and Chateau Thierry.

The Germans succeeded in penetrating Reims-sur-Matz between nine and ten miles northwest of Compiegne. Reims-sur-Matz lies on the Matz river and a railway line.

Compiegne, towards which the Germans are trying to advance down the Oise river, is one of the most historic towns in France, but is badly marked by the scars of battle. It was overrun by the Germans in 1914, but after the retreat from the Marne the French made it their main base. It contains the cathedral of St. Cornille, the burial place of the early kings of France and the French court often set there in the olden days. It was in Compiegne that the British captured Joan of Arc.

In their preliminary bombardment to yesterday's attack, the Germans heavily shelled American positions around Montdidier, but no infantry attacks developed.

On the Marne front the Americans, attacking with the French northwest of Chateau Thierry, have extended their gains, taking some prisoners. The hill in the Picardy and Flanders countries.

PARIS, June 10.—Assaults in the new German drive between Noyon and Montdidier have continued with great violence, the war office announced today. On the Marne front, French and American troops have gained further ground in the sector of Brassieres, taking some prisoners.

In the Franco-American operations around Brassieres, 250 German prisoners were taken.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Again the Germans have failed to dent the American line northwest of Chateau Thierry, said General Pershing in today's communique, the enemy made a fresh attack in the vicinity of Brassieres but the thrust was completely broken down with severe losses to the attackers.

PARIS, June 10.—The latest German drive between Montdidier and Noyon, where the Germans pressed forward at some places a distance of two and one-half miles and to a great depth at one point, found the French fully prepared.

Question Baker About Gen. Wood

Secretary of War Says Final Disposition of Case Is Yet Undetermined

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Confronted by a demand for an explanation of the removal of General Leonard Wood from his post as commander in chief of the army, Secretary of War Baker this afternoon insisted to the senate military affairs committee that there had been no final disposition of the Wood case.

Secretary Baker was questioned closely by the committee in an effort to learn the facts about General Wood. Members said after the meeting that in some cases the Secretary had been asked to express his opinion and that in reply to other questions he furnished little new light on the subject.

General Wood, the secretary said, had been removed from command in an entirely proper manner. He departed from the post as a result of the result of prejudice or feeling against General Wood. It had been done because it was considered the right thing to do from a military point of view, he said. Just where General Wood would be next assigned had not been finally determined, he continued.

Mr. Baker was cloaked with the committee for two hours. He spent most of the time in answering questions of the $12,000,000 army bill now awaiting action by the senate.

Teeming with Patriotism and Persistent Demand That Autocracy Be Throttled. A. F. of L. Report is presented to Main Body Today

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 10.—"Autocracy, militarism and its most dangerous supporting weapon, irresponsible diplomacy, must perish," are the burning patriotic words which are the every page of the report of the American Federation of Labor executive council submitted to the officers and delegates at the thirty-third annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, in session here today.

"There can be no question as to the final outcome of the struggle that the report contains. Democracy, justice, freedom and absolute confidence between government and people must be established and triumph. There is no doubt but out of the present war, the morals and conduct of the governments of the world must be upon a higher moral plane, and that this fact will make toward the establishment and maintenance of international relations which shall safeguard the peoples of the world in the enjoyment of a much-desired permanent peace."

The report devotes considerable space to the discussion of peace terms, saying, in part:

"Since the beginning of the present European war the American Federation of Labor at each convention has adopted resolutions dealing with the peace which shall influence the present war. It is fitting at the present time to gather the various principles that have been declared by our conventions into one comprehensive statement representing the peace demands of American labor.

At the Philadelphia (1914) convention a resolution was adopted which proposed a World Labor congress to be held at the same time and place as the peace congress that would formulate the peace treaty closing the war.

We reported to the San Francisco (1916) convention a comprehensive plan for the convocation of such a world labor congress, which was approved. This plan was transmitted to the labor movements of all countries. Replies were received from many concurring in the suggestion. However, Earl Ligon, president of the Federation of Trade Unions of Germany, wrote that in his judgment such a movement would be of doubtful practicability, and the British labor movement withheld endorsement.

For these reasons the Baltimore (1916) convention adopted as a supplement to the first proposition that the labor movements of the various countries should "privatize" upon their national governments to include representatives of labor in the national delegation which would participate in the world peace congress."

These demands are in accord with the fundamental principles of democracy which are the basic issues involved in the war. The labor movement holds that the government should be the agency by which the will of the people is expressed, rather than the agency for controlling them.

The war is requiring tremendous sacrifices of all the people. Because of their response in defense of the principles of freedom, the people have earned the right to wipe out all vestiges of the old idea that the government belongs to or constitutes a "governing class."

In determining issues that will vitally affect the lives and welfare of millions of people, justice requires that they should have direct representation in the agency authorized to make such decisions.

The Buffalo (1917) convention declared that the following essentially fundamental principles must underlie any peace treaty acceptable to them:

1. A league of the free peoples of the world in a common covenant for justice and therefore peace in relations between nations.
2. No political or economic restrictions meant to benefit some nations and to cripple or embarrass others.
3. No indemnities or reprisals based upon vindictive purposes or deliberate desire to injure, but to right manifest wrongs.
4. Recognition of the rights of small nations and of the principle, "No people must be forced under sovereignty under which it does not wish to live."
5. No territorial changes or adjustment of power, except in furtherance of the welfare of the people affected and in furtherance of world peace.

In addition to these basic principles which are based upon declarations of our president of these United States, there should be incorporated in the treaty that shall constitute the basis of nations in the new world conditions into which we enter at the close of the war the following declarations, fundamental in their importance to all nations and of vital importance to wage-earners:

1. No article or commodity shall be shipped or delivered in international commerce in the production of which children under the age of sixteen have been employed or permitted to work.

2. It shall be declared that the basic workday in industry and commerce shall not exceed eight hours.

3. Involuntary servitude shall not exist except as a punishment for crime, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted.

4. Establishment of trial by jury relative to war labor policy, in which emphasis is made on the determination of labor to assist in every way toward winning the war, in lieu of the establishment of agencies and policies for the general field of production of munitions and war supplies for which the following agencies have been provided:

- (a) A satisfactory system of labor arbitration.
 - (b) A satisfactory method and administration of training of workers.
 - (c) An agency for determining priorities of labor demands.
 - (d) Agencies for dilution of skilled labor as and when needed.
- (1) Machinery which will provide for the immediate and equitable adjustment of disputes in accordance with principles to be agreed upon between labor and capital and without stoppage of work. Such machinery would deal with demands concerning wages, hours, shop conditions, etc.
2. Machinery for safeguarding conditions of labor in the production of war essentials. This is to include industrial hygiene, safety, women and child labor, etc.
4. Machinery for safeguarding conditions of living, including housing, transportation, etc.
5. Fact-gathering body to assemble and present data, collected through various existing governmental agencies or by independent research, to furnish the information necessary for effective executive action.

Information and educational division which has the functions of developing sound public sentiment, securing an exchange of information between departments of labor administration and promotion in industrial plants of local machinery helpful in carrying out the national labor program.

Relative to the right to organize, the following appears:

"Labor organizations have furnished the machinery that has made it possible to mobilize the labor power of this country. The government has entered into contracts and agreements with labor organizations as the responsible representatives of workers to recognize the right of workers to belong to the organizations of their trade, subject to the following conditions:

The director general of railroads issued on February 21, 1918, order No. 8, which contained the following section: "No discrimination will be made in the employment, retention or condition of employment of employees because of membership or non-membership in labor organizations." This order has made it possible for the employees of the great transportation system of this country to unite for mutual benefit and for the better advancement of work.

The war labor conference held at St. Paul, Minn., on June 10, 1918, recognized the right of workers to physical safety, for his health and comfort while at work. Every worker or has the right to compensation for physical injury or disease occasioned in the course of production. Every worker who has been injured or disabled in industry has the additional right to opportunities for rehabilitation in order that he may receive the necessary assistance or training to enable him to be self-sustaining.

Detention for wage-earners under all circumstances depends upon the order they exercise through economic organization. Control belongs with responsibility. The right of workers to a share in the results of increasing production which makes possible their advancement and reproduction under proper conditions, means greater interest in increasing output.

The executive council believes that in all large permanent shops, a regular arrangement should be provided whereby:

There should be no strikes or lock outs during the war.

1. The right of workers to organize in labor unions and to bargain collectively, through chosen representatives, is recognized and affirmed. This right shall not be denied, altered or interfered with by the employers in any manner whatsoever.

2. The right of employers to organize in associations of groups and to bargain collectively, through chosen representatives, is recognized and affirmed. This right shall not be denied, altered in any manner whatsoever.

Special mention is made of the protection of the workers during the war, with time and one-half for overtime, for all the industries in the country. The same to be issued as a war labor order which is a part of the "Constructive Demands" it is set out that "the following fundamentals must be the basis for all just labor policies:

Those contributing to production should have a part in its control.

As a war labor order which is advantageous to industry has an equal if not greater value to workers—to them it means continuous employment, a stable income.

Every worker has a right to be freed from all avoidable uncertainties of employment from those arising through poor labor administration and mismanagement in production. The effects of expansion in raw materials or finished production of The American Federation of Labor consistently stood for justice to the unskilled or less skilled. We have maintained that there are no workers, whether unskilled or skilled, who are wage-earners in our day, only those that are called unskilled or common laborers are the backbone of industry. Low wages, standards and conditions prevail among these workers without injury to all. We maintain, therefore, that effort must be made to organize these and all workers so that there may be established machinery for self-betterment and that workers may take their rightful place in determining questions of life and death. Every worker has a full right to a just portion of the wealth which he helps to create. A full right to earn out of his toil an opportunity for his children equal with that of any citizen, a full right that every just employer shall be afforded him for his physical safety, for his health and comfort while at work. Every worker or has the right to compensation for physical injury or disease occasioned in the course of production. Every worker who has been injured or disabled in industry has the additional right to opportunities for rehabilitation in order that he may receive the necessary assistance or training to enable him to be self-sustaining.

Detention for wage-earners under all circumstances depends upon the order they exercise through economic organization. Control belongs with responsibility. The right of workers to a share in the results of increasing production which makes possible their advancement and reproduction under proper conditions, means greater interest in increasing output.

The executive council believes that in all large permanent shops, a regular arrangement should be provided whereby:

First, a committee of the workers would regularly meet with the shop management to confer over matters of production; and whereby:

Second, such committee could carry beyond the foreman and the superin-

dependent to the general manager or to the president, any important grievance which the workers may have with reference to wages, hours and conditions. There is no other way to bring about co-operation for production except by organization of workers. Organization is the orderly system for dealing with questions which concern labor in order that decisions and adjustments may be reached that further the best interests of all concerned. Employers and workers must talk over matters of mutual interests and reach understandings. In present large scale industry this can be done only by use of the representative system, or what is commonly called collective bargaining, which is the foundation of all effective, just labor administration.

Stress also is placed on health insurance, universal association and in the Laredo section is the smallest in many years past. Early in the season the prospects were good for a heavy yield and it was calculated that labor movement faces the difficult problem of the future with an organization numerically stronger and more effectively united than ever before. During the past months the trade union movement has carried for itself a recognition and a value more adequate than that ever previously achieved. It has stood the most difficult tests and demonstrated that it is an indispensable part of the organization for production, and therefore an integral part of organization of industry.

Because it is an agency that promotes efficiency and is indispensable to the quickest and most effective production of war materials, it is fortunate that the coming months will bring great opportunities and increasing advantage to those organizations in order that the workers may be in a position to deal wisely with the difficult problems of the reconstruction period that will follow the war, and thus to establish permanently higher standards of life and work.

The work of the thrip represents a loss of approximately $700,000 to the onion growers of the state of the state.

Y. M. C. A. PLANS TO ASSIST RETURNING SOLDIERS

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., June 10.—How to aid the returning soldiers, whether bodied or maimed, to adjust themselves to civil life was considered constructively today at the conference of the association of "Employed-Officers of the Young Men's Christian Association of North America."
 The recommendations were embodied in the report of a committee headed by George C. Hubert, of Hartford, Conn., on the subject "Untrapped and Unexplored Opportunities Among the Membership."
 "The educational department and the association schools of the larger association will have the greatest opportunity in his history in helping the returned soldiers, through the vocational courses which they offer, to adjust themselves to civil life," declared Mr. Hubert.
 "Many of the boys who return will be maimed for life—some without limbs, some blind, some minus one or both arms. Special courses should be planned now by the association to train these men in some kind of work that they can do so that they will be able to make a living when they return. Special courses like telegraphy and scientific welding and others will be a godsend to those men."
 "Will the association be ready to do this work in every community? The Y. M. C. A. will be the first place that the returned soldier will look for such help and he will be disappointed if the Y. M. C. A. is not ready to provide it. Then he will look elsewhere."
 "Today the man who does not serve is branded a slacker," said Mr. Hubert, speaking on the national spirit of service. "Never in recent generations has so large a proportion of the men

In our communities been so profoundly moved with a desire to render aid to their own despite the war.
 The message confronting the Young Men's Christian Association today is to guide and advise so that it will function in Christian altruistic service."

RACING HOLDS OWN ON EASTERN TRACKS

Jack Yelock, (I. N. S. Sports Editor.)
 NEW YORK, June 10.—Racing is holding its own despite the war.
 Racing is a sport that furnishes its patrons with a constantly changing scene. Racing is run according to schedule, but race meetings seldom continue at one track longer than thirty days, while most meeters are shorted, and each day brings forth new thrills.
 Followers of the bangtails and the harness horses as well as kept interested because of the ever changing schedule that appears before them. The real "bugs" buy the posties or their favorite harness teams. Sometimes very often, in fact—favorites are beaten, and the element of chance connected with the game appeals to a great many people.
 On the turf the posties go to the harness, then over the course and the race is over. The arena is cleared for another race. Every great race which has come to be a fixture, such as the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness or the Belmont Stakes, is a powerful drawing card, and the system of handicapping gives every entry a chance.
 In the harness tracks of the Grand Circuit the same changing of scenery and of shifting moods to various parts of the country keep interest red hot throughout the summer season.
 In this respect racing is vastly different when compared to baseball. The national pastime has many more followers and it undoubtedly more popular, but it hasn't the same character that racing enjoys in these perilous times. A second division club is a poor drawing card on the road. At home the losing club enjoys only half-hearted support and visiting clubs find patronage uncertain.
 It takes a long summer to decide a pennant race, where in racing it is only a matter of minutes and seconds.

 A feature of the stop here was breakfast, served by 200 of the prettiest girls in Texas and Arkansas. The table at which the guests were seated was so placed that half the guests were in Arkansas and, the other half in Texas.

Rubber Capitol Is Akron, Ohio

With the incorporation of the Firestone Steel Products company, Firestone-Tire, Akron, Ohio, the rubber capital of the world also appears in the public eye as a steel manufacturing center of great importance to the automobile industry.
 The new company of which Mr. H. B. Firestone, its founder, has been elected president, comes into existence as the largest producer of demountable rims in the world. It has absorbed completely the interests of the Firestone Rim Plant which alone did a $4,000,000 business last year supplying demountable rims to 132 car manufacturers out of a possible 134 car making to 50 per cent of the solid truck tire rims used in America.
 Men closely associated with the development of the demountable rim in America regard the formation of the new company as the result of Mr. Firestone's leadership, beginning in the pioneer days of rim manufacture and continuing through his successful exposure of the Firestone Rim Patent. Proud before Judge Hand in the United States District court in New York in June, 1911.
 Telegrams and letters of congratulations to Mr. Firestone from the leaders in the automobile world at first, and now from the world at large, were the result of his success in securing the patent.
 Way back in the early days of tire making, the road had been recognized by Mr. Firestone. The first American demountable rim to attract public attention was the Firestone rim appearing on the winning car in an automobile race at Palm Springs, Philadelphia, in the fall of 1907. This was a wedge-on type of rim that established the wedge-on principle which underlies the construction of the modern Firestone rim.
 Before demountable rims were generally adopted, however, much missionary work was done by the Firestone organization in stirring up interest on the subject, both among the public and the automobile trade in general. What it was even at that time, the demountable rim would become a big factor in popularizing the automobile, thus lending an added impetus to the growth of the motor car industry. There was a veritable stampede on the part of car manufacturers for demountable rims.
 This popular demand may be said to have started during the years 1911 and 1912. Though first appearing on the most expensive cars, demountable rims soon became regular equipment on cars of lower price.
 The stock in the new company is held for the Firestone Tire & Rubber company with the exception of the directors' qualifying shares. The stockholders of the tire company will therefore have from the growth of the newly formed steel products company.
 The officers of the new company are the same as those of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company, with the exception of J. G. Swain, who becomes vice president and factory manager. A full list of the officers follows:
 H. B. Firestone, president.
 R. E. Firestone, vice president.
 J. G. Swain, vice president and factory manager.
 S. C. Carlsbad, secretary.
 J. G. Robertson, treasurer.
 Mr. Firestone states that in addition to the further development of the standard Firestone-Tire & Rubber company is expanding its business to include the manufacture of other metal accessories for automobile tires and wheels.

WASHINGTON EAGLES CHANGE AERIE MEET TO ASSIST FEDERAL WORK

SEATTLE, Wash., June 10.—Seattle Aerio No. 1 is host today to visiting delegates to the thirteenth annual convention of the Washington Eagles. Members of the order and their families from many parts of the state are here to attend the meetings. Because many local members of the order are employed in the shipyards here and so to be unable to leave their work to go to Aberdeen, Wash., the convention has been changed to Seattle, after plans had been made for holding it at Aberdeen.
 The lodge decided that to take members away from the shipyards would retard work and that time and money that would be spent by Eagles making the trip to Aberdeen should be conserved and used for patriotic purposes.
 The Hello Girls Meet
 The convention of Northwest telephone operators also opened here today with girls from all sections of the Pacific Northwest attending.
 One of the chief subjects to be taken up at the convention is the election of the Operators' union that the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company has not kept its agreement which ended the recent strike of the telephone operators.
 The girls' assert union members are discriminated against and that the non-union operators receive all the promotions. It is expected the convention will take some action on the report of a government commission which investigated the situation.

The TIMES is an independent Democratic newspaper; but it knows no politics as opposed to the most united and vigorous press in any country...

ALL SHOULD READ THE LABOR REPORT

The Times commends to all its readers a careful study of the story of organized labor, its present standing and its ambitions for the future...

There is nothing radical in the platform, nothing that is not recognized as sound today by the overwhelming majority of accredited teachers of political economy in our schools and colleges.

Within the frontiers of a desolate, God-forsaken jungle on the dark, silent coast of Africa this giant white man, reared by an ape mother, roams and kills.

He plays the lion and tiger with his bare hands; the jaguar flees at his terrible cry; the massive elephants fear him.

Our old friend the Capital System—the eclipse of the sun—greatly gratified by the astronomers will be the eclipse of the Hohentoller. The exact time will be figured out yet but will be total, permanent and visible everywhere.

Residents in the vicinity of the county jail have been hearing at times, both by day and by night, a most appalling and heart-rending cry of pain, which is repeated again and again. There was, however, no murder or other violence impending—the cry was that of a man who had been seized of an insane incendiaric named Brown.

Naval Recruiting in Twin Falls

Ensign Delany Opens Quarters at Head of Ferry and Tells of Advantages of U. S. Navy.

The traveling party of naval officers and men under Ensign H. M. Delany, from the navy yard, Puget Sound, Washington, arrived here Sunday and opened temporary quarters at No. 110 Main Avenue North.

Thousands of men between the ages of 18 and 25 are needed in the navy. The navy department has authorized trips to the interior that the many desirable men in these sections may have full benefit of this preferred branch of our government service.

Qualified tradesmen in any line are wanted, also men with fundamental experience along certain lines who are desirous of becoming skilled workmen. Officers' material schools have been established and are open to men possessing the necessary qualifications and education. A medical officer accompanies the party and applicants are given the complete physical examination here.

Ensign Delany is granted Ensign Delany to give furloughs before reporting, where circumstances warrant. He branches that the superior pay of the navy and the desirability of the service has brought a large number of men into the service in the short time recruiting has been authorized.

Men of experience and character have been attracted to the U. S. naval service by reason of the active service being for the duration of the war, the balance of the four year enlistment.

Studebaker Six Makes Dream Come True

When the A. W. Halle Motor company, Studebaker, distributors for western New York state, were notified that their first New Series 19 Studebaker Six was ready for delivery, Ralph E. Brown, sales manager of the company, decided to drive the car to Buffalo. One reason for this was, of course, the uncertainty of freight shipments. But the real reason, admits Mr. Brown, was a selfish desire to personally test the stamina and road performance of the new Studebaker.

"We left Detroit, Saturday morning, April 13th, at 10:30 for our first day's drive to Cleveland," says Mr. Brown in recounting the experiences of his trip. "And, as a sat behind the wheel of that beautiful big car, I could not help but feel a great sense of pride and satisfaction. By the time we reached Monroe, Michigan, my enthusiasm was really overwhelming. You see, for many years, I have had dreams as to what I considered the proper construction for a six-cylinder car—and here was this new Studebaker Six actually making all those cherished dreams come true. The road from Detroit to Toledo, a distance of 67 miles, has been very much cut up on account of the great amount of driving from the different factories. But in all my fifteen-years of experience in driving cars of all makes and prices, I am frank to admit that I have never driven a car which would hold the road as well as the Studebaker Six.

"We reached Cleveland that evening, having driven not to exceed 25 miles an hour, but upon entering the city from Lake avenue boulevard I could not resist the temptation to speed up a little. Never have I experienced such ready response to a touch of the throttle. And here is my own first opportunity to appreciate the great capabilities of the Studebaker 'two-range' carburetor. This new carburetor, which is really two carburetors in one, certainly gives greater range of speed, power and economy than I have ever believed possible in any six-cylinder car.

"Sunday morning we left Cleveland for home without having made the slightest adjustment or fussing with the car in any manner whatever. It did not even require water or oil, and as the motor was extremely free, I decided to put the car under an hour at a 35 miles an hour clip, which brought us into Buffalo in seven hours and 50 minutes—with the motor running smoother than when we left the factory."

"At North East, Pennsylvania, we had a most excellent opportunity to test the climbing ability of the Six on what is known as North East Hill. Most cars of average horsepower are able to negotiate this road on 'high'—providing a good start is made at the foot of the hill. We, however, approached the hill at the moderate speed of fifteen miles an hour, but went over the top at 25 miles an hour—without any effort whatever. Total mileage for the test was 100 miles, with an average of a little over 33 miles to the gallon of gasoline. The foot box had not been touched once throughout the entire trip. Detroit water in the radiator could still be seen when the cap was removed, and the crank case was filled by the addition of but half a gallon of oil."

"At a regular meeting of the board of directors of the Studebaker Corporation, held in the Administration building at South Bend, Tuesday, May 15th, the regular quarterly dividend of one and three-quarters per cent on common stock was declared payable June 1 to the stockholders. Record at the close of business on May 20th. George M. Studebaker resigned as a member of the executive and finance committees and relinquished all duties in connection with the operation of the business."

Formation of Coral Reefs.

Coral reefs and islands are formed by the corals building poles. These animals only live in clear water, the depth of which is not greater than about twenty-five fathoms, and the temperature of which does not sink below 68 degrees Fahrenheit.

Thought Ownership Changed.

A little boy and his mother were seated across the aisle from me in the car and I asked the mother to let the boy ride with me. After sitting beside me a few minutes, he asked: "Do I belong to you now?"—Exchange.

them and make a poet or scientist as to let any place of authority be inherited.

Here, I ask, did our American fathers get the idea that they could found a government on the very reverse of the universal custom of selecting rulers by birthright. Only one answer. From the Bible.

The Bible for 10 years was the law book, the school book, and the classics of the American colonies.

Hereditary monarchies reject merit and history progress, they build notities. But our forefathers studied their Bibles and established the only government in all the world that was ever established by a Bible-reading people.

Whatever, in the presence of his dictionary, wrote: "The United States commenced their existence under circumstances wholly novel and unexampled in the history of nations. They commenced with learning, with science, with a constitution of free government and with the best gift of God: the Christian religion."

No nation can maintain a better form of government than it can make. Therefore, I believe our Plymouth flock was a nucleus of world-wide growth toward freedom and that our form of government was not devised by man but extended in the thought of God before the light of the first star shot its rays across the firmament of the heavens, and was intimated when the decree went forth, "Let us make man in our image and let him have dominion."

One thought inspired the settlers of this new world, and that thought has pervaded all our Institutions: It was the central idea of the declaration of independence and of the constitution and is still the vital principle, the very life of our government, and that thought is human liberty.

I ask shall the Bible which was read at the making and signing of the declaration of independence and copied into the constitution of our government; this book which Washington signed when inaugurated president; this book on which all our rulers have taken the oath of office, be excluded from our schools to gratify a foreign element? It has been and in the name of patriotism, of consistency, of common honesty, let us not place under the ban the book that has made us free, but they can not study the religion that they are to believe in; and our children can study the religions that worship power and are founded on force, but they can not study the religion that believes in righteousness and is founded on love. Our children can study the men of past history, no matter if they are good or bad, but they can not study the life of Him whose teachings were intended to redeem the world. Henry W. Longfellow has written of our nation in these lines: Thou, too, sail on, O Ship of State

Sail on, O Union, strong and great. Unhappily, with all his fears, With all the hopes of future years, He hangs breathless on thy fate. We know what Master hand thy keel, What workman wrought thy ribs of steel,

Who made each mast, and sail, and rope, Who nothing loath, what hammers beat In what a forge and what a heat, Who forged the anchors of thy hope: Fear not, each sudden sound and shock,

"Tis of the wave and not the rock, 'Tis but the flapping of the sail, And not a rent made by the gale, In spite of rock, and tempest roar, In spite of false lights on the shore, Shall on our fear to breast the sea. Our hearts, our hopes, are all with thee, Our fears, our hopes, our prayers, our tears, Our faith triumphant o'er our fears, Are all with thee, are all with thee."

The Independent Order of Odd Fellows as an organization stands for all that is implied in the word democracy, and the man or woman who believes in Fraternity, Love and Truth, also believes in equal rights and religious liberty. Fellowships should be given to the practice of doing good, and that practice leads to a larger vision of duty and responsibility and therefore to a nobler life. A man may give himself to the making of money, success may follow his efforts, but even if millions have flowed into his money vaults, what good is achieved for the world if his treasures feed no hungry, clothe no naked, help no the fallen. If it shelters no orphans, reconstruction of life and society and in our order there is an opportunity of uniting our efforts in that direction.

What do you think of Odd Fellowship as in one year the order spent four millions of dollars in charity work outside of the work done in those homes? What do you think of Odd Fellowship as it educates the orphan, cares for the widow, buries the dead and distributes charity with a will and in every direction? It stands in the front ranks of the beneficent institutions of our land, and beneficence is the trust and noblest end of life of all human effort and industry. A beneficent life is the only life worth living. I was hungry and ye fed me, naked and ye clothed me, sick and ye visited me.

We who give and live for others is the only one who achieves lasting fame. Let us be true to the motto worthy to be written on the scroll of noble deeds.
