SIXTY CIRCUS PEOPLE KILLED IN COLLISION

TROOP TRAIN CRASHES INTO REAR OF THE HAGENBACK SHOW

Fire Adds to Horror of the Accident.

Report Is That Show Train Stopped From Broken Axle and Engineer on Troop Train Disregarded the Signal to Stop.

GARY, IND., June 22.—Sixty persons were killed, 25 are reported dying and about 50 are injured in a morning wreck at 3 o'clock this morning, when a westbound Blagden Central troop train travelling at 60 miles an hour, ran through four tourist sleepers and a caboose of the Hagenback circus train near here.

The circus train was the second section of the Hagenback show. It had sixteen flat cars, containing equipment in addition to the four tourist sleepers. It was bound for Hammond where a show is scheduled for today.

A broken axle was discovered at Ivanhoe and trainmen with warning flares were sent back along the line, reaching the train in about thirty miles an hour the empty troop train was on it and, failed, it is declared to stop in answer to the signal display.

"Give me the baby," cried a mother to her husband, a circus athlete, who was holding the baby in his arms with his arm. With a mighty effort, the father, grasping the child by its clothing, reached to the mother.

Just then there was a crash of rending wood, and the father saw mother and child crushed to death. A moment later, he was himself dead.

Everywhere confusion mingled with confusion—a woman rescued from the wreck crying for a relative of the circus, a crowd of men and women was mingling, demanding news one to rescue him. Mrs. Eugene Knox, nurse of the Gary hospital, rushed into the flaming debris, despite efforts to stop her. She returned, dragging her unconscious husband from the wreckage.

Efforts of the fire department to stop the flames were futile as by the time the firemen reached the scene the circus train had been consumed.

Circumstances surrounding the tragedy have led investigating federal and railway officials to believe the engineer of the troop train was asleep when his train struck the circus train warning signals sent up by the engineer of the latter train, which had stopped for repairs, were totally ignored.

The engineer was asleep, "was all the constant talk who was on the gas at the blazing death trap, dashed like a man into a nearby wood and has not yet been apprehended.

GERMANY SEEKS PEACE WITH A VICTORY NOW

HOPES ARMY CAN WIN AND COLLECT A LARGE MONEY INDEMNITY

Would Surrender Other Considerations

Unkept Promises to Austria Turn—Two Schools of Economists Now Wrangle in Empire as to the Best Way Out.

LONDON, June 22.—Germany is playing for a victory on land, hoping to get indemnity and raw materials. It was learned today from an unquestioned source. It was declared that Germany is willing to surrender Belgium and back out of Russia and let the Allies have the rest of the world.

German papers make it plain that the government are hampering rather than increasing the food supplies. It has been found that it is difficult to raise crops except by a sudden stop of a sudden peace with quiet demobilization, for in that case, Germany would have her ships ready for commercial purposes while England and the United States would be compelled to use their shipping for transportation of army troops and war supplies back home.

MURTAUGH BRIDGE PROVES IMPREGNABLE

The rumor that the Murtaugh bridge was endangered by the flood proved utterly groundless as an investigation showed that a rise of over thirty feet would be necessary to reach the structure. The middle pier is embedded in rock on the bottom and is reinforced with steel so that its washing away with any flood is a virtual impossibility.

NINE HUNDRED THOUSAND MEN HAVE GONE OVER

FIVE MONTHS AHEAD OF THE ORIGINAL SCHEDULE IN GETTING TO FRONT

General March Gives Out Statement

Says Military Situation in General and Italian Situation in Particular Are Entirely Satisfactory to the Allies.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Nine hundred thousand American soldiers have been shipped from embarkation ports here to the front General Peyton March chief of staff of the army revealed this afternoon in a weekly reception to the newspaper correspondents that the five months ahead of the original plan.

In the course of his discussion it was made known for the first time that Canjany battle was won by the first division. Its commander, General Robert L. Bullard, said in a communique that the fine performance of his division are a tribute to the great training work developed between infantry, field artillery and the staff training the men have undergone.

Of the general military situation General March was frankly optimistic. The Italian situation is very satisfactory he indicated very largely by the only command that was brought out in a communique.

The fighting around Chateau Thierry was conducted with comparatively small number of troops and there from the marine corps, mostly all American. Major General J. G. Harbord, former chief of staff of General Pershing, now commands the march at the front.

The general situation looks one of the best. The present lull on the western front simply means that Germany is retreating by the front and preparing for another drive. It does not mean that the great battle is over at the western front.

One of the most striking things noticeable in the situation as it is shown today is the importance of the principle of a single command, which was demonstrated by the fact that the United States and carried through by its constant pressure, is one of the most important single military things that has been done as far as the allies are concerned.

NEW RIOTS ARE CONVULSING THE AUSTRIAN STATE

MILITARY CALLED IN TO HELP THE POLICE QUELL THE TROUBLE

Rumor of Attempt to Assassinate Emperor

Austrian Socialist Leaders Say Germany Is Doing More to Overthrow Their Nation Than Russia and Rumania Ever Did.

AMSTERDAM, June 22.—Now and there serious riots have broken out in Vienna and military forces have been called in to restore order and establish order, said a dispatch today, quoting the "Nero-Prize-Press" Vienna newspaper.

LONDON, June 22.—An attempt has been made to assassinate Emperor Charles of Austria, according to reports circulated in the "Amsterdam Courant," said a Central News dispatch from that city today.

The last publicly heard of Charles he was on the Italian front.

The Austro-Hungarians have sustained great losses.

LONDON, June 22.—Austrian Socialist leaders who have just arrived in London said Austria-Hungary is "on her last legs" said an Amsterdam dispatch to the Express today.

They declare that what Russia and Serbia did not achieve is being accomplished by Germany. Germany, they said, is starting Austria-Hungary to death.

LONDON, June 22.—Vienna newspapers indicate that the Austrian Socialists have invited the Austrian government to begin peace negotiations.

Important Changes Impending in Russia

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Important developments are impending in the Russian situation. Officials advised today that they returned to the United States, reports that President Wilson had about made up his mind just how the necessary reform will be given again to mobilize Russia as a potent factor against Germany were current at the capital.

There was a belief among the leaders here that the president might soon address congress on the subject and outline his plan. "But it will be several days will reasonable the president had been sent from the White House.

The senate which has been in recess for several days will reconvene on Monday and a joint session could be arranged, if the president so desired, in ten minutes.

ALLIES CONTINUE TO WIN THOUGH HUNS SEND RE-ENFORCEMENTS

Austrians Still Press Heavily but Lose Ground at Several Important Points—Italians Gain—At Points and Threaten the Austrians Who Had Crossed the Piave—Over 15,000 Prisoners Now in the Hands of the Allies—Germans Concentrate on West Front but Where They Will Next Strike Is Mystery.

LONDON, June 22.—The Italians have captured Gostelunga on the Asiago plateau, driving back the Austrians, it was learned this afternoon from an authoritative source.

The Austro-Hungarians on the Piave front are reported to have crossed the railway south of Nervosa on a two-mile front.

The railway line in question runs southwestward from Vittorio through Treviso to Venice.

Despite reports that "Austrians (and, possibly German) troops are being massed for fresh assaults, the great battle which sprang up with the Austro-Hungarians offensive on the Italian front one week ago today, appears to be nearing its final phase.

This is the interpretation to be gathered from the declaration of Premier Orlando, of Italy, that the gallant Italians and their brave Franco-British allies have gained the mastery of their foes.

However, strong Austrian pressure continues along the front, especially on the Piave river.

The Austrians have been unable to make any headway. On the contrary, they have lost further ground in the vital sector of Nervosa southeast of Montello crest.

The gain of the Italians at Nervosa is a serious menace to the Austrian force that crossed the Piave at Montello and gained a foothold on the slopes. In fact, the whole of the Austro-Hungarian line on the western bank of the Piave is in a critical position.

Montello is the keystone position on the Italian front and is now the critical zone of the fighting.

While they have been concentrating their greatest efforts on the Piave, further Austrian assaults are looked for, in the mountains flanking the Asiago plateau in the north.

The number of prisoners in the hands of the Italians has now reached nearly 15,000.

New food riots are reported in Vienna, accompanied by attacks against ammunition plants and these are expected to have a certain effect on the military position of the dual monarchy.

Nothing of importance has taken place on any of the four battle fields in France during the past 24 hours.

There were minor activities but the actions were confined to small surprise attacks, raids and artillery firing.

The Germans are evidently preparing for another blow in the west, but it cannot be predicted definitely, where it will fall.

ROME, June 22.—The Austrians are in a critical condition on the Piave river at San Dona di Piave (Lower Piave) as a result of the flooded country. The Italian army, says a dispatch from the front to the Giornale Italia.

THREE YEARS OF WAR PLANNED BY THE HOUSE BILL

ORDNANCE, APPROPRIATION RECOMMENDATIONS ARE LARGEST IN HISTORY

Carries More Than Five Billion Dollars

Many Heavy Guns Provided for Massive Fortifications Sent Into the Discard by the Modern Warfare Experts.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—An ordinance program contemplating three billion dollars was introduced in the house this afternoon when the appropriations committee favorably reported the fortifications bill.

The bill carries total appropriations and authorizations of $4,435,094,224, making it the largest of its kind ever presented to any legislative body in the world's history.

These guns are not used for trench warfare or even open warfare, said Representative Borah, chairman of the committee that framed the bill. They are for reducing fortifications.

High tribute is paid to the Czechoslovakians who are fighting with the Italians and who are said to be conducting "with lion hearted bravery."

The Italians have made further gains on the Piave front.

An official statement issued by the war office last night says:

In the Montello sector the pressure of the Austro-Hungarians has continued strong, but everywhere they were held by our troops.

Attempts by the enemy to advance toward the west and south were broken up. Many of the positions were in the district west of Nervosa station.

The enemy was repulsed completely. The gun program is that agreed upon at the latter-issued conference and forwarded to the war department by General Zeehling.

The most significant thing in the entire bill is the emphasis that is put on preparations for producing guns ranging from 10 to 18 inches.

These guns are not used for trench warfare or even open warfare, said Representative Borah, chairman of the committee that framed the bill. They are for reducing fortifications.

Southern Pacific Accused Of Dodging

LOS ANGELES, June 21.—In a letter addressed yesterday by the board of supervisors by Deputy District Attorney Frank W. Starn, attention was called to a peculiar state of affairs whereby the Southern Pacific Railroad is said to be holding thousands of acres of land in this and adjoining counties without paying taxes on the property. The deputy district attorney suggested that a man be found whereby the county would be enabled to place these lands on the tax register, thus adding hundreds of dollars to the annual tax receipts.

According to Starn, the railroad company years ago selected sections of land on Hen lands near the Atlantic & Pacific Highway under an old grant. The Southern Pacific being the successor of that road. The Southern Pacific is said to have pursued a practice of filing on these lands, but of delaying completion of the filings until the sections could be profitably sold or leased. By failing to secure patents—the railroad has escaped payment of taxes, a court ruling having established that until "Hen lands" sections have been approved by the secretary of the interior and the patents issued, taxes may not be collected.

McAdoo Goes To Take Needed Rest

Target Trouble Causes Him To Seek Mountain Resort For His Health For a Few Days.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—Secretary of the Treasury, William G. McAdoo, who is also director general of railroads, is spending through California today enroute to a mountain resort where he is hopeful of recovering from an attack of throat trouble and regaining his voice. Accompanying him are his wife, who is a daughter of President Wilson, and Oscar A. Price, assistant director general. He is traveling in a private car and will reach his destination today.

Secretary McAdoo spent five hours in San Francisco last night, after having established that until "Hen lands" sections have been approved by the secretary of the interior and the patents issued, taxes may not be collected.

Chautauqua Looks Forward To T. F.

Superintendent at This City Says Ellison-White People Appreciate Visit Here—Always at Top.

Twin Falls is one of the chautauqua towns annually looked forward to by the people of the Ellison-White circuit who are fortunate to be using their abilities in the seven day tour. According to J. K. Flint, superintendent of the Twin Falls chautauqua, who with Mrs. Flint, arrived in the city for the opening day's program.

In speaking of the many things that had endeared this city to the talent of the chautauqua circuit, Mr. Flint made most favorable reference to the thoughtfulness of one Twin Falls resident, who last spring when one of the smaller circuits was passing through the city enroute from Plover to fullerton, met the talent each day and took them for a sightseeing trip to the scenic spots adjacent to the city.

"We folks who are away from home so much of the time, have just naturally accustomed ourselves to liking the folks who like us, and while we always find in every town that people who are chautauqua folks are universally well treated, Twin Falls has always ranked among the top centers, in the list of towns checked double in the records of the places visited."

Organizer Working Class Union Is Sentenced to Death

MENSA, Ark., June 21.—Ilen G. Caghey, organizer for the Working Class Union, was today sentenced to death in the electric chair August 23 for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Kirkland, who was killed in a raid on outlaw at Hinton's Gap, April 16, 1916.

Eight members of the Working Class Union at Hinton were held to the United States Grand Jury here, charged with conspiracy to resist the draft. That the members of the organization were told to purchase arms and concerned to no strike; were directed to conceal draft resistors and feel them and that they were to assist in the death of revealing secret of the order was testified to at their hearings.

Labor Situation Relieved In Calif.

Admission of Mexican Soldiers Densely Confronting Producers There. Skilled Labor Unaffected.

SAN BERNARDINE, June 21.—Relief for the railroad and agricultural and industrial interests in southern California, who have faced a serious labor shortage for many months, is brought through the announcement yesterday of the modification of immigration restrictions, made by the immigration division of the department of labor, to admit Mexican labor for the period of the war.

That there is a shortage of 18,000 unskilled laborers at the present time is reported by the labor employing concerns. This figure is disputed by William J. Clark, superintendent of the public employment bureau, a joint federal, state and city institution. Clark asserts that the exact labor shortage in southern California is positively unknown.

Under the new government ruling, which becomes effective tomorrow, Mexican labor will be permitted to enter the United States for the period of the war to work on farms and railroads and in coal mines.

"The need for unskilled labor is so great that it is imperative that the men secured from Mexico must be returned to their country when the employment for which they were hired is ended, it is stated.

"The effect of the ruling, it is stated, will be to relieve the shortage of unskilled labor to the extent of possibly 60 per cent not earlier than November 1, in doing a tremendous task to retrain the workers and their families, arrange for their employment and satisfactory housing conditions, and to train men who will be needed in southern California connected with the labor bureau place the number of men short for unskilled labor on railroads at 18,000. The same interests place the shortage in agricultural and industrial sections of southern California at 15,000, making a total shortage of 33,000 men in the south of the state alone.

Said a railroad labor head yesterday:

"Mexican labor has been brought into the southern California sections by railroads for many years. When the head tax and literacy tests were ordered by the government the importation of Mexican labor dropped off 80 per cent. That is, the shortage of labor shortage in southern California today. With the removal of the restrictions there will be an influx of laborers of the unskilled sort. These men will not come into competition with skilled labor nor organized labor, and men who will be secured and employed will be permitted to enter the country."

Superintendent Clark of the public employment bureau declared that a serious labor shortage exists in Los Angeles and southern California, but that it is not what it was in 1916. He said:

"It is impossible to determine the exact extent of the shortage of any recent complete data compiled on the subject, but the figures of 18,000 are not far from what it will be needed. It is a less acreage planted this year to sugar beets, therefore the sugar beet concerns that imported large numbers of Mexican laborers last year will not do so this year. Reports from citrus districts, walnut and bean districts show that men will be needed, but not to the extent of 18,000."

The most serious problem that confronts the producers in southern California is the housing of the immigrants. Railroads assert that they have ample housing to accommodate about 300 men needed by the railroads. In the agricultural districts similar arrangements must be made to provide for sanitary accommodations for not only the laborers, but their families as well.

According to well informed labor interests the government removed the restricting laws permitting labor to be brought into this country following information presented to Secretary of Labor Wilson.

Within sixty to ninety days the first of the Mexican aliens will be brought into Los Angeles and various other sections of the south is predicted, although batches of men will be available probably before that time. But there will be a call for these men from all parts of the country as well as from southern California.

Labor conditions in the Imperial Valley are becoming desperate, according to Emile J. Bernatchez, expert in charge of the U. S. labor employment bureau in Los Angeles. The time appears to be not far distant, says Bernatchez, when the labor demand will greatly exceed the supply.

Wages have steadily risen. Milkmen get $100 to $125 per month with wages common workers, $50 and found.

President American League Willing To Shut Up Shop If President Says So, However.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Hart Johnson, president of the American League, expressed his opinion that the proposed national general strikes recommendation to the president is the final word, in commenting upon the "non-essential" verdict given here last night by President Marshall General Crowder today.

"I cannot understand the statement that the game is non-productive," he said, "when the two major leagues will deliver to the government war taxes in excess of $300,000. The only fair basis of comparison is the two meetings with Billy Mack of St. Paul. Dempsey and Fulton fought Mike last winter, but neither registered a decided victory.

Discusses Non-Partisan And Patriotic Leagues

To the Editor of the Twin Falls Times: I wish to say a few words through your valuable paper.

Some few days ago I got some of the direst literature I have read for some time. It was in a very neatly labeled Patriotic League envelope. Apparently it is directed at the farmers, who are going to support the Non-Partisan League platform.

So far I have not been able to find a farmer that indicated the receiving of such chaff.

This is only calculated to create a hard feeling between the good people of the town and the farmers and laborers of the county. Now, it is said by the leaders of the Patriotic League that about all the bankers and merchants are members of the said league. Now if this is so, why don't they come out and tell the farmers who they are? However, I don't believe it! It has also been said by some of the members of that league that they were going to harass some of the Non-Partisan League members.

Now, in the name of reason, let us all sit and think over it. We are getting ready to take a trip to Blackfoot. The first place, the whp is not the thing to use. If the farmers and laborers are all pro-German, get them all up said send them to the "Pen," or shoot them at sunrise. In the second place, let us look at the platform of the Non-Partisan League and see how far it is from what would like to have it in our state. If it isn't right, let us discuss it like men, and be as fair with each other as brothers should be.

In the third place, how long would our fair cities last if it were not for the farmers and laborers; and how long would the farmers and laborers enjoy the pleasure afforded by the cities and towns, if it were not for the town people? We are each of some value to each other. Therefore the Non-Partisan League asks all bankers and merchants to help stop the long chain of graft that is going on. Can it be done, if not why not?

We learn from the pages of one of our county papers that one of the officers of the Patriotic League is a pro-German. It is plain that they are only trying to stir up trouble for the food producers. Of course, there would be nothing that would suit the kaiser better than to blicken out the Union. The food producers of Idaho are very tired of being called pro-Germans and Red-card Socialists and W. Wa. That does not sound good to loyal American citizens. The fellows who are doing this under the so-called pro-German leader should be carefully looked up; and if this is true, it should be dealt with according to the interests of our president. We should all serve the president of the United States of America with our last dollar and our last drop of blood. How in our veins it we are called on to do so.

We are fighting the Iron Hand of the German rule for the sake of the Grand Old Stars and Stripes. We do not want such a rule to exist in the land of the free and the brave. No little organized body of perhaps one dozen members should try to dictate how twenty-five hundred farmers in one county should cast their votes, by riding over the county, telling such tales, and mailing out such sordidly literature. If they had some like men, the Non-Partisan League will uncover its platform, and they can have the privilege of exposing it to their hearts content. Let them come up like real men, not sneaking around and backbiting like cowards. Let them make a list of the fellows who will carry the dirty papers I got by mail he would say. "That's the stuff, just give them a little more if that don't speak loud enough."

We can put on our glasses and see our so-called pro-German leader under the rule of a pro-German leader; we can watch the boot, spuds and pork chops they are producing. We can see that way they have conspired. Really it is best not to be very much alarmed about those fellows; for sometimes we are the boys who are they can't be helped. Come down to facts; we are all human from pore-fore-pore, Adam and Eve; and when we leave this earth some day will go to one much better than this, others may not be so happy; but will be no use to kick, we can't return to Idaho.

When we see some one with a bad habit, we should just get up before the old family looking glass and see if we are perfectly straight. If we are whole then we need some one to help us hunt.

Anything we can do to help humanity as a whole, we as a people should do. We cannot live as real citizens unless we try to do something for the uplifting of the whole human family. This is a part of God's law and we cannot get around it.

I see from the papers of Twin Falls county that the league people are going to have a picnic at Boise the third and fourth of July. The fellows had better take some of their good papers they are mailing out up there. They might capture some good members, save a few converted ones, so there is a chance for all us. Let's go to the picnic.

DEFENDS RAISE IN WAGES

It has been stated by some irresponsible parties that the action of organized labor is being taken in an unpatriotic. Now that the adjustment has been reached and every one concerned are satisfied, I will endeavor to make our position in this matter clear to those who have the interest of the wage earner at heart.

Eight years ago the wage for a carpenter was $4.00 for one cent an hour. The workman could procure good, substantial board and lodging for the sum of $100 a day and do could buy the standard shoe for $4.00 or $5.00—and his spring suit for $15.

Now, look up your own expense account and compare it with eight years past. You will also say, well, look at what we are called upon to donate to the Red Cross and war bonds we buy and the thrift stamps we purchase. Surely, I do not think for a minute that the man who pay the wages is not also doing his bit along these same lines. One party even gave me a plan for wearing good clothes. These clothes under ordinary times other than war times, cost me $25.00; at this time $45.

General employers of labor, especially merchants' employing clerks, will be wiser if they get together and consider making a controlled increase in the wages of their workers for the coming winter, as a part of a general wage and salary adjustment that is slated to take place with strong government backing. But leaving off consideration of these workers, a great movement is underway to raise the wages of all classes of labor to a point that will at least maintain the pre-war standard of living. This wage movement will receive aid and comfort from the highest governmental sources.

The delay by some organizations was occasioned by a desire to see how far the government would be successful in reducing the cost of living through the food and fuel administrations. Now that the pro-German influences have been thwarted, and it has turned attention to the economic field, unless there are general wage readjustments sufficient to maintain pre-war standards of living, it will be very difficult to hold the workers' energies on winning the war. There is no possibility of an adjustment in the high cost of living before spring.

There are a great many ways to show loyalty to our country. Organized labor is with President Wilson first, last and all the time and our heart goes out to the boys over there. The writer is shuddering very seriously at fainting the colors. He hasn't been troubled with cold feet yet. He was in the thickest of the fray in the Philippines and learned the names of the different fowling pieces by studying the sound or whine of the pill as it passed uncomfortably close to one's ear.

Allied Airlines to Fly Over Ocean

Absolutely Assured by September 15 Declaration of General Branker—100 Miles Hour

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Transatlantic flights by allied airplanes will be attempted not later than the latter part of September or the first of October, it was officially announced here this afternoon by Major General Branker, chief controller of equipment of the British royal air force.

The success of the flights is absolutely assured, declared General Branker. The only thing that can interfere with any of the plans, will be the weather. The enterprise, which General Branker stated must be undertaken to relieve the shipping situation by delivering the new American bombing planes to the battle front under their own power; will be fifty-fifty British-American. The planes will be American built, equipped with British engines and two British crew members. The planes will be of the type, will be two to a number, each capable of generating 375 horsepower. The starting point will be in the United States, the landing point in Portugal, via the Azores. It is expected that the machines will average from 50 to 100 miles an hour; at a height of 5,000 feet, and will land in Portugal between twenty and thirty hours after leaving America. All necessary steps will be taken in the early flights to make reconnoiter as easy in case of accident to any of the planes.

Enormous Profits in Coal Trade

Two Thousand Per Cent Made in Some Lines of Business the First War Year.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Records of incomes and excess profits of American business during 1917 were supplied by the treasury department to the house ways and means committee, drafting the new revenue bill, today. This data, compiled by Collectors of Internal Revenue Bure, in levying income and excess profit taxes contained many revelations to the consternation of the coal and iron industries. The fact that the law requires the treasury department to keep such information secret prevented disclosure of the war would be only lightly taxed. The alternate plan is that now in practice here under which all excess profits are taxed.

O'Leary Admits Suit Came From Brother

Says He Borrowed It to Go Fishing In—Testimony May Be Used Against Him.

NEW YORK, June 21.—In the course of a severe cross examination Jeremiah O'Leary admitted in the federal district court today of having obtained a suit of clothes to flee from New York from his brother, John J. O'Leary, who is on trial. It was this and other alleged services in behalf of the fugitive that led to the indictment of John J. O'Leary on a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice. O'Leary said that he obtained the suit of clothes on May 6, the night before he fled to the Pacific coast chicken farm where he was captured. He insisted, however, that he really intended to go fishing at the time and that he did not make up his mind to flee until he was on his way home. He testified that he wrote "plan and room" and the "Conquest of the United States" in an effort to show that England was trying to make this country a British colony.

The TIMES is an independent Democratic newspaper and it knows no politics as opposed to the most unbridled and vigorous prosecution of the war that is possible. Therefore, it is AGAIN any man, Democrat or Republican, caught throwing barbed wire into the machinery—either with his hands or with his mouth. If this be "partisan," make the most of it!

LABORERS ACTION PLEDGE TO REAL DEMOCRACY

The re-election of Samuel Gompers as president of the American Federation of Labor taken in connection with the patriotic resolutions passed by that body, inspires the nation with the wholehearted support of that powerful league of organizations within the United States.

There was never a time in the history of the country when it was more vital for everybody that labor and capital should unite in working out the problems confronting the nation than at present. After the war the most radical measures are certain to be proposed in several European countries, and the old land marks will be swept away unless the newer nations and the more sane of the old stand together. Those who denounce the American Federation of Labor as radical are simply ignorant of what is going on abroad, and hope by a reactionary movement to turn back the wheels of progress. They cannot succeed in doing that, but if they should succeed in strangling labor and capital permanently, they may divert what should be a healthy forward movement into a destructive force.

Should the river of progress by cooperation be kept within its embankments, it will clear away all barriers, but if the reactionary elements should attempt to dam the stream it may break into the fields around as it did in Russia, and do irreparable damage. The American Federation of Labor, as the Times has often pointed out, is the greatest conservative labor force in the world. Its counsel will be needed after the war to hold restless forces in check and harness power which may if properly used prove a blessing, but which will, if misdirected, prove a curse to mankind.

Under such circumstances the attitude of the American Federation is a harbinger of hope for the human race. Under all the circumstances perhaps the United Mine Workers of America were not going much too far in wishing Sherman Sherman locked up as a disturbing factor, though like a number of other knucklers on who cooperate with the president effectively in his work, he perhaps does less harm outside an infernal camp than inside. Anyhow, it is better to punish a scoundrel in his own house of congress on the outside for something he says inside, which as a whole is a few profane, notwithstanding the frequent abuse.

CHILD LABOR BILL AGAIN

Word comes from Washington that Congressman Keating may introduce his child labor bill again, with amendments which will obviate the objections raised to its constitutionality by the supreme court. This should by all means be done, if effective legislation which will insure the respect of constitutional amendments cannot be secured, without constitutional amendments. And this raises another phase of the subject of declaring laws unconstitutional. When the constitutional convention was in session it was proposed that a law after its passage should be submitted to the president and the supreme court, and should the court declare a law in violation of the constitution and the president veto it on that ground, it could be passed over the veto and the objection by a three-fourths majority of both houses.

The proposition was voted down, yet the plan was an excellent one in principle, and has, we believe, been acted on in some of the states. Why not pass a law up to the supreme court immediately on passage, and let persons affected by the measure interpret and settle the matter of its constitutionality then and there, without the privilege of rehearing? It would take a constitutional amendment to do this, but it would have many advantages. Had such system been in operation when the Keating bill became a law, the supreme court could have had a hearing and could have pointed out the constitutional objections to the measure, which could have been remedied at once.

Whether the law can be again enacted along with other legislation imperatively demanded is doubtful, especially should the Republicans follow the lead of the American Economic Union and fight it on the ground that the measure should be passed by their congress and not a congress dominated by Democrats. The bill was satisfactory to those working for child labor and another measure to secure the same effects if drafted by Congressman Keating, would also doubtless meet with their approval. But the American Economic is looking out for the interests of the privileged and would delay action as long as possible. We do not believe that the majority of the Republicans will assume that attitude, however.

CHARGE OF PRO-GERMAN IN LIBELOUS ON FACE

The action of a New York grand jury in finding a true bill against the New York Times and the New York Tribune and their editors for charging Mrs. William Randolph Hearst as a pro-German is no surprise. On its face such charge is always libelous because it tends to bring the person against whom it is leveled into contempt. Being so libelous it is necessary for the person asserting it to prove its truth, just the same as it would be necessary for the person asserting another to be a thief to prove the allegation. In fact a pro-German is if anything a more reprehensible person than a common thief. Certainly an American who is a friend of the Kaiser is worse than a pickpocket.

There is a great deal of bandying of this charge pro and con late. It should be stopped. If a man can be so stupid as to disparage a self as libelous he ought to be punished by the laws of the land. If arrests should follow every charge of pro-Germanism and conviction should follow guilt, a lot of citizens would be locked up in no time. For if the person against whom the charge was made were guilty, he would be locked up, and if not guilty, the person making it would go to jail or the penitentiary. In view of the scarcity of labor in essential industries, perhaps it is well that arrests do not always follow the loose use of the word in print.

Sometimes the charge is thoughtlessly made that all bearing German names are German sympathizers. Of course this is nonsense, as a list of the men most active in pushing the war indicates.

The TIMES understands quite well that there are pro-Germans in this country, but men and women who would hurt the country if they could do so. It would be to see them locked up or shot, like the punishment depending on the character of their offending. But making indiscriminate charges back and forth not only does not prove anything but it darkens conduct and prevents the discovery of real offenders against the integrity of the country, for whom many are charged with treason when they are innocent. It is hard to separate the sheep from the goats.

Work-or-fight order, there was no copy of alarm sounded in baseball circles here today over the immediate future of the game.

Baseball men in general believe that the sport will be permitted to continue for the three months of the season which will remain after July 1, when the new draft, rule goes into effect, and in some quarters there is hope that the future of the game can be preserved. That the ruling will not be applied to baseball until a specific case is brought up by some local board is the general opinion, and the magnates are satisfied that the government will be considerate of their investments and property rights. President Wilson is known to be an admirer of baseball, and if a final analysis of the order rests in his hands, it is expected that the organization leagues throughout the country will be permitted to finish out their season. There is no denying the fact that a strict application of the order would completely wreck the baseball business.

World Watches the Austrian Situation
Economic Crisis Grave and May Result in the Overthrow of Government of Austria.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The eyes of the world are on Austria today. Every chancellery in Europe and the United States administration are watching the situation in Austria with the keenest interest. The economic crisis in Austria is the most serious since the outbreak of the war. It is the result of the spread of the influenza epidemic, which has caused a heavy loss of life and property. The situation is so grave that it is feared that the government of Austria will be overthrown.

While the strikes are spreading, officials do not care to express any opinion as to what effect they will have on the continued participation of Austria in the war. They say, however, that the situation is so grave that it is feared that the government of Austria will be overthrown. The situation is so grave that it is feared that the government of Austria will be overthrown.

The Italian situation is likely to have a strong effect on the internal situation in Austria. A crushing defeat of Austria by the Allies would mean the end of the war. The situation is so grave that it is feared that the government of Austria will be overthrown.

Government Ownership of Inland Waterways
Secretary Redfield Advocates Such Plan for the Four Arteries of the Atlantic Seaboard.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Government ownership of the four large inland waterways along the Atlantic seaboard with the necessary improvement to link up a practical navigation route from the coast to the interior and southern ports and railway terminals that would safeguard shipping from the menace of the U-boats and provide for the release of one of freight delivered in the industrial district of Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk.

Secretary Redfield outlined such a plan today. It would take in the Cape Cod canal, the Delaware & Raritan canal, the Delaware Chesapeake canal and the Albemarle & Chesapeake canal. The authorization for construction of the Cape Cod waterway has already been made by Congress and the secretary said.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The United States has commandeered the entire fire log and lumber output of the Pacific northwest and the entire pine output of the south. After all war needs are provided for the essential industries will be given their supplies. Whatever surplus lumber will then be apporportioned to the commercial buyers. This was agreed upon today when prices were fixed for fire log and lumber produced in the west by the war industries board.

and our preparations for producing them indicate that we expect to go up against the fortifications along the Rhine.

Most of the appropriations are made in lump sums for purposes of concealment, but a careful study of the bill gives many new lights on the war program of the United States. Not a single dollar is given in the bill for the cost of the war.

The backbone of the bill is the lump appropriation of $500,000,000 and the authorization of $729,731,250 making a total of $1,229,731,250 for munitions and other war supplies.

The bill provides for three armies of 1,200,000 men each, or a total force of 3,600,000 men. It also provides for the manufacture of new guns for coast defense, all spare guns are being removed and shipped to France.

No important fort has yet been completely dismantled, however. Some of the mounts for these guns, all of which will be placed upon railway trains or trailers are being manufactured in France and sent by the navy.

The only plants in America capable of turning out the 16, 14 and 16 inch guns contemplated in the program are the Bethlehem and Blawie plants. To increase the output of these huge weapons the government will build a complete steel factory on a small island in the River Clyde.

The whole bill indicates that the line is getting away from fixed mobilization fortifications and tized to mobile units. The anti-aircraft guns provided in the bill, instead of being on pedestals, will be mounted on trailers and searchlights will have similar mounts.

THE EVENING SYSTEM
WASHINGTON, June 22.—Chairman Ritchie of the ways and means committee charged today that newspaper publishers in seeking a year's postponement of the postal note system would be increasing the cost of conducting a propaganda for the notification of the whole system.

A bill introduced by the chairman makes it clear that he would fight to the last ditch against any postponement or repeal of the postal note system by the last revenue bill.

Automobiles, Tractors and Good Roads

ADDRESS TO STOCKHOLDERS

In his address to stockholders at the annual meeting of the Willy-Overland company on May 14, President John N. Willys said:

"Since our last annual meeting, one year ago, the United States has had to adjust itself from peace to war conditions. You will remember, at that meeting, we had been in the war a little over one month. The automobile industry was considerably slowed down by these changed conditions but recovered rapidly and we had a satisfactory business all through the summer. The officers of your company immediately offered the entire facilities of our organization and its plants to the government. We believed it was vital and necessary that the government should have such of these facilities as they required, and to that end we have co-operated in every way possible with its officials and have accepted four large contracts and a number of smaller ones for government work."

"The first large contract was through our Toronto plant, with the British government for 1000 Submarine propellers. There have been many engineering changes, so that production is just now starting on this motor. A small quantity of these propellers have been manufactured and accepted and actual deliveries should now come along rapidly."

"The second large contract was for 1000 Curtiss Scyllander training motors, for use in training planes at several cantonments already established in this country. To take care of this contract, three buildings were constructed at Elmira—an assembling plant, testing plant and a take-down and re-assembling plant, so that with these buildings, together with the buildings and equipment already at Elmira when the war began, we believe we have there today the most complete motor manufacturing and testing plant in the world. We had produced a small number of these motors in November and December, but on account of the unusually severe weather and delays in construction the new buildings were not ready for deliveries until January. In March, the original schedule in the contract called for delivery of 700 motors—we delivered 600 in March and 850 motors. In April, the original schedule called for delivery of 850 motors. On April 30th we were only two weeks behind our contract schedule. May 10th, we could have exceeded that contract schedule had the government needed these training motors. As they did not require them, we have not exceeded our production, but will deliver, during May and June, according to contract, 1,000 each month. We have now delivered over 2,500 of these 5000 motors, and to my knowledge we have not yet had a single complaint regarding them. We have received large orders for parts for these training motors, on which we are now beginning deliveries from our Elmiria plant, and as we now have the equipment and tools completed, we will be able to furnish the government, without delay, all they require in the way of parts for training motors."

"While there has been a great deal of criticism about the delay in the government's aero program, we feel that our stockholders should know that so far as your company is concerned, there has been practically no delay and as stated before, we could today, if the government desired, be ahead of our original schedule."

"You will also be interested in learning that, since the meeting a year ago, your company had purchased a large interest in the Curtiss Aero-plant & Motor Corporation, which, with the help given by your company, we feel sure has been a great assistance to the government. The Curtiss company has grown very rapidly. Naturally, in a new building, which has shown such great development as has the manufacture of aeroplane that have been a great many problems to overcome. These have been surmounted and the development of the manufacturing organization of the Curtiss company is being taken care of. Our vice president, Mr. E. Kenney, is in charge of the Curtiss plant, and the result of his management, I am sure, will show very satisfactorily in the next few months."

"The Curtiss company, a year ago, was producing at the rate of about $500,000 per month—today they are running very near $5,000,000 per month. They have buildings and equipment, which, with increased efficiency in their organization, believe will be able to produce aircraft approximating something over $10,000,000 per month before the year is out."

"The third large order was taken by the Twin Falls plant for approximately 1,500 gun carriages. We have been busy for several months making tools and preparing for delivery of these gun carriages, which will be a small number. In June, and increasingly larger quantities thereafter monthly. Our equipment is particularly adapted to the building of these gun carriages, and we look forward to satisfying the government's needs in this regard and feel quite certain that our deliveries will be so satisfactory that we will be given additional orders."

"The fourth large contract was for machining large size sheets. This contract will amount to about $10,000,000. We have created a special department for this business, the same as we have done for the gun carriages and we will be able to outfit the manufacturers of automobiles in reasonable quantities."

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

July not only marks the 110th birthday of the United States, but it commemorates the Silver Anniversary of "America's Independence from the Horse." Just twenty-five years ago Elwood Haynes, at that time a scientist and business man of Kokomo, Indiana, devised the first successful automobile in this country.

As a fitting tribute to Mr. Haynes for the great advance he provided in improved transportation facilities, local dealers in Haynes cars announce that his firm will join with the Haynes Automobile Co. of Kokomo, in a nation-wide celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the automobile industry.

"This month completes the first quarter century of wonderful achievements directly traceable to the original invention of the automobile by Mr. Haynes, in 1893," says Archibald Moonlight.

"But the inventor's work did not stop there. He has since improved and has contributed much to science by the many new alloys he has originated which have been of tremendous aid in perfecting the automobile. One of these inventions is Stellite, a super-hard metal which is now almost universally used for the cutting edges of high-speed metal cutting tools. Another is stainless steel, a new rustless metal of about twice the strength of ordinary steel. Both of these later inventions by the builder of the American automobile are being largely used in war work."

"The local dealer is exhibiting reproductions of the first automobile. Mr. Haynes and the inventor's old car are on display for the first time. They were originated and drawn by Mr. Haynes. He will read a paper on the development of the present Haynes 'Light Twelve,' and tell of the scientific many experiments looking toward the completion of a successful self-propelled vehicle. One fact he tells that it is not generally known is that Mr. Haynes found it necessary to reconstruct the old type motor on gasoline engines and invent a corbirator of his own before he could operate the "horaceus carriage" successfully. Mr. Haynes also invented the first automobile muffler and was the first to use aluminum in the construction of cars.

EXTRA TESTED TIRES A WAR TIME SAVING

Expert tests employed in the making of Racine Country Road and Racine Multi-Six Cord tires are proving a source of keen interest to the great American army of tire users. This interest is vividly reflected in the fact that dealers who sell these Racine Country Road products report a constantly increasing familiarity with the extra tests themselves and with the results therefrom.

The average automobile owner has known little enough of how tires are made. Cost and mileage, naturally, have been the chief points of consideration to him. He has ridden along busily on his way, happy if his tires stood up decently if they don't.

The Racine Rubber Company of Racine, Wisconsin, has gone enthusiastically into the task of acquainting the American car owner with the many manufacturing precautions taken in their factories at Racine. Extra tests, these precautions have been termed and letters from car owners in every corner of the nation, bear witness to the interest with which the manufacturers' educational efforts have been met.

"It has been commonly assumed," said the local Racine Country Road and Multi-Six Cord tire dealer, "that the automobile owner had not been interested in the technicalities of tire construction. This belief has been thoroughly disproved. War conditions have played a part, I believe, for with interest at the present time, people are more than ordinarily interested in hearing of manufacturing precautions that tend to make a better product."

Olds Motor Works

In the face of the fact that automobile construction has been constantly reduced and that it will soon become much harder to secure cars, it is surprising how many motorists still abide by some of the simplest rules of operation and upkeep, according to Mr. Seals of the Seals' Automobile Co., Detroit-based dealers in this city.

"As a matter of ordinary economy every man who drives a car," continued Mr. Seals, "should familiarize himself with at least the simple rules of automobile maintenance. The best way to do this is to get on speaking terms with the instruction book that is supplied with each car."

"The engineers that design any automobile go to a great deal of pains in their experimental work to determine how a car can be made to deliver the very best that is in it.

"For instance, Oldsmobile instruction books state very clearly that certain grades of oil should be used in the transmission and rear axle. Yet cars are constantly brought to our attention in which greases have been used. These units are designed to be lubricated by oil and it is an injustice to the car to use anything else and to its good. Every man who is discerning has certain peculiarities of his own that demand more than a general knowledge of upkeep. The answer lies in the instruction book.

"Furthermore, any man who is careless in this direction does not realize how much he is missing in the way of smooth operation; or how great a chance he may be taking.

"That the main thing to consider now is that it is almost criminal wastefulness to neglect to give a car the best treatment possible."

GREAT INTEREST SHOWN IN THE TENT PROGRAM

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT THE OHAUTAUQA AND PROGRAM EXCELLENT

Musical Features Prove Pleasing

Two Splendid Talks—Dr. Bushnell Discusses War and J. Burns Feud Elimination—Fine Lectures Tonight and Tomorrow.

Brain full of interest and teeming with patriotism and inspirational thought and with a musical program that proved to be all and more than was claimed for it by the advance notices, the second day of Twin Falls' popular Chautauque closed last night with the program presented to an audience that taxed the capacity of the big tent. The program yesterday afternoon, it is said, was given to one of the best afternoon audiences assembled in a Chautauque tent this season.

The Fenwick Newell concert company, who furnished the prelude both afternoon and evening, established an enviable reputation for themselves, featuring Mr. Newell, tenor, who with his well modulated voice won his way into the hearts of the Twin Falls music lovers. Mr. Newell, and a young man, will undoubtedly come to be not only one of the favorites of the Chautauque programs but as well a sort of national fame. His accompanist, Miss Mary Jane Griggs, presided well at the piano. Miss Shuehlin, an artist, pleased the audience with her interpretation of several numbers on the violin cello.

The lecture in the afternoon, by Dr. J. Bushnell, subject, "Meaning of the Great War," was a scholarly review of the historical points leading up to the great conflict, showing vividly the different German intrigues that made it impossible for a country with a regard for humanity and a love of liberty to remain neutral when a beast had been tearing out its very vitals and ruining and degrading the personal rights of smaller countries. The relation of the home people to the task of caring for an army was an important division of Dr. Bushnell's address and, coming as he does, an accredited government lecturer, his words carried with them even an added weight to his well informed interpretations of the big questions that confront the people of America today. Dr. Bushnell is an officer in the Reserve Officers training school and wears the uniform of a captain.

If it is the intention of the Chautauque management to save the features to the last, they have set a wonderful pace at the start to be followed. The lecture, "The Remnants of the Kentucky Mountaineer," by James Burns founder of that institution, will without question stand out in the future as one of the foremost speeches that has been made in the city, either in Chautauque or upon any other platform.

Just a life story, full to overflowing with human interest, and leaving each individual here with the thread of that story firmly stamped upon the mind with the inspiration that things great have but a vague beginning and mark for the good of a fellow being, furnished and guided by the Divine hand, cannot fail, even though many times it might seem that a frail bark might founder in the sea of adversity, a storm that would prove fatal.

James Burns when a boy lived in the heart of the Cumberland mountains of Kentucky. The feud were then at the most aggravated point in history. His father, a clergyman, did not wish to rear his family under conditions that were thus prevalent and moved to a place where he could have school advantages and where the spirit of the feud could not dominate the lives of his boys. But after a comparatively short time in school, young Burns realized that he was called the Master Mind that governs the actions of all, to do a work. He realized that the feuds that then existed to the point of keeping a splendid people in discord, must forever be stamped out and he turned his face toward the Kentucky Cumberland mountains and the home of his boyhood, to take up for a life work, the plans that had been laid out for him by the Creator. The story of his return and the dramatic recital of the time when the fruit of his labors was to be realized led to a climax in his story that fairly sawed every individual mind in the vast audience and the tenorship of the listeners was so keen at this point that the slightest move in any direction of the speaker might have been plainly heard, but this was not the care, no one moved and not a sound was heard save the voice of the speaker telling his wonderful narrative.

The story closed with the getting together of the Bakers and the Howards in an abandoned building, one pure of folded sitting on the opposite side of the room from the other, with Burns standing between them making his talk for the preservation of life and the stopping of the terrible family quarrels that had gradually grown into a district war. He appealed to the men for the sake of the generations that were to follow, and they forever quit their fighting and build a school house in order that the children of the Bakers and the Howards might have the same

Snake on Rampage Highest on Record

Hot Weather and Rain Melt Mountain Snow on Mountain Tops and Nearly All River Crossings Put out of Commission.

"No thoroughfare" across the Snake river in the word along the entire Twin Falls county river-line, with the single exception of the high bridge at Minto. At Shoshone falls, the ferry has not been running at all, although foot passengers have been crossed in a skiff. Water has been lapping over the Perrine bridge at Blue Lakes, and while some vehicles may have crossed there yesterday, it was not considered safe since the abutments have been damaged.

A private letter received at The TIMES office this morning and written Thursday evening from Niagara Springs, says that the Clear Lake bridge is under water, as also the one further west. That the windmill at Crystal Springs is overturned; and that four thousand young trout recently placed at the hatchery in that vicinity are probably all drowning themselves in the big river.

The high-water mark was evidently reached yesterday, as the ferryman at Shoshone falls reports that the water has fallen four inches this morning. He also says that, although the water will not be required for the ferry-hoist can again be used. The rise is an anomalous one, expected as it does all known reasons. The ferryman at the falls declares yesterday's flood was several feet above any previous stage during his nine year experience there, and other authority declares it to have been fifteen feet above low-water mark.

The fact that it has begun falling, however, indicates a return to normal conditions in the near future without addition to damage already done.

privileges, as are enjoyed by other people, are not allowed to share the blood of each other and to kill their lives of usefulness. At a point where the speaker least expected it the audience broke into a cheer and with this move the leader of the other faction arose and both came directly toward Burns. "I knew that if I stood silent I would never meet exactly where I was standing, so I moved back a few feet." I had seen these two men come together before and it was anything but a pleasant sight to witness. All at once the leader of the Bakers stopped, and instead of a warping threat he turned to the members of his clan that had simultaneously come to their feet and were following him in the center of the room, felt the call of the speaker and said, "boys, let's do that" and the leaders of the Bakers and the Howards clasped friendly hands for the first time in their life.

Following this narrative the speaker continued his story, telling of the building of the Omelia Institute, its modest beginning, including his election to the presidency of an educational institution that did not exist. The laying of the corner stone and the hardships undergone by the men with practically no implements to work with, had set their hearts toward the mark and were working night and day to accomplish the task which they had determined to do through inspiration.

The lecture was concluded with the story of the education of the first class who with the teachers who had long and hard to gain information which they in turn might be able to give to those that followed after. The teachers of the institution being without educational advantages found it necessary to learn lessons at night which they had assigned to classes for the next day and by the time the first class had graduated it developed that the pupils had also followed the idea of night study and had actually earned a whole year in four on the teachers and as the speaker said: "They were merely reviewing in my classes."

Although a personal narrative, it proved a strong appeal and resulted in leaving in the minds of the audience a determination to press forward and leave no stone unturned that might mean an opportunity to be of some assistance to a fellow being. It is such thoughts and inspirations as these that make the world a better place to live in with the best of them to our attention causes inspirations that often changes the entire trend of a life.

The program today calls for a prelude by the Morrison Smith company, Miss Morrison, a reader, and Miss Smith, a harpist with a lecture this afternoon, "The Gold at the Rainbow End," by Dr. Morton, and the lecture at night, Judge Bagot, who presided over the juvenile court in the city of Dayton, Ohio.

Sunday's program carries one of the best musical organizations in the Zedler Symphonic Quintet. These people are unqualifiedly recommended by Superintendent Flint, and he promotes the program with the best of the birdman, in the afternoon and Captain De Beaufort, late of the Belgian army, with his thrilling narrative of life in the trenches and the views of the interview and personal description of General von Hindenburg.
