STATE COUNCIL OF DEFENSE CALLS ATTENTION TO W.S.S.

Urges All to Get in Line Tomorrow to Help Boost the Sale of Baby Bonds and to Contribute to the Cause of Winning the War.

By proclamation of the president of the United States, tomorrow, June 28, has been designated as War Savings Day throughout the nation. President Wilson has called upon all citizens either on June 28 or prior thereto, to sign a card stating how many war savings stamps they now own, and how many they pledge themselves to buy during the remainder of the year 1918. There are two main objects in view: First, to bring to every individual his responsibility in this particular part of the war work, and second, to enable the government to know by the end of June, approximately where they stand in the matter of funds to be realized from the war savings stamps.

The state war savings headquarters, after holding a series of conferences with the county war savings directors, has arranged to put on a war savings pledge card campaign in each of the counties. For the most part the actual work of presenting the pledge cards to all the citizens will be done during the week of June 24 to June 28. The machinery of the county defense councils in practically all of the counties of Idaho has been put at the disposal of the county director of war savings, and each prefect or sector will be systematically canvassed.

By this proclamation of president Wilson, every citizen is practically drafted into the army of war savers. There are no exemptions. This war savings army constitutes the greater second line of defense. Idaho's surplus train must carry eight and one-half million war savings dollars; this means that every citizen must willingly and cheerfully do his utmost in the way of weekly or monthly purchases of war savings stamps.

Furthermore, the pledge card carries a solemn agreement to abstain from the purchase of non-essential articles which are unnecessary for real efficiency—in order that he may not compete against the government for the labor of skilled workmen, and the materials which the government needs. Also each person is urged to become a member of some war savings society in order that those who naturally associate together may be of mutual assistance in planning to do the utmost for their government in this respect.

Now is the time when all of us must face squarely the question, not of whether we are doing our part in this war savings campaign, and whether we are doing our utmost to promote dependence of the United States, the one hundred and forty-second. ALEXANDER, Governor. Attest: W. T. DOUGHERTY, Secretary of State.

Ruth Candidate For Home Run Kingship

By Jack Velock (L. N. Sports Editor)
NEW YORK, June 27.—Babe Ruth is a likely candidate for the title of home run king in the big show this year.

The husky heater and hitter of the Boston Red Sox established a major league record in home run making when he slammed out four straight circuit swats in consecutive games. Ruth's hitting this season has been remarkable. He has always been rated as a dangerous-biting pitcher, but his home run with the billow has never occasioned the comment it has aroused this year.

A good many critics are classing Ruth as the hardest hitter in baseball. A few have gone so far as to class him as the hardest hitter the game has ever known.

There is no doubt about the power behind Ruth's heavy swings. He hits from a free and natural position and he takes a terrific swing at the ball. When he connects it is pay dirt for if he gets a little bounce to a hit there isn't a wall far enough away to block the path of the ball.

Early this season Ruth tied the Caldwell record by making three homers in three days.

He had seven homers to his credit at the time this article was written and at his present rate he will pass Walter Pipp's mark of 107, when the Yankee first sacker made nine circuit swats, and also the twin mark of twelve each established in the national league last year by Gavvy Cravath and Davy Robertson.

NEW KIND OF CRIMINAL

NEW YORK, June 26.—The police of the metropolis are this afternoon searching for a new type of criminal as the result of finding the dead body of Helen Schmitzer, 12 years old school girl.

Several days ago, after appearing at a Japanese dancing girl at a church entertainment, Helen's hire was ejected from her bed by a midnight intruder as she lay asleep. This morning she was found asphyxiated and it was at first supposed she had been smothered by the intruder.

Investigation showed, however, the police say, that she could not have turned on the gas herself and a squad of detectives was immediately assigned to the case.

Light Weight and Scientific Light Weight

There is more difference than most people understand between Light Weight and Scientific Light Weight as applied to automobiles.

Any motor car manufacturer can, and many of them do, make light weight motor cars. You may be sure that they all advertise this fact, but they decline to come into the court of public opinion and show that the lightening of weight has been based on scientific principles.

Notice the Franklin—lightest in weight of all cars of class. With the Franklin the weight is so distributed that the car travels easily, safely and comfortably over the roughest of roads—constituting the least possible amount of gas and oil, wearing out tires very slowly, and by reason of scientific construction, the car maintains its value longer than all other cars under either easy or hard usage.

Scientific Light Weight—the turning out of a motor vehicle weighing 2300 pounds, in comparison with other cars of the same grade that weigh at least a ton more, explains one of many reasons for the name Franklin to stand in the mind of automobile users as the one best American car.

Come and ride in one.

Plan For Action In Russia Says Sokine

Member of Moscow Commission of German Government Has Hope For the Republic in His Land.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Declaration that a powerful movement is now in progress in Russia to precipitate action on plans for the salvation of the country was made this afternoon by John Sokine, a member of the Russian commission sent here by the Kerensky government a year ago. Sokine has just returned from Paris and said that the Russian people will now welcome joint military action by the United States and the entente, though a few months ago such action would have been considered intolerable.

The movement to deliver Russia from German control, Sokine said, is supported by most of the Russian factions. German intervention has been brutal and violent, he said, and Russia now accepts that their relations in action by the allies. Russian sentiment has completely changed in a general movement in Russia to elect political parties excluding the bolsheviks. He rejected the "Brest-Litovsk terms. The Russian church, through the patriarch, is about to come out in favor of the allies and action by the allies will be followed by a general movement in Russia to organize a representative government which will accept the economic and military aid it is expected soon to be required.

Great Losses To The Austro-Hungarian Army

Over 100,000 Subjects of Emperor Charles Arde From German Prisoners Put Out of Commission.

LONDON, June 26.—Austrian losses in their recent retreat from the Piave were at least 100,000, with 18,000 prisoners and more uncounted, according to the latest estimates of the Italian general staff, the International News Service learned this afternoon. The staff calls the Austrian claim of equal numbers "a gross exaggeration." Operations in the Val Biella sector have been suspended following the taking by the Italians of prisoners and some ground against heavy resistance.

In the Monto Graepa sector, it is stated, and southwest of Monto Azzione, the Italians advanced a mile and are now within 500 yards of the line held by them June 15. The total prisoners taken at this point now 127,000.

The Piave is still flooded, which is preventing the Italians from establishing bridges, but not from valiantly attempting to do so. Between the old Piave and the new

LEAGUE OF NATIONS, BY WHICH WOULD PEACE IS CERTAIN, IS NOT ONLY POSSIBLE BUT PROBABLE, ACCORDING TO VIEWPOINT TAKEN BY VISCOUNT GREY

NEW YORK, June 27.—The possibility of the formation of a League of Nations, the necessity of such a plan, and the agreements necessary to the success of such a league, have been fully set forth by Viscount Grey, former British Foreign Secretary. These statements were given out by the British Information Office, Viscount Grey's statement, in part, follows:

"This war is the greatest trial of which there is any record in history. If war does not teach mankind new lessons that will so dominate thought and feeling of those who survive it and of those who succeed the survivors as to make new things possible, then war will be the greatest catastrophe as well as the most grievous trial and suffering of which mankind has any record."

"Therefore, it does not follow that a League of Nations to secure the peace of the world will remain impossible because it has not been possible hitherto."

"First, the idea must be adopted with earnestness and conviction by the executive heads of state. It must become an essential part of their practical policy, one of their chief reasons for being or continuing to be responsible for the policy of their states. They must not adopt it only to render firm service to other powers which is inconvenient or objectionable to them. They must lead and not follow. They must compel, if necessary, and not be compelled. The conflict was not present before the war. To what extent is it present now. It is not possible to answer this question fully, but we can be certain and affirmatively as regards President Wilson, the executive head of the United States, and this alone is sufficient to give new life and purpose to the idea of a League of Nations."

"Wilson and his country have had in this matter the great advantage of having been for more than two years and a half before April 1917, able to observe the war as neutrals, free from intense anxiety and effort that absorb all thought and energy of belligerents. They were able not only to observe but to reflect and to draw conclusions. One of the conclusions has been that if the world of which they form an important part is to be saved from what they consider a great evil, they must enter the war against Germany. Another has been that if the governments of the allies are secured in future there must be a League of Nations to secure them."

"It must not be supposed from this that the governments of the allies are less ready to draw war than they have drawn the same conclusion from experience of war, but their countries have been fighting it all the time. They have been fighting it in the true, the same idea of national human liberty as the United States, but fighting also for the immediate preservation of national existence in Europe, and all their thought and energy has been concentrated upon resistance to invasion of the formation of a League of Nations. Nevertheless, in this connection, at any rate, the project of a League of Nations has met with widespread cordial acceptance. On the other hand, the military party in Germany are and must remain opposed to it. They resent any limitation upon the use of force by Germany as fatal to German interests, for they can conceive no development and even no security except on a one based solely upon force."

"Germany has to be convinced that force does not pay; that the policy of her military rulers inflict intolerable and also unnecessary suffering upon her and that when the world is free from menace of these military rulers, with their arms, aiming armies and naval fleets, Germany will find peaceful development assured and preferable to expansion by war and will realize that condition of true security for one nation is the sense of security on the part of all nations."

"The second condition essential to the foundation of the maintenance of the League of Nations is that governments and peoples of the states willing to found it understand clearly that it will impose some limitation upon national action of each, and may entail some 'inconvenient' obligation: smaller and weaker nations will have the rights that must be respected and upheld by the league."

"Stronger nations must forego the right to make their interests prevail against the weaker force, and the League must be able to resort to force before other methods of settlement by conference, conciliation, or if need be, arbitration, have been tried. This is limitation."

"The obligation is that if any nation will not observe this limitation upon its national actions, if it breaks agreement which is the basis of the League, reflects all peaceful methods of settlement, and resorts to force against other nations, they must assist and all use their combined force against it. The economic pressure that the League could use would in itself be very powerful, and the action of some of the smaller states compelling the League could not go beyond the economic pressure, but those states that have power must be ready to use all force, economic, military or naval, they possess, and be clearly understood and accepted that deflection from or violation of the agreement by one or more states does not

THE TIMES is an Independent Democratic newspaper; but it knows no politics as opposed to the most unself and vigorous prosecution of the war that is possible... THE NONPARTISAN CRY

The particular cry of non-partisanship of which we speak now is the one raised by our friends, the Republicans, who pretend to find grave reason for fault in the fact that cabinet officers of the nation are held by Democrats...

They hark back to the days of Lincoln and assert that he called men from both parties to the cabinet, and this is true. But it will be remembered that the conditions existent in this country during a period of civil strife were different from those existing during the conduct of a foreign war...

The general conditions under our arms in France is a Republican. Former President William Howard Taft has a position of responsibility. Former Secretary Ross was sent to Russia as head of the mission there.

Here then is the line of division. The preliminary policy does not mean that Germany shall be admitted unwhipped and unpunished into a league to enjoy to all the privileges of the class of honorable nations. But it does mean that a foundation for ultimate international amity of a league of independent nations founded by states associated now in war for democracy that will eventually include the whole world shall be laid.

And just a word about the teased over the fact that Teddy was not appointed against the advice of the general staff to lead a division abroad or that he was not appointed here at home for some big place. There is not an intelligent Republican in this state who does not know that Teddy will not actually work anywhere unless he bosses the job. Their own actions in 1912 and in 1916 show that while they are would be glad to join him on a Democratic administration...

Glory of Old-Time Fourth of July, With Torpedoes, Roman Candles and Firecrackers Galore To Again Again Herald American Patriotism in the East

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The glory of the old-time Fourth of July with firecrackers, roman candles and torpedoes galore, will herald American patriotism to every corner of the land on Independence Day, 1918. The war has not curtailed the supply of fireworks, but it has caused the enactment of the explosive regulations law, which provides for the licensing of all manufacturers and purchasers who deal in explosives, and the fireworks regulations will be enforced this year by the bureau of mines of the department of the interior. But the law had in mind the Fourth of July celebration and the time-honored Chinese firecracker may be purchased along with other pyrotechnic delights without necessity of a license when the explosive article does not cost more than ten cents a package. Fireworks will be available in most their usual forms, with the exception of the huge cannon crackers and high power rockets. These dangerous toys have been dropped from the list for safety's sake, both to prevent accidents due to carelessness and to keep such powerful explosive from the easy reach of the young. The biggest cracker permitted this year must not be more than three-quarters of an inch in diameter. Roman candles must not contain more than twenty balls in this year's display, and the sooting rocket which in former years sprang through the heavens like a comet, must not weigh more than three pounds, which is ample size for the most patriotic display. The schoolboy can revel this Fourth in the old squitlers and snappers and crackers and crackers, and purchase hundreds of rounds of tin cans will be pressed into service to rise above the street after an explosion of a fire-cracker. Wholes of all kinds will be manufactured and retail prices, colored lights and safety signals will be available for the night-time. The Vesuvius and "Son of a Gun" torpedoes will boom and bang, as usual, along the streets, and the Jack-in-the-box, miter, trolley and paper caps will provide din and diversion in celebration of the nation's birth.

To warrant any curtailment in manufacturing and the gunpowder used in fireworks was likewise discovered to be of an inferior grade, and therefore of little value in making ammunition. The law permits the use of some fireworks which have been in stock and may say that all rockets and roman candles of greater size than named in the regulations, and all shells up to six inches in diameter which had been manufactured prior to November 10, 1917, and are now stored in factories or in the hands of jobbers or retailers, may be sold under license. The use of star shells by the armies in France has increased the need for illuminating devices similar to a glorified sky rocket, but development of this kind of protection has advanced so that the ingredients form a specialized product, and the light powers used by the American-made fireworks have been permitted to be manufactured, as usual, for the pyrotechnic shops. The government will keep a strict watch over the vast quantity of explosives consumed on Independence Day. Persons buying more than 25 pounds of any kind will be required to have a license, and to enforce the regulations the president has appointed an explosives inspector for every state.

principle of strife for the benefit of a few in each nation, is a vital question as pregnant with possibilities for the future as the winning of the war itself. Under such circumstances a cabinet containing men, however honest and able, not heartily in accord with the spirit of the presidential policy would necessarily bring discord and result in defeating the great object which makes victory worth the sacrifice of blood this nation is making. It is because the ending of a foreign war always involves the solution of problems which touch the vital principles on which parties are founded, that in such conflicts the advisers of the president have always been necessarily in harmony with his line of action.

foreign minister made the speech in consequence of some understanding with the emperor. The Kaiser is a shrewd, cold-blooded politician, and wants, above all things, to save his throne and his financial investments. He wants to rule the earth but he is every reason to believe that he is not a "fastidious" man. A ruler who would make a present of an allied country the composition of which might be discovered in his life-time to a yacht club, is not fit to be double-crossing the military set. Besides he knows full well that their promise of future triumph will not delude him. The discussion which is now going on must weaken the influences of the military leaders in Germany and while the emperor is unwilling to totally shied the man who started it, yet there can be little doubt that he is glad to reduce the influence of an element which he may wish to abandon definitely when fortune begins to run strongly against them. The events of today indicate more strongly than ever that the German ruler is not covered by his own "bunk" about the co-operation of "Gott," but is trusting to his own ability as a demagogue to get out of the difficulties into which he has gotten himself and his country. More than ever before must the American people wish to overthrow a regime that is already shaking. Conditions in Germany as well as Austria today promise victory sooner than many anticipated, though preparations should be made for a four-year war, for all signs may fail. But anyhow, push!

to warrant any curtailment in manufacturing and the gunpowder used in fireworks was likewise discovered to be of an inferior grade, and therefore of little value in making ammunition. The law permits the use of some fireworks which have been in stock and may say that all rockets and roman candles of greater size than named in the regulations, and all shells up to six inches in diameter which had been manufactured prior to November 10, 1917, and are now stored in factories or in the hands of jobbers or retailers, may be sold under license. The use of star shells by the armies in France has increased the need for illuminating devices similar to a glorified sky rocket, but development of this kind of protection has advanced so that the ingredients form a specialized product, and the light powers used by the American-made fireworks have been permitted to be manufactured, as usual, for the pyrotechnic shops. The government will keep a strict watch over the vast quantity of explosives consumed on Independence Day. Persons buying more than 25 pounds of any kind will be required to have a license, and to enforce the regulations the president has appointed an explosives inspector for every state.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—An independent government bureau to operate under the state department, but to have the widest cover along all lines, will be organized to deal with the economic side of the Russian problem, according to information from administration sources today. This bureau would deal directly with the problem of the commercial rehabilitation of Russia, would arrange financial help and generally administer the aid which the United States and England have now decided will be needed to wrest Russia from German control. LONDON, June 27.—Alexander Korcenky, former Russian premier, stated today that he was going back to Paris before leaving Europe for America. It is rumored in Copenhagen that the czar's former heir to the Russian throne, is dead, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen. COPENHAGEN, June 27.—Food riots have broken out in Petersburg. Bolshevik troops turned machine guns upon the mob. Grand Duke Michael is leading a coalition revolution in Omak. FORMER CZAR REPORTED VICTIM OF ASSASSIN WASHINGTON, June 27.—Swedish press dispatches telling of the reported assassination of Nicholas Romanoff, former czar of Russia, reaching the state department this afternoon. The soviet government, the dispatch added, says that these reports need confirmation.

Good Roads—The different effect that changing bad roads into good roads has on land value, and the general economic well-being of the community, is shown in several concrete illustrations gathered by the United States department of agriculture. The department has just issued a statement on the subject, based upon a mass of information gathered by the office of public roads, which is making a special study of the economic effect of road improvement in the country. According to data gathered, where good roads replace bad ones, the value of farm lands, holdings on the roads, increase to such an extent that the cost of road improvement would be more than repaid. The general land values, as well as farm values, showed marked advances, following the improvements of roads.

West Comfort Bed Work—The Twin Falls County Bed Case has been given a quota of 235 comfort bags to be made and returned by July 8. Because of the branches being so busy with regular work it is hoped that the women's club and high school girls will volunteer to do this work. The material may be secured at the supply rooms on Shoshone street or from Miss Crossland at the high school.

Insane Desires—The insane desire to be handsome has made more than one of our otherwise sensible girls do some downright crazy things. The powder and rouge smeared on the freckled cheeks is too an apparent deception for the prudent young man not to see and with which he is disgusted. He hates the taste. A freckled face with common sense is handsomer than the best powder can make a face.

A Slenderer—All of us perhaps would hold our hands in horror if accused of being a slenderer, yet, how much of the so-called innocent sport indulged in in most communities is nothing more than slenderness. How often do we see a bright young life crushed, and sometimes broken by the slenderer. It is probably started from some thoughtless remark, or even a significant look, that has grown and strengthened until, like a mighty serpent, it coils itself around its innocent victim, choking all the joy and brightness out of life.

OBSERVATIONS ON THE PLATFORM CONVENTION

What the Statesmen and Others Did at the Democratic Do-in as They Appeared on an Onlooker—Some Good Speeches.

The first requirement of successful politics is to know the man who can make more money working for private corporations, than he can make more money working for the people, and to know the man who can make more money working for the people, than he can make more money working for private corporations.

The first requirement of successful politics is to know the man who can make more money working for private corporations, than he can make more money working for the people, and to know the man who can make more money working for the people, than he can make more money working for private corporations.

John E. Davis made a ringing speech in the convention at night and called attention to a phrase which he said was the key to the reconstruction of the country. He pointed out the task of reconstruction that would develop upon us in self-defense should revolution break out in all the central powers and arise again in Russia.

The best part of a very able and interesting speech by Woodrow Wilson was that in which he replied to the charge that we should have entered the war sooner. He declared with great force that it was necessary to reorganize our fiscal and financial system before entering war or we would have been ruined.

Attorney General T. A. Walters, who if not in the hands of his friends is a constant for gubernatorial nomination and election, is at least believed to be in dangerous proximity to the place where a number of willing hands may be found, in the recovery of a wonderfully fine volume of language which he can say things very satisfactorily. He has the support of the principles of Jefferson, the nation of Lincoln and the ideals of Woodrow Wilson, naturally took the convention by right.

And when talking about government, Mr. Walters said that the Secretary of State is just as good as Secretary of State as long as he says he is Secretary of State.

NEW YORK, June 27.—"That's my boy," is the cry of the crowd.

That intense, strained feeling of patriotism which gripped every patriot of a little moving picture theater in the city on a recent night, seemed to catch fire from the words of the little mother who had taken her son in a trench scene take over there.

With one exception, the audience yelled, cheered and whistled. The one and only exception was the man through her tears. She was Joe's mother.

Flocking to Colors. Camps Overflow.

The way in which the soldiers of the republic are taking up arms at the present moment is illustrated by the sub-joined excerpt from a paper published at Camp Gordon, near Atlanta, Ga. This is one of the large cantonments, and when one reflects that the same conditions prevail at all of them; confidence in the promise of the war department for over three million Americans September 1st begins to grow. Says the paper in question:

"For the first time in its history as a military training center, Camp Gordon is full to the brim of soldiers of the regular and national army forces. In fact, so great is the tax upon the capacity of the camp that special camps have been established on the grounds of the usual detachment, and hundreds of hundreds are being under canvas."

"Judging all over the camp area in use by men who have reported here from camps all over the country and in a dozen states scattered about the United States. No crowding has been allowed, however, and all the boys are housed in the best of quarters."

"The canvas city, that stretches its boundaries all over the big drill-ground of the casual detachment, is now a vast sea of canvas, and is populated by 3,000 men who arrived here this week from 'Columbia' barracks, Ohio, and it is understood that included in the replacement forces of the camp."

"It has suburbs in a number of six camps scattered about the depot buildings, and in several instances special camps have been established to accommodate the men who are being trained here."

"Eight thousand more select men from the state of Georgia will come into the camp this month, and quarters will have to be provided for the military officials will probably experience little trouble along this line, and the men will be well housed in the tents and vacancies in buildings will occur."

"The new men who have filled the replacement lines of the camp are now well marked on the three-month training course recently announced by the War Department, and the field in the shortest possible time."

"Hard and enthusiastic work is being done, the recreation constantly being held in a line of best business of drilling, and training. The new men are going to develop into the finest of the army, and the officers are taking great pleasure in training such intelligent and willing soldiers."

Hollister Items

Hayes is now going in full force. Prospects for a pretty fair crop of hay this year are good.

Mr. Keith W. Jones is visiting his father, Mr. W. A. Jones, at his home here. It is rumored that the water will be turned into the canal again about the fourth of July.

A war savings stamp drive is on here. The committee, G. M. Hill, G. A. Bevilacqua, G. W. James, J. G. Schwing and W. H. Craven, all busy in an effort to put Hollister up to his eyes.

All the friends of Miss Jennie Doolittle will be glad to hear that she is doing nicely and will soon be with us again.

Young people of the community will present in the near future a play entitled "Hilgbee of Harvard." In three acts. The play will be for the benefit of the Red Cross.

The First Infantry Guns Weighed 75 Pounds

FOOT soldiers began to carry firearms about 1350, huge, clumsy guns weighing from 25 to 75 pounds.

More hard cannon, iron or copper tubes, they were leveled by a forked support, and fired at a touch-hole.

With the invention of the wheel-lock arquebus, in 1517, the first self-firing gun; the musket, was a quickstep.

Like the first guns, automobile tires, when Goodrich began to develop them, were crude, clumsy affairs, and it's a long, long road of improvement to the symmetrical—

GOODRICH SERVICE VALUE TIRES

The history of the last twenty-two years of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company is pretty much the history of pneumatic automobile tires.

But whether Goodrich was bringing forth America's first clincher tire, or America's first cord tire—

Goodrich built tires to but one end—SERVICE VALUE to the user—the worth of the tire to the motorist on his car and on the road in comfort, economy, dependability and durability, and mileage.

That is why the tire user to-day gets the utmost SERVICE VALUE in GOODRICH SILVERTOWN CORDS, and BLACK SAFETY TREADS.

A Revenue and Expense Problem

IT IS costing more today to give telephone service than it ever has before in the history of the telephone business.

It costs more to install a telephone.

It costs more to take out a telephone.

It costs more to move a telephone.

It costs more to repair a telephone.

It costs more to connect one telephone with another.

Poles cost more; copper costs more; lead costs more; iron costs more.

Every item of labor and material employed in the maintenance and operation of the plant costs more.

In face of all these increased costs telephone rates have remained unchanged, consequently our revenues have not kept pace with the steadily increased expenses.

We have introduced the most rigid economies. We have held down expenses to the lowest point that could safely be touched without impairing the quality of the service. But notwithstanding our best efforts a deficit has been gradually piling up until it has reached a figure amounting to $1,334,062.02. Our experience in the last fourteen months promises no hope of improved conditions, for each month shows a larger deficit than that of the preceding month.

The only remedy lies in rate adjustments which will result in increased revenues. It is a problem of getting the revenue above the expense, which unquestionably is necessary to insure to the public continuously efficient service by preserving the financial integrity of the Company.

WASHINGTON REPUBLICANS PLAN CONGRESSIONAL AND LEGISLATIVE SLATE TODAY

TACOMA, Wash., June 27.—The Republican state convention opened here today with more than 1,000 delegates seated. The appointment of delegates is based on the vote received by Senator Miles Pollock at the last general election.

While this is an off-year so far as the presidential election is concerned, it is situated because of a war-time congress to be elected. In state politics the election of a legislature and at least three judges to the supreme court to fill vacancies has an important bearing on the situation. Five representatives are expected to be elected from the state.

The convention is expected to adopt a declaration of principles upon which the candidates of the Republican party in Washington can base their platforms and ask support.

OLD GLORY FILMS FROM ALTITUDE OF 360 FEET

BOSTON, June 27.—What is perhaps the highest film flown in Greater Boston, if not all New England, took its flight on the 305-foot wireless tower at Tufts college. The film is 12 1/2 feet long and from a forty-foot tall platform at least three judges to the supreme court to fill vacancies has an important bearing on the situation. Five representatives are expected to be elected from the state.

LITTLE ROCK MERCHANTS HAVE FIXED SPUD PRICE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 27.—Arkansas farmers who planted a large number of Irish potatoes are indignant. Little Rock potatoes they find no longer selling Irish potatoes at $2 a bushel. The merchants decline to buy the potatoes of the Arkansas farmers, although the farmers have offered a low as eighty cents a bushel.—Merchants claim the price is fixed at $2; that they cannot afford to buy them; that they have bargained with northern commission houses for their supply for the season based on that figure. An investigation is being made.
