PRESIDENT RUMOR THAT GRAND DUKE NICHOLAS IS NEW RULER

Political Events and Possibilities Over-shadow the Actions of Armies on the Battle Fronts—Unrest Grows in Austria-Hungary—One Story Has It That Grand Duke Michael Was Offered Throne and Refused It—United States Officials Interested but Refuse to Comment on Situation.

(Frank Charlton, I. N. S. (able Editor)

Political developments again overshadowed the military situation today as the operations on the various battle fronts continue to be confined to enterprises of a minor character.

Of great importance, if true, was the rumor coming out of Stockholm that the Bolshevik regime in Russia had been overthrown and that Lenin and Trotsky, the head and front of the Bolshevik movement had fled from Moscow. It must be accepted with the utmost reserve, however. The radiogram received in London from Stockholm, quoting a Swedish newspaper, stated that former Grand Duke Nicholas one time commander in chief of the Russian armies, had been "elected" emperor.

Nicholas is a thorough autocrat and has been in seclusion for some time although there have been rumors that he was engaged in counter-revolutionary activity.

Unrest in Austria-Hungary is growing and Budapest has been completely tied up by a general strike. The Socialist workmen in the Hungarian capital have formed an organization and adopted a resolution demanding an immediate peace.

The political turmoil in Germany aroused by the foreign secretary's speeches and the chancellor's effort to "interpret" them has led to the latter being called to German great headquarters by the Kaiser.

There is a possibility that both von Kuehlmann, the foreign secretary, and von Hertling, the chancellor, may be forced from office as a result of the agitation.

Another turn was given to the Russian situation late this afternoon by an Exchange Telegraph dispatch received in London, which stated that Grand Duke Michael, who is heading an anti-Bolshevik revolt in the district of Omsk, had declined the throne, leaving the decision to the All Russia assembly.

It had been stated in previous dispatches that Grand Duke Michael had gone to Omsk to lead the revolutionary forces there. (Grand Duke Michael must not be confused with Grand Duke Nicholas.)

Two months ago when it appeared that the Germans were planning a drive against the former city, General Korniloff and General Kaledin were formed at the head of a general fighting against the Bolshevik, when the Germans and Bolshevik were carrying on friendly negotiations.

LONDON, June 28.—The Bolshevik foreign secretary was today reported to have received a dispatch from the government of ex-Czar Nicholas of Russia, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen.

RURAL TRANSPORTATION BY THE MOTOR EXPRESS SYSTEM

National Council of Defense Sets Forth Advantages of the Plan—Details and Suggestions For the Greater Extension of the Motor Method of Carrying Uncle Sam's Mails and Helping Win the War.

The heads of the several councils of defense and the county agents in the numerous farm bureaus in each state have received the following letter referring to the rural motor express, followed by a report made by the highways transport committee:

The following:
Washington, D. C., May 10, 1918.
614 Munsey Building.

Dear Sir: A new and unusual development in the rural motor express, of particular advantage to the rural population, is described in the enclosed bulletin. The purpose of the council of national defense in urging the establishment of rural motor express lines is the conservation of food and man power, as well as the promotion of rural, social and economical transportation to the rural sections.

To secure the extension of rural motor express lines we have the cooperation of the state, county, city, federal, state and local food administrators, representatives of the employment service, the national council of labor and other organizations interested in improving transportation facilities.

The highways transport committee is being organized to direct the work in your state. An announcement concerning the plan of this committee will come to you direct from your state council. In the meanwhile, we suggest that you give attention to any local transportation situations which the rural motor express may help to improve.

Very sincerely yours,
HIGHWAYS TRANSPORT COMMITTEE,
COUNCIL OF NATIONAL DEFENSE.

The following is a complete report following an investigation by the above committee: The transportation burden on the railroads and highways of the country has been tremendously increased by the war. There is a larger load to be carried, of manufactured goods, raw materials, and foodstuffs. Not only his production of manufactures, raw materials, and farm products increased, but it is now necessary to transport a much larger proportion of these goods over long distances. The burden on the railroads is increased by the fact that we have removed across the sea, 3,000 miles away, a considerable part of our foodstuffs. These must be protected and maintained. These men were in our army camps last winter. This year there are other men in these camps and we must handle goods and foodstuffs not only to these 300 new cities but to a great population 2,000 miles away.

It is absolutely necessary to utilize to the maximum and to extend the use of the highways by the most efficient use of motor vehicles which can operate independent of fixed lines or terminals where congestion of traffic is likely to occur. The motor truck can help the railroad by reducing the short-haul load, and also act as a feeder line in sections far removed from market.

Added to the increased loads of goods to be transported is the fact that man power must be conserved. Hereafter the farmer has done his own hauling to market, but adoption of the rural motor express will enable him to delegate his hauling and to devote his own time to farm operations. An enormous waste of time and labor of both man and team can be prevented by consolidating the small loads from a number of farms into a single load to be carried by a motor truck.

In many localities local food supplies are in need of development. A better use must be made of agricultural lands in the immediate vicinity of population centers. It improves the business of the local community and adds to the local food supply of the country. The improvement of marketing facilities through the opening of regular daily traffic to market centers and shipping points is a most effective agency in encouraging food production.

We have, therefore, three outstanding facts the demand increased attention has given to the increased use of the highways for rural transportation:

1. The increased volume of foodstuffs to be hauled.
 2. The need for more labor on farms.
 3. The need to encourage local food production.
- The Purpose of Rural Motor Express
The motor truck has demonstrated its adaptability to the hauling of farm products. It is dependable wherever the roads are capable of carrying its load. The use of the motor truck for farm transport is growing rapidly and in the vicinity of many cities regular routes are now being established. The purpose of the organization of rural express on a national scale is to bring to agricultural communities throughout the country the understanding of the greater benefits to be derived from regular daily service over the main highways from farm to city and from city to farm.

The Plan of Organization
The council of national defense adopted the following resolution on March 14, 1918:
"The council of national defense approves the widest possible use of the motor truck as a transportation agency, and requests the state council of defense and other state authorities to take all necessary steps to facilitate such means of transportation, removing any regulations that tend to restrict and discourage such use."

The highways transport committee of the council of national defense is charged to carry out the purpose of this resolution. The several state councils of defense have been asked to appoint highway transport committees, or to delegate the organization of rural express to some committee which will have charge of the development of the work within the state. These state committees will in turn forward the work through local representatives to the rural sections.

Indorsements of Rural Express
The council of national defense approved the widest possible use of the motor truck in its resolution of March 14, 1918.
The post office department has demonstrated the value of motor truck transportation through experimental lines of parcel post trucks on win operation in several of the eastern states.

The United States food administration has approved the plan in the following statement by the food administrator:
"The development of the rural motor express line, in my opinion, is in the line of progress and should be returned to the benefit of the producer, the consumer, and the railroads. This means of transportation should facilitate delivery, conserve labor, conserve foodstuffs, and should effect delivery of food in better condition."

The United States department of agriculture through its bureau of markets has inaugurated an investigation of the efficiency of motor-truck transportation in the marketing of farm products.
The United States department of labor through its employment service urges the adoption of motor-truck transportation facilities in order to conserve the time of men in farming neighborhoods during the period of planting, cultivation, and harvest, so as to relieve the farm labor shortage.

The preliminary survey by the highways transport committee in sections of Maryland and Virginia have shown that farmers and merchants enthusiastically indorse the plan and wherever rural motor express lines have been properly developed they have received the support of the communities which they serve.

Present Development of Rural Express
The rural express is in successful operation in the vicinity of many of the larger cities. The development of this system of transportation has been particularly rapid in Maryland and a survey of existing routes in this state has been made by the highways transport committee and shows the general possibilities of the plan.

A detailed survey was made of 23 routes, leading from agricultural sections into Baltimore, Md., and Washington, D. C. On these routes 30 trucks were found in operation; the total capacity of these trucks was 73 tons; the mileage traveled daily was 1,674 miles; the average length of the routes was about 50 miles for the round trip. Most of these routes are operated by truck owners living at the outer terminal, making daily round trips into the marketing center. Many of these routes are operated by farmers, and illustrate the advantages of motor-truck transportation by using trucks for their individual needs.

These lines have been developed on a sane, practical basis without any special promise or encouragement from any state or national organization. The trucks are small, are gathered along the road to the city, deliver it at the market, and return a return load from city merchants, including orders by farmers and secure to the country terminal, delivering the orders along the route. These lines have developed chiefly on the roads of the state road system where the condition of the roads facilitate the use of trucks. Many farmers living short distances away from the rural express route bring their milk and produce to a point on the route with horse-drawn barges and wagons and these consign to feeders to the lines.

A preliminary survey for the state of California has been made, showing an extensive use of motor trucks for passenger, freight, and express hauling throughout that state. Over 124 existing lines were found, some traveling routes as long as 126 miles on daily trips. Large quantities of farm produce are hauled and charged are made according to published rates. The excellent highways of California made it possible for these lines to develop rapidly.

The detailed survey among patrons of a number of these routes discloses the fact that there are three great economic advantages in this method of transportation:
1. Food production is stimulated since the results outlet to market encourages many farmers to expand production which they would not be justified in doing if they were obliged to transport their own produce to market.
2. Shortage of labor is greatly offset from the fact that the system leaves the farmer on the farm and his time is not consumed in trips to market.

3. There is immediate improvement in the efficiency of the farm since supplies, machinery, and repairs can be secured promptly from city distributors of fertilizers and farm machinery.
From the national standpoint these

Kaiser's Possession Embraces Many Miles, but Ho Square Meals, Says This Writer.

The German empire, better known as the German vulture, embraces 200,000 square miles, but not a single square mile, says the Brooklyn Eagle. It comprises four highlands, six grand duchies and 3,875,531 grand possessions. Its outline and location is highly irregular. On the east it bounds Poland. On the north it is bounded by the allied fleets and on the west by General Haig.

The principal waterways of Germany are the Rhine and the Kiel canal. The high C's now under its control are confined to the open house. The Kiel canal is used for exercise by the bottled ships on pleasant Sundays.

The seaboard, greatly restricted, like all other kinds of board, is known as the high cost of living. The country is not entirely on the level. It has in the interior a large table land, entirely empty. There are also deep depressions in all parts of the nation.

"Prinzi," the capital, was established in the thirteenth century. It is now in ruins. It is not yet recovered. The inhabitants are divided into two main classes—junkers and junkies.

The present leader is Kaiser Billings II. His principal occupation is loafing. There is something warmer than that in store for him. It sounds something like Hitlerland. The crown prince is the barely apparent.

The national motto is "Spurlos vernekt."

CAPITAL WELL WORTH VISIT

Merida, Chief City of Yucatan, Is by No Means Lacking in Attractions for Tourist.

A capital which most tourists never visit and of whose very existence many people are ignorant in Merida, the chief city of Yucatan, Yucatan is one of the richest American provinces and, to go further into the intricacies of geography, forms the right arm of the Gulf of Mexico. Merida is a city, officially known to exist in 1512, which the Spaniards laid the cornerstone with much ceremony and proclaimed grandly that the very royal and noble city of Merida was founded by his most Catholic majesty, Philip II, and was on the map.

Since then Merida has grown considerably, acquired a plaza, cathedral, university, hotels and a goodly number of the chief attractions of Merida itself a city of some importance.

One governor of Yucatan, with a well-developed sense of civic and national pride, tried to separate the wealthy citizens of the capital from some of their surplus charges for improvement of the city. The millionaire element could not see how it would gain anything by installing the beautifully paved boulevards desired so graphically by their promoter and refused to contribute. But the governor placed a tax on the benches, the chief source of Merida's wealth, and with the proceeds, which ran into millions of dollars, he laid pavements which made walking and driving in the city a joyous affair, instead of the unpleasant necessity which it had been.

Thrasinas Used "Tanks"

The modern tank had its precursor, however, in the crude, noisy Christiania. Science Monitor. One can read all about it in Alexander the Great's exploits. Just to show their dislike of Alexander in particular, and of Pan Hellenism in general, the Thrasinas invented war machines in the shape of wooden wagons and conveyed them to Mount Inocuous, so to command the pass through which Alexander's soldiers must march. At the critical moment, the big lumbering wagons, loaded with rock, were fired straight on the helpless men below. Alexander, however, met this onslaught by ordering his men to lie down, and to interlock their shields above them, so that the rocks would not even strike the road of shields. By this maneuver, we are told, he saved his army from annihilation.

Memorandum

Sanjo Domingo—A few evenings ago our warden, Sweet (who, by the way, doesn't deserve his name at all), was dining at a "Fonda" with one of our one-eyed dancels and was looking over the menu when he asked me whether she would have a little shrimp. She blushed deeply and answered in subdued tones: "Oh, Mr. Duce, you are so sudden." Sweet, of course, denied it, but you never know how big like we do—"Sittin' Jim," 4th Co., U. S. M. Wasn't Doing It for Fun.
A London bar was visited last night by an air raid mounted a British three-hen gun, mounted on an automobile truck, took up a position directly in front of his house. He went out and asked the officer in charge whether the gun farther down the street, as the racket was too much for his nerves, and got this reply: "Look here, do you take this for a blooming bulldogger?"

Here's German Efficiency

German industrial efficiency is so nearly a fetish in the popular mind that it is a distinct shock to hear it challenged by competent authority. "In my young days," said a contractor at a recent trade gathering, "we awarded a contract to bridge one of the chief western streams to a lot of German engineers. They said they didn't blame it if they didn't build the cutwater of the piers downstream."

rural express is convincing evidence that the expansion of the system is an immediate necessity, both for its value in meeting the present emergency and as a means of permanently improving rural transportation. What has already developed becomes an integral part of our national transportation system.

The present straits on our transportation facilities has emphasized our need for improved means of internal communication not only between cities but also reaching out into every agricultural community.

The rural motor express is, however, a development to meet the emergency only, but rather an expansion of transportation facilities to meet the growing demand; to bring the consumer in closer touch with the producer; to relieve the producer of the burden of marketing his produce and permit him to remain on the land where his labor is of highest value to the community.

The Organization of New Routes—The state highway transportation committees are organizing local committees in all communities where there appears to be the need for improved rural transportation. The local committee first secures co-operation of the local press and leading organizations interested in transportation and food supplies. Among the various groups which might be interested are the following: Chambers of commerce, boards of trade, merchants' associations, local food administrators, farmers' clubs, county agricultural agents, dealers in farm implements, feed, fertilizers, grain, and other farm products.

Meetings of the representatives of these organizations are held to explain the plan of rural express and to make general survey of local needs. Among the facts that are brought out at such meetings are the following:

1. Experience of existing motor-trucks in the locality.
2. Instances of localities now lacking such facilities.
3. Conditions of highways in such localities.
4. Labor shortage among farmers.
5. Transportation facilities of country merchants—from wholesale centers.

After a general survey of the country or district has been made the local committee conducts an intensive survey by means of mailed questionnaires or personal visits among farmers and merchants along route of prospective lines. Lists of names of farmers and merchants are secured through county agricultural agents or their local organizations.

When a new route for a certain section has been determined, the committee proceeds to consult owners of trucks, farmers and other private owners to locate a man to establish the route. Questions of scale of charges, the schedule of the trips, character of produce to be carried, etc., are worked out by the committee on the basis of experience of existing lines in the same community, or other lines which have been surveyed by the state committee.

Based suggestions on conducting these local surveys, methods of making surveys through questionnaires, questions concerning roads, charges, etc., will be furnished by the highway transport committee of the council of national defense through the state committees. The plan of organization is to adapt the service as perfectly as possible to local requirements, utilizing at the same time the experience, common sense and good will of the country as gathered by state and national committees.

Twenty-six Are From Other Places

Extra Men Called to Fill All Possible Vacancies—Number From this County's List Will Entrain Elsewhere.

One hundred and twenty-nine men, of whom 103 are from Twin Falls county, will leave tomorrow night for Camp Lewis for the purpose of serving under the colors in the great war. Of these, the twenty-six first named below were transferred from outside local boards to the contingent of this county. At the head of the home detachment is David Gindler, whose brother was killed in the war some time ago while serving in a Canadian regiment. Mr. Gindler has a wife and baby and a good position, but asked to be transferred from Class No. 4 to Class No. 1, so as to be eligible to the draft more quickly.

There are 143 names on the list, so that should some fall to appear when called, others will take their places.

RURAL TRANSPORTATION, ETC.

routes aid in several ways:

1. They relieve the railroads of local freight which permits carload lots of materials and feedstuffs from distant points to enter the terminal.
2. They help to avoid the necessity for local freight embargoes.

The need for the system of carrying to market without requiring men and teams is generally recognized by farmers and where production of the individual farmer has justified the purchase of a motor truck, the adoption has been very rapid during the past few years. On many farms, however, the quantity of production is not sufficient to justify the investment in a truck by the individual farmer so he must maintain his teams for farm power. The use of the rural express with its greater speed enables the farmer to operate the same or an increased acreage with fewer horses, making more land available for food production which was previously needed to grow grain and hay for teams. In many instances, the introduction of rural express has enabled farmers to engage in the production of milk which requires daily marketing, making more land available for food production in carrying more complete stocks of goods; in filling special orders promptly, and in avoiding temporary shortages of staples due to delayed shipments or embargoes on the railroad. In many instances the country merchants have reported that their business has been greatly improved because of the daily delivery service from wholesale centers. The Thrashing Expert, Captain White, a large Texan from near Dallas, Texas, and who, as a practical threshing man with years of experience, is conducting the schools in the county Council of Defense is an exceedingly interesting individual. As an expert in the threshing game, he represents the Thrashers' division of the Grain Corporation—one of the departments of the National food administration, and last night explained to the county Council of Defense what it is explaining to those present at the schools he is conducting—that what it is hoped to accomplish is to have the Council of Defense in the county, and he dropped some hints about it before the local Council, which indicated the news method of dealing with it. It is a very interesting and profitable method.

When the matter of saving grain by a reform in threshing methods came up, he wrote a letter to the National Council on the subject which resulted in his being called to New York and Washington to join in the work. He left his business on three weeks' notice and, as he says, is now working for Uncle Sam for one dollar per month.

Crop Conditions in Idaho Are Good

Irigated Pastures and Meadows in Idaho Says the Meteorologist of the State.

In fine shape. Haying is the order of the day. Much silage has been cut but only a small portion of the first cutting is in the stack. Work in the hay fields has been interrupted by showers. In the fields where the first crop has been removed the second growth is coming on fast and indications point to a heavy yield. A scarcity of harvest help is reported in Owyhee county. Dry farm pastures and meadows are burning up, except where freshened by the rains of the past week.

The condition of the range is much improved in the areas favored by rains. The unusually warm weather has hastened the growth of forage on the uppper range. Stock are holding up well. The cattle are said to be in much better condition now than at this time last year. They are doing especially well in the eastern counties. Boundary county reports a good supply of beef and mutton on hand, with no buyers.

The cherry season is at its height in the Lewiston district; in Kootenai county the cherries are just beginning to color; in southern Idaho the season is about over. Raspberries are now coming on the market. A fair crop is indicated.

FRESHMEN MEETINGS IN TWIN FALLS COUNTY

Held at Filer Wednesday, at Kimberly Yesterday and at Buhl Today. Arr Proving Great Success

Pursuant to arrangements made through the County Farm Bureau, notice whereof has been published in these columns and also through handbills, the freshmen in the various parts of the county assembled at the places and on the days indicated to learn from an expert how to handle the grain in threshing; so that the minimum of waste should occur. The attendance at these meetings has been unexpectedly large, and the interest shown very great. The indications are that at least four-fifths of the entire ninety men who are running threshing outfits in the county will have been present at some one of the schools, and the resulting saving of grain is certain to be well worth while.

In advance of these schools the local threshermen were rather dubious. They feared the advent of an instructor of some kid-glove theorist from Washington, who would spend his time showing them how much he knew and how ignorant they were. But when Captain White appeared, with all kinds of practical experience, had told them the way and a critic but a casual observer who came to look went away filled with patriotic enthusiasm. Speaking of the threshermen he met here, Captain White says most of them know as much about their business as he, or anyone else; and that what faults exist are mostly due to haste and carelessness.

In speaking to the threshers, Captain White first explained how the parts in which he is engaged came to be started and what it was destined to accomplish. Especially it is desired to have all machinery in good and efficient order, in which they have the active co-operation of the manufacturers—and to which each section will later be visited by expert inspectors. He urged the exercise of care and thought at every stage of the work; and above all, that each man shall feel a sense of his responsibility as an important factor in a great emergency.

Some of the special points toward which attention was directed as essential were: That cylinder teeth should be square and properly adjusted; that no matter how good the cylinder should have no endplay—that machines should be run at the proper speed directed by the manufacturer as either slower or faster would do the best results; that straw should not be threshed when too damp, no matter how good the straw; that the farmer might feel himself "brought—the encouraging—news that a grain harvest, beginning in the Southern coast had already advanced as far as Kansas, where they were just ready to begin taking off their hundred million bushel crop; and that there was now every reason to anticipate the greatest wheat crop ever known in the country, estimated at a billion bushels.

Submarines Far From Coast Belief

Stories of Their Presence Lately Lack Authentication—S. O. B. Rescues Officer Come Across Ocean.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—There is not a German submarine within 1000 miles of the American coast. This belief was expressed by many officials today after a thorough investigation of scores of rumors that U-boats had been sighted and reports that U. S. B. calls had been picked up by coastwise steamers. It also became known that the navy department is not officially aware of the presence of an enemy raider in American waters. Rumors that a raider was off the Atlantic coast have been brought to the attention of the department from many quarters, but no instance has officials been able to verify them. As for the submarine or submarines that conducted their raids on this side of the Atlantic they are believed to be well on their way to their home base. The department, it was said today, has no confirmed report of the sighting of a submarine in more than a week.

The recent picking up of S. O. B. messages was easily accounted for. During the past few nights atmospheric conditions have been such that radio messages would carry over a far greater distance than ordinarily, and it is believed that these distress signals came from vessels that were being attacked on the other side of the Atlantic. Our naval officer told today of having picked up messages from Arlington while in the Bay of Biscay and from Panama just off the coast of Ireland.

OF Y. M. C. A. IN FRANCE

Prominent Western Minister Tells of Religious Activities Within Sound of Hun-Guns:

The Rev. Robert Freeman, D. D. of Fresno, Cal., one of the best known ministers of the West, is in France as a representative to the Y. M. C. A. He has what he has to say of religion within sound of the German guns, where men merge into helplessness, and creeds don't count so much as being kind:

"You can get any opinion you want on the religious work of the Y. M. C. A. in France. "It is overdone, it is underdone, it isn't done at all; it is narrow, it is bigged, it is too generously broad; it isn't, it is highly dignified, it isn't childlike; there is no singing worth speaking of, and why don't you have something besides hymns? And any one of these opinions can be defended, first by the character of the person visiting it, and, second, by reference to the place visited by the critics.

"But here's a little incident that happened the other day which tells the whole story of the religious work of the Y. M. C. A. in France:

"An American lad with nerves that held by what he had seen, at the front, was spilling out of his mind. He had had the experience before. He was an abject, of unbelief, a Catholic, and as such, more anxious to confess. He could not speak French and the only available priest could not speak English.

"Is there anyone here who can speak French?" inquired the priest. "The Y. M. C. A. woman running the hotel know the language. So the priest called into a quiet room and the American soldier confessed his sin through a Protestant woman to a Catholic priest, in a Y. M. C. A. hut in France."

A CLEAR CONSCIENCE

If you have ever purchased an article from a Mail Order House, haven't you unconsciously felt ashamed to admit it to your neighbors?—Haven't you felt like a traitor to your own home merchants. Hasn't it been aiding the enemy to the prosperity of your own community? You may not be quick to admit it has, but nevertheless, down deep in your heart you have felt ashamed of your purchase. Why not increase the wealth of your own city, thus entailing the enormous profits made each year by the mail order houses? Spend your money at home. Do your share in the up-building of your community. Have a clear conscience.

Captain Boone Writes Home to Tell What He Thinks of the Twin Falls "West"

The following letter which appeared last week in the Winchester (Ky.) Democrat is indicative of what people from the outside who come here to visit or reside any of the country, whether they have the facility of inspection which marks this communication of note:

Twin Falls, Idaho, June 14, 1916.

The Daily Democrat, June 14, 1916. I am M. S. Boone, desiring to say that I have made the point of my destination on the 12th inst., and from the time I left St. Louis, Mo., until reaching Twin Falls, Idaho, I have seen the countless magnificent beauties of diversified scenery that for several months of where peace and plenty reign, and where happiness always abides. In this my first letter to you, I shall not attempt a description of the Garden of the Gods. I was received with open arms by my son and his wife and three young boys who were in their beautiful and for several months of where peace and plenty reign, and where happiness always abides.

In this my first letter to you, I shall not attempt a description of the Garden of the Gods. I was received with open arms by my son and his wife and three young boys who were in their beautiful and for several months of where peace and plenty reign, and where happiness always abides. In this my first letter to you, I shall not attempt a description of the Garden of the Gods. I was received with open arms by my son and his wife and three young boys who were in their beautiful and for several months of where peace and plenty reign, and where happiness always abides.

feating their eyes and filling their minds with recollections of it, that will always linger, affording sweet food for pleasant and ever continuing thought—wonderful beautiful, sublime, snow capped mountains, their towering peaks almost kissing the sky above, with lovely valleys between the ranges, grazing beneath the weight of diversified crops of all kinds (nearly) all remaining an abundant harvest to the toiling and deservingly farmer. The city of Twin Falls is located in one of the most beautiful valleys in the world, and contains twelve thousand inhabitants, up to date and wide awake in all things. The valley in which it is built is sublimely beautiful, and its soil for productivity surpassed by none under the circuit of the sun. But I must not weary you or your readers this time, but will in my next letter tell you and them as to stock, crops and other conditions prevailing here in this garden spot of the United States.

I now close for the present by saying, my trip out was delightful and a place reaching here, am growing stronger as the fleeting days go by. Persons seeking health should come here in the early spring months of the year, and then go back home in the fall restored to health with a determination to finally locate permanently here in this great metropolis of the golden west. More soon. Yours very truly,

SAM M. BOONE, Alas Han M. Boone Winchester (Ky.) Daily Democrat.

PROSPECTS IN GLAZ RACES UNCERTAIN

Jack Votok, (I. N. S. Sports Editor). NEW YORK, June 23.—The war has reduced baseball "dopes" to less than half the value of the paper it is written on. In the halcyon days of peace the good old "dope" had a certain value. Club and players could be staked up and their chances weighed through the "dope" process. But not now. "Price" is the one operation of the present baseball season; before the war men came to make fortunes on talent in the two major leagues. The indicator pointed to certain clubs as the likely pennant winners in the big show.

Old Spirit —and New

Blowing up of the old idea, of personal benefit, by the new, which is co-operation with one another for the progress of our community, is one of the things to be accomplished. The new spirit leads you to better, cleaner, wealthier environments. The old takes you back to filth and poverty. Which are you going to choose? Are you living for the benefit of yourself and yourself alone, or are you willing to co-operate with your fellow citizens for more ideal community conditions? Give us your co-operation

BUY AT HOME

The White Sox looked good to repeat in the American League, and they were generally picked by baseball critics. They had not lost a player of great value as the curtain went up on the Ban Johnsonian pennant race.

In the National League the Giants had the call, and they started off the season like whirlwinds. They came out to several players—Doyle and Schupp in particular—and the loss of Kauff and Bernes, with the prospect of losing more players if the United States finds it necessary to call all men in classes 1 and 2 before next fall. So the "dope" on the Giants is an uncertain as the weather.

The clubs that looked good to win pennants or figure as runners-up in April do not look so good now. No one can foretell what will happen, and the steady drain on the major league talent continues all the while.

BROOKLYN COURT SAYS FISSING IS HUMAN BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 23.—Squabbles, wordy altercation, unkind and exasperating, or even insulting words used in the heat of passion formed by neighbors do not constitute civil and inhuman treatment, according to a recent divorce case decision by the Appellate Division. The Court added: "Unfortunately for our weak nature, these things are very human. Nor do these things constitute conduct which render it unwise or improper to live together."

Testimony went to show that the wife, who sought divorce and alimony, objected to the presence of a stepson and claimed the male members of the family from the house. "In these squabbles, she (the plaintiff) seems to have been able to hold her own," said the Court. "We do not think any law requires a domestic exile to support a wife while living apart from her own family."

SPOONERS MARRY AFTER BEING HALED INTO COURT ATLANTA, Ga., June 23.—Caught spooning in Grant park and haled into Police Court, Miss Edith Carter, twenty-two, and E. W. King, twenty-three, saw no reason in this world why they should defy their wedding. Accordingly, a marriage license was secured, a minister called in and the nuptial knot tied. Case dismissed.

CLOSE-UPS IN SPORTS

Allan Markley, (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.) NEW YORK, June 25.—The officials of the National Collegiate Athletic Association have decreed that sports will be continued during the war. A special meeting of the delegates to discuss plans for the coming fall and winter has been called. The meeting will be held in Washington early in August.

Had it not been for a stellar meeting of the delegates called last August for the capital city, when a programme for the fall and winter was made, few colleges would have participated in any field of sports during the college year. The refusal of the 'Big Three,' Yale, Harvard, and Princeton, to stand by the majority vote of the entire body proved a big surprise. Few thought that the faculties of these time-honored institutions would refuse to join when the popular vote was so clearly in their favor. There is little doubt that the collegians world is strongly in favor of studies of all kinds. The recent last year has given sports a foothold, in spite of the war conditions, every branch sports; every meet, every championship and conference meet in the East, West and South, was a great success. Keen competition marked the season, which was closed with an unusually well-splanned inter-collegiate meet in the east at Franklin Field and in the west at Chicago.

The patriotism of Uncle Sam's soldiers and sailors in the events throughout the country and the stamp of approval by Congress, together with the government have assured the collegians world that the value of sports is being generally and fully appreciated.

AMERICAN RABBIT-PLAN WAR WORK DURING SESSION

CHICAGO, Ill., June 25.—With an attendance of approximately 500, the first joint conference of the Central Conference of American Rabbits opened here today, and will continue in session through July 4. The first meeting in connection with the conference was held this afternoon, when the executive committee was elected by Harry Berkovitz of Philadelphia, met. The conference proper will be opened tonight at Temple Beth Shalom, where Berkovitz will give a lecture by Rabbi Abram Shalom, of Washington, D. C. The war and its relation to the Jewish faith in America and the European belligerents will be discussed freely at the conference and special resolutions and petitions will be passed. The conference will be conducted by Rabbi Isaac Landman, Far Rockaway, N. Y., and Rabbi Hyman J. Wolf of Rochester, N. Y. Other speakers include Rabbi Max

Reicher, New York; Rabbi I. M. Franklin, Detroit; Rabbi Henry Dornfeld, Philadelphia; Rabbi Henry Englander, Cincinnati; Rabbi Morris Wolfson, Birmingham, Ala.; and Rabbi I. M. Wilson, Springfield, Ill. Officers of the conference are Kaufmann Kohler, honorary president, Cincinnati; Louis Grossman, president, Cincinnati; Leo M. Franklin, vice president, Detroit; Abram Shalom, treasurer, Washington, D. C.; Abram Hirschler, recording secretary, Chicago; and Louis Wolsey, corresponding secretary, Cleveland.

German Aviators Bombed Hospitals

Knew What They Were Doing—Avoided Dropping Shells Where Boches Were Being Cared For

AN ATLANTIC PORT, June 27.—German aviators who bombed the allied hospitals at Bouennes in the English sector, May 23, deliberately turned machine guns upon doctors and nurses doing rescue work. This assertion was made here today by Colonel H. G. Andrew, a Canadian army officer arriving from France. That the bombing of the hospitals, which was capable of caring for 30,000 wounded a month was intentional was shown by the fact that it was plainly designated with a red cross. A smaller unit nearby where German wounded were cared for, was not molested.

LITTLE OLD SCHOOL HOUSE NOW HAVING INSTITUTION

CHICAGO, June 28.—The little old school house, which never faded nor spoiled the child, was turned into a saving institution today, when meetings, called by Martin A. Hyerson, Director of War Savings for the state of Illinois, were held in every rural school house in the state. The children are being enlisted as War Savings Volunteers, in an effort to disseminate the war saving stamp widely among farmers.

STEALS WEDDING RING, 20 DAYS

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—Dan Matel was sentenced to thirty days in jail here for stealing his own wedding ring and pawned it to buy flour. Matel pleaded for leniency and said he would continue if allowed to. "They wouldn't have men of your sort in the army," the Judge replied. "Thirty days."

Keep the Henhouse Free of Pests—Here Are Best Powders and Sprays

•Poultry are infested by two kinds of fly parasites—lice and mites. Lice live continuously upon the birds. They commonly settle upon the necks and roots at night, and after feeding excrete itself in the cracks and crevices about the roosts.

There are many different kinds of poultry lice. Those most common on fowls are—the body louse, yellowish in color and about one-tenth of an inch in length, which remains on the skin of the fowl; the shaft louse, somewhat smaller and very pale in color, which is usually seen on the shafts of the feathers; and the head louse, a large gray species which is most frequently observed on the heads of young chickens.

Lice are not usually very abundant on healthy fowls which are kept under sanitary conditions and provided with dust baths. They multiply rapidly upon birds of low vitality and sluggish temperament, and are quicker to distributed through flocks upon premises where attention to cleanliness is indifferent.

Individual Treatment Advisable For notices in poultry keeping, and with small flocks generally, it is advisable to make sure that the flock is free from lice by giving the birds individual treatment, which will secure that result. The most universally procurable article for this purpose is powdered sulphur. The methods of applying this to the bird is by dipping the feet, head down, and dusting sulphur freely into the feathers, using either a small insect-powder can, or a can with a perforated cover. Pyrethrum may be used in the same way. Neither of these remedies will thoroughly and permanently rid poultry of lice. When they are used treatment must be repeated at more or less frequent intervals, as may appear necessary. By using commercial sodium fluo-rine in the form of powder, or as a dip, a species of poultry lice may be destroyed at one application. One of the benefits of sodium fluo-rine in destroying lice on poultry is in recent discovery the material is not ordinarily found in all drug stores. With a demand for it, however, local druggists will secure supplies. Poultry keepers who desire to thoroughly eradicate lice from their flocks should write the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., for Farmers' Bulletin 801, which gives, with details of the use of sodium fluo-rine, complete information on the control of lice and lice. The common chicken mite is a very small gray insect which when it has filled itself with blood, becomes bright red, but the name "red mite" by which it is often called, it may be discovered, if present, by looking on the under side of the roosts and nest supports, and in the wall crevices near them. Where the mites are very abundant they may be found in large numbers in such places. They also (frequent the nests of sitting hens. With reasonable attention to the cleanliness of poultry houses, mites are not likely to be troublesome except in warm weather. Treatment for mites consists in applications of liquid insecticide or disinfectants to them and to the places where they harbor, repeating the applications at intervals of about a week until all are destroyed. Any of the insecticide products commonly used in disinfectant purposes will be found effective for the destruction of mites.
