Peace Drive Predicted After Conference of the Teuton Leaders

LONDON, Aug. 14--The possibility of another peace drive by the central powers soon, is indicated by the announcement of the Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Copenhagen...

Allies Move Up Big Guns for Further Offensives--Burning Towns and Country Homes in German Rear Indicative of Further Teuton Retirement--Tremendous Artillery Duels but Only Minor Infantry Operations--Boche Artillery Active on Franco-Belgian Frontier and Diversion Move Looked For.

(By Earle G. Reeves, I. N. S. Staff Correspondent) LONDON, Aug. 14--(4:30 p. m.)--Although encountering the fiercest resistance the French are making slow but steady progress down the slopes of Lassigny ridge...

LONDON, Aug. 14--(1:07 p. m.)--German artillery is bombarding the valley and woods southeast of Lassigny with mustard and gas shells, said a Reuter dispatch from the French front this afternoon.

The Germans are using almost as many machine guns as there are men in holding the line in that region. The nests are cunningly hidden and hard to locate.

(By Frank Charlton, I. N. S. Cable Editor) Heavy artillery duels were reported from the Picardy battle front today, but neither the British war office nor the French war office made any mention of infantry operations in that zone.

The shelling was concentrated in the sector of the Franco-Belgian frontier near Dieckhus and Kemmel.

Further progress for the French west of the Oise river has been made much easier by the capture of high ground which affords a vantage for artillery that can now deluge the top positions at will.

While the British, French and Americans consolidate their newly won positions and move up their guns and ammunition the Germans are evidently preparing for a further retreat.

Municipal Ownership Gets Boost in L. A.

Public Utilities Committee of the Council Reports in Favor of Each Plan.

LOS ANGELES—Municipal ownership of the street railway received a big boost yesterday when the public utilities committee of the city council approved the report recently prepared by Chief Engineer Franklin D. Howell of the utilities department, approved by the board of public utilities, outlining a plan for the confining of all street railway traffic within the city to the lines of the Los Angeles Railway corporation leaving the interurban high speed service for the Pacific Electric system to handle entirely.

Howell's plan contemplates the city's entering into a contract or working agreement with the Los Angeles Railway corporation under which the company shall act as the operating company for the city, the municipality to manage and direct the operation of the railway lines and to reserve the right to purchase the franchise at any time it chooses.

The council committee, consisting of Chairman Conway, Conrad and President Farmer of the council, recommended that Engineer Howell be instructed to investigate and submit a concrete plan for the accomplishment of the desired end. The council will act on the committee's recommendations next Monday and the indications are that it will go through yesterday's meeting it was eliminated that the question of universal transfers will have been eliminated if Howell's municipal ownership plan is adopted.

Howell's plan provides that a working agreement shall be entered into by the city with the Los Angeles Railway corporation; that all existing franchises held by the company shall be absorbed; that under the working agreement the railway company shall receive a "blanket right or franchise" to operate its lines for an indeterminate period, the city reserving the right to purchase and take over the system in part or in whole at any time. It is related that if the plan is carried out it will be necessary to amend the city charter so that the blanket franchise or indeterminate feature may be granted.

"First of all," said Howell, "we must have a definite plan worked out and approved by the railway company; then a definite charter amendment can be submitted to the people that will permit the carrying out of the plan. The people then will know exactly what they are voting on and why they are re-voting for the amendment."

If possible, it is proposed that the necessary charter amendment shall be submitted to the people at the coming November election. Howell said he did not know whether the plan could be worked out in detail and approved by the railway company; then a charter amendment to be submitted in November or not. Before the committee Howell said:

"If you want universal transfer now you have to go to the state railroad commission. The transfer is part of the rate and we don't know what the rate will be in the event universal transfers were ordered. The solution is to have the Los Angeles Railway absorb all local business inside the city and have the Pacific Electric do the high speed interurban service. The Pacific Electric is or so further food as local service inside the city. The plan would require the Pacific Electric to get off the surface streets and there are a dozen routes to get out."

"That's the better way to handle the problem," said Conrad.

Conrad then asked: "The Los Angeles Railway has franchises expiring at various periods. The idea is to enter into a working agreement and grant the company a blanket franchise, the city reserving the right to purchase at some future time. Mr. Howell has asked to submit a concrete plan and see if the plan can be carried out."

The details of the Howell plan were outlined by the "Examiner" on June 25.

NEW HUN THORAPANDA IS SPREAD OVER THE COUNTRY

AKRON, Ohio—A new brand of German wool has been reported in the wool markets.

It is alleged that the automobile industry. A number of alarming reports have been received from various parts of the country, more of the large cities. The purpose of all of them has been the same, and to alarm the motoring public the future of the motor car.

One story that has been industriously circulated was that there would be serious trouble in the event of an embargo on crude rubber. That this report is unfounded is proved by the assistance rendered by F. Richard Carroll, district manager of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber company. He says that backed up by Great Britain, Uncle Sam has prohibited the rubber trade in America, 100,000 tons of "overseas" rubber from Great Britain, American manufacturers used 77,000 tons above 100 per cent. It is estimated the reserve stock on hand in America, the first of the year amounted to 30,000 tons, so added to the 100,000 tons guaranteed her America is really better fixed now than ever before.

Another Hun lie was to the effect, that, beginning July 1, to save gasoline the government would order all motor cars to run on kerosene. This is not contemplating any action of an alarming nature along this line.

Probably the most harmful propaganda now in circulation is: "Keep the heavy trucks off the highway; they are destroying them." This story spread so quickly and so widely in one eastern state that the state legislature actually almost passed a law forbidding heavy trucks on its highways, and probably would have done so but for the vigilance of motor truck owners.

HANDLING OF WOOL IS WORKING OUT TO THE GROWERS' ADVANTAGE

SALT LAKE CITY—Wool conditions throughout the entire United States, as well as the wool growing countries of the world, are working out satisfactorily. Consistent and satisfactory are being done by the great wool growers' association.

Speaking it has been shown that the collective interests of wool growers are being protected and advanced in every way possible.

The new plans which are meeting with such success are being handled by the National Wool Warehouse and Storage company of Chicago, and the suggestions made by the directors of this company were sent to Washington and finally accepted by the war industries board. Much criticism has been directed against their action at the time, but as the situation has developed, by reason of war necessities, the wisdom of the move is being observed at close range and the workings of government valuation committees for the Chicago district, in examining large lines of wool, many lots of which were from Utah, for appraising values, the impression is that the interests of the wool growers are carefully safeguarded in their interests.

In a letter received by Mr. Stewart, from Mr. Romney of the Warehouse and Storage company, attention is called to a memorandum covering the findings of the valuation committees of three separate allotments of Utah wool, which were ordered graded, but not above 6 per cent of low medium wools, such as one-half blood, three-eighths blood and one-fourth blood, all of which grades are reserved for use of the quartermaster general's regiments. All lots showing classifications above these were ordered graded. The eastern wool buyers' interests, with resident representatives in Utah, have always favored quickly in buying light shrinkage wools, well grown wools, and in a general way have left the short heavy wools to shift for themselves.

The warehouse company as a selling agency, has over and over again called attention of Utah wool growers to these understandings and it is now confirmed by an impartial committee of wool men appointed by the government to pass upon all these points. In concluding his letter Mr. Romney stated:

"I think the results in an individual way should be stimulating to improve the wool growing industry of our state, and that regardless of what the final plans may be, in matters of concentration and distribution of western territory wools, that the results will be of far reaching and substantial benefit to the wool grower, industry of the west."

ESTIMATE OF IDAHO CROWN

The Blackfoot office of the bureau of crop estimates of the United States department of agriculture has issued the following crop report for Idaho for the month of August.

Wheat—A 3,850,000 bushels of crop of winter wheat is now being harvested by Idaho farmers, compared with 5,830,000 bushels harvested last year and 9,339,000 the four year average. Early tests in lower country were 22 bushels as compared with 18 bushels last year and an average of 25.3 bushels. Quality is excellent. Early tests in lower country were running from 67 to 73 pounds per bushel, with an indicated average of 70 bushels. North Idaho will run from 19 to 25 bushels in Fremont county yields as high as 46 bushels per acre are reported. Oneida county reports an average of 26 bushels. Twenty-five combined harvesters are now at work in that county.

Spring wheat conditions improved due to timely rains which benefited the late seeding. Forecast from condition is 12,241,000 bushels, compared with 8,250,000 bushels last year. The crop is particularly good on irrigated land and an immense production is

Scenario by CHARLES Maigne

By C. F. ZITTEL ("ZIT") Dramatic Editor of the New York Evening Journal

Twenty years from now the folks in Hood River, Oregon, and Tullahoma, Tenn., in Brattleboro, Vt., in Rio Janeiro, Brazil, in Orléans, France—all the world over, will be going to see a motion picture called Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird." Twenty years from now the sons and daughters of thousands of folks will be going at Maeterlinck to see the picture their fathers and mothers saw in 1915. And that picture will be the same one that has come today via Artcraft to remind the world that beauty is not dead.

It is a permanent contribution to the art of the world, this Artcraft picture, Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird"—a contribution that has in it something of eternal worth, a contribution that proves now and forever that the motion picture may have a permanent part in the culture of the world and the things that are worth while in art and in life. The story and truth of Maeterlinck's message have come into the bright light of the lens and screen for everyone with eyes to see and even those whose hearts are asleep or whose senses are unawakened cannot fail to understand. That message will be as true in the time to come as it is true today and was, in the days before the camera flicked, and the medium through which it has been so wonderfully expressed in this picture-masterpiece assures it a reception that could be reached in no other way.

A PHOTOPLAY IMMORTAL

That is why a motion picture called Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird" is to go down in history as an epic of this century, a piece of creative work as immortal as the spoken dramas of master writers or the songs of matchless poets who live forever in the halls of fame.

It is a wonderful thing that Director Maurice Tourneur and the Artcraft people have done. It was so easy to miss the spirit and the truth of Maeterlinck's message, so easy to cheapen and bedraggle its symbolism by the conventional camera tricks, so easy to forget, in the grandeur of scenery, that Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird" is after all a story. But Tourneur has forgotten nothing. The picture is as finished and artistic as a beautiful statue or a wonderful painting. There isn't a jarring note, not an element that can offend the most aesthetic taste, nor a point that is the least sophisticated can miss.

The photoplay version of Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird" comes in a tremendously widened form, for the scope of the motion picture is practically limitless, in the hands of an artist. Whole scenes of exquisite beauty have been introduced—scenes that on the stage were merely suggested by a sentence, most of the beauty of the thought going lost. The stage, for example, could only suggest the vision of the mothers outside the Kingdom of the Future, but Tourneur can show them, arms outstretched, standing—hundreds of them—on the cliffs beside the sea, and the wonder of the meaning becomes at once apparent.

MAURICE TOURNEUR'S ARTISTRY

It is interesting to note too, the freedom from the obvious. This is apparent in the scenes in the Land of Memory. Here, at midnight, the two children come in their search for happiness. They have been told that they will meet the Dead, and are consequently appalled and terrified. Here in where Maeterlinck's airy, airy scenes lie, as does his determination to keep away from the conventional. Instead of having the flowers spring from the graves in an ordinary motion picture "fade in," they are seen to grow, actually rising from the tombs with slow grace.

Other scenes are done in silhouette with delicate lighting in two shades as a background. The first of these is in the scene where the two children, wakened by sounds of music and revelry, flatten their noses against the panes to watch the party at "the rich children's house." What they see is shown entirely in exquisite silhouette work. An especially beautiful shadow scene is shown with figures of young girls dancing, representing the Shades and Courtesis. They appeared through a sort of screen or veil of shifting, cloudlike stuff and the whole is tinted brown.

AWAY SEEKING HAPPINESS

It is a simple and wonderful story, Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird" On a night before Christmas, in a humble cottage—no matter where—two little children, Mytyl and Tytyl, went to bed after a happy day. The dog was asleep in the corner, the cat on the mantelpiece, the bread was in the oven, the milk in the crock, the water was turned off at the tap, the fire, glowing in the oven, and the lamp light cast a soft shadow over the room. And then from the fabric of moonbeams there came old neighbor Berlioz, who was blind but the old neighbor at all, but the fairy Broyse looking for a blue bird. So they set out on their journey, when the dog and bread, cat, bread and milk, water and fire and even the soul of light had been brought to life by turning the diamond in Tytyl's hat.

Everywhere is the symbolism of the blue bird kept before the mind in the simplest of terms. A word-written system can give no real idea of the thrill that comes to the heart of the spectator at the sight of the Mother on her simple throne of stars and her words in a silent written flash, "Each time you smile I am younger by a year and your kisses put stars in my eyes, my babies!"

THE SUCCESS OF THE PLAY

Maeterlinck, himself, once said, "Nothing in the world is so thrilling for beauty as the soul, nor is there anything in the world to which beauty clings so readily." "The Blue Bird" proved it on the stage in his home country, Belgium, where it was written in 1909; in England, where it was shown on the stage of one of London's largest theatres; in Russia, where it was played by no less than fifty-nine companies in different provinces; and in the United States at the New Theatre and for three years all over the country.

Now it comes in a medium to reach the slight and understanding of all, and Maeterlinck, himself, could have wished it transposed to terms of the screen in no more fitting and beautiful way than this Artcraft production. It is an Easter message of rare beauty, coming in times that need such a message badly.

The flowers in the graveyard of "The Blue Bird" speak their message on the screen along with the boy who replics to his sister's frightened question, "Where are the Dead?"

"There are no Dead!" she answers.

NONPARTISAN LEAGUE CAMPAIGN DEPARTMENT

Information about Nonpartisan candidates to be voted for on Democratic ticket, September 3rd, will appear here Wednesdays and Saturdays of each week. The matter below is paid advertising.

EDGAR A. LITTLER FAVORS COUNTY DIVISION ONLY IF MAJORITY WANT SAME

"I am in the race for the Democratic nomination for representative, and if elected to that office I will be guided in working and voting for all measures by the will of the majority of the people. Regarding county division I would work for same only when convinced that about two-thirds of the voters of the proposed new county favored it. No one can expect more of a representative of the people. That's what Edgar A. Littler, the candidate or representative in the west end endorsed by the Nonpartisan League, thinks of the county division question. That's the sentiment of each and all of the legislative candidates endorsed by the League—they stand for the people. Mr. Littler continued:

"No candidate for the legislature can afford to run on a party ticket in a county division. He should run on a platform, for as well as being a representative of his home county, he has the best interests of the state to consider. I am running on the platform of the Nonpartisan League. I cannot write a county division plan to that platform. In fact, I think the people of the proposed new county can get my support for division by showing me that they are in favor of the people in that district are for county division. For I will always be bound by the will of the majority of the people."

Mr. Littler makes his stand very plain. Who could ask for a fairer view of the question?

EVERY PERSON DESIRING TO VOTE MUST REGISTER

Contrary to the belief of some voters in Twin Falls county, every person who desires to vote in the primaries or general election this year must register with his or her precinct registrar before the 31st day of August. If they will be disqualified to vote.

The 1918 state governing registration of voters in this county merely required that a person register once, unless changing his or her county, has been repealed by the statute of 1917, and it is absolutely necessary for every person desiring to vote to register before each and every primary election.

The voters should get this straight. All must register before the 31st of August. If on the safe side, the matter should not be put off—register this coming Saturday with your precinct registrar.

STATE SHOULD OWN AND OPERATE ITS OWN SUGAR BEET FACTORIES, SHOWN

(From Idaho Leader.) The sugar beet companies last year made an average net profit of $36.65 off of every farmer who grew beets. The Utah-Idaho company made a net profit off of every acre of beets planted last year, of $78.18. The sugar beet crowd off of every ton of beets harvested, made a net profit of $25.4.

We are in war. This is no time to make exorbitant profits. Sugar is absolutely essential for the making of this war. The sugar beet farmers have been exploited till they have cried out for relief. Their cry reached Washington. Mr. Hoover within the sugar beet factory men into time. It took less than a year. They requested with indignation that the government should interfere with their exploitation. Think it off! By their own action they made over $100,000 net profit off of every ton of beets harvested.

Should be State Industry Taking these facts into consideration, the Nonpartisan League assembly on July 3 voted as a war measure to have sugar beet factories to be owned by the state and operated by a state industry. If the sugar beet people make $100,000 a ton, $500 of that should be given to the sugar beet farmers to stimulate them to greater production. And the other half of the $500 should be used in paying out the factories and building up the sugar to the consumer at a cheaper price.

At Sugar City there is extracted an average of 365 pounds of sugar from a ton of beets. The Idaho Falls factory produced an average of 275 pounds per ton of beets. The average cost of producing sugar is $3.75 a hundred, including every item of expense. We expect the sugar farmers to deny these statements, but we challenge a production of their books to prove them. The company can't easily get $100,000 a ton of beets and make big money. If they would do that, it would hit the mortgage from the sugar beet growers' farm. He could give his boys and girls a better schooling and a heritage of happiness. The producers are not a production of the profit off of sugar. Most of the profit is in the sugar beet field. If the sugar beet industry is to be a business to Idaho, the factories should be owned and operated by the state. It will take the sugar beet factories out of the hands of the beet people on a civil service basis.

The following is an incident at Washington, D. C. The sugar beet trust, at the head of which is O. W. Hattemeyer, was once investigated by a congressional committee. His testimony was a recitation of the exploits of our congressmen. It revealed the fact that the sugar trust, the beet trust, and the beet trust and the beet trust, in their own congressmen like elected. They furnish the money to elect them. When their congressmen were elected, they served the interests that put them there. Here was the conversation: "Mr. Hattemeyer, do you use money to elect any certain political party?

He answered: "We do not. In a republican district, we furnish money to elect certain republicans in a certain district. We furnish money to elect a democrat. When these men are elected they are supposed to work for us and the Democratic ticket."

In other words, the sugar trust is absolutely nonpartisan. They elect the man who will serve their interests. That is one of the main reasons why the Nonpartisan League depends upon the farmers $1600 to finance its campaigns. When the men which the farmers elect assume the responsibility of office, they remember the people that elect them because they paid their bills. Think of it. Men elected to congress by the people, instead of being elected by the business.

So listen with help will be by writing, and operating for the people sugar beet factories.

OLD GANG POLITICIANS FRAME TIP PAKE COUNTY DIVISION FIGHT, LEARNED

(From River Nonpartisan League.) An unmitigated effort is being made in Twin Falls county to throw the Nonpartisan League out of the county issue so that they will not be clear, and thereby render the Nonpartisan strength less effective. The defeat of the Nonpartisan league is the sole object of so many tickets being put into the field.

The stand-stand Democrats have endorsed their candidates, and the Nonpartisan League has its own candidates in the race for the Democratic ticket.

PAY ABSOLUTELY NO ATTENTION TO OTHER ISSUES, Nonpartisan. If we stick together and HERD

all the other issues throw into the mix, all the scheming of the politicians cannot defeat us. The only hope of the politicians of the county and state now is to divide the Nonpartisans, and falling in this they would be absolutely hopeless of success.

Nonpartisans need not worry in the least. Merely keep your eyes on the Nonpartisan candidates as endorsed by the county and state conventions, and we remain as solid as a stone wall.

The county division fight is a FALSE ISSUE at this time is not to be doubted, and Dahl farmers will permit themselves to be used as pawns by the politicians. COUNTY DIVISION ISSUE this time, unlike previous campaigns, WAS HATCHED OUT BY BOTH BUIH AND TWIN FALLS POLITICIANS, with the sole object of defeating the Nonpartisan League by creating dissension in its ranks.

NONPARTISAN PLATFORM 1918

- The paramount issue is to win the war.
- The chief qualification for office is loyalty—100 per cent Americanism.
- Greater food production and better distribution being absolutely essential to winning the war, we therefore pledge our candidates, one and all, to the carrying out of legislation to the following as fast as congress will permit:
 - State-owned packing plants, terminal elevators, flour mills and other facilities.
 - State owned warehouses and storage plants for farm products.
 - Rural credit banks operated at cost.
 - State ownership and distribution of the water power.
 - We pledge our candidates, one and all, to the carrying out of legislation for labor laws which will not merely protect capital but which will apply protected labor as well, in accordance with the just demands of organized labor.
 - The taxation of all property upon an equitable basis.
 - The taxation of all property at a higher rate in order to force such property to more largely assist in the financing of the war.
 - A workable initiative, referendum and recall.
 - The inclusion of planks included in the supplementary statement are as follows:

PLenty TO EAT IN FRANCE AT PRESENT
The following letter, written by Miss Laura W. Plummer, who is here from the base hospital in France, where she is a nurse, indicates that they are getting plenty to eat in France at the present time, though the sugar and butter supplies seem short:
Somewhere in France.
Dear Folks. Doesn't it look funny? But if I could mention the name of the place you would still think of small on the map, this country, and seems so much bigger when you come to it, and you have a little more going to be good to us today—no work yet. Still we can't settle very far, for within a very few days we will have to move just a little more this time, to our real quarters. But last night we had much needed sleep in real little beds, new and clean. So far as comfort is concerned, they are going to make things just as convenient as possible, and I'm sure we have nothing to complain of. It is going to be fine, and oh, so good to know that some one can be so kind to us here. Our last night was an excellent one, cooked and served by our own United States boys. We sit at new board tables, on new board chairs, and get from real army ditches of aluminum. Maybe I may tell you what we had for supper. For I'm sure you would like to know: Potatoes, the best I've had except once or twice since leaving Idaho (at Camp Lee we never had delicious potatoes), a piece of fine beef steak, corn, good white bread and quince preserves; also good coffee (weak) with a little milk of some kind in it, and also slightly sweet, not sweet enough to be really sweet, and still enough for those that want sugar. It was a compromise, to suit everybody, I suppose. Like we served to the boys in camp. No butter was served, but what I think was butterine this morning.
We are not supposed to talk about our trip, but I will risk the much—supper for I'm sure you would like to know: Potatoes, the best I've had except once or twice since leaving Idaho (at Camp Lee we never had delicious potatoes), a piece of fine beef steak, corn, good white bread and quince preserves; also good coffee (weak) with a little milk of some kind in it, and also slightly sweet, not sweet enough to be really sweet, and still enough for those that want sugar.
