Want---

and the fear of want lightens a life and home. Saving for security is surely a duty to one's self. It is likewise a duty to those who are depending on you for life and happiness. Worry destroys more people than war. Anticipation about the future does not make for health or happiness. Those who do not fear want because they have a snug savings balance in the First National Bank are bound to be more happy, healthy and self-satisfied than those who had insurance "tomorrow."

WATER SUPPLY IS GOING OVER LAST SEASON'S

Rainon Water Master Predicts

Higher Mark Later In The Month Although It Is Now Lower in Dam

Ample water supply for bumper crops this season is predicted by J. P. Butterfield, water master of the Salmon tract, who was home yesterday from his headquarters at Lewiston.

While the water just now is lower than at this time last year, Mr. Butterfield says that all indications point to an excessive supply later in the month.

At present there is no water in the Salmon dam, this being owing to the fact that the water level at the dam was seven feet higher in the same month last year.

While the water is coming down faster than last season, he states, that it is anticipated that by May 20th it will have reached its normal level at an estimated 225,000,000 on then on it is believed the river will exceed that of last year, amounting to a larger water supply.

Such a high water level, he says, will be of great benefit to the crop prospects and will also be of great benefit to the stock raising industry.

THE PAST WEEK'S EUROPEAN ACTIVITIES

Conflicting reports coming out of Germany leave some doubt as to whether that country has quieted down or whether it is at the eve of further disorders. Munich was reported "captured" by the government forces, and at the same time word came that the Munichians had "welcomed" their deliverance from the kaiser government which had been acting there. Opposed to this report was that, though troops had entered the city, they were meeting with strong opposition, that the Munichians were erecting barricades, setting machine guns in church towers and shooting down the "invaders" whenever they appeared.

Notwithstanding these almost irreconcilable reports, the weight of evidence seems to point to a truce between Germany and a people so much shored by war and its terrible aftermath. The government established there seems to have been stabilized by the frank acknowledgment of defeat contained in the action of sending delegates to sign the treaty terms imposed by the allies. There is good reason to believe that the government has a pretty thorough understanding of what those terms are, although an imbedding of the contents of the treaty has been permitted expression. Doubtless the German plenipotentiaries will try to resist the more drastic items in the agreement, doubtless they will be wide dissatisfaction in Germany, no matter what terms are finally agreed upon. The apparent opinion which has fallen over the nation may be interpreted as the silence of despair or as the tranquillity preceding new outbreaks. This sense of abjectness to constituted authority, cultivated through long years of military autocracy would it be just of the very being of the normal form, may be relied upon by the allies as certain to assert itself in the final test.

The Italian situation continues "in the air." Notwithstanding positive assertions emanating from Italian sources that Italy will not return to the peace conference, evidence multiplies that, after the first ebullition of enthusiasm commencing the quitting of the conference by the Italian delegation, soberer counsel is winning its way, and efforts by leaders both at home and in Paris to bring about a re-convention seem to be bearing fruit. One consideration upon which there is division is as to which of the contenders shall make the first overtures to effect such a reconvention. Before the departure of the Italian delegates there had been a general agreement as to the honoraries around the head of the Adriatic, with the exception of the seaport of Fiume. This agreement seemed to be entirely satisfactory to the Italian delegates, except that they would have Fiume included as a part of the realm. If Italy should persist in her refusal to rejoin the conference, these boundaries may be altered when it comes time to make peace with Austria-Hungary. Those considerations may be the animating cause for the statement that Italian relations with the peace conference have not been severed, but merely "interrupted." The interruption may be ended at any time without satisfying either side to the dispute.

Japan and her allies in China have not described a very prominent place in the conference news. A condition occupied as satisfactory to the conference exists. Nevertheless this condition has raised a storm of protest in the United States, where it is charged the conference is laying the foundation for future world wars. Chinese diplomats also have expressed hearty disapproval of the arrangement in which Japan takes over the German leases in the Shantung peninsula, contending that the Chinese people are equally entitled to the principles of self-determination as shall be though perhaps more powerful nations.

Military activities in northern Siberia and in Hungary continue to be subject of irrevocable reports. The bolshevik forces in the former territory seem to be suffering from the steady pressure opposing them. Reports persist that the Russian government, of Lenin and Trotsky is tottering, and that the leaders are seeking refuge in any nation that will receive them. On the other hand, no immediate danger is indicated from reports emanating from southern Siberia. The Russian navy is pushing forward Budapest, a tale is being told declaring that the city had been captured.

So the political conditions of Europe are quite unsettled at the eve of the conclusion of the peace treaty. There is expressed that with the renouncing and signing of the German peace, the distracted nations now face a revolution which may be consummated. In this hope the peace conference continues its work without apparent thought to the vast possibilities which may develop from military activities of revolutionists, socialists, soviet, bolshevik and other political groups which insist upon recognition of the rights of the parties they represent to existence and to representation in the councils of the nations.

SEEMING IT THROUGH

"Seeming it through" is an American figure of speech. It is used to describe the pugilist who fights blindly on even when he knows he is defeated. The business man who pays all his debts even though it means complete failure. The soldier who calmly met death at a shell-hole because he had been ordered to hold that position if possible. The ability and determination to "See It Through" is recognized as an American attribute. The citizen who starts something and then fails to "See It Through" is honored in the estimation of his fellows.

We Americans started something in April, 1917. We all fought and purposed the job was ended last November. As a matter of fact, a few details still are to be attended to—bills principally. Among other things Uncle Sam wants to bring home his nephews in France and take care of those who were wounded and crippled in winding up the war. And there are other obligations that must be met. Uncle Sam, as business associates of Uncle Sam, will not be disappointed if we have wiped out these debts. Liberty Loan notes.

OREGON JERSEY MEN TO JOBLIATE

Oregon boasts a Jersey cow which has an official record of 14,927 pounds milk production in a year; fat production, 1631.64 pounds. She is said to be the world's champion Jersey cow, as well as the champion senior four-year-old. The cow has the patriotic name, Vice in Palace. Up in Oregon they have some other Jersey cows which have official records, and the Oregon Jersey Cattle club says they have prospects of rapping some more records.

In honor of these achievements, the club is going to have a Jersey jubilee at the state agricultural college, May 29-31, which admirers of Jersey cattle are invited to attend. The club promises one of the most interesting livestock events ever staged in America.

Farm Lands and Products Vary In Relative Values

Farm land value has not advanced in the same degree that the composite price of crops and live stock has from the beginning of the war to 1918. Results of a recent investigation by the bureau of crop estimates, United States Department of Agriculture, revealed that the average land value alone gained in 1918 and lost in the relative decline in 1919. It lost its lead in 1917 and, moreover, fell far behind the relative value in the price of crops and live stock in that year and in 1918.

From 1914 to 1918, farm land value, not including that of buildings, increased 11 per cent, while the price of crops and live stock rose 2 per cent in 1918 and four and one-half per cent in 1919. The average increase in 1918 was 20 per cent above 1914 and the value of crops and live stock also advanced, but only by 12 per cent. A reversal of the relative of these movements appeared in 1917, when land value gained only 28 per cent in 1917 and crops and live stock gained 14 per cent. The divergence increased in 1918, since the gain above 1914 was 28 per cent for land value and 37 per cent for crops and live stock.

Farm land value is supposed to be related, at any rate largely related, to the net profit of farming, and in fact it is often somewhat affected even by single years of high or scant profit. The value of farm land advanced in 1917, although the price of crops and live stock declined, in comparison with 1914, and gained relatively more than any other land in 1918. In 1917 and 1918 was far from equaling that of price. There has been much speculation, first at one side and then on the other, between the two movements of land value and product price.

Perhaps a scarcity of farm lands weakened the demand for farms in the last two years, and perhaps also was the net profit of farming, because of apparently high cost of production, was not so great as the high price of products would indicate superficially.

I. W. W. Leaders Languish in Jail

CHICAGO, May 5.—William B. Hayward, I. W. W. leader, and four of his associates, now confined in the federal penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth for violation of the Espionage act, await results in prison until they can furnish bonds—more acceptable than those they have offered to obtain their freedom.

The United States court of appeals has refused to approve bonds for Hayward and four other I. W. W.'s which were offered by William Brown, Lloyd, "millionaire" editor of Chicago, and George M. Mellette. The court sustained the contention of the first attorney Clyde that Lloyd's bonds, are unacceptable because he already has signed bonds totaling $20,000, while Mellette's securities were rejected because of his altered criminal record.

Judges Holmes, Page and Alchester also rejected Clyde's contention that he would, in view of the present situation, release the I. W. W. leaders on doubtful security.

Modern Faust Dies at 104 Years of Age

ST. PAUL, May 5.—St. Paul's most modern Faust died.

Edwin F. Fisher, who had called near four weeks by death, died at a past with the devil when he said that he would live a hundred years by causing himself to be killed after death, was buried Sunday.

The day before April 12, 1918, he said that he thought he had his last hour and prepared for the execution scheduled at midnight. He continued as his trade as a cabinetmaker for 25 years, however, and retired because of ill health.

What Have You Done About Tires?

GATES "HALF-ROLE" TIRE

400,000 CAR OWNERS HAVE SOLVED THEIR TIRE TROUBLES

You, like every other motorist this spring, are thinking about your tires—and the kind you will buy.

For 400,000 other motorists the problem is an easy one. They have learned how to buy their tires in half.

These motorists are taking advantage of a new scientific principle in tire construction. The basis of this new principle of construction, they are using tires which are sold under a stronger guarantee than any tire now on your car; they have all the advantages of 20 per cent oversize and at only 1/2 the cost of ordinary tires.

These car owners are using Gates Half-Role Tires.

Gates Half-Role Tires are the invention of Charles O. Gates, E. M., and with five acres of factory working constantly night and day, we are now erecting additional buildings to double the capacity this year in order to keep up with the demand.

With these tires on your car, your tire troubles will be over—they are guaranteed puncture proof; and the largest business houses in the country are included among the 400,000 users who endorse that guarantee.

To you, Gates Half-Role Tires mean better tire service than you have ever had before, and the saving of your tire bills, one-half.

There are over 1000 authorized service stations where you can investigate, this remarkable tire economy. Trained experts located in this territory are listed below:

CHICAGO, May 5.—Lieutenant George W. Patterson, Jr. lets of the Twelfth French Infantry division, as convinced today that there are things lot worse than a World war.

Lieutenant Patterson is now a reporter, drawing all 112 every week and "seeing life" as he puts it, at the same time fearlessly announcing that he is a "war correspondent" and deliberately "was used" in making a living on the return from Europe.

Not that it is all necessary that he has been from the ground in the fact that his wife, Mrs. George W. Patterson, who served only doing her bit with Auto Unit No. 7 and "making" her three young boys is now a star speaker in the Chicago Victory Loan drive. But Lieutenant Patterson wants to learn the business from the ground in the fact that his wife, Mrs. George W. SPECIAL OPEN STEAL OFFER

ELMHURST, N. Y. May 5.—Two special policemen, both of whom were awaiting a regular appointment to the force, have been ordered to the duty of two cases of eye work. A warehouse window was pried open, a wrench used to pry the pane from its frame, and the thief stepped close to their bedrooms and carried to their homes. Their ignominious tread left little trails and they were caught.
