SIGN WITH THOUGHT OF SPEEDY WAR OF LIBERATION

EUROPE NEEDS RUSSIAN CO-OPERATION BOLSHEVIKI MAY BE "HALF RECOGNIZED"

(By Sidney Dark)
PARIS, May 12.—It is more than probable that Russian Bolsheviki peace delegates will be invited to Paris before the end of the present month, according to information from an authoritative source today.

The allies, it is said, may find a way to "half recognize" the Lenine regime in Moscow and probably the Turks, also.

The Internationalists are planning to issue a manifesto recommending Germany to sign the peace treaty to avert further bloodshed.

President Wilson is reported to be emphatic in his stand that the peace of Europe needs the co-operation of Russia.

GERMAN SENTIMENT EXPRESSED AS NATIONAL ASSEMBLY BEGINS CONSIDERATION OF PEACE TERMS

Five of Six Main Political Parties of Country Declare Treaty Unacceptable and Should Not Be Signed—Two Parties Protest Against Delivery of Kaiser to Entente for Trial.

(By Alfred G. Anderson)
BERLIN, May 12.—A full session of the national assembly was held here today to consider the peace terms. Before the session opened it was reported that the assemblymen would reject the treaty.

Committees representing the six main political parties held a series of caucuses lasting all day Saturday and Sunday and, with the exception of the independents, it was reported that all adopted resolutions that the treaty was not acceptable and could not be signed.

The division of opinion brought about by the independents led to the belief that the meeting of the national assembly might develop into a stormy one. The independents have made the outright demand that the Teutonic envoys at Versailles continue negotiations.

REVIEW OF WEEK IN EUROPE

History was made last week in Europe. Perhaps the most notable event was Wednesday, when the peace treaty was handed to the German delegates assembled at Versailles. Immediately following this momentous event came protests from the German government in which it was charged that the allied governments were slandering the destruction of the German nation and the German people...

Initiative of the eagerness of the Germans to conclude an early peace is the fact that the delegates apparently were divided into shifts, one shift working days and another nights, in order to get a thorough understanding of the great document they were called upon to sign. The trouble with Germany is that the common people of the nation display little or no interest in the outcome of the negotiations...

Other events of vast import to the world were the decision last Friday of the Belgian council to sign the treaty, the return of the Italian delegates to the conference, the ratification of the treaty with the league of nations compact as a part of it and the taking up of the Austrian treaty by the allied delegates.

Perhaps the most important feature developing out of these events was the publicity given to the Premier Clemenceau regarding support of France in view of an unprovoked attack by Germany. The British cabinet seems to present the matter to the parliament, and the president agreed to present the matter to the United States senate. It is entirely likely that after the two have kept their pledge to the "liger of France," that will be the end of the matter, for ratification of such an agreement by either Great Britain or the United States is almost beyond the bounds of possibility; certainly it is far beyond all probabilities.

It seems to be almost a certainty that former Emperor William will never be brought before an international court to answer for the crimes of the war. He has taken refuge in Holland, where, though perhaps an unwelcome guest, he is entitled to the protection of its laws. It is likely that the Dutch government would protest vigorously any attempt on the part of the allies to take the body of the Kaiser by force. They cannot take him otherwise legally. The charge against him is a "supreme offense against international morality and the sanctity of treaties." This charge was reached after different proposals had been considered by the conference. Previous attempts to bring the personal guilty of causing wars or prolonging wars were considered as setting precedents, and though the Kaiser stands convicted before the eyes of the world, it is the opinion of lawyers that there is no legal means for bringing the arch-villain before an international tribunal.

With the retreat of the Italians to the peace conference, the political situation in Italy changed drastically. There have been no reports of further spreading of bolshevism in eastern Europe. Indeed, there seems to be a reaction against the absurd doctrine of the radical elements making up the political-economic movement known as bolshevism. In Germany matters have quieted down, doubtless under the influence of the belief that economic relief will soon follow signing of the peace treaty. In official Germany there has developed suddenly a spirit of helpfulness toward Russia, doubtless as a result of the severe terms of the allies and in the hope that such friendliness might lead to make Germany less dependent upon the allies for relief. In this movement there are strong evidences of a desire for revenge for the humiliation heaped upon the government. This sentiment is strongly apparent among the leaders of Germany. The treaty of peace is not accepted in Berlin as the final reckoning. It is regarded as a temporary affair which Germany will later attempt to destroy. For this purpose, Russia is the principal instrument of hand. The German statesmen have begun to lay their plans for enjoining the Russians into a new intimacy.

The peace committee of the German national assembly has drawn up a recommendation that Germany come to terms with Russia and conclude a separate peace. The committee said that if any such treaty is made, the German will make a generous concession to the Russians. It made the danger of the modern world. Russia is still an outcast nation. She is searching everywhere for friendships. If Germany is the first to grant the opportunity thus afforded, a new chance to civilization will begin to loom in the east.

The "Granny" people, seeking immediate relief from the heavy burdens of uncertainty and non-productivity that have existed since the signing of the armistice, are ready to accept any terms of peace that will permit them to return to work. For this reason, it is probable that the German plenipotentiaries will sign the peace, after a formal protest. But there can be no protest in their signatures. They will regard the document as a scrap of paper, if the opportunity comes to destroy it. Whether they will deliberately seek this opportunity depends largely upon the future development of Russo-German relations.

WHO REPRESENTS THE RUSSIAN PEOPLE?

The dispatches recently have indicated that there is a movement on foot to recognize the Kolchak dictatorship as the Russian government. The dispatches lack authoritative confirmation. However, several news distributing agencies have reported the rumor that as soon as the German and Austrian peace treaties were completed the Russian plenipotentiaries would be taken on a tour of inspection. The latest official statement of Premier Lloyd George was to the effect that there was no governing agency in Russia which could be recognized even remotely as representing the people of Russia.

Kolchak's outstanding supremacy as a leader in Russia does not seem to be indicated by any dispatches. Even in the territory where he is operating against the bolshevik regime, his leadership seems to lack united support. The energy displayed by Russian news distributing agencies in the United States to discredit everything in Russia which indicates an attempt on the part of the people to govern themselves and the wide dissemination of reports of bolshevik terrorism, with a view toward a complete kind of terrorism, though Russia was a land of terrorism long before the word bolshevism came to America, long before the political revolution which overthrew the czar, tends to put questioning doubts in normal minds of the absolute truth of all the claims accredited to the bolshevik.

If the people of Russia had accepted the leadership of Kolchak, he would be the absolute dictator in the country; that they have not. The so-called bolshevik or soviet governments hold sway over large territory. For the United States, or the peace conference at this time to recognize Kolchak would seem to be violative of the principles acknowledged when America entered the war, and in the fourteen principles of the president which led to the signing of the armistice. In addition, such recognition would be violative of the sentiments and traditions of the people of the United States. It would be better to find out what government is really the representative of the people of Russia before recognition is accorded to anything. It may be Kolchak's government, or it may be the bolshevik. Or it may be somebody's else government.

FEDERAL FARM LOAN SYSTEM HELPS TENANT

How can the farm tenant become a farm owner?

This question, asked by students of agricultural conditions more frequently than any other, is answered by a member of the federal farm loan system. "The statement is often made that the federal farm loan system does not help the tenant to acquire a farm, but the matter is studied here and it seems to be true. The federal land bank cannot loan to any man the entire amount which he must pay for a farm. It will loan him 50 per cent only of the value of the farm, plus 20 per cent of the permanent improved land. The farm tenant who has saved enough money to pay 50 per cent of the value of the farm can usually buy the farm and give a second mortgage for what he is unable to pay to the owner of the farm. So it would seem, at first glance, that the federal farm loan system cannot help the farm tenant in the business of getting a farm.

This, however, is not true. Here and there all over the United States farmers are buying farms through the aid of the federal farm loan system, and they could not buy if it were not for this system. The secret in these cases is found in the desirable character of the second mortgage, subject to a first mortgage in the federal farm loan system.

Let us take a concrete case as an illustration.

A tenant farmer, occupying a farm of 150 acres worth $100 an acre has in the course of years, become possessed of 200 acres worth $200 an acre. He has horses, harness, wagons, tools, hay, corn, wheat, cattle, hogs, poultry and other equipment sufficient to make him a desirable farm tenant. The owner of the farm, who day by day pays his father, lives in a neighboring town, and is not a man of very much wealth. He does not feel that he can afford to sell the farm altogether on credit, but the tenant has heard of the federal farm loan mortgage, and the second mortgage system of acquiring a farm, so he goes to the landlord and suggests that if the landlord will carry half the purchase price of the farm in the form of a second mortgage, he, the tenant, will borrow $50,000 on the farm and turn it over to the owner of the farm. The owner says, "No; no second mortgage for me!" That says the tenant, "This is a different kind of a second mortgage, and here is the way the deal figures out:—"

"This federal farm loan first mortgage to the amount of $50,000 bears 5 1/2 per cent interest, or $450 a year, will also have to pay 1 per cent in addition, or $50 a year for amortize, or pay off the debt. This makes $500 a year that I will have to pay on the first mortgage, and as long as I pay that the mortgage never comes due and I can stay on the farm."

"Then, said the landlord, "that $500 a year is taken care of there is no more of it up over today, my second mortgage by a foreclosure of the first mortgage."

"Mortgage? Amortize?" "That is the advantage of a second mortgage, subject to the federal farm loan mortgage. And, further than that, your second mortgage gets better every year, because, by the payment of the $500 a year, the $50,000 first mortgage pays off in about thirty-five years. If it fails to pay the $500 a year, the worst that can happen is that you will have to assume the amount of the first mortgage, which will be smaller every year. The net result will be, first, you will get $50,000 in cash; second, you will have a chance to get a farm of your own; third, you will get interest on your second mortgage; and fourth, you will get a monthly income. This monthly income should happen to you, even if I could not carry the first mortgage."

"The result of such conference as this has happened in many parts of the farm, anxious to get rid of the management, and glad to put it in the hands of some one who will build it up. The tenant farmer has been able to take the $50,000 and the interest on the other $50,000, and will enter into the arrangement, and the farmer's interest will be paid out of the farm. He will be deeply in debt, but he is a man who has experience and equipment, and he is in an ideal position to do it. He will pay the $500 a year interest and amortization on his first mortgage, and on his second mortgage of $500. This puts on the interest and amortization charges a load of a 1000 over a thousand dollars a year, which at present prices of farm products is not such a heavy burden as to prevent him from retiring a part of his second mortgage every year.

Carefully Examined

The federal land banks are careful in these cases to look into the matter so as to assure themselves that the tenant farmer is not undertaking a task which he cannot carry. If the selling price of the land were high, or if the interest rate were charged by the seller of the land too high, or if the buyer is not sufficiently easy terms on the second mortgage so that he will have a fighting man's chance to pay it off in five years, the federal land bank will not encourage the transaction.

"But they are always ready to cooperate with land owners and tenants on any basis which would give the tenant farmer a chance to become the owner of a farm."

LANDS ALLOVER THE COUNTRY, who are ready their farms, are beginning to study the second mortgage, subject to a federal farm loan mortgage, as a possible means of enabling them to dispose of their land to the mutual advantage of themselves and their tenants.

FARM CENSUS DATE CHANGED

Uncle Sam's next farm census will start January 1, 1920, instead of the 1st of July, 1919. The census date was changed because April 1st is the height of the farmers' busy spring season. Questions will have information on the acreage and production of crops, stock, classification, woodland acreage, farm lands, drainage or irrigation, and the farms for farm mortgages, etc. The department of agriculture will assist the census bureau in taking the census.

What Have You Done About Tires?

HOW 400,000 CAR OWNERS HAVE SOLVED THEIR TIRE TROUBLES

You, like every other motorist this spring, are thinking about your tires—and the kind you will buy.

For 400,000 other motorists the problem is an easy one. They have learned how they can cut their tire bills in half.

These motorists are taking advantage of a new scientific principle in tire construction. Because of this new principle of construction, they are using tires which are sold under a stronger guarantee than any tire now on your car; they have all the advantages of 20 per cent overcost and at 1/2 the cost of ordinary tires.

These car owners are using Gates Half-Sole Tires.

Gates Half-Sole Tires are the invention of Charles O. Gates, E. M., and with five acres of factory working constantly night and day, we are now erecting additional buildings to double the capacity this year in order to keep up with the demand.

With these tires on your car, your tire troubles will be over—they are guaranteed puncture proof; and the largest business houses in the country are included among the 400,000 users who endorse that guarantee.

To you, Gates Half-Sole Tires mean better tire service than you have ever had before, and the cutting of your tire bills one-half.

There are over 1000 authorized service stations where you can investigate this remarkable tire economy. Trained experts located in this territory are listed below.

USE STREETCAR FOR JOY RIDE—TWO ARE ARRESTED

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 12.—Leo McShelley and Charles J. McDonald returned home from a "party" long past midnight "found" a street car standing outside the street car barn on Huntington street and boarded it one acting as conductor and the other acting as "conductor." They were fun laugh. A third revolver jolted them. The car started up with a rattle and sped down Huntington and across Fifteenth street, narrowly missing a north bound car filled with workers from the Philadelphia navy yard. After turning back and forth on Huntington street the "musicians" effected speeding the car up to the limit through the emergency brakes, and the friction was so great that the car crashed into the fire was extinguished by street car employees.

Policeman of West, who had been chasing the car for half an hour, finally succeeded in boarding the car and placing the men under arrest. All were held under bail of $500 each.

RECONSTRUCTION GOES FORWARD DESPITE C. O. P.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Although severely handicapped for want of good roads and funds which have been provided by the bills which were killed by the Republican filibuster in the last days of the session, the national administration is proceeding with the work of demobilizing the army, re-financing the railroads, securing employment for returned soldiers, and relieving a swelling population to furnish them with housing, making the new markets mariner, operating the war risk insurance bureau at high efficiency and contributing to the rehabilitation of business on a post-war basis.

Here and there the failure of those appropriations and the lack of legislation are causing serious delays and are threatening the progress that is realized, would help private enterprise as much as the government, and in some instances programs which should have been undertaken long ago were delayed to wait. In general, progress is greater than demoralization which is expected by the Republican ultra-fraction which.

This initiative and effort on the part of the administration is reflected in the fact that the postal receipts are increasing, building of all kinds is reviving, business failures are infrequent, surplusages of the treasury are steadily increasing, signs are for even more widespread and rapid improvement.

Democratism Stability

Administration stability is admitted during the recent years of Democratic control of congress are credited with the present stability of business conditions and the maintenance of peace from the artificial coalition of war. It is generally recognized that were it not for the stability of the government the federal reserve system established by a Democratic administration, financial panic or at least serious trading conditions would have resulted from the ending of the armistice.

The federal farm loan bank was a boon to the small agriculturist during the war since they could scarcely obtain money at a low rate of interest. Federal assistance to readjustment of business to them, the dissemination of the rural routes and parcel post was another advance.

As a very large employer of labor, the federal government is naturally and correspondingly a large purchaser of every sort of materials and supplies, the government has been able to set a high standard of dealing with working people. Wages and conditions of labor performed for the government have for contractors over whom it had control, have been satisfactory to workers of all classes. Federal agencies for adjusting disputes between private employers and employees have been in general equitable and acceptable to both parties.

It is the belief of the ultra-fraction of Democratic defeat at its command, the national administration has been established to minimize to a large extent the effects of the armistice. The war department was not so badly blocked as the Republicans hoped it would be as a consequence of the observations of many soldiers who would long since have been brought back from overseas have had to be sent to the United States. The Republicans have the blame for this.

Larger allowances for certain necessary governmental assistance to reconstruction would have been a good thing for the country inasmuch as such appropriations, the shipping board, the interior department, the department of labor, and the navy department have been authorized to reduce their forces and post-war activities that would have given employment to the thousands and thousands of general laborers that would have been brought back from their wheels these several departments are making records which the

SUIT TO TEST LEVER LAW ON PROHIBITION

CHICAGO, May 12.—A test case, which will decide for the entire country two issues of importance in connection with national prohibition legislation, was agreed upon here today at a conference between Attorney Levy Mayer, representing the Prohibitionists, and Attorney C. F. Cline, representing the liquor interests. The issue to be decided are: The constitutionality of the Lever amendment giving the prohibition power by proclamation to curtail the manufacture of beer containing more than half an cent alcohol after the year 1, 1918.

Second—Just what constitutes an intoxicating beverage.

Attorney Mayer has advised his clients to emphasize the manufacture of beer containing 2.34 per cent alcohol. The liquor interests agreed to bring against the Prohibition League complaint for violation of the Lever amendment. Mayer contends that the suit, if decided in favor of the prohibitionists, nullifies the Lever law.

Irish-Americans Received in Dublin

LONDON, May 12.—The Irish-American delegates to Paris—former Governor Edward Duffy, of Illinois; Frank J. Walsh, of Kansas City, and William K. Howard, of New York—will leave for Paris tomorrow to present the Irish views on the peace conference, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Dublin today, quoting Mr. Howard.

"I will be greatly surprised if the Irish republic does not succeed and I think that the Irish will come in the near future," Mr. Duffy said.

The Irish-Americans were given an enthusiastic reception on their trip from Dublin.

The Irish-American delegation was not allowed to enter Vienna. Their way was barred by tanks and infantrymen when they sought to go into the town.

POISONED PUBLICITY

The next time you meet a newsworthy with his load of papers, remove your list reverently. You are standing in the presence of the world's greatest poisoner.

You and I, being plain, common, ordinary citizens with one voice agree: It is too long—too safe to jump the line, talk—talk—talk. Become entirely unimportant factors of late years. You and I believed a little while ago that Zora was a Spanish dancer and Dagosta a member of the spaghetti and ravioli family. We have found out that Zora and Dagosta are in the territory called by both the Hellins and the Jago-Slavs. You and I are both very sorry about the high school of narrow skirts and low shoes to be donning about the equitable. Nevertheless the Italian government and the Jago-Slav interests maintain large publicity organizations in this country and abroad in order to tell you and me how just, righteous, reasonable and logical their respective claims are.

You and I can't do anything, but we can think and talk about the dispute. If enough of the misery million of us think and talk before we see the Jago-Slav side, Washington will soon feel the weight and pressure of our collective uplift and speak right up in meeting when Huzzas appears on the scene.

You will plain hard-working Americans think and act collectively has become of supreme importance to almost every nation in the world. They all want something and need Mr. Wilson's help to get it. Mr. Wilson won't help them unless we force it right and we are with him. So a score of foreign publicity organizations are working three shifts and overtime paying colossal matter of their particular nationalistic bias into the stream of information from which we draw the facts upon which our opinions are based.

Publicity, though, it is not a foreign invention. In fact, it reached its highest development and widest application in America long before we saw it at work internationally. Right here at home we have one of the most remarkable examples of the power of publicity in the campaign of propaganda which saved Thomas Mullen from the gallows. He had committed an ordinary murder case into an international law and transformed an obscure, not very bright fellow, into a martyred hero known from Vladivostok to Hong Kong, and from Walter V. Wooner, to the day.

A "hall association" would be a "right" one, but it is not the kind of thing farmers here simply would not get together on any proposition.

This is the usual answer a representative farmer here gives to the proposal that the federal reserve system be organized by a Democratic administration, financial panic or at least serious trading conditions would have resulted from the ending of the armistice.

The federal farm loan bank was a boon to the small agriculturist during the war since they could scarcely obtain money at a low rate of interest. Federal assistance to readjustment of business to them, the dissemination of the rural routes and parcel post was another advance.

As a very large employer of labor, the federal government is naturally and correspondingly a large purchaser of every sort of materials and supplies, the government has been able to set a high standard of dealing with working people. Wages and conditions of labor performed for the government have for contractors over whom it had control, have been satisfactory to workers of all classes. Federal agencies for adjusting disputes between private employers and employees have been in general equitable and acceptable to both parties.

ARMISTICE ONLY SAVED GERMANY FROM INVASION

WASHINGTON, May 12.—That an invasion of Germany by picked allied troops was averted narrowly by the signing of the armistice on November 11, 1918, is revealed here today by a high army officer who but recently returned from overseas. Plans for the invasion, which would have split Germany in two, were started when the allied troops heard their first marked advantage on the western front and the stage was all set when the armistice was signed.

The plans to save the troops into Germany "through the back door" of Bavaria. The troops had only to take part. In this, daring operation were all selected. The Americans were to contribute four divisions—the First, Second, Fourth and Sixth, and the British and French were to provide a similar number with smaller contingents.

At that time the Austrians and the Italians had practically reached a "standstill" and the allied forces, which were to have been transported by railroads from France, was "to show its weight against the Austrians and break through. A mile here and a mile there had cutting off. The chief naval base, and part of the plan provided for the transportation of a force of 100,000 men.

The objective of the operation was not revealed, but it is generally believed to have been Berlin. At any rate, according to many officials here, the splitting of the country in two would have crushed Germany in her hour of a comparatively short time, even at the time when she was at the pinnacle of her success on the western front.
