Nurse in Two Wars Passes Away in Paris

PARIS, May 25.—Lady Arthur Paget, formerly Miss Mary Stevens of Boston, died at the Hotel, Hotel, Hotel, following an attack of pneumonia, preceded by influenza.

Lady Paget was the wife of General Sir Arthur H. Paget. Her father at one time was the owner of the Tremont House in Boston. She was one of the founders of London society, but was known principally because of her benefactions. During the War she maintained a hospital ship. She was prior-venue from the Kaiser's government in the world war by her Red Cross work, particularly in SoHo, where she was attached to the American Red Cross.

Resign Because Not Permitted to Have a Hand in Settlement of Italian Questions

MILAN, May 26.—Former Premier Salandra and the Marquis Salvemini have resigned from the Italian peace delegation, and Signor Barilla will resign today because they were not allowed to participate actively in the settlement of Italian questions. The ambassadors Imperiali, Diletti and Bonifantini, will succeed them.

Rogerson Items

Il. W. Lanzing, who has been traveling for the government and spending most of his time near the Owens River, was taken to Twin Falls on Tuesday, critically ill with appendicitis, resulting from tick bites. It is reported today that he is not improving and his illness is further complicated with pneumonia.

Fischer, Skillem, Charles Skillem and J. J. McNamara of the Antelope ranch spent Saturday here on business.

Albert Geddes of Rogerson returned here on Friday from overseas service, serving for more than a year in France and was wounded in his right arm which detained him at Fort Sherman in a hospital for some weeks after his return to this country before receiving his final discharge.

Blair Langford returned home on Sunday after a very pleasant week's visit in Salt Lake and was accompanied on his return by Rose Killison, who remained to look after his business affairs here.

A meeting of the local branch of the Red Cross was held on Sunday evening for the purpose of electing officers for the year. Mrs. Hilda Greer was secretary for the evening and reports were given by Mrs. Gilman, sewing chairman, and Mr. Buchanan, who is serving as chairman of the home service of the Red Cross which is doing splendid work.

No officers were elected at this meeting as no candidates were secured. It was decided to postpone the election of some.

The primary department of the fiscal public school gave a program on Friday evening which was enjoyed by all who attended.

The missionary society met at the home of Mrs. E. B. McCorkle on Saturday afternoon and held a very interesting meeting.

"RECREATION IN CAMP."
While your days in the cantonments will be spent in studying and other forms of training, you will have a considerable amount of time left over for your own use. Under some conditions permission may be given of time to leave the cantonment for short periods. However, this is a matter to be regulated by each camp.

If you do go away from the camp on leave, you will continue to wear your uniform. You should remember, also, even though you are not directly under supervision, to keep up your soldierly neatness and bearing.

Congress has provided that it shall be unlawful for any unauthorized person, including any officer or member of the military forces while in uniform, an exception being made in case of liquor required for medical purposes. The authorities of the camp will also have been notified that alcoholic liquors shall not be had within five miles of any military camp, an exception being made in case there is an incorporated city or town within that limit. It has further been provided that "the keeping or storing up of houses of ill fame, bordells, or bawdy houses within five miles of any military camp . . . is prohibited."

All these prohibitions and restrictions are in the interest of every right-minded soldier. They go a long way toward making clean and beautiful living conditions in the camp.

One of the centers of army life is camp in the post exchange, at which articles for personal use, such as socks, shoes, and so on, are sold. You will be safe in depending on the good quality and fair price of everything offered in the post exchange.

In general, the matter of providing for recreation and personal comforts will be taken care of by the military body of men known as the commission on training camp life. The commission includes an officer and representatives of organizations that have had much experience in meeting the needs of the type of men who will go into the annual army. It will have the cooperation of the Young Men's Christian Association and the Knights of Columbus. Other associations may also work with the commission.

The Young Men's Christian Association has built a hut for the 1918 to 1919 Red brigade. In these huts moving pictures or vaudeville shows will be given for the entertainment of the men. The material can be had for the asking. A plan will be at hand. The Knights of Columbus are also having buildings in each camp, in which there will be facilities of the same kind.

Both these organizations will conduct services every Sunday. Men of all creeds will be welcome. The secretaries and other officers in charge will be glad to assist you in any way they can. They are pleased because of their willingness and ability to render service. They will do all they can to make you welcome. Get in touch with either of these organizations as soon as you have a definite idea of where you reach the camp. The chaplains attached to each regiment, also, will offer the spiritual and moral welfare of the men.

In every camp there is a complete library building where you will be able to obtain books for your own use. This is arranged with the help of the American Library Association.

In each cantonment the commission on training camp activities has erected a large auditorium. This is to be used partly as a theater and partly for athletic instruction. Some of the best theatrical companies in the country will get on Broadway productions for such a purpose. The cantonments will be free. Amateurs will be provided for every one.

Those men who like singing will have plenty of chances to enjoy "sing songs" on a big scale. The commission has secured the services of well-known chorale leaders to take charge of camp singing.

You Can Get These Advantages Too

PUNCTURE-PROOF SERVICE AT 1/2 COST

Seldom, if ever, is a motorist offered a really tangible added service at 1/2 the cost he has been paying. Yet Gates Half-Sole Tires do give Puncture-Proof service guaranteed at only 1/2 the cost of ordinary tires.

Such service was made possible only by the invention of an entirely new principle of tire construction by Charles C. Gates, E. M., a tire engineer of national reputation.

This invention has already put back thousands of dollars into the pockets of more than 400,000 motorists and added 8,000 to 10,000 miles to the life of their tires.

Think what it means to you to start your season's driving practically free from tire worry and with the satisfaction of effecting a tire economy you had hardly thought possible.

The day is over when you need be satisfied with anything less for a new standard of tire service has been established.

If you are not now securing these advantages you owe it to yourself to investigate the Gates Half-Sole Tire at once.

At over 1,000 authorized Gates service stations throughout the United States, trained experts will gladly show you this new principle of tire construction. Or if there is no dealer nearest you, The Gates Rubber Company, Denver, and full information with nearest dealer's address will be sent you.

ABOUT A RETURN TO PRE-WAR CONDITIONS

Perhaps the most amusing piece of political economy thunder which is going around the country, muffled with meanness by employers of labor and viewed with much satisfaction by employees who have given little thought to economic conditions, is that "labor will not be satisfied to return to the pre-war conditions." Mixed up with this piece of pseudo-wisdom are rash statements about the standard of living which must be maintained, and rather wild assertions that that indefinite quantity known generally as "labor" will hamper industry by the practice of sabotage and strikes and other things known to labor, rather than return to those horrid conditions which existed before the war and the cost of living up approximately 150 per cent and wages approximately 50 per cent.

As a matter of fact, the laboring man is having the most strenuous fight of his life in trying to re-establish pre-war living conditions. Prices of commodities soared so rapidly during war times that living conditions of the people working for wages were forced to a low level. For some reason beyond the ken of the weaker these prices continue to soar. The manufacturers have established a high basis of profits and are not satisfied to have them reduced.

In other words, the standard that has changed is the money standard. In comparison, the dollar of today will purchase less than one-half that it would in 1915. Until wages are increased at least 60 per cent over those of the 1915 period the laboring man can not live under as good conditions as he then lived.

Try to evade it as you will, the fact remains that the people of America are doing business today on a less than fifty-cent dollar. The dollar of our commerce will never again purchase the same necessities of living that it did four years ago.

These wages are increased at least 65 per cent over those existing in 1915, workers will not reach the point from which they can look forward to securing any improvement on their pre-war existence.

Workers are having a pretty hard time to make both ends meet under the present conditions. Yet while a return to pre-war living conditions would bring a partial relief, that would not solve the problem, which is closely interwoven with business and profits and general economic conditions over which they have little control. The employer may be found in a larger co-operation of employees and employees. We do not pretend to know what the solution of the problem is, but a number of large manufacturers are at last trying to find it. There is Ford. Everybody knows what Ford has done in his factory at Detroit, and he has been called a philanthropist and a pro-German and a follower of the lovely Nazarene and an arch-destroyer.

The latest addition to the ranks of profit-sharing institutions is the packing firm of Swift & Co. Every employe of that institution, from office or messenger boy in the plant to the highest executive is to have opportunity to become a partner in the business. The company may not solve the problem of wage earners, but it is making a trial, and for that reason alone is entitled to encouragement. The president of the company, L. F. Swift, is frank in saying that his opinion is that Swift & Co. will benefit by the stock-owning plan of the company.

But the benefits accruing to the employe may be just the thing that will promote harmony and give them an ambition to become something more than mere cogs in a great machine. It may be the spark of ambition that should glow in every man's heart, and urge him on to accomplish all things which were dreams before the daily grind served to smother it out.

TREATY, PLUS LEAGUE EQUALS PEACE

Reports from all parts of the globe indicate that most people out of sight of the dominions of Central Europe are satisfied with the terms of peace imposed upon Germany. Those who fall one reason or another find fault with particulars of the treaty are nevertheless glad of a settlement that will permit the world to turn back to the work and ways of progress.

There is just one shadow across the path of the future—just one doubt in all the throng of humanity's hopes. If the nations which have suffered from four years' reign of brutality and bloodshed are not firmly bound to preserve the peace for which the Paris conference has prepared only the formula in the form of the treaty now in the hands of the German plenipotentiaries, there can be no assurance of permanent "peace on earth" nor of good will.

The league of nations must be established and empowered to enforce peace not only between Germany and her former enemies, but throughout all the continents—now and hereafter. The treaty is to the individual community a mere aggregation of words which in themselves have no force or effect. To give the statute or the treaty application there must be a policeman or an agency of some sort to prevent and punish infractions.

The league, then, is the necessary correlative of the treaty. The latter is likely to be respected and obeyed in all its provisions only to the extent that the former is capable of compelling observance. In turn, the league's effectiveness to that end will be in proportion to its acceptance in all its restrictions, prescriptions and obligations, by the nations of the world. The greater the number and power of the nations which adhere to the league, the greater its strength and usefulness in behalf of peace and against war.

The United States could not shirk a part in the great war. As a participant in the war we became a participant in the peace about to be concluded. As a party to the treaty we must be and remain a party to the league, because it is not enough to renounce the world's greatest and bloodiest conflict, we must also take measures to prevent its another. We owe that to ourselves above all, but to the rest of the world, too.

The Paris conference of twenty-seven nations has given us a treaty. A league of forty or fifty nations will guarantee lasting peace.

THE GERMAN AWAKENING

The present fever of grief, bitterness and recrimination in Germany has one result, at least, which the allied nations can view with relief and satisfaction. It really seems to be dawning on the German people at last that they lost the war.

Heretofore there has been hardly a sign that the general mass of Germans realized their defeat. Their army never admitted that it was beaten. The soldiers were welcomed home as conquerors, and willingly fitted into that role. The leaders, of course, knew the real situation. But the nation as a whole has either believed or pretended that Germany stopped fighting of her own free will.

So far as the German mentality could be fathomed, the war was regarded as a draw, in which Germany had, if anything, a shade the better of the argument. The armistice was "negotiated" a business arrangement by which Germany generously agreed to undergo certain temporary hardships, without any real loss of honor or prestige or any permanent disadvantage.

The treaty that is being crammed down Germany's throat naturally brings a rude awakening. After the first labor of pain, even the stupidest German cannot help concluding that the allies would not dare propose terms of such severity if they did not have Germany absolutely in their power. Marshal Foch said yesterday that the German delegates will sign—and he knows why.

There is an evident disposition to argue that this power has been gained by a trick—that Germany was betrayed into disarmament by her trusting reliance on the "Fourteen Points," which the allies are now accused of abandoning. But this line of reasoning will not long satisfy inquiring minds.

Sooner or later the conclusion must dawn on those Germans that they had got into a tight place and now have to accept whatever fate the allies impose, simply because they were foolishly deluded. That dawn is breaking now.

It will do Germany good, too. For it may bring humility and repentance, and only this can there be any hope for the German national soul.

THE TOWN SOUL

"Alpena, Mich., is a town with a Soul," says an editorial in the Alpena News. "The stranger coming to Alpena almost invariably feels that he has found the first place in the world where he can work, live, look like sending for his trunk, marrying an Alpena girl and settling down here for the rest of his life. Many of them do."

"Last summer I had the usual traveling service was injured and brought here from the steamer off which he was traveling. He spent several weeks in the hospital and received the care and attention that a dozen nurses would have lavished on him."

"How many cities does the traveler receive the glad hand in as he does here, and the warmth of welcome that is extended in such a manner that he cannot help but feel that it is sincere?"

It is a fact that there is a great difference in towns and cities as to the welcoming spirit, and that town which is truly proud that the stranger within its gates does not feel at home and among his friends is on the high road to prosperity.

Human kindness starts with the individual, but it spreads its gentle influence in some secret fashion which does impregnate the very air.

Happy the spot where such a kind influence has spread until the very town itself becomes a place "with a soul." There cannot be too many of them.

$8500 FOR A COW

Cattle raisers and dairymen are always interested in prices of livestock, but $8500 for a cow is a price that few would care to pay. Yet that is the price paid to Clarence Mackay of New York, for his Guernsey cow Nivelle II. The cow is six years old, and during the last four years has given 16,000 pounds of milk and 718 pounds of butter. At present prices the production fully means a pretty good rate of interest on the investment.

Germany and Mexico are put in the same class by the peace treaty. Neither of them is regarded as sufficiently civilized at present to be invited into the league of nations.

"The Germans complain that in the peace treaty Wilson's fourteen points are invisible. Well, these are mighty fine points."

"Work Germany's Only Safety," says a German daily. "Sure! Thirty years at hard labor."

FRANK REGRETS ELIMINATION OF SWIMMING POOL

Says Junior High School Building Should Include Feature as Necessary

It is with a feeling of regret that we receive the information that our school board's decision to eliminate the bathing pool from the plans for the Junior high school building. No doubt a thinking element of the district feel much disappointed. The action of the board is, no doubt, a regrettable one. It is regrettable because at the time the question was being considered the thought is being laid on this point of education. It hardly seems proper to regret that which has passed, but a substantial fact in a national question. It is regrettable too because of the small expense, an excellent feature of our school education. It will mean. Upon inquiry I have been informed that the calculated cost of such a feature for this purpose was the small sum of five thousand dollars. The manner in which the citizens of this community give money to what they deem worthy by doing so that "either the community needs to be enlightened as to the practical and common sense value of a swimming pool in our high school, or all they need is some one who has some financial and social prestige to assume the leadership. If our good people knew what this swimming pool would mean to our school children, and could be made to mean to the community, I am confident that the people of this district would enable the school board to go ahead. It is regrettable again, as I have been informed upon inquiry, that the superintendent and board of trustees are, wholly in advance with the swimming pool and that the lack of financial resources of the school board's decision. I am confident that the superintendent would heartily endorse this. Now if the superintendent, the board and trustees are not of this, there may be some substantial excuse for the elimination. I wish us parents, could see the need of this whole-some institution.

We surely, today, cannot think of this effort as a mere whimsical and elaborate seeking one. It has many advantages to offer, in addition to those of sanitation and recreation, which are so essential to health. What this institution would mean to the teachers alone would justify the expenditure of five times the amount calculated for the one planned for. How strange it is we cannot see the economy and great good to be had from our teachers having such recreation. I have learned to my satisfaction that our teachers are not so happy here as they ought to be, and the great desire to get away, and the large percentage of teachers who leave our local system annually suggest this to all. To offer this only as a recreation to our teachers would pay us parents many times over in the near future. Oh, dear people, wake up! I was so well pleased to hear our late Bishop of Idaho, James D. ## What Congress Is Doing

SENATE
WASHINGTON—The challenge that the Senate's opponents of the proposed league of nations covenant will be unable to muster a sufficient majority either to amend it or separate it from the peace treaty was flung at Senator Lodge of Massachusetts and other Republican leaders this afternoon by retiring chairman of the senate foreign relations committee.

WASHINGTON—Senator Johnson of California presented a resolution calling upon the secretary of state and the secretary of war to state why 50,000 United States soldiers should be sent to Siberia. Senator Johnson's resolution set forth that the dispatch of additional troops to Siberia was "for purposes unwarlike and unknown."

WASHINGTON—Purchase of the peninsula of Lower California by the United States from the Republic of Mexico was advocated in a resolution by Senator Ashurst of Arizona. The resolution provides for immediate negotiations.

WASHINGTON—Complete information on the war department's treatment of conscientious objectors, was demanded in a resolution by Senator Kellogg of Minnesota. The resolution calls for a statement of names of all conscientious objectors, sentences imposed upon them, date of their discharge and number of honorable discharges given to conscientious objectors.

WASHINGTON—Demands for return of the telegraph and telephone systems to private ownership were presented by Senator Kellogg, Republican of Minnesota, and Senator Gore, Democrat, of Delaware.

WASHINGTON—Immediate publication of the peace treaty in full was demanded in a resolution presented by Senator Johnson of California. "The resolution rests upon the necessity of state to make public the peace treaty, in order that the people of the United States may know in what engagements they are committing themselves," said Senator Johnson. Senator Johnson asked immediate consideration of the resolution, but it was blocked by Senator Hobson, of Arkansas. A similar resolution by Senator Frillinghagen of New Jersey was tabled.

SOME FOR AND SOME AGAINST PROHIBITION

HOUSE
WASHINGTON, May 29.—President Wilson was requested to state in itemized form just how he used the $160,000,000 war fund allowed him by Congress in a resolution by Representative Gould of New York.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—An investigation of the shipping board and of the emergency fleet corporation, for the purpose of gathering information to provide legislation for a permanent shipping policy will be undertaken immediately by the house merchant marine and fisheries committee. Representative Fitzgerald, of Minnesota, the chairman, announced this afternoon.

WASHINGTON—"The food administration was directed in a resolution by Representative Fitzgerald of Massachusetts to release for public sale all food stuffs held by it and not urgently required for government purposes, for the purpose of reducing exorbitant prices.

Representative Gould of New York also requested the food administration to furnish full information as to all journal and internal accounts regarding the fixing of prices of food stuffs.

WASHINGTON—Violations of the articles of war respecting court-martial were charged in a resolution by Representative Gould of New York in a resolution calling on the secretary of war to report the number of enlisted men in the American army at home and abroad who have been held in confinement for court-martial beyond the 30-day limit, and to state why such non-hays not been released.

WASHINGTON—Facts concerning measures taken by the American government for protection of American land of their property and rights in Mexico were sought in a resolution introduced in the senate department of New York. Special information was requested concerning American oil properties and interests.

Opinions Expressed by Members of Congress Relative to President's Views

WASHINGTON, May 21.—A sharp division of opinion was evident this afternoon among senators and representatives on the president's suggestion, contained in his message to congress, that the war time prohibition measure be either amended or repealed, in so far as wines and beers are concerned.

Representative Laver, Democrat, of South Carolina, chairman of the house agriculture committee in the last congress and ranking Democrat on the present prohibition bill, announced he is in favor of repealing the ban on the manufacture and sale of beer and light wines. I favored and voted for war time prohibition and the national prohibition amendment, and I think now the need for war time restriction on beer and wine has passed.

Representative Bent, Democrat, Alabama, chairman of the house military affairs committee in the last congress and ranking Democrat on the present prohibition bill, said: "The war time prohibition law was a war measure. The necessity that brought about and justified its enactment, according to the president, have passed. I favor the repealing legislation the president recommends applying to wine and beer."

Senator Jones, Progressive Republican, Washington, was "not only unalterably opposed" to the president's proposal, but said he was "confident that congress would not agree to it." Senator Sherman, Republican, Illinois, said: "I am against the recommendation. I am a dry. Let it alone. It has not the president's sense he had better stay in Paris where he can get it." Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, said: "I have always said that congress has no power to pass the war-time prohibition amendment. The constitution of the United States did not go out of existence because we were at war." Senator King, Democrat, Utah, said: "I do not believe there is any power in congress to pass such legislation as the war-time prohibition act." Senator Press, Republican, Pennsylvania, said: "I am afraid any comment I might make might not be fit for publication."

Representative Stullard of California: "The president has been staying in Paris too long. War prohibition will not be repealed by this congress."

Chairman Volstead, house judiciary committee: "The question of war prohibition repeal will come before congress undoubtedly. The existing law may be repealed."

Representative Champ, Clatsop and Clatsop counties, expressed approval of the recommendations which they characterized as "timely."

"The president advances some Republican doctrine," said Representative McKinley, Republican, Illinois.

Senator Shepard, Democrat, Texas, long an ardent champion of national prohibition, predicted that the congress would "never accede to the president's suggestion that the breweries be allowed to be opened up again and wine-making be resumed after July 1."

There are sufficient advocates of prohibition in congress to prevent a repeal of any part of the war-time prohibition law," Shepard added. "The United States will go dry on July 1 despite any advice the president may offer congress on the subject."

EARLY ACTION ON AMENDMENT FOR SUFFRAGE

Mann Bill Placed at Top of House Calendar on Favorable Committee Report

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The woman suffrage constitutional amendment was laid before the house this afternoon for early passage, with sufficient business pending for fiscal action before the end of the week.

THE SUNSET MAGAZINE

Walter V. Woohke concludes his discussion of the Mooney case with an article bearing the propaganda methods of the defense. It tells of the methods employed by that tinious organization, the International Workers' Defense League, and the results of its work. The article is called Poisoned Publicity.

Wilbur Hall contributes an article in a whimsical way describing the trials and tribulations of raising vegetable seeds that will command real money in the stores. You will chuckle over this writer's experiences, and you will learn a few things you did not know about a little known industry. Cultivated Weeds is the name of this article.

This issue contains another page of portraits of Bright Stars, western men who have won distinction overseas, with the record of the acts that brought their decorations.

In fiction there are three short stories and a long installment of Rose Wilder Lane's novel, Diverging Roads, now nearing conclusion. The short stories are, A Shoulder to Lean On, by Lillian Laney, The Rencadee, by Violet K. Roe, and The Portages of War, by David H. Talmadge.

The Pulse of the Pacific, eight pages of editorial comment on Western affairs, and the regular departments, The Home in the West, Interesting Westward, and Sunset Service Bureau, complete this interesting issue.
