MEMORIAL DAY, 1919

A new meaning has been given to Memorial day by the great war which is now only drawing to a close. New thousands have been added to the list of the nation's heroes who died that freedom might live.

What these new soldiers did will in no way add to or detract from the honor of the soldiers of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Of that one-thousandth army of the world only a handful remain. The army of the world war numbers millions. Like the soldiers of the world of the status when they come from the battle-field, those men are young upon their return and their greatest need is for the education which have arisen as a consequence of the strife.

So, just as the nation offered its sons in defense of liberty, it now looks to them for guidance in the problems of peace and reconstruction. Their work is only begun. They have fought a good fight. They have made the world safer for those ideals which urged the present when he declared that a state of war existed between the forces which would enslave the world and the forces which would make it free.

So, just as the nation offered its sons in defense of liberty, it now looks to them for guidance in the problems of peace and reconstruction. Their work is only begun. They have fought a good fight. They have made the world safer for those ideals which urged the present when he declared that a state of war existed between the forces which would enslave the world and the forces which would make it free.

So the celebration of Memorial day of 1919 will take on new significance. It is fitting that the heroes of this war shall be privileged to step into the breach caused by the rapidly thinning ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic, and to reap the debt a great national owes to its soldiers living and dead. It has been nearly fifty-eight years since the first battle of Bull Run; more than fifty-four years since Lee surrendered at Appomattox and brought the great war of the states to a close. Naturally, few of the thousands upon thousands who participated in the grand review of troops at the close of that conflict are left to tell the story of the war or to commemorate the exploits of those who made the supreme sacrifice. Only the heroic episodes are recounted by history. The realities of war may have been forgotten and the romance magnified in the passing years. If so, this new conflict has given the younger generation a more durable understanding of the heroes to which the heroes of the 1860s are entitled.

For the heroes of the present war no words of laudation are needed. Their deeds are of too great a service to their fellow citizens. Doubts, their work is not done. They have the problems of reconstruction yet to deal with. All honor to them for what they have done, and may wisdom guide them in their future policies to which the people of the whole world are turning with hopeful faces.

ROBINSON THROWS DOWN GAUNTLET

Senator Robinson yesterday ignited the fight in the senate for ratification of the peace treaty with the league of nations content as an integral part. He challenged opponents of the covenant to devise some better plan by which wars may be prevented, failing which, he urged them to support the present document. That seems to be about all there is to be said. Nobody wants a reversion of war. Nobody wants to pay and pay and pay to maintain gigantic armies and navies, nobody wants to go forth to do battle for some abstract principle that results in a long line of fire and blood and injustice much more certainly right than it can be settled by force of arms. Let the opponents of the peace scheme that will more certainly accomplish the results promised by the treaty and league covenant, and it will be received with hosannas of great joy. But opposition simply because the document is the product of a political opponent - a Democrat - is hardly worthy of the statement of a great nation.

HEALTH CENTERS

"Health centers" rather than clinics for the child of pre-school age are urged by Doctor Merrill Champion of the Massachusetts state board of health. "The word-clinic is undesirable," says the doctor, "because it carries an unpleasant connotation of sickness and medical treatment. 'Health Center' will be another term for a disease-prevention and health preservation center."

It is true that most clinics are regarded by the public as places where the suffering poor can receive medical aid free, and they are not sought until sickness has laid its hand upon some member of the family. Far more appealing would be the health center, where people could go for instruction as to cleanliness, home hygiene, the clothing and preparation of foods and all the various branches of knowledge which have to do with keeping well.

In the case of small children such centers are doubly desirable because the illnesses of childhood come from the ignorance or carelessness of the parents. Many of these cases, long neglected and finally brought to the clinic for treatment have passed the curable stage, and have already done untold damage in contagion.

The health center, which teaches the prevention of both the disease and the contagion, cannot be too highly praised. The "childish illnesses which reap their yearly toll in all the public schools would find a narrow field in any community which through the activities of such centers sent its children to school well-fed and sound-minded from the start.

AMERICANIZE THE WOMEN

The item of great importance in any Americanization scheme is the instruction of the foreign women. If they can be made to see what Americanism can mean to themselves and their children, half the battle will be won.

As a rule the foreign women are little accustomed to think for themselves. The man is absolute master of home and destiny. Probably the first result of the woman's promulgation of her new ideal will result in a boiling for her. But right here the courts step in. No man can abuse his wife in this country and get away with it for very long. When she learns that the courts will protect her, she has taken her first step.

Having had of before her the beauties of a country which offers everything to her for herself and her children, and having learned that the husband who tries to interfere with her will receive prompt punishment at the hands of the courts, this foreign woman will have courage to demand the freedom, the safety, the opportunity which American provides.

Because she is inherently ambitious for her children she will grasp eagerly the thing which offers the best future for them, insisting also that the father join forces with her in obtaining it.

Against this combined influence of the home and the Americanization work outside the home, in the factory, the doctrines of anti-Americanism will beat themselves in vain.

UNCLE SAM, THRIFT PROMOTER

No nation can be prosperous if its people spend no money. No nation can be prosperous if its people save no money. In the attempt to make this, from the highest to the lowest, a prosperous nation, Uncle Sam is carrying upon a regular thrifty campaign to help his people understand the business of wise spending and careful saving.

A savings division has been organized in the United States Treasury, to assume the leadership in this campaign. Economists, lenders, business men, educators and economy specialists in household and other fields, all will cooperate in service in this division.

It is desired that the American people spend freely, but think before they spend in order that they may get full value; that they should and desires be weighed carefully against future needs and desires so that each may take its proper place and have its proper proportion.

Everybody wants to be prosperous. Everybody would rather have money in the bank than not. With Uncle Sam leading the trail, the greatest pioneer in home finance need not doubt that if he follows faithfully he will become one of the prosperous ages.

FOR PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

"The Times doesn't know whether he is a Democrat or a Republican, but we do know he is some bird. To beat everybody else to it, we nominate him for the presidency of the United States. Do we hear yowls calling loudly, 'Same name?'" All right, his name is Arthur Chasling Reed, lieutenant commander of the United States navy, who flew across the Atlantic in the Navy-United 1.

Don't complain because the United States asks nothing from the peace settlement, and gets nothing. "It does not ask anything, for they shall inherit the earth." There may be something in that, when we consider where Germany landed by the opposite policy.

Public Action Must Now Force Right Handling of Private Timberlands

By HENRY B. GRAVES, U. S. Forester

The time has come for constructive public action that will bring about a right handling of our private timber lands. The practice of forestry on private timber lands is entirely possible, when coupled with a liberal policy of public cooperation and assistance. Such public help should be provided and forestry be made mandatory.

Our country is progressively destroying its forests. The consequences are very far-reaching. The exhaustion of the forest is followed by the closing of industries, the steady increase of waste lands, the abandonment of farms that depend for their market on the lumber communities, and the impoverishment of many regions.

No section of the country can afford to have a large part of its land an unproductive waste, with the loss of taxable values, of industries and of population that would be dependent if these lands were productive. No section can afford to be dependent for the supplies of wood products on another section from one to three thousand miles away.

The lumber of the southern pine industry say that the original supply of pine in the South will be exhausted in ten years, and that within five to seven years more than three thousand miles will go out of existence. Already there is an acute shortage of supplies for paper mills and for other industries in the East which use specialized material. Pacific coast timber is entering the eastern markets. This means that the price of home-grown timber has risen to a point making it possible to ship timber 3,000 miles in competition with it.

Timber land owners have not recognized an obligation to prevent their properties from becoming a source of injury to the community. Even if organized fire protection the chief effort is confined to the stimulation of merchantable timber. The character of the forest problem is such as to require the participation and direction of the public. We are not going to meet the situation until the public takes hold of it.

There should be compulsory fire protection of timber lands as well as standing timber. The public should prohibit destructive methods of cutting that injure the community and the public at large.

At the same time there should be recognized a public obligation not to allow the entire timber on private property through merely restrictive measures, but liberal action to aid owners in introducing forestry should be taken. The public should provide a sane system of taxation; it should recognize in such problems as overproduction of lumber, land classification, reclamation, problems of labor, technical questions relating to methods of practices and other economic, industrial and technical matters involved in a constructive program of forestry.

Hundreds of motorists in this city-many of them business men you know-have increased the pleasure of motoring by eliminating tire worry.
And you can do it too.
A new principle of tire construction invented by Charles C. Gates, E. M., makes it possible -and 500,000 car owners, all over the United States, have proven this Gates principle.
These motorists, including the biggest business houses in the country, have proved that Gates Half-Sole Tires enable them to get 3,000 to 10,000 more miles than ever before from their tires.
And Gates Half-Sole Tires are 20 per cent over-size, stronger and better than the tires now on your car-guaranteed puncture-proof-yet cost only 1/2 as much as other tires.
You, too, are entitled to this tire economy-let us show you.

WOMEN RIDERS WILL APPEAR IN ROUND UP

Rivalry Between Bertha Blanchard and Louise Thompson Will Feature Events

The wild and strenuous activity of the Round-Up, which seems to be the proper thing for men, used to be the hands of the Western plains; but there have been and always will be sturdy women who take their place along with the men in this work.

The Elks' Round-Up and patriotic celebration held in Twin Falls July 3, 4 and 5 will include in its program a woman who has won her spurs in every branch of the cowboy business. This woman is Bertha Blanchard, who has just been signed by the Round-Up committee to compete in bucking and riding contests of the above date. Bertha is known over the world, having appeared in bucking in Europe, Australia, and America; and her work is such that it never fails to elicit great praise for her wonderful horsemanship.

Bertha Blanchard is a well known "steak-horse" rider in the world. To ride an outlaw "steak-horse," without saddle or bridle, demands a fine knowledge of a horse, but Bertha is as fully capable of doing this difficult stunt as the most famous cowboy.

Appearing with Bertha Blanchard will be Louise Thompson, a qualified riding woman who is equally qualified in bucking. These two women was winner at Cheyenne in 1916, at Albany in 1917 and carried record honors in "Piedmont" in 1918.

Mr. and Mrs. Severns and Mrs. J. H. Lewis of Hillyer were in Twin Falls yesterday.

The House rules committee, which was to have made legal the attending of the repeal legislation as a rider to the agriculture appropriation bill, which is now before the House, adjourned without action following receipt of a letter from Attorney General Newton pointing out the legal confusion the repeal would cause.

Henry Steiwer, legislative agent of the A. F. of L., asked for time to ascertain the effect of the repeal legislation.

TWO BUILDINGS COME IN PATH OF LIGHTNING

Courthouse and Herriot Block Slightly Damaged in Electrical Storm

In the most violent electrical storm seen here in years at least two buildings were struck by lightning last night. The courthouse and the Herriot building were both damaged but not seriously, with several people felt the effects of the shock.

The storm broke early in the evening and the two buildings are believed to have been struck at the same time by a lightning bolt which was probably broken by someone in the city. It was followed by a terrific clap of thunder. Lights in a portion of the city were put out at the same time.

The Herriot building at the corner of Second avenue west and Second street is occupied by the Overland garage. When the lightning struck there a boy who was helping a mechanic at some work was thrown to the floor. The operator of the building was damaged at one point.

The lightning played hide and go seek in the roof of the courthouse, according to an electrician, and burned out the transformer, putting the elevator out of commission. One man passing the courthouse at the time received a "sting" of an electric shock in his feet. Another man who was in the postoffice at the time also felt the shock.

It has been well said the principle of the English-Speaking Union is the forms of efforts change but the battle is never over. The life struggle is wending, and the true measure of nations is what they can do when they are tried.

If we fall apart there is no limit to the evils which might be grounded upon mankind.

But if we hold together the larger hope that good will come out of the convulsions of the war is fortified and consolidated in an extraordinary degree.
