Joe Carson, left handed, Irish, and afflicted with a mummy for extra base hits, is about to assume the first basing duties on Roy Mercer's ball club. Carson has been plinking for a few days but has transferred his affections and batting averages to Twin Falls. He is expected to get in a few hard hits for the local club from now on.

Last Sunday at Elber Carson helped himself to a home, a double and two singles before calling it a day. It will be remembered that on opening day in Twin Falls the only hit Elber secured was a two-bagger by the same Joe. Immediately after the game Carson was holed out, where the opportunity came. At the present rate it won't be long before the Twin Falls club won't have any one for Ty Cobb.

Carson has shown his ability on several occasions to spear grounders and has had some experience at first base. Since no pitchers were used he was assigned to the first position where he will replace Cy Neumann, the high school youngster. Neumann has been playing some good ball, lacking only experience to hold his own with the best of them. Carson has the plate in front of him and he will incidentally give the league its first look at left handed first basing.

Manager Mercer wired this morning to Happy King, Rexburg catcher, offering him a berth with the club until Dynamite Miller is able to get into the lineup. Unless he can land a catcher by next Sunday an infield split will probably be necessary.

With Carson out of the filler line up, it looks like Joe Lachance and Captain Miller would be kept busy holding that club in the rear. Both are mighty lousy home ball players but they need a little help in the fielders and Lachance rates with any catcher in the league, now that Patton is out, but no two players can provide enough vertebrae for the backbone of a winning club.

TAGGING ALL THE BASES

Woodward, who sat the Glantz down a triple, two singles and a walk in his four trips to the plate in the first game, was the only one to tag a base in the game. He was the only one to tag a base in the game. He was the only one to tag a base in the game.

Labor Situation Only Disturbing Element in Outlook for Biggest Crowd on Record

700,000. June 4.—With the ticket sale over the half million mark, both fighters on the ground and in the pick of expectation, there was but one cry of the moment to distill Tex Rickard today. That was the labor situation here. Although the fight promoter declared that he believed the strike would be settled long before the fight comes off, the possibility of its growing into a serious strike is not creating him. What effect such a situation might have on the big scrap was being discussed today although all of Rickard's followers declared that it would have no effect at all.

Bating and Fielding Averages For Twin Falls Club Show Team is Going Well in Early Games

Big Bertha Thompson is leading the regulars of the Twin Falls baseball club in slugging averages for the first month of play. She has a batting average of .375. One of the stars at last have been over 40 hits which have been hit into 20 runs. This shows an average of a little less than 5 hits and an even 4 runs per game. The hits include 11-doubles and two triples, thus making 59 total bases. Dennison is the leading long range snapper with two doubles and a triple to his credit.

Ten bases have been credited by the club in the five games. Watson and Neuman, with a each, are the leading hitters. Dennison has secured two of the seven bases saved the team by opposing pitchers. Total strikeouts number 40, an average of eight to the game, which is not a bad showing for the first month of the season.

Fielding averages are also holding up well, the team average being .929. Patton, Neuman, Thompson, Tadlock and Singleton, of the regulars, have maintained perfect averages as far. Patton accepted 45 chances behind the bat without an error before being disabled last Sunday. The team as a whole have accepted 171 chances and made 13 errors. Of these thirteen, five were bad throws and three were passed balls or substitute catches last Sunday. Two outfield muffs and three infield bobbles have been made.

RING EXPERT WILL COVER THE BIG FIGHT FOR DAILY TIMES

The International News Service has obtained Frank G. Menke, one of the country's foremost writers on boxing, to cover the Witherspoon fight for the heavyweight championship of the world at Toledo, July 4. Mr. Menke is known from coast to coast as one of the best judges and critics of boxers in the country. He will go to Toledo weeks before the big event and will write a daily story on what the star fighters are doing to prepare themselves for the struggle. His stories will tell clearly just what the chances of each man are and what the ringers think about it.

Mr. Menke has covered hundreds of fights, among them the memorable battles between Jack Johnson and Willard at Havana four years ago. Readers of The Times (they are assured of the best reports on fights) from Toledo during the weeks that the big fellows are training and Mr. Menke's story of the battle will be flashed to all parts of the United States over an International News Service wire from the ring itself and will be the most graphic and as accurate a report as has ever been made.

Dumpey continued to take it easy today. "Jack is really one to go a long way," declared his manager, Jack Rogers.

Daily Thought: What a brave soul that, that is always prepared to face the body and soul from Toledo during the weeks that the big fellows are training and Mr. Menke's story of the battle will be flashed to all parts of the United States over an International News Service wire from the ring itself and will be the most graphic and as accurate a report as has ever been made.

BASEBALL STORIES

There seems to be a tendency to make outfielders "catchers" this year, as instance George Whitted, Harry Hooper, Zack Wheat, Tom Spiccer and so on.

Cleveland writers with the Indians are claiming that Lee Fohl has the American League's best set of catches in Steve O'Sull, Leslie Munson and Cleveland Thomas.

Armed with suggestion that he is given his release because he is done with baseball hasn't set with much response from the management of the New York Yankees.

Angie Moran, who will be an American national empire this year, says that he has never called him and still in a steel fence and a ball field in on the National League staff.

WHAT IS TO BECOME OF THE AMERICAN HOME?

Despairing housewives troubled with the servant problem, have been known to ask, "What is to become of the American home if servants get no servants?" And the answer has not been supplied, but the question has been answered by the women asking another question: "Whose American home counts for service?"

To attempt a solution of the servant problem, or lack-of-servant problem, Mrs. Raymond Robins, national president of the Women's Trade Union League, this week at the national convention of the league in Philadelphia, will introduce a resolution proposing the reorganization of the American household to put domestic service upon a tolerable footing. The league will urge domestic workers to organize themselves to demand fair wages and good working conditions.

Mrs. Robins is convinced that under present conditions the working woman resists the suggestion that she seek domestic service as a means of livelihood, and resents the efforts to draw or force her into it. She is tired of having this ill-paid, trying form of manual labor thrust upon her as a present emergency, and she is not sure that she would better pay but more consideration as a human being, and has perhaps a change of viewpoint.

Above all, the working woman bitterly resents what she sees as a tendency to squeeze her out of the better paid jobs where she is competing fairly with men, in order to force her to resort to the kitchen for a livelihood. As Mrs. Robins points out, the working women are more numerous than their well-to-do sisters, whose complaints are heard in clubs and in the newspapers. And, said to relate, domestic service means in a good many cases no home at all for the servant. So the destruction of the American home by lack of servants does not seem to be very much more serious than the destruction of the homes which the servants have a right to expect for themselves.

The working woman's view of the servant problem undoubtedly will be emphatically expressed at the meeting in Philadelphia. It will be attended by delegates from a great number of the organized trades and callings, some of them leaders only recently taken up by women. There will be a woman delegate from the Brotherhood of Railway Car Men, a sewer cleaner, for example, and women mechanics, as well as representatives of the textile workers, telephone operators, clerks, the glass workers, school teachers, hotel employees, shoe workers, flower growers, hat makers, garment makers, and other needle trades.

If nothing more tangible results from the meeting, it will at least furnish opportunity for the women who work to air their views, and those views doubtless will be wholesome, because they come from close to the earth. Most of the problems of present-day life could be solved if the people with the problems would only get down out of the sky and consider them in relation to the problems which confront other folks.

DISOLUTION OF GERMANY

The proclamation setting up the Rhineland republic last Sunday has been followed by similar proclamations establishing republics of former German states, as might have been expected. It is well known that those German states which Prussians were wont to designate the "conquered provinces" never were perfectly loyal to the centralized power of Prussia, but were held by the iron hand of military autocracy until the beneficial influence of German education corrupted the younger generation. With the downfall of militarism, as represented by the Prussian autocrats, the old spirit died that was asleep through the years, awoke, and now, urged by the hope that they may escape a part of the indemnity payments, they present new republics to a gaping world.

That these revolutionary outbreaks should be denounced by the present government negotiating the peace terms was to be expected. The organization of new governments is even yet held to be treason, and carries the penalty of death. Force and power are still the mainstay of governments. So revolutionists who make attempts to establish new forms, or to set aside old forms, become heroes if they are successful, and go down in history forever as liberators and lovers of freedom, and if unsuccessful are branded, shot or hanged and their names scourged and forgotten.

History is full of the names of heroic revolutionists, but those of present day in Germany are likely to find themselves confronted with too powerful forces to give them even the ghost of a chance of being heroes.

WHAT YE SOW THAT SHALL YE REAP

Such terrific reflections as that of yesterday are filled in overflowing with food for reflection. No sane person can fail to be reminded of outbreaks of violence, and organized society is in duty bound to hunt down the criminal and to make examples of them. How much of it is due to the carnage of warfare? To what extent are unpayable economic obligations responsible? Should the cause be sought or shall the effort be held only as a remarkable manifestation of insane desire to destroy?

Nobody can doubt that the wholesale destruction of life in Europe has tended to make criminal classes rich and poor, much less petty criminals are likely to find their life. Also it is to be expected that the value of individual lives. With this has regard for the blessing of life goes the feeling of helplessness which afflicts those who, situated in some particular day, work hard but the happy feeling of being a beneficiary for a rainy day. Another development among those deficiencies cannot be overcome by denunciation and repression. To destroy is not the natural impulse of the human race. The impulse is to build. Something, then, which prompts the insanity of destruction must be responsible when it breaks out in such conspiracies.

It is that insanity due to economic conditions, or to the fact that the people have forgotten God? If it is due to economic conditions, are not those economic conditions due to the loss of Christianity among those who may be in some way responsible for them? For years the organized workers of the United States have urged the enactment of legislation which would tend to improve the conditions under which they earn their living. The workers have tried to force by legislation that which cannot be forced, but which must be cultivated in the individual. There he those who call the virtue common honesty, and others who call it Christianity. But by whatever name it be called, it is not represented in the world to any great extent. Everybody takes advantage of the other fellow's inexperience and ignorance. Everybody tries to give less than he receives, whether it be the laborer on a daily wage or the farmer with produce to sell or the business man in any line who trades his commodities for the coin of the realm. And the sad part of it is that the fellow who is the most shrewd trader becomes "successful," and is looked up to as a fair sample for the younger generation to emulate.

The best efforts of all governmental agencies will be directed to ferreting out the persons guilty of the hideous crimes, and everybody will unite in praises for their successful work when they have finally dug the rugges out of their hiding places and brought them to justice. Meanwhile, however, little thought will be given to the causes which lie back of it all. Each will pursue his course, each trying to take advantage of his fellows, and some will be successful, and others will be failures—and common honesty will plead for a hearing in vain.

THE TRIAL OF THE KAISER

The suggestion was made recently in a prominent daily that it was hardly worth while to spend the time and the money of sensible people to try the former Kaiser.

This would be true, were the object of that trial simply to wreak vengeance upon one hated individual, but that is not the final end and aim of the proposed trial. It goes far deeper.

With the presentation of the peace terms the real plight of Germany is at last brought to the comprehension of the common people. They can realize for the first time since the militaristic dreams of a few autocrats have brought them. They can realize also how futile were the promises of a few other autocrats that they would secure peace terms favorable to Germany.

Now let this awakening experience be followed by the arraignment of those royal, military and civil heads responsible for the conduct of the war. This will mean that documents of indubitable veracity will be submitted in evidence of German guilt. Light will be cast on every angle and reaffirmation of Germany's war plans dating back for many years. The German people will have plainly before them, as before the rest of the world, all those causes which brought about the war and the downfall of Germany. The result should be the final wiping of the scales from the eyes of the great mass of the German people.

AN ITEM NOT TO BE OVERLOOKED

The peace terms seem to deny Germany the privilege of maintaining an army more than enough men to police the nation, and to forbid the rebuilding of the German navy. With this line removed from German industry, there is grave danger that Germany's food will become an even stronger competitor in the fight for world business. A nation not hampered by an immense navy and army, with millions of young men engaged in productive employment where formerly they were practicing goose steps and going on parade before the general staff is a nation more to be feared than one which devotes its energies to preparation for raising the world. Germany militant was a strong competitor in world trade. With all her people set free from military restraint, and all her energies devoted to peaceful pursuits, Germany will set a pace which will keep other nations forced by the necessities of victory to maintain larger armies and larger armaguettes. The penalty forbidding rebuilding the army and navy may after all be the sure means of restoring German prestige in the commercial war.

STABILIZING THE BEAN MARKET

A few weeks ago the California lima bean market was a hubbub of confusion. Part of the crop was in the hands of local dealers, some was held by independent growers, while another portion was in the control of the Bean Growers' Exchange. The prices were low and eastern buyers were reluctant to purchase because of the unstable market. Recently a combination has been effected so that the dealers, growers, and exchange have centralized in a commercial agency, and already large markets 200,000 bags of the 1918 crop. As a consequence of stabilizing the bean market by combination, the prospects are that the lima bean crop of California for 1919 will be about normal, as planting of the new crop is largely determined by the amount in which the old crop is merchandised. One-third of the 1918 crop has been sold at $7 a bag for a total of $4,200,000.

INTERESTS STUDYING THE PEACE TREATY

In a colloquy in the senate yesterday Senator Borah asserted that copies of the peace treaty are "in the hands of certain interests in New York, and is being dealt with by those interests." Then Senator Lodge declared that there were four such copies in New York, and that he had held one of them in his hand.

Then it was charged that the president had given orders that certain interests should have copies of the treaty, but Senator New spoke a good story by remarking that they were on sale in the streets of Germany for 10 cents.

It seems that the German idea of honorable dealing with the allies was to give the treaties full publicity. The unfortunate part of it is that the senators who are so anxious to have a copy of the document are not in the streets of Germany so they could get a copy.

WHERE IS THE MAN?

Haven't seen him now for six months.

But scores of our merchants are now building delivery prestige for their stores, because they have eliminated all tire worry.

These car-owners are making use of a new principle of tire construction which gives them 5000 to 15,000 more miles from their tires—at only 1-2 the cost of other tires.

They are using Gates Half-Sole Tires, which, because of this new principle of construction, give them double tire mileage.

Moreover, they are 20 per cent over-size—stronger and better than the tires you've been buying; guaranteed puncture-proof; and cost only 1-2 as much.

League of Nations Is Old Idea in New Garb As Proved by Indians

PORTLAND, Ore., June 2.—The leagues of nations really so very new, did not the many Indian tribes on the western coast of our country, back in the early eighteen hundreds.

The Indian league was practically the selfsame principles as expanded in the Wisconsin treaty. The inquiry is prompted and brought to light here in the suit of the Nez Percés Indians, fighting for their rights in light of the streams from which state constitutions to form them out the state against the Indian, the Indian agency to the mighty towns, the government, his league, for protection.

Their treaty is but one of many. It was originally made in 1855 on June 11, between the chiefs and Isaac Stevens, governor and superintendent of Indian affairs for Territorial Washington and Joel Palmer, superintendent of Indian affairs for Territorial Oregon.

It aimed to prevent war. No tribe was to war against another except in self defense, and then an appeal was to be made to the officials above even before any action was undertaken. Failure on to do meant loss of annuities, lands and rights, and provided strict indemnities.

The valley of the Wona-nah-shoo went to the United States in 1855. The valley of the Grand Ronde river, from the mouth of the Willamette, was set apart for the tribes to share alike in hunting and fishing.

The Indians were to have many thousands of acres of land, and were to have a number of officials standing as the supreme power.

SOUTH AFRICANA NATIONALISTS

ADVOCATE CAMPAIGN FOR INDEPENDENCE CASE AT VERSAILLES

By FLOYD MACGRIFF, U. S. S. Staff Correspondent.

LONDON by mail.—The national South Africa league, headed by General Hertzog, has launched their weekly "South African" for the purpose of advocating independence for the Orange Free State and the Transvaal, which were merged with the South African Union under the British crown in 1910.

Hertzog holds a mission of Nationalists from these states who say they will retreat to the case to be decided at the conference in order to obtain recognition of the independence in 1922. If they do not obtain recognition from the British government, Hertzog, bitterly opposed to any arrangement which does not restore the Orange Free State and the Transvaal to their original position, declares the Nationalists will only fight to gain rebellion.

"It is our intention to not only attain means to attain our end and there can be no question of open rebellion," Hertzog, right hand man of General Botha during the war, said to the Manchester Guardian, Hertzog now is a member of the South African parliament.

The South African Nationalist league, Hertzog said, are primarily interested in independence for the former Orange Free State and the Transvaal, but are also interested in other matters in a secondary character.

Today the principle of resolution has been accepted by the world powers, Hertzog said, "and we therefore ask that our independence be given to us."

The South African Nationalist league was born in 1913 as a protest against the "imperialistic policy of the British government."

Americans Treated With Cold Reserve

'Bye-bye Germans'

(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

AMERICANS enjoy among the masses in Berlin the same cold reserve which they have met in London.

The "Bye-bye Germans" are the only Americans who are treated with cold reserve. They are the only Americans who are treated with cold reserve.

PORTLAND'S "GREAT MISTAKE" MAY PRESENT WESTERN COAST WITH A LEANING TOWER OF PISA

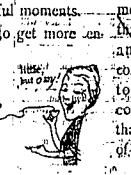

PORTLAND, Ore., June 2.—The western coast may have its leaning tower of Pisa after all. That it will cost them nearly $2,000,000, the cost of the structure of the "Great Mistake," is gradually sinking in the paleosic eyes of the Columbia river. Why, the engineers are not agreed. The huge cylindrical structure, built by the city of Portland, is leaning toward the east. The tower is leaning toward the east. The tower is leaning toward the east. Such a Little Thing!

TEA is such a little thing that it never stops to think how intimate a part it plays in our daily lives and what a wholesome influence it exerts upon our restless moments. Would you like to get more enjoyment out of tea? And if so, greater pleasure can actually be enjoyed for less money than you are now paying for tea, would you like to know about it? Isn't this worth a little thought?

When people think about tea, they forget that tea leaves contain tannin as well as tea flavor. Tannin, you know, is an acid found in all kinds of leaves and is used to tan leather, but not for the delicate tissues of the stomach. It injures digestion, it is hard on the nerves. Besides, it isn't tea—that harsh pucky taste isn't tea. People don't want tannin of course. They want tea-flavor which gives contentment, gentle stimulation, rest and cheer. That is the charm and value of tea—and the only thing worth buying. Common tea, which comes from the older leaves of the tea-plant, has only a small amount of tea-flavor and coarse flavor at that. The main strength of common tea is tannin. Finets, which come from the young tender leaves of the tea-plant, is rich in sap and fine tea-flavor. It has only a very small proportion of tannin, and even that is avoided by proper making at home. Now the tea in the cup can't be any better than the tea on the bush. A coarse leaf makes poor tea; and all the money you pay to bring it over here doesn't make it a bit better.
