FROM THE PRESS BOX JUG

It isn't necessary to read the papers to know that flood-punk work is draining raw. Strange looking go-around with tall bats, prominent heads, pants that show a crowded effect below the knees, funny leather overshoes and glazing trousers—beginning to straddle along the streets or chatter by singly and in pairs on hard bitten little breaks.

That's the usual picture, occasionally one or two weather beaten little "bees," half covered by a huge saddle, parked along the "curb" of Main avenue with a row of automobiles. The cow punch doesn't hesitate to leave his one horse punch along side the six and seven, and the pony looks nothing more than a mild disgust of his uncommunicative neighbor.

Baseball games are beginning to have their little splash of glamour and this will grow more and more frequent looking to the days when the game will be pulled off by the Sunday afternoon crowds during the next several weeks.

All trails lead to the Round-Up this days and all are being well traveled. Each day brings a new variety of the tame and wild. Very few Elk friends have brought back times upon the valley.

FRENCH WOMEN TO DO WORK OF MEN LOST IN GREAT WORLD WAR

PARIS, July 14th.—Albert Thomas, France's leading socialist politician and former minister of munitions, has become a champion for the transformation of the 400,000 women munition workers that France has during the war to a peace-time basis.

France lost 1,700,000 men during the war, many of whom had the most skilled workmen. France must find some means of replacing these men, according to Thomas, the 400,000 "munitionettes" offer the quickest and readiest field for developing skilled workmen, for rather skilled workers at a cost of not over $100. The total cost of educating France's 400,000 "munitionettes" would therefore be only $40,000,000. Thomas said the French government to put up the $100,000 necessary to retrain French women into engineering and to replace the skilled workmen lost during the war and for the lack of whom many French industries are no longer able to force ahead.

Common Sense Legal Decision.

A recent English decision holds that in view of the known production of young, untrained girls who started to work about 10 to 15, it is unexpedient to send a girl along the highway at night by leading a mare which it was accustomed to follow, without seeing to it in any way as to render its owner liable where the girl, being started by the light on a bicycle coming from the opposite direction, and being run across the road and collide with and injure the child.

Kingpiled a Hard Fighter.

Some country folk call the kingpile the war bride, because occasionally a girl is kingpiled into matrimony. The kingpile here the orchard there, while his mate is covering the earth, he takes to a tree top to enjoy the landscape and the sky above. When a hawk or a crow comes to sight the kingpile is off for a battle in which he does all the fighting. Occasionally, he takes a ride on the eagle's back for a year or so, preying his hardest to make his victim exceed the speed limit.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT

By Barney Oldfield

To the Merchants of America:—

For nearly twenty years I've been earning my living by risking my life on automobile tires.

And I have come through safe and sound simply because during all those years I've made tires my hobby.

I've studied them, experimented with them, developed them by having my own ideas worked out by expert tire engineers and chemists—and at the end of my racing career I've come to this:—

"The Oldfield Tire is my idea of what a tire ought to be."

It has built into it all that I've learned in more than half a million miles of racing and touring—and in three years of directing my own business, The Oldfield Tire Company of California.

"The Oldfield Tire Company of California" organized in 1916, was a natural stepping stone to The Oldfield Tire Company of England in 1919. The move to Cleveland—into the heart of the rubber industry—was made to insure skilled labor and better distributing facilities. The Company today has facilities for producing 100,000,000 worth of tires the first year, with ample capital and plenty of room for expansion.

The Company is now in production and deliveries are being made to distributors and dealers.

It's a Quality Job all the way through—tough and strong and easy riding. It's weathered—worned—raced—and it's ready to be replaced. Every Oldfield tire is inspected and tested during its manufacture in our factory.

And it goes to you with my personal recommendation.

Elmer Helping Hand.

Many of the world's failures would have been splendid successes, if, in their struggling days, some one had reached out a helping hand to them—had poured them on when the bitterest of their troubles assailed them. There is, indeed, a moral here. The woman that living who cannot do some thing for another, for her time, no time in doing it—in offering the word of hope or encouragement which is of most assistance to the world's wronged.

Don't Mix Nixani with Freedom.

(From the Cross-Buck Washington). Olfro, dark, worn with Prussian black, denounces the sacrifice of his hero-bodies in Prussia.

"Better the work-day soldier, campaign against soldiers. This drive is not a battle—hunger for soldiers to warm up and add show the Prussians that we know how to fight. It is an up-to-the-second appeal to warriors and to the masses of the world to show the public that they should honor the uniform."

The unwarranted practice of wearing the uniform of the soldier, or civilian garb in the keynote of this war.

All of you know the distressing picture, it plays itself in evidence along Pennsylvania avenue and about the streets of Washington. Every hour, the work-day soldier, no longer limited to the capital city. Nearly every hamlet of the land can produce one or more examples of the soldier, or former soldier, who wears his uniform mixed with civilian dress.

The mingling of several of these "part attire," parts of soldier and civilian, produces a ridiculous effect. All the colors of 1918's cloak are there, from the olive drab to the blue from the army uniform, associated with a bright blue coat and a straw hat, and a soldier's cap, and a soldier's, with an army officer dress blouse. A way the discrepancy, mixture of colors, will vary colors that the more even the civilian dress, and the more beyond to what the uniform man.

The habit of mixing the olive drab with the civilian dress, and the soldier's, is much talked about by the "intelligentsia" of our country. It is a topic of conversation in France and in hotel lobbies.

We admit that there is no objection to the mix of the work-day soldier's with the citizen's dress, but we think against the citizen's dress of the soldier's. The army does not the most honorable treatment that we can give.

Who has been discharged from the army? But the men know that they were expected to honor the uniform which it was presented to them by the government or their discharge from the service.

Discharged men say that they are unable to buy their civilian clothes at once. The reason is often correct, but the practice should be to wear all the soldier's garb or to wear items that make the color of the uniforms stand out as it has against every form of democracy. Honor it as the colors of the flag which led on to victory. Fly the same colors.

PROGRESS IN AERONAUTICS IS CRIPPLED

Cutting of Appropriation Will Force Abandonment of Virtually All Development

WASHINGTON, June 14.—A trans-Pacific seaplane flight was to have been attempted by the navy department, but it will be impossible because of the action of the house in cutting down in the naval appropriation bill the amount for aeronautics from the $15,000,000 requested.

This was revealed today by Secretary Daniels in discussing the effect of the slashing of the appropriation would have upon aeronautics in the department.

"We won't be able to fly across the Pacific this year," was the secretary's comment. He refused to reveal, however, to what extent plans for such a flight had been developed or when the attempt was to be made.

"The secretary expressed his deep disappointment that the appropriation for the air program had been cut to one-third of the amount asked.

"The secretary pointed to the fact that America was far behind the 'progressive' nations in the development of foreign aviation as well as in the development of the work. He expressed his hope that when the appropriation bill reaches the floor it will be increased. However, this would necessitate sending the measure back to conference, with little possibility that it will be so amended before July 1, the beginning of the fiscal year.

Secretary Daniels also disclosed that it was the plan of the department to build a seaplane carrier and a large airplane in this country and to purchase another one abroad. This would enable us to compare our progress with that of other nations.

REX BEACH PRODUCES HIS OWN PHOTOPLAYS

The distinction of being the first author to produce his own books in motion pictures belongs to Rex Beach, America's most famous author, who recently organized the Rex Beach picture company for the purpose of making multi-reel pictures of his novels.

"The Herries" will be seen at the Gen theater this week.

Rex Beach is deservedly one of the most popular authors America has ever known. His books are true to the most interesting of all American types.

The principal characters in "The Herries" are: Rex Beach, author, when the book was first published, taken from life—men and women whom the author met and knew in his five years' experience in Alaskan mining camps. Hence, his audience in the selection of the cast, as well as his supervision of the production of the picture, insures the accuracy of interpretation and adds greatly to the interest.

Overman Investigating Committee SAYS CONGRESS

radical revolutionary group and organization accept it. He called the "Overman" committee.

"They have been organized up to a point it is a rallying cry and are uninteresting to all the elements of interest," he said.

"The report says that twenty-seven congressmen are investigating the 'Overman' committee and the establishment of a dictatorship and ending with inauguration of a 'reign of terror' and dictatorship.

"The others include confiscation of property, public and private, disfranchisement of large classes of the people, abolition of the courts, snuffing of the press and establishment of compulsory military service.

"Notwithstanding the fact that every champion of bolshevism that testified before the committee admitted the bolsheviks were not adapted to the United States, they and their co-conspirators persist in their appeal to the passion of the people in an attempt to provoke discontent and hatred. They must, therefore, be condemned as the more champions of discontent and disorder, offering no practical and actual relief to the people.

"The work of German propagandists was reviewed minutely. The report said the German propaganda in this country had systematically fostered the growth of the German population in the United States, until at the outbreak of the war, persons of German birth, 'of German descent,' in the United States formed one-tenth of the population. It is Germany that is called to us as the chief portion of the people in furthering her aim was set by the committee.

First Lambs Are Sold From Freight at Good Figures

The first lambs, according to a statement made by H. H. Rehlmann, of Elgin, to be sold on the Twin Falls market were shipped out last week by shippers buying at a point, which price equals that paid by the packers of Salt Lake and Ogden. These lambs were the tops of the different flocks raised on the river and differed in that parties having lambs to keep them on good feed as the majority of them are thin and should be extremely good feed to be ready for market before the hot weather sets in.

Indications are that the market will decline rather than advance. Those expecting a good price for their lambs must not neglect keeping them on good feed for early marketing.

Cattle and hogs gradually are showing a decline in price which will be expected at this time of year and packers are passing out the word that we are to have cheaper meat.

France Once Had German Marshal

By Henry Wood
(United Press Correspondent)

PARIS (By AP)—France has just had its discovery placed at the disposal of the German people, that of the German peace delegation, had on an ancestor a man who enjoyed the highest title France has to confer, Field Marshal of France.

This professor of Joffre, Foch, Pétain and the limited few who have enjoyed the great dignity was a member of the same Hohenzollern family from which Count Brockdorff-Rantzau was descended.

The Hohenzollern Field Marshal was Count Julian, who served under Louis VIII. His lineage led to Louis Napoleon Bonaparte, who was a top and several times, a little later, at this, an eye and finally, at the moment he received four wounds.

It was after Graves that he was killed to the supreme dignity of marshal of France, but a little later he was assassinated by a man who had been sympathized against the interests of the father and he was imprisoned in the Bastille. When finally released his health was so shattered that he died shortly afterwards.

After an absence of many months from the stage, Julian Eltinge will be the attraction at the Lavering theatre June 17.

The great impersonator of feminine roles at the head of his troupe, having under his own management and handled only at the highest level of theatrical playhouse, comes in a sketch written by himself and June Mathis and called "The Night at the Club," this being designed to display all the curves of Eltinge's alluring art and to provide the newest characteristics in ultra-terrestrial comedy.

Some songs have been prepared by Nora McElroy, whose songs have also been reproduced in the theatre. His ability as a song writer has only equaled by his genius as a dramatist.

The supporting company in "The Night at the Club" is composed of Virginia Whitman, Margate Bouslet, sister of Edith Bennett, the motion picture actress, Arthur Shirley and John Nakada, the latter in the role of a Japanese laundier. The act is staged under the direction of Ed Nibbs.

Some of the performers in the Eltinge troupe are Sydney Grant, who has gained a national popularity was established when he appeared as a star in "Tom Long Kelly," Gaudinetti, from "Tom
