Spokane Meeting Gains Significance; Borah to Speak

Spokane, Nov. 14—John C. Page, acting commissioner of reclamation, has definitely stated that he will be present at the annual convention of the National Reclamation Association in Spokane, November 23 and 24. This meeting, decidedly the most important to western reclamation of any gathering in years, gains added significance by the attendance of the leading figures in the United States in reclamation affairs. Mr. Page will speak on the afternoon of Monday, November 23.

"The West is unanimous in feeling that reclamation stands at vital cross-roads, with its very existence depending on the united efforts of the western states," said O. S. Warden, Great Falls, Montana, president of the National Reclamation Association. "This reclamation and the attendance of men of national importance is resulting in registrations from all the eleven western states."

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho will be featured guest at the banquet, the night of November 23, and Senator Borah will also be in attendance at the luncheon on Tuesday, November 24.

Sunday, November 22, a day in advance of the opening of the reclamation sessions, the legislative committees will meet at the Davenport hotel, Spokane, a call for this committee meeting having been issued this week by Floyd O. Hagie, Yakima, chairman.

Idaho University Dean Sets Up Dating Bureau

MOSCOW, Nov. 14—Wallflowers rarely bloom at the University of Idaho, what with nearly three miles crowded to each woman, and a new dating bureau in operation to help the bashful get acquainted.

The anti-loungers bureau, organized by Dr. Evelyn Miller, dean of women, arranged 55 blind dates the first week, and an average of 30 the following six. Lately business has been falling off, due partly to the efficiency of the bureau itself in making possible friendships of a more permanent nature.

Dean Miller contends that a proper amount of social relaxation is every student's just due, and a working knowledge of ordinary social amenities and some of the nice things a necessary part of his or her university training.

Students who patronize the dating bureau fill out applications and, they list, among other facts, their name, age, height, home town, dancing ability, and special interests. Men's and women's cards are matched by the bureau. "There have been few complaints thus far."

"On any campus as large as Idaho's," Dr. Miller explained, "there are many students who miss congenial friendships for no other reason than the awkwardness of meeting each other and getting acquainted. Idaho students are proud of their deep-seated reputation for friendliness. Any means of making more students acquainted with a wider circle of friends is therefore consistent with the tone of the campus."

The Easy-Action Safety Brake in the new Ford goes into both, with "the safety of steel from pedal to wheel." Cable and conduit control type. Self-energizing—car momentum is used to help apply the brakes. About one-third less pedal pressure is required to stop the car.
SAFETY—All-steel construction. Top, sides, floor and frame welded into a single steel unit of great protective strength. Safety Glass throughout at no extra charge.
COMFORT AND QUIET—By every modern standard of design, the 1937 Ford is a big, roomy car. Extra space in the body where you want it—not taken up by the engine under the hood. # PIONEER CITIZEN CALLED BY DEATH

Peter E. Dean, One of Twin Falls First Business Men, Succumbs

Peter E. Dean, 69, veteran Northwest farmer and business man, died at 2:35 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the county general hospital following a heart attack with which he had been stricken a week before.

With him when the end came was one son, Clarence Dean, a retired army officer, who arrived with his family from Long Beach, California, the day before.

Funeral arrangements last evening awaited the arrival of the son, Cecil Dean, who was en route from Washington, D. C., where he is associated with the department of the interior.

The body rests at the White mortuary.

Dean is a business owner, New York, April 24, 1937. Mr. Dean attended Phillips Exeter academy and the University of Michigan before entering the oil business and operating in the Northwest. He settled in Nez Perce county in northern Idaho, at the behest of his father, and moved to Twin Falls about 30 years ago.

Deals to Land

One of the county's largest land-owners at the time of his death, Mr. Dean upon coming to Twin Falls entered with Joe Day, now a resident of Eden and Jerome county representative, in the real estate business under the firm name of Day and Dean.

In association with Grant Miller of Bush, with whom he continued a financial relationship in farm lands northwest of the Bush, Mr. Dean engaged in the hardware and implement business under the name of Miller and Dean from 1912 to 1918.

He was business manager for the Twin Falls Times during the period that James A. Crom was its principal owner.

His experience in railroad work was turned to good account as construction foreman for L. B. Perdue in the construction of the line of an electric railway that operated for a few years between Twin Falls and Shoshone, Idaho.

Identified throughout his life-time with the Democratic party, Mr. Dean took an active interest in political affairs and was a Democratic candidate for state representative from this county in 1914.

Fraternity Associations

A member of St. Edward's church, Mr. Dean also was identified with the Knights of Columbus and was a charter member of Twin Falls Elks lodge.

Following an automobile accident and a stroke, Mr. Dean had been comparatively inactive the past two years. He had place of residence was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Powell on Third avenue north.

Besides his sons, he is survived by his widow who is ill in Illinois.

He leaves also a brother, James Dean, and sister, Mrs. Maggie Deanna, both of Millbrook, New York.

S. F. MAYOR APPEALS TO WHITE HOUSE

Harry Bridges, president of the Western L. A. Organization, in a report to the San Francisco Labor Council. "If the department of labor withdraws from this situation and if attempts to reopen negotiations with shipowners fail," he said, "the west coast L. A. will appoint a committee to swing through the east and Atlantic ports and accomplish a complete longshore strike."
Bridges said the situation was being drawn out unduly and that his group would act soon unless peace negotiations developed. Milk deliveries stopped for all but hospitals and other public institutions in Oakland and other east bay cities by a walkout of 400 union drivers seeking to force the employment of union milkers on delivery routes.
About 500 shipyard workers prepared to walk out in Los Angeles. An order recalling half of the 400 special police detail from the Los Angeles waterfront was cancelled. Five hundred wholesale grocery warehousemen returned to their jobs here today after voting to accept a wage of 70 cents an hour in lieu of their former pay of $3.15 cents. About 90 other warehousemen remained on strike, however, having Roomier bodies allow for more spacious luggage compartments.

Asplanti-type, telescoping shock absorbers provide smoother riding.

DETROIT (AP)—Longer, lower and roomier, with further accentuation of stream lining, the motor industry's new models, being introduced in the New York national automobile show November 14-16, are counted upon to make a greater eye-appeal than any vehicles in the industry's history.

"Altogether without exception the producers describe their new types as presenting 'enhanced beauty of appearance, greater roominess, greater length, improved riding and driving qualities and a variety of mechanical improvements.'"

Changes Are Few...

The mechanical changes are not many, though a radical innovation are concerned. There are telescoping shock absorbers, a device for automatic control of the generator charging rate and bypass gears, permitting reduction or elimination of the tunnel through the center of the frontboards which followed the improved body design.

Price lists generally remain either unchanged or slightly lower. The industry is depending upon a greater volume of distribution in 1937 to make operations profitable despite what it claims has been an increase in labor and material costs.

Interiors Refined

Safety glass has become standard in virtually every make of 1937 car, windshield, plated. At angles designed to reduce approaching headlights glare and a variety of interior refinements are being introduced with the new types. Practically all models are equipped for radio installations, with some carrying loudspeakers in the instrument panel.

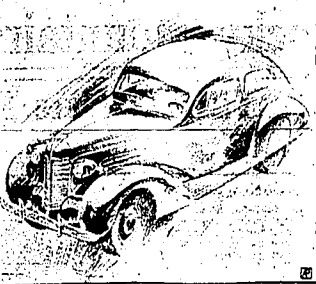

With the more general adoption of all-steel bodies, the majority of the new models carry antenna installations under the running boards, shielded against interference from high tension wires.

A Car for Every Purse Appears to Have Been the Objective of the Producers, who have enlarged their lines to include models in every price range.

In many instances, handbrakes have been shifted from the center to the left of the driver's seat; some makers have moved the battery to a position under the hood cover.

Larger Market Seen

Many of the standard sedans have become six-passenger rather than five-passenger vehicles, and the appearance of most types is one of greater massiveness than ever before in the industry's history.

Most of last year's major improvements have been retained in all models, and many have introduced minor innovations. One producer has placed all off-set instrument controls and door handles in recesses.

Every producer is convinced next year's output will reach the 3,000,000 unit mark, and that there will be few if any units left over at the end of the year. This view is shared by the distributors as well, many of whom point to the shortage of current models after 1936 model production was concluded.

PISTOLS, NOT RIFLE, FIGURES IN DIVORCE

The weapon with which Mrs. Gladys Blahman allegedly threatened D. C. Blahman of this town whom she now seeks a divorce, was not a rifle, but a pistol, Mr. Blahman stated last evening with a request for correction of a published statement regarding this phase of the case. The pistol, he said, has been introduced in evidence.

Blahman and his son, Millard R. Blahman of this, both were named as defendants in the divorce suit, it being alleged that the elder man transferred property to his son in order to avoid a property settlement.

Trial is to be resumed next Wednesday, Judge J. E. Oswald appearing for the defendants, and Chapman and Chapman for Mrs. Blahman.

SIX DECADES BACK

By CHARLES SHIRLEY WALGAMOTT

A Series of Historical Sketches of Early Days in Southern Idaho

Last Sunday Mr. Walgamm told the story of I. B. Perrine and his associates in financing the proposed Twin Falls tract. All attempts until the collection of Wilcher Jones, Salt Lake mining broker, who in return for a promissory note, returned a check for three thousand acres has succeeded in interesting Frank H. Buhl and Peter Kimberly in the project. Funds thus being secured, the contract with the State of Idaho under the Carey Act has been made.

"After this contract was made with the State and we had familiarized ourselves with the project, we found that under the Carey Act contract no one man could hold more than one hundred and sixty acres of land," said Mr. Perrine, "and our contract with Wilcher Jones, it was found that he was in possession of water rights to three thousand acres, but could use only one hundred and sixty acres in his own name. It was then that he and I agreed to contract whereby I agreed to sell three thousand acres on a cash basis of twenty-five dollars per acre, but to get fifteen dollars dollars per acre. To pay all expenses of the project."

"After this contract was signed Wilcher Jones went to Denver, and while there died of pneumonia, and not knowing what Mr. Jones wanted to do in the matter, I went to Salt Lake to see her. First I went to her father, J. S. Walker, and he took the matter up with Mrs. Jones, and she told me that if it was Mr. Jones' wish to dispose of the land on this plan, it was her wish also; so the contract was completed, the land was sold, and she received as a commission $45,000 in cash."

"Little Known History
Now this is a little little history of how few people know of the Twin Falls tract, for Wilcher Jones' name has never been mentioned that how the Twin Falls country was first financed; it is a fact, however, that Wilcher Jones is the man who found and first introduced Mr. Buhl and Mr. Kimberly to the Twin Falls project, but he never lived to see the completion, which was unfortunate, because Mr. Jones was so enthused over the possibility of putting water on the desert that he would have been a great pleasure to him to have lived to see the effect of his work in this great project. Now that everything has progressed and is in readiness, we felt it was necessary to have an opening and their friends in securing $4000 for advertising purposes. This equipped, he came to Twin Falls and organized his company, known as the "Twin Falls Investment Co. O. B. Hunt, president; I. B. Perrine, vice president; Bob McCullum, secretary; treasurer; Ben Edmund, Tom Costello, and Mr. Crocker, directors. Advertising "withal"

"The company employed, as chief of development, Mark Bennett, a man of wide reputation in his line, having been publicity man for the World's Fair at both Buffalo and St. Louis, and the first thing that Mark Bennett wanted done was the building of a first class hotel, which would be a landmark in Twin Falls. This is a first-class, extremely extravagant and impractical, but in the end it proved to be for the best advantage of the company. During the first year of the contract the Twin Falls Investment Company sold 11,000 acres of land. This contract, which Perrine was right when he told Buhl that the land would sell."

"The profits of the sale of Wilcher Jones' contract, all of which was completed in thirty days, gave Perrine a considerable number of contracts and mortgages. These, through the financial aid of P. P. Johnson now of Boise, and the legal assistance of Attorney S. J. Hayes, was used as collateral to start a bank—the First National. Attorney Hayes applied for a franchise for the First National Bank of Twin Falls. The controller asked Mr. Hayes if there was a post office at that place, and Mr. Hayes said, "Yes, and has been for thirty days." The bank was started with a capital of twenty-five thousand dollars and was established in a wooden building next to the old investment Company's office."

"Mr. John M. Maxwell, the present cashier, and one of the organizers, was the first cashier. The building was built in less than two weeks by Pat Hall, a contractor, and the bank opened. In a day or two the bank had one hundred thousand dollars on deposit and the cashier was wiring for help."

"Perrine Hotel
When the Perrine Hotel was finished, the water supply was furnished from a well in Rock Creek, and piped to the building. A sewer was built to connect with a sewer in the after the incident of selling the land by a purchasing machine engine, while some of these appliances were crude, the Perrine Hotel (Twin Falls) first hotel was modern from the start.

The vast output for construction drew so hard on the purse strings that even these wealthy men back of his proposition had almost reached the limit of their financial resources. A bond issue was suggested; but Mr. Buhl thought that on account of the dullness of the bond market, and the lack of interest in western irrigation projects, and also to the nearness of the Carey Act, an attempt to sell bonds would be a failure for twenty thousand dollars, which they did.

"Progress Rapid
The coming of the railroad in August, 1905, was one of the big events and relieved several hundred men and wagons that were endeavoring to carry freight to supply the wants of the fast increasing number of settlers in the Twin Falls tract.

"Bond Issue Successful
Perrine took three bonds east and sold them for six hundred thousand dollars. To Yorkville and Never of Chicago, the Twin Falls Irrigation Company put in $1,454,000 worth of land contracts as security for 1,000 worth of bonds sold. These bonds were held as security for the first ten years and as they were a ten-year bond, secured by farmers' ten-year contracts. It developed that the farmers of the Twin Falls tract were so prosperous that they paid off their contracts before they became due. The money could be used for another purpose, so it was decided best to retire their bonds even though a premium must be paid, which they were retired at $1,033,000, thus proving that the first Carey Act bonds had not been a success."

"The form of the settlers' contract that was used on the Twin Falls South Side tract was drawn by E. D. Critchlow and J. C. Edwards, Salt Lake attorneys and in substance this contract was adopted on all other projects. Mr. Critchlow and Mr. Edwards were connected in a legal way with the project from almost its beginning until its completion."

"Mr. Buhl, a man of few words, quick of decision, exacting in his fight, and prompt to recognize the meritorious deeds of others, arose from his feet to address a company meeting in the Perrine Hotel shortly who did a lot of good and always had faith in our work, whom I consider one of the best friends I ever had. Mr. Miller thought the same; that man was E. E. Callin, at that time president of the Oregon Short Line, and later president of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company. There never was a time when Mr. Callin did not have the fullest faith in our work and the possibilities of the development of the canal system.

From an advertising standpoint, O. W. Dunlop, who was general manager agent of the Oregon Short Line, and Dan Spencer, who was a leading general passenger agent, never failed to offer their part in advertising, in transportation, in special rates in furnishing us with dining cars, sleeping cars, and Pullmans, hotels, nor sleeping cars to take opening and we had to depend on the Oregon Short Line for equipment to feed and sleep these people."

"During this preliminary year's work in the Twin Falls country, the Idaho State Administration was a great help. At that time we had Governor Gooding, and Frank B. Gooding was at the head of the land board, and they never failed to do their part in helping in every way possible. So we were successful because we had the support of the railroad and of the people of the state."

"Builders Rewarded
The man who took the long chance was Mr. D. Miller, who put up the money for the first preliminary survey for and taking out the Carey Act, which amounted to thirty-two thousand dollars. He put this money up freely, never hating for expense and in doing so he received his money back with good interest. In the meantime he, like Wilcher Jones, passed away, but the company paid the estate a cash dividend of over five hundred thousand dollars."

"Mr. Buhl and Mr. Kimberly of course held larger interests and received larger profit. A newspaper during this preliminary work, financial, and trouble, we had one very substantial friend and advice man, one of whom had been made from the Twin Falls tract and if it had been possible Mr. Buhl answered: "An important question, but I will say the returns were satisfactory. The best of all was this: every one connected with the Twin Falls company was financially benefited. To me the best of all was the pleasure of being associated with such men in this work. It was one big pleasure at all times. We started friends and quiet friends, financially and socially."

In conclusion, I, the writer, will say that through my long and intimate acquaintance with I. B. Perrine, which dates back to that night of the fall of 1884, when he as a boy knocked on my cabin door at Shoshone Falls, and as I have observed his life's work, as he with diligence labored to transform dreams into realities, knowing this has been one of the greatest privileges of my life.

HISTORY OF THE NORTH SIDE TWIN FALLS IRRIGATION PROJECT.

After the completion of the south side Twin Falls Irrigation District and all the land was sold. T. B. Perrine was anxious to go ahead with the Twin Falls north side district. Mr. Perrine said, "I want to see Mr. Perrine said, eighty miles out of Pittsburgh to see my partner, Mr. Buhl. My other two partners, Peter Kimberly and B. D. Miller, had passed away. Mr. Buhl told me I didn't want to engage further in irrigation projects; he had all the money he wanted and he had made a success of the Twin Falls south side and desired to retire and live a quiet life. I asked Mr. Buhl if he would give me an option on the property, and he told me that he would give me a contract, and wanted to know on what property I wanted the option. I told him I wanted the company's office building at Miller's, the hotel, 71 of the bridge across the river, the townsite of Miller, the required interest in the dam to carry water to the north side, all of the surveys and engineering reports pertaining to the north side, the water rights which I had filed on the same day that the Twin Falls south side water rights were filed, and some construction work that had been done."

Wings For Sally

Chapter One
Breakfast At The Warrens

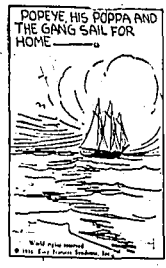

R-R-R...

At the harsh jangle of the alarm clock, Sally Warren started wide awake. For a moment she stared with dream-clouded eyes at the pink roses on the wall-paper, while the bell tinkled sweetly. Then, as the familiar objects of her room began to emerge clearly, she reached for the clock and turned off the alarm with a practiced finger.

She did not get up immediately, for this was the moment Sally loved, the time between waking and rising when she lay cozily in the old wicker bed, with the blue and white patchwork quilt drawn up under her chin. From where she lay, she could look straight into the upper branches of the apple tree, spreading out pink and white and green over the side yard.

But this morning Sally had more exciting prospects before her than the brightness of the April day. She was going to work at the new school building, and she had to get into the auditorium room of the Warrenton Courthouse in time to see the play. She had to get up at seven o'clock and begin her first job. She had to get up at seven o'clock and begin her first job. She had to get up at seven o'clock and begin her first job.

Then, as the familiar objects of her room began to emerge clearly, she reached for the clock and turned off the alarm with a practiced finger.

She did not get up immediately, for this was the moment Sally loved, the time between waking and rising when she lay cozily in the old wicker bed, with the blue and white patchwork quilt drawn up under her chin. From where she lay, she could look straight into the upper branches of the apple tree, spreading out pink and white and green over the side yard.

But this morning Sally had more exciting prospects before her than the brightness of the April day. She was going to work at the new school building, and she had to get into the auditorium room of the Warrenton Courthouse in time to see the play. She had to get up at seven o'clock and begin her first job. She had to get up at seven o'clock and begin her first job.

At the harsh jangle of the alarm clock, Sally Warren started wide awake. For a moment she stared with dream-clouded eyes at the pink roses on the wall-paper, while the bell tinkled sweetly. Then, as the familiar objects of her room began to emerge clearly, she reached for the clock and turned off the alarm with a practiced finger.

preluded over her house, she had her social life, her child, her charities - she was a woman who graded her home.

"I'm sorry, Robert, if you feel it is necessary to speak to Sally in this way. I've not made you a good wife - like what you expected. Then I'm sorry for it, but as God is my witness I've done my best, even though you and Sally have made it hard for me. Her voice trembled with anger and hurt. Mrs. Warren turned away and fumbled in the china closet.

"I beg your pardon, Adelaide," said Robert Warren. "You've been all over it - that you should be to me. It's I who haven't done my best. I'm a failure. Every day brings it home to me more and more as I see you and the children doing without things and working when you should be enjoying yourselves."

"Oh, come," said Mrs. Warren, rallying to an argument. "I know you do, well - enough pleased if I'm not calumniating off to every reporter and is invited to."

"And that was Miss Minter," interrupted Sally, "that you must be sure to tell me of any tea-parties or any other kind of parties you hear of because that's what my page in the paper's made up of."

"Thought you were going to be a real reporter," said Ray coming into the dining room with a book in his hand. "That kind of stuff ought to be left out of newspapers."

"You better be glad it's in 'em, or I wouldn't have a job," she served Ray's plate with comely wit. (Copyright, 1934, Bailey Wolfe)

then started on the canal."

"I've followed a continuance of Mr. Perrine's story."

"Mr. Bull wanted to know what I thought would be a fair price. We both took our pencils and began to calculate. Presently Mr. Bull said, 'I have $300,000; what have you?' I showed him my figures, which were an even $300,000. He said, 'Perhaps you are nearer right than I. Let it go at $300,000. With that in hand, the next move was to finance the proposition; some man or a group of men that controlled at least $200,000 had to be found."

and Water Company, all under the Carey Act land contract.

"The public was impatient to procure land on the North Side. Buyers who could not be sold land contracts on the Twin Falls South Side now saw their mistake and scrambled for North Side contracts."

The Kuhn's financially organized and gave a contract for construction to Grant-Smith and Company, and the North Side Land and Investment Company was organized to sell the land and town lots, under a contract from the original company to handle both land and town lots on a commission basis. They filed the money to carry on construction work on a bond issue guaranteed by Carey Act land contracts.

"The public was impatient to procure land on the North Side. Buyers who could not be sold land contracts on the Twin Falls South Side now saw their mistake and scrambled for North Side contracts."

Adjustment Made

"This is what I told him: 'Take your figures to forty-five dollars per acre, which, according to our engineer's reports would be the right figure. This, together with the 60,000 acre reduction from your reservation, will make your available water supply more certain and in all will insure success for both your proposition and ours and you will have made $200,000. Do you agree?'"

"The first day the proposition was laid before the board and quickly adjusted, all thinking that a mistake had been made. King was allowed 100,000 acres, known as the Big Wood River Company, and the Kuhn's were allowed what is known as the North Side Twin Falls Land

WORKERS DISCUSS RELIEF POLICIES

Mass Meeting in Park Promised What New Deal Has to Offer

Nearly 200 persons assembled in Twin Falls city park yesterday afternoon in response to a call to action to secure decent living conditions and real work at a living wage.

In the group were men, women and children, some of whom disclosed that they had only a few dollars remaining after their employer's work and were experiencing difficulty in getting back on relief rolls. The state agency, D. T. A. federal agency, another said "will eventually provide projects if we can hold on to this lump."

The speakers, Luke Francis, Perry Morse and Will Williams, stressed need for collective action on part of relief workers and unemployed persons.

"We are going to get in Twin Falls county which has no relief," Williams declared. "But we can't do it individually; we must do it collectively through pressure of numbers," he added.

Eyes County Funds Francis referred only casually to a statement in the unionist, "I'm not going to ask for county poor funds for illegal purposes. He said commissions had illegally taken money from the poor fund to other uses."

Seated in the audience, Dr. Andrew Warner, Methodist district superintendent, questioned speakers as to ways and means of collective action, and was told that the Workers Alliance, a unit of which has been in existence here about three years, is the only "organized" organization of relief workers and unemployed.

Williams, introduced as a member of a committee representing applicants for relief, assured "we can get food, fuel and clothing for anyone who needs these things."

McDONALD'S SONS START NEW SUIT

Heirs to Standard Oil Fortune Attack Creditor Priority

Heirs of the late James McDonald, Standard Oil fortune who died at his residence at Boise last July, Robert McDonald and James McDonald III, both residents of Idaho, filed suit in Ada county district court at Boise yesterday to rescind an agreement under which McDonald's estate had been valued at $200,000 on life insurance policies for the benefit of creditors.

The sons, who are creditors, allege in their suit that the disputed agreement which was entered into early last June here was performed, and that no consideration was given for it.

Trustees of the original McDonald estate Pullen Trust company of New York allege that the disputed agreement defines priority of McDonald's creditors.

Other defendants in this action are W. H. Langford of Boise, executor of James McDonald's estate, and Mrs. Lula B. McDonald, McDonald's surviving wife.

The sons who have brought this action to rescind the disputed agreement were among creditors who were to have benefited under its provisions.

Other defendants in this action are W. H. Langford of Boise, executor of James McDonald's estate, and Mrs. Lula B. McDonald, McDonald's surviving wife.

The body rests at the Twin Falls mortuary pending word from the department of religious education at the College of Idaho at Caldwell.

FUGITIVES-FACE BURGLARY CHARGE

Ex-Convict and Friend to Be Returned to Weiser for Prosecution

Charged with the exact duplication of a crime for which he was convicted two years ago, Jack Drexell, alias Jack Carson and Joe Conroy this morning were taken to Weiser this morning by Washington county officers for a charge of burglary.

Also to be taken back to Weiser will be Howard P. Chilson, who gave his address as Vienna, New York. Chilson will face a similar charge. Leland Allman of Twin Falls, who was arrested along with Drexell and Conroy at a local tourist park last Saturday morning, will continue to be held in Twin Falls county jail, officers said.

A little more than two years ago Drexell was convicted of burglary in the Weber Grocery company warehouse at Weiser and carrying with a quantity of cigarettes. He served two years of a two-to-15 year sentence in the Idaho state penitentiary, being released less than a month ago.

Officers allege that Drexell and Chilson entered the same warehouse early Friday morning through a skylight, escaping with 25 cases of cigarettes.

Arrest of the three men took place at a local tourist park at 2 a. m. yesterday.
