WILLARD NOT INVULNERABLE

Physician Examines Champion and Sets Down Physical Condition as He Finds It

(By Frank G. Menke)

TOLLEDO, June 30.—Dr. Jess Willard physically fit to fight.

Blood pressure tests show that the champion is abnormal on all three counts, and personal observation convinces that he is fat and flabby on the outside, which is indicative of "very harmful fatness inside."

That is the conclusion of a Toledo physician who makes the following statement: "I have made a special study of blood pressure in its relation to health and physical prowess. The test shows that his main 'contingent' for physical reasons."

The test made of Willard a week ago by a Toledo physician is shown that Willard's systolic pressure is 122 and his diastolic pressure is 82, making a difference of 42 between the two which gives the pulse pressure. Those figures show a subnormal pulse pressure for a man of Willard's size. His systolic pressure should be about 135 and his diastolic pressure 85, leaving a difference of 50 for pulse pressure, which is the normal average.

Furthermore, the pulse of Willard taken by the physician were either 90 or 95. I don't know which, but the normal pulse rate is 70 and the other 50 that is either easy or proves Willard subnormal again, for the pulse of a normal man between 35 and 60 beats per minute is the normal average.

There is no question about Willard carrying around a great deal of weight at this time. And he is flabby on the outside. Fat is not only stored in the fat cells, but it is stored in the muscle and fat on the inside around the organs and streated through the muscles. There is, of course, around all normal human beings a certain percentage of fat which, instead of being harmful, is of vital need. When the fat increases beyond a certain point it is dangerous for any athlete.

When harmful fat increases within the human body it makes its inaugural attack upon the muscles, it enters into them and lessens the muscular power with every increase. Fat is unknown to the muscles of a perfectly trained athlete. In fact, when you cut through one of the big back muscles of Jack Dempsey you would find nothing but fibre. But if the same thing was done with a man who is carrying excessive fat, this fatty streaks will show.

"Until an athlete risks himself or fat, both inside and outside he is not perfectly conditioned and must expect to be rather easily. That is because work calls upon the muscles to their utmost and when muscles are filled with fat their powers are but limited."

"Only those uneducated in human frailty as revealed by a study of the anatomy will say that Willard cannot be knocked out. The greatest giant that ever lived was subject to a knockout blow. A well-timed could knock out Willard if his punch landed on the right spot. It does not require a tremendous blow to the jaw-bone to render a man unconscious. But the blow must hit those spots on the chin line that mean 'knocking out of the beam.'"

"It is true that some men have a greater power to resist punches to the jaw than others. And Willard, as proven to be one of them. So many pugilists have been knocked down or out, but that is not because they are not proof but because an injury has landed on the right spot. It is a fairly strong blow over the Willard's chin from the jaw on the right side at a point from beyond the chin to the ear. Willard is a good example, the same as any other champion."

And from a purely medical standpoint, it can be said that Willard is a man who is not in the best of health. It is a pity that he is in a position to fight. It is a pity that he is in a position to fight. It is a pity that he is in a position to fight.

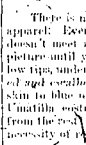

And from a purely medical standpoint, it can be said that Willard is a man who is not in the best of health. It is a pity that he is in a position to fight. It is a pity that he is in a position to fight. It is a pity that he is in a position to fight.

FROM THE PRESS BOX JUG

If there was any remaining touch of color left for the Elks Round Up, it has been fully and satisfactorily supplied by the arrival of the Umattila delegation from Philadelphia. For the first time we begin to realize the full meaning of the word "riot."

The invention of shirts must have been regarded by the North American Indian as an unparalleled forward step in the advance of civilization. Formerly he wore the loincloth with a paint brush and they couldn't get half the effect. Crowded a Umattila brave into one of these Round Up Shirts and he is nothing short of a sensation. Talk about getting results. The fellows are getting it. Here is the last word.

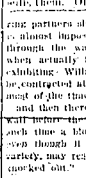

There is nothing vague or indelicate about the Umattila taste for apparel. Even a passionate purple shirt with pink sleeves holds down all the requirements of dress. You don't get the full picture until you throw in a pair of jet black knickerbockers with pink suspenders. From the head and neck down to the feet, the Umattila is dressed in blue overalls with yellow fringe. One nice thing about the Umattila costume is the absolute independence of every garment from the rest. Neither in cut nor color scheme is he hampered by any necessity of coordinating his pants with his shirt.

We have described this summer dress. In odd weather he may put on a plush coat, or maybe just a pair of red suspenders.

When Sam Batley laid eyes on the Umattila delegation he curled right up with his. "That's my cup for our little Round Up, sure enough." The little matter of wearing colored glasses for the next day or two didn't bother him. "Striking," that's all, then, Mr. O'H.

gang partners all away at it, then it almost happened to draw a loose end of the line, they will be relaxed, and then there will be no singular fact return to the normal state. As such, such a loose end to that spot, any one of the lines of the crumpling, certainly, may result in Willard's being "knocked out."

WILLARD DOING SOME ROAD WORK

Rumor Has It Champ Goes Out at Night in Effort to Condition Himself

(By Frank G. Menke)

TOLLEDO, July 1.—Following close in the heels of the story that Jess Willard is "slipping over" something in the folds here by building his night work, we report today that the champion is doing some box work, long punching and pulley work, at night.

The night road work story seems well substantiated, several persons claiming to have seen Willard sprint up along through the mountain section of Toledo after dusk the gas meter. If Willard is doing this it is an indication of his own that he is not in the condition that he claims and furthermore, it would indicate that the champion has changed from his earlier attitude that road training is unnecessary for a two-round fight.

These stories, which indicate work on the part of Willard over his middle class in the line of the latter-day heavy blow, will further the work of his enthusiasts. It is felt that a successful and breeding fighter will be a half beaten before the first round.

DISHREGARDED DAD'S VIEW OF MARRIAGE DIVORCE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—"You never get married. Never do you get married."

This remark was made by Willard's father to his son, Norman, who, he said, was "Marrying" before Superior Judge Thomas G. Graham. On the strength of the remark the woman was given a divorce.

Superstitious May Take Comfort in Record of Previous Battles for Championship

(By Tad)

TOLLEDO, June 30.—The backers of Jack Dempsey, in his coming battle with heavyweight champion Jess Willard on July 4 have another touch to lay on now that sounds like no new deal at that.

Johnny Eckardt, of Philly, who now tows Saturday, brought this much with him and has one gally over it. The knock is this:

Johnny says that Duke Fortune has seen more than kind to challengers. It over the world who have fought an outlay. Of course there have been 500,000 who ran second on holidays, but whenever a champion met a challenger who had any chance at all in such a day he usually duffed the 100 pounds to him.

Just give this hat the north and south.

On Thanksgiving day, 1911, at Hartford, Conn., Young Corbett knocked out Terry McEwen, the featherweight champion, in two rounds.

On Washington's Birthday, 1912, Johnny Kilbane beat Alvin Attili, the featherweight champion, at Los Angeles, Cal.

On July 4, 1908, Billiee Nelson knocked out lightweight champion Joe Jones at San Francisco in 17 rounds.

On Washington's Birthday, 1910, Al Volcott beat Billiee Nelson, the champion, in 40 rounds at Point Belvedere, N. Y.

On July 1, 1917, St. Patrick's day, Ed Fitzsimmons knocked out heavyweight champion Jim Corbett in 14 rounds at Carson City.

On Christmas day, 1906, Jack Johnson stopped Tommy Burns, heavyweight champion, in 14 rounds at Reno, Nevada.

On July 4, 1919, at Toledo, Jack Dempsey and Jess Willard will fight. It is but a few days before the fight. It is but a few days before the fight. It is but a few days before the fight.

The kind as dead-long live the king!

with Dempsey here for the past month has "let his buggy loose."

Saturday afternoon the kid put on his hat and coat, got his walking stick, and saying a sweet farewell, started down the dusty road toward town, humming to himself "I don't know where I'm going, but I'm on my way."

The kid took quite a beating from Dempsey in his hot hour and was sick for two hours afterwards. He sat in his room alone after supper, thinking and started to think. He remembered that old saying, "It's better to have ten and lose 'em, than 'em than 'em." Then he quit his job.

COUNCIL HAS USUAL STOCK OF BUSINESS

Wades Through Water Matters and Discusses Keeping Order During Round-Up

The city council waded through its usual stock of business last evening, starting the night of reports, petitions and communications that had accrued during the week.

Chief of Police Taylor received instructions this night in the very nature toward suppression of any element that might disturb the peaceful or orderly conduct of affairs during the Round-Up. The chief reported that his department was well organized to handle the situation and was in readiness to do so promptly and effectively.

Water matters occupied a portion of the evening. Informal discussion of the water supply resulted in a request of water users to reduce their consumption for lawns, gardens, etc., as far as possible, about thirty per cent being suggested.

The Pittsburgh Filter company and the Hunter Packard Construction company having finished their contracts on the new waterworks, warrants were ordered drawn for their final installments, with their 5 per cent guarantee deposited with the city.

Engineer C. E. Painter was retained for another month in complete charge in connection with the new water plant.

Damage claims of the Blake Stevedores and Elite Millinery arising from breaks in water mains, were laid over another week.

Representative of the American Gasoline-Pipe company was here to investigate the damage it was reported.

Frank Gooding, Whitely received a salary raise of $125 per month over his former salary of $180, extra work requiring additional help.

W. C. Widens was awarded the city garbage contract at $250 per month, including the residence districts of the city. This contract will expire March 1, 1920.

PRESIDENT EXCHANGES GREETINGS

Kings and Emperors Send Felicitations Which Are Returned by American Executive.

En Route to the United States with President Wilson on board the S. George Washington, June 29 (By Wireless to New York)—That a new era in the world's history will be ushered in by the peace treaty which is indicated by the tenor of the messages of congratulation sent to President Wilson by foreign rulers, and by the replies.

In reply to the cordial felicitations of King George of England, the president sent the following radio-gram: "It gives me deep pleasure to express to you my admiration of the strength of your people's message concerning the great deeds which have been attained by the present peace and the new ties which have been created between your own great people and ours. We are on the eve of realizing more than we could at any other time in the history of the world.

"It is within the realm of thoughtfulness of every nation to reach the peace by their counsel. I am deeply moved by your earnest and momentous time of renewed vision and confidence in Japan.

"Your industry's message of felicitation is received with the greatest gratification. It has been a privilege to co-operate with the very able representatives of Japan in developing the terms of peace which inevitably involved the interests of the whole world. I believe, with your majority, that the results achieved forecast a new dawn in the world's history because they give promise of peace with justice. May I express my best wishes for the security and happiness of your people."

King Alfonso of Spain sent the following message: "On account of the signing of the peace in which you have, in conjunction with your country, taken such a prophetic part, I am pleased to send you my most sincere congratulations and ask you to accept my best wishes and those of Spain for the happiness and prosperity of the United States of America in the joy of commencing. Wishing you Madame Wilson and Miss Wilson a cool future."

President Wilson's acknowledgment: "I greatly appreciate your message and regret that I cannot reciprocate in kind at this time. I am glad to see you and look forward with equal confidence to a new day in which it will be possible to give peace a new basis for the betterment of our common sense of unity and co-operation. And I am sure that I am expressing the feelings of the people of the United States in wishing for the fruits of a better day."

This is a Greater Maxwell

There have been many improvements made in the Maxwell since the war ceased. Some of them have made the car look better. Others have made it run better.

You will note a new type radiator, a further advance in body detail, an improved electric system, a Hot Spot and a Ray-horn, a superior development in upholstery, and a top more durable.

Any of these is well worth any man's time to look over, and the sum of all requests is decided value added to the car, which goes with purchases for cash have made possible without increasing the price.

But the fundamentals of the car are unchanged—300,000 Maxwells on the highways of the world—all of the same model, have proved that a policy of never changing the basic design is profitable in more ways than one to buyer and maker.

- It means extra value at a lower price.
- It means perfection in design.
- It means perfection in workmanship.
- It means you pay for no experiments, no engineering knick-knacks.
- It means you pay for no mistakes.
- It means a car of everlasting reliability.
- It means a car of endless mileage.

You can easily pay $200 more and receive less. This Maxwell is old in accidents but modern as far as sound engineering goes.

There is no car of the day selling for so low a price to offer so many attractive inducements.

EDWARD DE VALERA, PRESIDENT OF IRELAND

Edward De Valera, president of the Irish republic, is now in America, he having taken French leave of the British authorities to spend a vacation in his native land. Last week he went to Boston, and as his train rolled into the South station he was given an unprecedented reception.

Granting that the "Irish Republic" is a reality, that Ireland is by virtue of the Sinn Fein declaration an independent self-governing country, how can it be ruled by a citizen of another country? Of how can an American citizen rule another country and remain an American citizen?

De Valera is reputed to possess great gifts as an orator and statesman. He is certainly in position now to make the most of them.

PEACE

Strange that the great climax so long awaited and here at last occasions so little excitement!

The war is actually over. The storm which has kept the world in upheaval for nearly five years has spent itself, and peace is here.

It is a time for thought, for attention and deep gratitude. Life, which so long has turned upon the processes of destruction can become once more the life which builds and develops.

Nobody can say that this peace will last forever. Nobody can hope that in a day or a month the world will have settled down to its steady forward progress.

But one thing is certain. In the business ebbing or banking, housekeeping or organizing the woman suffrage party, the more softly and completely each individual makes his personal readjustment and sets about his own affairs the more quickly will the affairs of the whole world be brought normal.

Believe we turn our backs finally, however, upon the greatest war in history; it might be worth while to dwell little, speculating of what the war has meant. It will make peace seem more wonderful, more earnestly to be desired, and more carefully preserved.

ANOTHER SAMPLE OF REPUBLICAN ECONOMY

The faculty of the impression left by the statement of Representative Mondell that in the federal appropriations "as passed by the house" a billion dollars was saved is made clear by the story of the action of the senate committee in increasing the sundry civil appropriation $298,771,727.75.

It is a rare privilege the Republicans have in the present situation of charging extravagance to the administration, saving a billion dollars for the people, but fussy enough to provide for the needs of the several departments and saving nothing about the real necessities as recognized by the senate.

In spite of all these news dispatches about Pancho Villa, there are thousands of Americans who refuse to believe that he is still alive. And as a matter of fact, has any trustworthy American seen Villa in the last couple of years?

Chicago is planning to build a $2,000,000 hotel as a memorial to Chicago citizens who died in the war. What's the idea? Will veterans get free lodging? Or is it a scheme to bring all the veterans' conventions to Chicago?

POPPY'S VALUE LONG KNOWN

Abundant Evidence That Opium of the Orient Was Appreciated by Many Centuries Ago.

The poppy plant was originally indigenous to the valley of the Nile, and many centuries before Christ it was imported into Persia. There it was grown with even greater success than in its natural habitat, and for many years there was a great demand for it to the north of Persia and the poppy from a city of Thebes. There are several ancient references which clearly indicate the important position which poppy leaves occupied in ancient times. Homer knew all about it, for in the fourth book of the Odyssey he relates the story of a present of poppy sent by the wife of Ulysses to her husband.

The five exhibition games are expected to put the Twin Falls club in excellent shape for the pennant struggle with the Burley club in this city next Sunday.

PEACE LEAGUE CHIEF OBJECT SAYS TARBELL

Noted Woman Author Who Was at Versailles Addresses Audience Here

Three things stood out in clear relief at the peace conference in Versailles which has just concluded its principal work—the perfecting of a peace arrangement with Germany, declared J. M. Tarbell last evening in her lecture at the Chautauque tent on the subject, "The United States at the Peace Conference."

The three things, according to the lecturer, were President Wilson, who she said, dominated the conference; the intense yearning of the American people for a just and lasting peace; and the world's deep feeling that some means be provided whereby the awful calamity of war might be averted.

Among the first decisions arrived at by the conference was that some sort of league to enforce peace was necessary, and the league committee first drafted was adopted as the working principle upon which to build the treaty.

With this condition, the league being first, it is impossible to separate one from the other without violating both.

The musical numbers were very well done. Miss Hays captured the house with her first appearance, and she was over-generous with encore numbers. Her work with the flute was especially pleasing.

HANSEN BRIDGE WILL BE DONE IN TWO WEEKS

Workers on the Job Explain How Easy It Is To Work Up High in Air

The Hansen bridge will be ready for public use within two weeks, according to an announcement Sunday by men at work on the structure. The bridge presents an appearance very quiet as it will probably be done. The workmen here are confident that as the eye of an ordinary observer can see, except the floor and the approach.

Sunday hundreds of visitors went out to view the magnificent bridge. Its 608 feet of length from tower to tower, set up full 145 feet from the bottom of the canyon, makes an inspiring scene. Seven 158 inch cables on each side carry the structure and auxiliary cables crossing the bridge and fastened to the epaulements about thirty feet from the roadside will prevent any swaying due to wind.

The bridge was put up without loss of life in time. Indeed, one of the men on the job said Sunday that nobody had even pinched his finger. What's asked how the workers kept their balance, or kept from getting dizzy, was answered in some casual, staidly of steel with 35 feet of emplacements beneath them, by O'Connell.

"It's like this," he said, "I'm holding a stick of stuff. If you get scared, though, and lose the stick-to-it stuff, you're sure to fall. A lot of it confidence in your ability to stick."

He was off shift, and furnished a line of work for the Sunday that nobody had even pinched his finger. What's asked how the workers kept their balance, or kept from getting dizzy, was answered in some casual, staidly of steel with 35 feet of emplacements beneath them, by O'Connell.

CITIZENS ARE ASKED TO AID WITH VISITORS

Elks Round Up Committee Makes Appeal for Co-Operation in Housing Problem

In connection with its preparations to supply all visitors to the Round Up with needed accommodation, the Elks Society made a public appeal for co-operation from the citizens of Twin Falls.

While the task of feeding the crowds is a large enough one in itself, the city is better prepared in that respect than in the matter of housing, which offers the chief problem. Visitors from the nearest vicinity coming in automobiles are advised to arrange for returning to their homes at night, relieving the situation to that extent.

All spare rooms in private homes are sought by the Elks to further fortify the supply against the demand. All spare rooms in private homes are sought by the Elks to further fortify the supply against the demand.

Use of lawns and water hydrants for the visitors is also asked by the Elks and it is urged that every possible courtesy be shown the guest within our gates.

"Cradle of Liberty"

FAMOUS OLD FANEUIL HALL.

NEW YORK HAS LIBERTY BELL

The Liberty bell in Independence hall, Philadelphia, is famous throughout the world. Its ringing proclaimed liberty July 4, 1776, and ever since it has been regarded as the American Everlovely. Now all about that bell, but the New York Herald tells of another which plays a part in the stirring scenes of the republic's founding. The Herald says: Here in New York city is another Liberty bell, a bell whose history is as remarkable as that of the Liberty bell in Philadelphia, but which is practically unknown except to a few persons who have delved into ancient records and documents concerning it.

New York city's Liberty bell hangs concealed in the letter of the Dutch church at 17th street and Forty-eighth street. It has been in New York city since 1781.

It was presented to the citizens July 2, 1776, when Gen. George Washington read the adopted Declaration of Independence to the American Congress and asked for its acceptance and ratification. And the army not declared liberty at that time and never fought a battle for freedom. The Declaration of Independence would have become a worthless scrap of paper. But the army did acclaim liberty and the bell rang out the feelings here just as the other bell in Philadelphia had done five days before.

Legacy to Old Dutch Church.

New York city's Liberty bell was given as a legacy to the Dutch church by one of the oldest inhabitants of this city, Abraham de Beyster, who served as mayor, treasurer and controller and as governor in 1701, and whose statue now stands in the place of that of George II in the Bowling Green.

The bell was cast in Amsterdam and bears an inscription in Dutch, which, translated, reads:

It was made by Jo. Gravens and N. Muller, Amsterdam, 1721, Abraham de Beyster, born July 8, 1675, died Aug. 28, 1758, a legacy to the Dutch church, New York.

Almost the first public notice of the bell was following the death of George III, the German king of Great Britain, and announcing the succession of his son George IV. It was long used for public services, Gov. Daniel Tompkins to Sir William Tyrone, and in after years called the citizens to defend their rights or warned them of calamities.

And it hangs today, almost unknown, in a dusty bellery in a most prominent position in New York.

Its Voice Still Resonant.

This Liberty bell is not cracked; it is true as steel and never rusted, even as on the day it rang at George Washington's coronation. Following the more important occasions upon which New York's Liberty bell was rung in the eighteenth century, from the time it arrived in New York city in 1781 until it reached liberty in 1776. The bell has been compiled from colonial records, and the history of New York and is authentic in every particular.

1775—Announcing the liberty of the press.

Warning the citizens to protect themselves against the negroes who threatened to rise and murder whites. They banged the church's chimes in the fort and the houses of Admiral Sir Peter Warren, Vincent Van Zant, Colonel Phillips and others.

1775—Announcing the departure of General Braddock.

1775—Announcing the burning of Fort William Henry and the disaster at Plundercock.

1776—Rung for the capture of Quebec.

1793—Rung for the death of George II and later for the accession of George III.

1793—Citizens called by the bell to prevent the Abolition who had been impressed by a British man-of-war. The same day, the Sons of Liberty were organized and summoned to meet by stroke of the bell.

1793—The British, Sixth regiment attacked the Sons of Liberty, who had been summoned by the bell, and then appeared the battle of Red Bank, when the first blood was shed in the American revolution, for it was five years before the battle of Lexington.

1775—News of the battle of Lexington reached New York city, and the citizens were summoned by the bell to offer a vessel for the transport with stores for the British army at Berlin.

1775—News of the battle of Bunker Hill, announced by the ringing of the bell.

1775—General Washington proclaimed the Declaration of Independence to the American army, and the Liberty bell and other bells in the city rang for several hours.

The first call men, whom some would say might be called the first men, were caught sight of triumphally making up the river. It was Charlie Beck, a young fellow, who was the first to get up. "That him" was all he said, as he moved ashore.

Sallor was with him in the rowboat, but I noticed that he was thinking, going on three legs.

"You" said Charlie, "It's lucky for folks he only got Sallor's foot, or for the living God I'd have stood my trial for manslaughter, or whatever they call it. I'll soon be all right, old man," he said, raising Sallor's empty cot over his head, "and you'll be all right." Sallor winked his left eye, vowing to show that a gunshot through one of his legs was no more nothing.

"Yes," said Charlie, as we sat at anchor in the slack, under the same drift trees, "we've got him safe there under decks all right; slipped up like a buoy. If he can get away, I'll be over in the dock."

"Wasn't you fell' me about it?" I asked.

"Not much in tell; too easy altogether," he said in a tone of surprise at the mouth of Goose river. "Then I got tired and left the sponger with the captain and two or three men, while I went up the river with a couple of cuts and Sallor, and a man to pole the boat—just for some chit-chatting, you know. We lay low for ten days in the marshes and then Sallor, catching the wind one morning, as if there was something around for a drift tree, came out. He grew more and more excited and, at last, as we neared a certain mangrove cove to which all the time he had been pointing, he hurried two or three times and I let him go. Poor old fellow!"

"As he laid his story, Sallor, who seemed to understand every word, rubbed his head against his master's hand.

"I went into the mangroves, but as he'd got over duck, he had hardly gone in when there were two shots and he came out flapping, making for me. But he'd got me up close to the mangroves himself, and in another minute I was inside; and there was Charlie, he got up and took me by the neck and was all about it, but he had a pot at me, but before he could try another I knocked him down with my fire gun. Well, we've got him all right, and now you can go after the treasure as soon as you like. I'll take him up to Nassau and you can foot another for the next morning, or whatever course we'll need you at the trial, but that won't come off for a couple of months. Meanwhile, you can let me know where you're in, in case I should need to get hold of you."

"All right, old man," I said, "but I think you were consulting alone with Charlie. But all the treasure I want," laughed Charlie. "Send me word where you are, so soon as you get a chance, and you can let me know, old chap, and your doubts and pieces of eight."

"I was walking down to the sponger, and was in a boat with the sponger. Her sails ran up and they're off down stream—poor Tobber, he's gone, he's gone, he's gone, he's gone." "Set you in Nassau?" I shouted.

"Highly!"

Pieces of Eight

Being the Authentic Narrative of a Treasure Discovered in the Bahama Islands in the Year 1903—Now First Given to the Public.

BY RICHARD LEGALIONS

CHAPTER I.—At Nassau Charlie Webster, a friend of both Sallor and the writer, was the party and they arranged an expedition to "head Sallor's" which was to be made in the summer of 1903, when he is wanting down as a writer.

CHAPTER II.—The author visits a friend, a friend of both Sallor and the writer, who is in the Bahama Islands, and he tells him of the treasure.

CHAPTER III.—On the point of sailing they are boarded by a young fellow, who is an obscure man in Nassau, but they allow him to sail with them.

CHAPTER IV.—The party reaches its destination and after some days of search they find the treasure.

CHAPTER V.—The party returns to Nassau and the treasure is divided.

Better Than Duck.

Charlie Webster's discovery, if discovered it was of "Jack Herkaway's" time or seemed so far plausible in that it accounted not only for much that had seemed mysterious about him and his conduct, but also, though I did not mention to Charlie, it accounted for certain odd feelings of my own, which before, I had never seriously connected.

But we were not long left to continue our speculation, being promptly interrupted by the arrival of exciting news in the form of a note from Father Scripps.

Father Scripps' note simply confirmed his own conviction that it was Tobias who had lured him to Behlog's Point and that he was probably some link in the chain of events which had led to his present predicament. He said Tobias had been in his neighborhood, Charlie thought the new order.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," he said presently. "I'm going to leave you here—and I'm going to clear the sponger out there. Turner's sound his six outside; this old Goose river, ten miles down the shore. Now, if Tobias is inside here, he can only get out where down here or down Goose river. I'm going down in the sponger to the mouth of Goose river, to keep watch there, and you must stay where you are and keep watch here. He'll never get out as a week will starve him out."

So it was settled, and presently Charlie went along with two of his best men and Sallor, in the rowboat, and I ran him no more for a week. At the end of the week the wind was blowing strong from the west and

Tells Frenchmen to Get Back to Work

PARIS, June 30.—A general peace will only be an illusion unless we are capable of maintaining interior peace, declared Premier Clemenceau, in laying the treaty of peace with Germany before the chamber of deputies this afternoon.

So long we have dispersed our interior strength. Our fields have been ravaged of silt by our youth who lie in glorious shrouds but France stands erect. Now let us get back to work. The whole chamber rose and applauded enthusiastically as the president concluded. Members warned about him and wrung his hand when he regained his seat.

LIFT BLOCKADE SATURDAY

LONDON, July 1.—The allies hope to raise the blockade of Germany by Saturday, the Daily Express stated today.

Somebody asks "What is tannin?"

Tannin is what they tan leather with—pulls it together, makes it tough.

There's a lot of tannin in oak, hemlock—and in cheap coarse tea, but hardly a taste of tannin in fine tea unless you boil it.

Now do you want tannin-flavor or tea-flavor? Do you want to put tannin or tea into your stomach?

Schilling Tea is the fine practical tea with the real tea-flavor—the most economical beverage next to water.

There are four flavors of Schilling Tea—Japan, Ceylon, India, Oolong. English Breakfast. All one quality, in specially prepared moisture-proof packages. At grocers everywhere. A Schilling & Co. San Francisco

PRESIDENT SIGNS BILLS ON HIGH SEAS

White House Mail Transferred in Mid-Ocean to Steamship George Washington.

EN ROUTE TO THE UNITED STATES WITH PRESIDENT WILSON ABOARD THE U. S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 30 (by wireless).—For the first time in the history of the republic, laws of the United States were today completed on the high seas at 11 o'clock this morning. President Wilson affixed his signature to the Indian appropriation, railway emergency and deficiency bills immediately following the first complete lifeboat drill.

EN ROUTE TO THE UNITED STATES WITH PRESIDENT WILSON ABOARD THE U. S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 30 (by wireless).—Passengers aboard the "George Washington" this morning received a complete proof of the efficiency of the United States transport service as well as convincing evidence that President Wilson is not neglecting business while traversing the Atlantic in a lifeboat.

At 7:30 this morning the "George Washington" headed toward her and when the sea lions arrived close together, one of the destroyers in the presidential escort succeeded in a pinch of White House mail.

The pouch contained bills passed by congress which required the president's signature in order to become laws at the opening of the fiscal year tomorrow. The president planned to sign them during the day and immediately notified the White House to communicate the information to the proper channels.

ing today through a very calm sea, adhering rigidly to her schedule. She is protected by the destroyers and tanked by the destroyers. The presidential party is enjoying the trip to the utmost.

Korean Intervention Under Contemplation

WASHINGTON, June 30.—Inquiry concerning the advisability of the United States intervening in Korea, made in a resolution introduced in the senate today by Senator Spencer of Missouri.

The resolution calls upon the secretary of state to inform the senate whether conditions exist in Korea which would make it wise for the United States to offer its services in behalf of Korea. The resolution also states that if the treaty between the United States and Korea adopted May 23, 1882, which declares that the United States shall offer its aid to Korea if that country be oppressed by other nations.
