No U-Boat Commanders Appear for Trial for Crimes Before International Court

Efforts to Shield and Arouse Sympathy for Kaiser—Hindenburg Accepts Full Responsibility for Proclamations and Waging of War.

BRUSSELS, July 4.—In London, July 5.—German officers declared today that they would not stand trial for the crimes committed by them before an international court to answer charges of war crimes.

Many maritime commanders have offered to neutral countries, where they will be tried, and some have threatened to commit suicide if they are not exempted to suit.

The harrier incident had been given to the realization of a scheme to prevent the ex-king from being surrendered. Missions professed against the king and his family, but the king suggested how it could be avoided.

Field Marshal von Hindenburg, who telegraphed to President Wilson accepting responsibility for all acts and decisions of the German army leadership, also took responsibility for all proclamations issued by the ex-king, but did not leave things quite so much their own way.

The proclamations were issued upon my advice and responsibility. I beg you to inform the allies of this," said Hindenburg in his message.

FILER AND TWIN FALLS SPLIT DOUBLE HEADER, 6 TO 5, 3 TO 8

Visitors Take Morning Game and Home-Team Wins in Afternoon—Red Bell Pitching Hero of Day, Finishing Morning Game and Going the Route in the Afternoon—Small Crowds.

Twilight baseball was not overly popular with the local fans Thursday and the Filer-Twin Falls affair found most of the local region home to sup, rather than to witness a game grand stand seat through the afternoon. Twin Falls retained the visitors for the morning defeat by doubling them, 8 to 3. The game started about 6:45 and ended some time after seven o'clock.

Slim Tadlock started in the box for old mates, being knocked out of the box in the second round. Post, the hull burler, finished the game but was also hit freely. Red Bell pitched the good work he started in the morning game and led the visitors' batting over the ropes at all stages of the game, allowing them only six hits.

Three of these were bunched in the second two runs, giving Filer a momentary lead, Twin Falls having effected a marker and Red Bell's round on White's single, Dennan's sacrifice and Singleton's double. In their half of the second the locals opened by a home run after two were down and scored four runs on White's double and single by Bell, Dennan and Singleton. Bunched by Carson, Neuman and Bell, then the rapid succession in the third round, getting two more runs and giving the home team a 7 to 0 lead.

One in the fifth when LaChance picked a long double to right center and scored on Miller's single. Bishop who had already hit every time up came out at first and drove a long triple into the right field bleachers. He made the hurried mistake of making first base and was called out, his being counted out of the record, and Miller's score also falling to zero as the sifter was retired on the play.

With just two runs in their half of the inning on two errors, a walk and a single by Dennan. The hitting of Singleton, Dennan, Whitel and Bell featured the remainder of the afternoon, each team making two doubles and a single.

The brace of games Thursday were the first of the season in which "round-up" failed to capture both sides.

The big blow was scored by Post, who hit a home run and went hitless all day.

Next was the following:
 Morning game:
 Filer 8, Twin Falls 3.
 Afternoon game:
 Twin Falls 6, Filer 5.

OPENING DAY OF ROUND UP IS FEATURED BY BIG CROWDS AND SPIRITED CONTESTS ON TRACK

With eight thousand people in the stands the Round Up got under way Thursday afternoon, proving a decided success in its first bow to the Twin Falls public. During the entire afternoon there were no accidents or other marvellous features and some spirited exhibitions of skill and rivalry were revealed. Incidentally the big affair was managed with a marvellous smoothness and about 7,000 dollars, considering it was the first thing of the kind ever attempted here.

The Parsons family of Portland was much in evidence in the opening day events. Mounted on the famous Parsons string of horses, Chester, the young man of the family, swept the horse race sweepstakes and his mounts were easily too hot for anything else in the track and in the city. In fact, he and his own speed to that of his horses.

Little Duke Parsons, 17 years old, charmed the crowds with her exhibition of trick riding, even as she has charmed other Round Up crowds all over the Northwest. As she went in the final circle of the track, standing in the saddle and carrying an American flag, the bands on either side of the park started "The Star Spangled Banner" and the great throng rose to its feet.

Another star performer of the day was Kitty Canutt, who not only drew attention for her trick riding but also won the cow pony race, the horse play and the cow pony race.

The steer roping and bull dogging contests were watched with much interest. Buffalo Vernon won the former in rather moderate time. Tom Smith and Frank McCarroll made brief work of the bull dogging in contrast to other contestants. Several hard tussles between the riders and the steers marked this event.

Great interest naturally developed in the bucking contests. Mrs. Rose Smith, Mrs. Bertha Blain and Louise Thompson were the lady riders in the men's contest and riders tried their luck but few were able to qualify for today's contest. John Parr was dumped by Hot Stuff, 44 seconds got away from Joe Thompson. Walter Eversham was dumped out of Wagon Wheel and Red Grady also was hit. Narcissus McKay struck to Filer, Howard Taylor of the 14th lost his seat on Punishment much to the delight of the men in uniform. Arlo Hildt, competitor in the latter at a hot time, John Cook held by Red Arrow and Duke that, the champion cowboy, gave a spectacular exhibition on the Green Valley.

All of those that stuck in their seats, however, did not qualify. Some who did not fall off the riding animals were disqualified. One of the best exhibitions of its kind was scored by the late rider hanging on by one arm and scratching only with the other.

So long after H. G. Park, the late Filer cowboy, had out-rippled the stands with his roping on the "Wild Woman" the riders brought out a kind of wild horse. Wild they were and no doubt of it. After each had been half strangled with a rope and crew upon by two low jacks, a lightning was shipped and then a lunge. It was necessary to tip the animal to do it. Then the animal was given each rider carefully and gently slipped on his saddle and mounted his seat. There was none of the noise of the relay. It didn't work with the wild man. The object was to saddle, mount and make one circuit of the track in the quickest possible time. When the saddles were in place the crowd broke up into starting positions and scattered in every direction but the way they were supposed to go. The wild horse whiffed down the track the wrong way and several cut straight through the field. Several more nearly bucked up and down without gaining distance other way.

This closed the show in a big act and gave everybody a "honor for their money."

The crowd was not only big, but, like all big people, it was also good natured. It was there to have some fun and saw humor in every situation. The show and their doings went far in encouraging the mood. Prominent among these shows was Jimmy Douglas, the champion clown rider of the world. He was a last minute arrival and made a big hit with his trick riding.

The evening show at Happy Canyon drew several thousand more spectators, all that could possibly be crowded in. Games and various tracks were held in with bucking and bull dogging. The first match of the day occurred here when Bob Smith was in the midst of a bucking horse riding exhibition. The animal crashed against the fence and fell back, pinning her beneath. She was quickly rescued but received a severely wrenched ankle in the accident. This may prevent her further appearance in the Round Up.

Although not striking in the crowd, Bertha Blain was the center of admiring interest. Her brilliant reputation as a horsewoman drew attention

Get Half of Your Tire Money Back

When you bought your last standard tire, suppose the dealer handed you back half the money you paid him. It would make you very happy, wouldn't it? Well that's just what happens when you buy a Gates Half-Sole Tire because they cost half as much as standard tires of corresponding size, and deliver 5,000 to 15,000 miles.

And you get an iron-clad puncture-proof guarantee in addition.

A new scientific principle in tire construction invented by Charles C. Gates, E. M., makes all this possible—and over half a million car owners in the United States have taken advantage of this money saving—worry ending opportunity.

Until recently these advantages were limited to motorists in bigger cities only. Now that you can cut your tire bill in two—right here in your own home town—don't you think it's time you gave serious thought to Gates Half-Sole Tires?

Adjustment That Squares with Goodrich Performance

In practical usage on road and pavement, Goodrich Tires are today consistently delivering remarkable mileage...

Knowing by actual performance what splendid service Goodrich Tires are giving, the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company has taken a step frankly intended to induce every motorist to share the most mileage of its tires.

It has established this new adjustment mileage worthy of the proven durability of its tires— 6,000 miles for Safety Treads—8,000 miles for Silvertown Cords, instead of the old adjustment of 3,500 for Safety Treads, and 5,000 for Silvertowns.

The new adjustment holds good for all Goodrich Tires, including tires already purchased in thousands of user or dealer. Go to a Goodrich dealer, and buy Goodrich Tires, sure that they will fulfill their mileage.

News and Comment of Touring This Year To Break Records

Automobile touring will be the national pastime this summer, said Edward S. Johnson of the Johnson Auto Sales Company, Toledo.

Motorists will be more careful of their cars than ever before, and reports from all over the country indicate that the highways will be in better condition this year than ever before.

This general preparation for spending the hot months in touring, however, is one of the best reasons for the popularity of the Chalmers. People looking for a car for touring purposes search for the automobile that has plenty of power for the hills and that will withstand the hardest kind of service.

And it is the very quality possessed in a superior degree by the Chalmers. While it is light enough to be the utmost economy in fuel consumption, it is so sturdily built that it will ride over the roughest roads with the smoothness of a car of much greater weight.

In addition, it is so easy to control and the seats are so deep and luxuriant that the longest journey may be made without discomfort and fatigue. The tracks of the gears support the chassis so that the longest runs are made in easy swiftness and there is no wear, and the chassis is so sturdily built that it is usually found intact.

To make a motorist a real joy a car must have power enough to rise the steepest hills and to give a quart or more of performance per gallon, which is the most of it. The organization behind the Chalmers is so expensive that, there it is not represented. These dealers carry a complete supply of parts for the motorist.

Defies Mud and Water on Journey Through Swamps

Tuning sixteen miles to the west and intermediate gear, disconnecting the muffler and turning up the exhaust to get through mud and water, and jumping a ditch over three feet wide with work done of the recent experience of Mr. Eberling lives in Jacksonville, Florida, and recently made a trip from Detroit, Tenn. to Detroit, Mich. and his wife left Belmont April 21 driving in Detroit, the speedometer registered 80 miles, but because of the distance by the end of the day they were just eighteen miles from the starting point.

POOR CONTACT WITH INSURE BATTERY The starting motor takes the current from the storage battery through the brushes, for various reasons, are not making proper contact, and this means many failures for the system. When trouble arises in the system these brushes should be carefully examined. Again, one of the cells of the storage battery runs down before the others, which are therefore called upon to do more work than they are able to handle. Also, the contact of the foreign matter, may be between the contact points of the switch and may make a world of trouble before it is discovered and diagnosed.

FORD CLIMBS HILL ON MILK

Ford cars have been run with water for a substitute for milk for the first time, and some even have driven long distances without stopping, but at three or four miles a quantity of water is added to the tank under the radiator cap, when the driver two weeks ago found himself miles from water in eastern Oregon, with his radiator overflowing from a long hill climb, Ford Wilson was the individual.

Milk is for babies and for people who are not used to it, but when Wilson passed the contents of the milk can into the Ford he probably never had any more of it. As a part of it, but the milk worked, and that is all that interested the dairymen at the time.

The nature of the situation again, however, when Wilson finally reached a water hole and took of the radiator cap. A faulty radiator cap was the cause of the trouble. Wilson deflated the only tire which held the car from going into the water, but the milk which was in the radiator was still left.

And just to show that Wilson's early Scotch training had not been forgotten, he did not drink the milk. He only drank the water, and he was very bright, which is how to fill the gas tank.

Truck Lines Span The Central West

Every day brings news to this city of new truck lines that are furnishing transportation between cities in various parts of the country.

At St. Mary, of the Indiana Auto Supply Co., Indiana distributor, is issued the information today about an unusually large movement of equipment from a truck line to connect Indianapolis and points south and east with the great western freight movement at Chicago.

The organization will utilize Indiana motor trucks, equipped with pneumatic tires, as well as that type of equipment which is possible and profitable to use.

The organization is to be known as the International Transportation company, with headquarters at Indianapolis and local truck lines operating in and out of that city.

Good highways Boon To City

Improved highways of a permanent type providing motor travelers and business transportation facilities will opportunity today to the city which intends to try the foundation for a healthy, permanent growth.

"For, if we do not build that hope in a more wide distribution of the population over the area being within a city's sphere of influence then we are sure to have the lack of adequate facilities to permit that adjustment to take place in a natural way."

Improved highways that make possible the rapid motor transportation today of every year will just as certainly permit and stimulate our people to move out of the surrounding country and into a safe and free-flowing stream will deliver at its mouth the price of earth, filling in at the outlet.

These remarks made by W. O. Hutchcraft, vice president of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company at a recent conference, are vital ones, that because in many cities housing construction is being retarded by the making and long-throwing of hills, the second may be the time to start about the great project of public highways.

Ohio Speed Laws Are To Be Changed

The Ohio legislature has passed the long bill providing for speed limits of 20 miles in the country, 25 miles in built-up sections of municipalities and 20 miles in residential sections of cities and towns.

Gap Makes Spooky Plug Resume Firing

When the spark plug develops misfiring as a result of being "soaked," and no amount of removal is of avail, it may hang on stubbornly on the road, the plug can be made to fire regularly again by disconnecting the lead and introducing an auxiliary cap of one-eighth or one-quarter between it and the plug terminal.

Will Jack Car Out of Mud

Device is Indispensable During Spring Overhauling or When Tires Are Bent Parts to Body or Frame of Machine.

That little Jack showed away under the seat of your car will do many things for you, but three or four of them, of different sizes, will save you much time and temper.

For instance, when you get bogged down in mud, sand, clay or even snow your Jack may be the means of getting your car out of its position. It is light and sawy and that six-inch wide to the nearest village to get a span of horses.

Every Jack should be fitted with a towish block of wood as broad and long as will conveniently fit into the eye of the Jack, to be supported by the car to be jacked up out of the mudhole, so that the rear wheels can have better support than the front. If necessary it is not bad to have even to the rear end of the front Jack, that is, if you blanks are at hand and you are hand-pumped.

Do Not Neglect to Increase Your Jack Family by at Least One or Two Before Taking a Tour.

THE VICTORY ARMY AND THE MAN WHO WANTS TO BE SOMEBODY

Indirectly this war will have been a great educator. Many a man who had never been outside his own state, many a man who had seldom been away from even his own county, has seen much of the United States, has met and had close association with men from every part of the country than his. Every man in the army has had at least these advantages, while those that went over there had the good fortune to meet many men and see other countries and peoples.

What will be the result? In a general way these fortunate men have become less provincial. broader in their outlook on life, contented with what a great country the United States is, with a new pride in its accomplishments, a new knowledge of its opportunities. They are becoming men of the world, and no matter whether they return to their homes or settle elsewhere, their experiences will make them better citizens, more valuable not only to the entire country, to the community where they live, but also to themselves. They themselves have been benefited through their experiences.

Fortunately the close of the war has not closed the door of opportunity to the men who took no part in it, to those to whom it did get into the army and found that their training was too short for them to have received the full benefit of it. Voluntary enlistments have been resumed, and the offices for the acceptance of applicants are now open throughout the country.

In a general way the great American people have come to know a great deal about "the man's army" as the soldier likes to call the "regulars." They know that the army is not an institution of the highest character, that it is their own, and a thing in which they can rightfully take the highest pride. They know that it made good with a vengeance when it first lifted the Hun, they know that the man who had been training all the years before the war made this possible and that the system that makes good in the crucial test of war will train men to make good in the peaceful days of peace.

To many a man the army means opportunity; to the man whose education is limited, whose mind is still in the formative stage, there is the chance to complete his education, to see his country, to learn the ideas of others before taking up his life's work; to the man of greater education, to the man already master of a vocation, there is the chance to practice it, and still take advantage of the broadening influence that the army gives; to all it will be an experience that will develop him, train him, make him more capable of making the most of himself and of the opportunities that come to him. No matter how good a man may be, army experience will make him better, while for many who might otherwise never amount to anything, it will "make them" as not even the best self-made men have succeeded.

The army is an institution of sufficient size and breadth to have a place for every man, granted that he is physically sound, of good moral character, and can read, write and speak the English language. It is hard to say which will receive the greater benefit—the man who lacks an education and gets it in the army, or the one who has an education and can thus take advantage of the maximum benefits it offers.

BLOCK HEALTH UNITS

The "Block Unit" idea is spreading. A plan is now being put into action in Brooklyn, N. Y., to organize a certain block, where health conditions are not good, for the study and prevention of tuberculosis.

All the social and industrial agencies represented in the block have been asked to cooperate in a complete survey of the district. All nursing and medical forces in the block have pledged their services to this campaign against one of the greatest enemies of mankind.

Tuberculosis, which has spread considerably from the effects of war, and influenza also, must be controlled, or their ravages will be terrifying in the next few years.

If our towns and cities can be organized block by block to fight disease, all these units taken together will assure one great, sound, whole with no obscure district or case neglected and left to menace society.

"It Is Hard to Find Words to Paint German Portrait Black Enough"

By JOHN HURROUGHS

Such a fighting machine as the Germans turned out the world never before had seen. The trial of their armies seemed to make the world tremble. But lacking moral force, lacking a worthy cause, kept only on tumbled and from man pillars, and of cutting and for human and human rights, they had no sustaining power, and went to pieces on the moral purpose of the enemy as the waves break upon the granite reefs. An empire in ruin is what we now behold. This culture devours its own vitality.

It is hard to find words to paint the German portrait black enough. Let any fair-minded, cold-headed man sit down and try dispassionately to think of the deeds they have been guilty of in this war, and see if he does not grow hotter and hotter the longer he thinks.

There are still 70,000,000 Germans all unrepentant. In a few generations there will be 100,000,000 of them, and they will not have changed for the good one iota. Their porcine propensities and unscrupulous character will remain unabated. They are of the earth earthy. They wallow in materialism; they have ceased to produce literature, art, music or philosophy; they have run all-in materialism for the past two of three generations, and to expect any radical change in them is to expect the serpent to walk upright or to forget to use its fangs.

OHIO FARMERS ALL "HIT UP" AT AIRPLANE NOISES

SANDEYSVILLE, Ohio, July 4.—Farmers here throughout are all "hit up" at the new Cleveland-Chicago air mail service. They are not so much as being permitted to see the machines on the air, but their livestock has been rendered highly uneasy because of the whirring of the propellers and the sharp exclamations of the motors on the airplanes. Old Dobbin has become more skittish than he has been since the day he first saw an automobile. And an innocent little lamb became so excited that it ran through a screen door, losing all of its wool. Postmaster Ryan suggested ear mufflers and told the complaining farmers if "it didn't work to 'roll it to Harless."

"PLEASE BE CAREFUL" IS CHIEF'S ADMONITION

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 6.—It was in the Federal court, by United States Attorney General Cummings, set for resumption at 10 o'clock. E. J. Connelley, counsel for the plaintiff, called to appear. Master Lamm was treated and made no noise about it. Ten-thirty, ten forty-five, eleven o'clock and so on. A few minutes after 11 the attorney arrived, red of face, smiling and breathless.

HEAVY FINE LEVIED FOR WATER THEFT

Oliver Farmer Pleads Guilty. Complaint in Liquor Case Is Changed to Carrying

Louis Ulrich of the Oliver tract entered a plea of guilty to a charge of stealing irrigation water and was fined $100 by Judge Durall in probate court this morning.

Attended Complaint. An attended complaint has been filed in probate court against W. T. Fox and P. D. King who were arrested on a charge of illegal possession of liquor. The charge is changed to illegal transportation of liquor.

Suit has been filed by H. L. Dinkelacker, proprietor of a local electric shop, against John G. DeLozier. The complaint asserts that DeLozier owes a "trade account." Honore C. Mills is attorney for the plaintiff.

FIVE TRAINS POINTS ARRIVE. NEW YORK, July 5.—Five troopships, including two that were 24 hours overdue, arrived in port from France today. They were the Saveria, Wilhelmina, Arizona, Lancaster and Santa Cecilia. Among the 1,801 officers and men on the Wilhelmina was the first museum unit of the photo division which made the official war pictures for the archives of the war department in Washington.

Local News

New Arrival.—A baby daughter was born late in the evening to Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Schiffgen of Oakley.

On Vacations.—L. J. Bowen, deputy clerk of the district court, has been on a "trade vacation" for his duties.

Discharges.—Honorable discharges from military service have been recorded for Clinton C. Liddy and John E. White.

Round Up Visitors.—William R. Hoot and family of Huhl visited friends in Twin Falls yesterday and attended the Round Up.

City Hall Closed.—The city hall was closed at noon Thursday for the Round Up celebration. It will reopen Monday morning.

Marriage License.—A marriage license was issued Thursday in Felix Finkbeiner, 22, and Carrie M. Finkbeiner, both of Three Creek.

Back From Conviction.—Rev. W. A. Moore has returned from Nauvoo, where he preached over the state convention of Christian churches.

Musie Strike.—Quite a little stir was created early in this evening by July 5 when the orchestra at Lewis' opera hall went on strike. All of the seven musicians packing their instruments and walking out. In a statement to the Times later the orchestra stated that it was a sympathetic strike called because of alleged unfair treatment of other musicians by the management.

Sawtooth Forest Is Good Camping Ground

Woods' Peak, July 5.—The Sawtooth national forest in south central Idaho offers exceptional opportunities for camping, fishing, hunting and touring. There are unsurpassed scenery, excellent fishing and hunting, modern camping facilities, 59 lakes, many lakes and over a dozen hot springs. Most of its interesting localities are accessible to motorists. There is ample opportunity here to explore the more adventurous to explore the remote regions by wagon and pack outfits. Good camping places abound everywhere.

Information from persons in the vicinity indicates that fishing will be the best about July 15 and the height of the camping season is just beginning. The residents of Shuksie give fishing and fishing parties as their chief hobby. For a summer vacation will see a golden opportunity if they fail to take advantage of the natural resources of the Sawtooths. The local forest officers stationed at Huley, HRL City, Ketchum, and Soldier were inquiring regarding fishing, camping and road conditions. They can also give directions for reaching the various points and advice as to outfitting necessary.

Pleasure seekers who visit the forests are urged to bear in mind that carelessness with fire may result in immense damage to public and private property, destroy the natural beauty of the region, and endanger human life.

BURLEY AND TWIN FALLS FOR PENNANT

Title Game in This City Tomorrow Will Draw Hundreds of Fans From All Sections.

With the Paul game today cancelled, the teams were cleared for the first double tomorrow between the Burley and Twin Falls baseball clubs. The game will be played at the Round Up park. The game ends the league schedule for the first half of the season and it depends on the pennant. Burley is leading Twin Falls by one game. If the locals can win tomorrow, they will lead with Paul. If Rupert also wins from Paul they will have a third interest in the pennant. If Paul triumphs it will be another between Burley and Twin. If Burley wins and Paul loses, then two teams must settle it. If Rupert and Twin lose they will be out of the race. Burley's title game. There is the situation in a western town.

The Burley-Twin Falls game holds the center of attention around the circuit. With Burley offering $250 and expenses both ways for a pitcher who will win the game for them, their respect for the local club is well demonstrated. Twin Falls is standing pat on its present line up and is confident of taking the league leaders down the line. Alexander, the right hand pitcher, will be the key to the success.

The following line up is announced: Alexander, p.; Dennison, ss.; Singleton, cf.; Thompson, cf.; Westcott, 3b.; Swanson, 1b.; Patton, c.; Carson, lb.; Alexander, p.

ARMY EQUIPMENT TO BE USED FOR ROAD BUILDING

Material and Machinery Now In France to Be Returned To Use by Several States.

At the request of the department of agriculture the war department has ordered to be returned from France as soon as possible, a large quantity of engineering equipment to be distributed at the request of the department of agriculture, through the bureau of public roads, to the states for use in the construction and maintenance of federal and highway. The equipment will be distributed to the states without charge, in accordance with the provisions of the act of August 1, 1918, authorizing the secretary of war to turn over to the secretary of agriculture surplus military equipment not needed for military purposes but valuable in highway construction work. The equipment will be appraised on the basis of the amount of work to be done on the road at the same way that 20,000 army motor trucks are being distributed by the bureau of public roads at the request of the state highway departments.

The equipment which the secretary of war has loaned to the states for use on the road includes about 1,200 caterpillar tractors; about 400 road rollers, steam and gas driven; and a large number of concrete mixers, road graders, elevating graders, asphalt rollers, industrial locomotives, industrial pumps, portable engines, electric motors, and quantities of smaller equipment.

In his letter requesting the return of the federal army motor trucks, the secretary of the war department stated: "The highway construction program of the war department is being carried out in a most efficient manner. It is the largest public undertaking ever completed in the war history. It offers an immediate relief to the employment of labor and the use of materials that will help to stabilize business along a number of lines. The work has been expanded so rapidly that it has not been possible to make adequate provision for furnishing the necessary equipment and machinery. The available supply was absorbed by the demands of the war department. It is suggested that you have just filed with the executive committee of the American association of state highway engineers, which has been organized to secure additional equipment of the kind required and to act thoroughly in sympathy with the efforts that are being made by the war department to aid returning soldiers in securing employment, and to help them to find work and to help them to find work and to help them to find work."

ABNEY, N. Y., FIRST IN CITY AIRPLANE LANDING FIELD. HONOLULU, Mass., July 5.—Members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce have been invited to attend on the municipal airport landing field any time they happen to be flying over Abney, N. Y. The invitation was contained in a letter written by Charles M. Winchester, president of the Albany Chamber of Commerce, at the Boston chamber. The letter was brought here by the "Phoenix," one of seven airplanes that landed at Frankford, Pa., Friday. Winchester called attention to the fact that Albany was the first city to establish a municipal landing field. Another letter brought by Lieutenant James A. McKibben, of the Boston chamber, it was from Roy Smith, executive manager of the Albany organization.

ADVERTISING BRINGS WIFE. BUT 'IT DOES NOT PAY' HOCHSTETTER, Mass., July 5.—"Advertising brought results to me, but it certainly did not pay," said Michael Krulka, former president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, in a letter to the Boston Chamber of Commerce. # WARD BEATEN TO FRAZZLE IN MOST ONE-SIDED FIGHT

May Have Been a Fighter at One Time, but Yesterday He Was Nothing but Punching Bag for Young Utah Giant—Dempsay Fought Clean Fight and Pushed Champ From Tap of Gong.

TOLEDO, July 6.—With his right eye closed tight, his mouth torn, Jess Willard dragged his weary legs to the corner at the end of the third round with Jack Dempsey's fists coming and thrashing up the sponge. It was the first time in the history of the sport that a heavy-weight champion refused to top the mark with his challenger.

Beaten to a frazzle, but punched and out fought at every time the big fellow was sent to his feet. He stumbled and fell as he headed for his corner, but Walter Monahan held him until the chair was put in place. Willard could not see out of his right eye, his mouth was open and blood pouring down his purple trunk as he fell into his chair.

He was attended for a friendly reason. He met Monahan's. He asked what round it was. They told him the fourth was coming. They washed his puffed and bleeding face, brushed his hair back a bit and jing about an, the time keeper was to ring the bell again. Willard ordered his second to get the sponge bucket and to get a glass of water.

There never was such a one-sided fight as that which was put on here yesterday. Jess Willard may have been a great man, but he was nothing but a punching bag yesterday. He didn't land more than two or three blows and the blows did not affect the young champion at all. Dempsey was very cool all through the fight and went at it in a very business-like manner. He fought a clean fight, a fight which had at no time did he look like a loser.

When the big fellow was ready for the fight the ring boys which was the center of the ring. Willard, a big, brawny, well-built man, but Dempsey, who was talking to Kearns in his corner, didn't hear it. Willard left his corner to go to the center of the ring, but before he could get to the center of the ring, he was hit by Dempsey's punch.

Once more the old singer cracked, and Dempsey failed to hear it. There was a roar from the crowd when the second time, second round was told. Willard got back to his corner. Dempsey turned around and faced the center of the ring. When the bell sounded for the third time both men were ready and the big fight was on.

Willard was calling as he beat the mark but Dempsey with his black hair and eyes braved scowled like a mad bull. He had his head lowered and he looked at Willard's nostril instead of his eyes. Willard led lightly with his long left. It caught Dempsey high up on the cheek. Jack dashed away. Once again Willard led with his left, and Dempsey danced away, circling the big fellow. Then there was a swirl and a thud. Dempsey's head and neck were hurt. He landed a punch on Willard's head. The punch brought a lump like a robin's egg over Jess' right eyebrow. He was wild eyed, following the dancing Dempsey.

The latter, still looking at Willard's gloves, backed away toward his own corner, and as Willard started to lead with his right hand, he was met by Willard's head. He landed a punch on Willard's chin. He reached his left, opened his eyes and then slowly sat down on the floor.

There was a wild howl. Willard was badly lamed. He sort of sat there four or five seconds. As Pecord called out the count he got up again, but had no idea where he was. Dempsey was leaning on the ropes. Before Willard was fully set a right hander crashed against his chin and before he was again. He was still in Dempsey's corner. Every one was wild. His and cushions were sailing in the air. Pecord looked over and started counting again.

Willard, on his hands and knees, looked up at Pecord, but his expression was that of a dodo. He was a look looking sight. His right eye was puffed and blood trickled down his chin from a laceration in the mouth.

At the count of five he got to his feet again and leaned on the ropes. Kearns was yelling to Dempsey to take his time. Jack didn't seem to be excited at all. He walked up to Willard and soaked him again. This time a right hander flush on the mouth sent him sprawling. Blood poured from his mouth. He sat there on the floor in a very indifferent manner. Pecord started to count again and Dempsey stood over the fallen giant in a threatening manner.

Willard waded him away with his right hand but Jack didn't back up a step. Pecord called out the count. Dempsey's right hand was up this time. He then backed away along the ropes toward the neutral corner. Dempsey kept his time and raised his hand and told on him. He ripped at Jess' stomach, then switched to the head. Willard's face was a sight but he kept his head like a man. He swung victoriously at Dempsey and landed on top of his head. Dempsey landed a bull and dropped Willard for the fourth time. A left to the chin did it this time. Willard dropped heavily. He tried to get up, but tumbled back again. Pecord counted again and once more the big fellow got to his feet. Dempsey walked right into stumbled against the ropes. Monahan and Hempe grabbed him. He was beaten to a frazzle. It was then he asked what round it was, and asked that the towel be thrown in. The arguments are going on good and strong. What round did Dempsey win in? Some say four and Willard went to the floor for the fourth but he had already fought three. Others say he won in the third, but the fourth had not started. The three round boys have the best of the argument. Willard sat in his corner after the third round, but before the bell rang starting the fourth he threw up the sponge. If time and the referee apparently had got down in the record book as a three round fight.

FIGHT BY MOMENTS

First Round: Both men came quickly to the center. Willard jabbed with the left and boxed. He jabbed again and they clinched. In the break Dempsey caught Willard's right side of his face was pushed and there was a ripanator in his right eye. He rose once more and fell on Dempsey, who tore into his again. Blood from Willard's face trickled down Dempsey's back. They were both covered with it to this time. The sponge bucket had to be stirred and quenched. He had punched himself 1947.

Once again Willard was dropped to the floor. He sat down with a terrible thud. He sort of settled in a silly manner. His bloody face was battered almost to the point where he could not yell. "Stop the fight," as Pecord walked over to count again. Willard was out. He was sitting on the floor with his head down and the ropes. He was so dazed he could move neither hand or foot. Pecord called, "Have counted a thousand."

Willard was a sight by this time. His right eye was completely closed. The right side of his face was pushed and there was a ripanator in his right eye. He rose once more and fell on Dempsey, who tore into his again. Blood from Willard's face trickled down Dempsey's back. They were both covered with it to this time. The sponge bucket had to be stirred and quenched. He had punched himself 1947.

Once again Willard was dropped to the floor. He sat down with a terrible thud. He sort of settled in a silly manner. His bloody face was battered almost to the point where he could not yell. "Stop the fight," as Pecord walked over to count again. Willard was out. He was sitting on the floor with his head down and the ropes. He was so dazed he could move neither hand or foot. Pecord called, "Have counted a thousand."

Willard still sat there as the time keeper counted and he looked and waved. People were cheering frantically for Pecord.

Pecord was called to the side of the ring during the fourth round. Willard was helped to his corner by the three seconds. He was started down the aisle. Jack Kearns rushed into the ring. Pecord walked to Dempsey as the winner and then announced that the bell had saved Willard. Bill Tate rushed over to the ring, put Dempsey and brought him back.

People asked one another what the trouble was. Referees rushed up to the ring waving clubs. Dempsey's backers crowded around the ring and suddenly the bell rang again.

The fight was on once more. Willard was tired as he came to the ring during the fourth round. Dempsey almost knocked his head loose from his shoulders with a right uppercut. Willard reeled but the ropes held him up. Dempsey hit him with everything he had, but could not drop him again.

It was a brutal exhibition. Dempsey's left hander hit Willard's head with both hands at any spot he chose. It was just a question of how much Willard could take without being knocked. He was knocked from feet to post, his bloody head bouncing this way and that continuously.

It was so uneven and one-sided that many operators turned their heads away. Both Willard and Dempsey were covered with blood. Dempsey had been hit on the head, but his back was streaked with red, red blood from Willard's nose and mouth.

The bell sounded as they were punching each other in a slumb. In Willard's corner. Jess was tired and brought on the bloody marks on the ropes was that of a dodo. He was a look looking sight. His right eye was puffed and blood trickled down his chin from a laceration in the mouth.

At the count of five he got to his feet again and leaned on the ropes. Kearns was yelling to Dempsey to take his time. Jack didn't seem to be excited at all. A left to the chin did it this time. Willard dropped heavily. He tried to get up, but tumbled back again. Pecord counted again and once more the big fellow got to his feet. Dempsey walked right into left of the shoulder. Willard had been hit three times with the left, and in each case he had been hit on the stomach and they clinched. Dempsey drove a left hander to Willard's jaw and Willard staggered. Dempsey drove a punch to the heart and Dempsey win in? Some say four and Willard went to the floor for the fourth but he had already fought three. Others say he won in the third, but the fourth had not started. The three round boys have the best of the argument. Willard sat in his corner after the third round, but before the bell rang starting the fourth he threw up the sponge. If time and the referee apparently had got down in the record book as a three round fight.

Second Round: Dempsey started with a vicious attack and drove Willard around the ring again. He had him on the ropes 30 seconds later with a right to the head and a left to the jaw. He closed Willard's right eye. Willard attacked repeatedly to save himself and the referee was forced to break constantly. Dempsey drove Willard to the ropes three times in succession and was punching his head and body when the round closed.

Third Round: Dempsey brought a left to the jaw and followed with a right to the body. Willard staggered and they clinched. Dempsey's blood oozed. Dempsey smashed him again to the jaw and followed with a right to the stomach. Willard attempted a rally but every swing went wild. Willard looked a left to Dempsey's body as the third round ended.

Willard was staggering as he walked back to his corner and his right eye was closed completely. When Willard went back to his corner at the end of the third he collapsed in his seat. His seconds rushed forward and talked with him and he decided that he was unable to continue.

They tossed in a towel in token of Willard's defeat and Jack Dempsey thus became champion of the world.

Oysters Must Have Salt. It has been found that oysters can only live in water that contains at least 27 parts of salt to every 1,000 parts of water.

THE REALLY SUCCESSFUL

One Man Tractor

One Man Operates Both Tractor and Implement

THE Moline-Universal Tractor Model D is the best tractor money can buy.

In design, construction and performance it is ideal. It will do a greater variety of work at less cost, than any tractor on the market. During the past three years Moline-Universal Tractors have been manufactured in large numbers and thousands of them are in use in all parts of the world, giving wonderful satisfaction. It has been demonstrated that the Moline-Universal two-wheel construction is the best for general farm use.

In type the Model D is the same as all former Moline-Universal Tractors, but is improved mechanically to give more speed, more power and and thus more work.

- 1—Complete Reay electrical starting and lighting system.
- 2—New electrical engine governor.
- 3—Perfected overhead valve, four-cylinder engine.
- 4—Lubrication of engine under 25 pounds pressure.
- 5—Special manifold construction to burn low grade gas.
- 6—Crankshaft 2 1/2 inches diameter, eliminating vibration.
- 7—Complete enclosure of all parts, including fuel drive.
- 8—Transmission gears drop forged, cut and hardened.
- 9—Patent Hartz roller bearings and Five ball bearings.
- 10—Liberal use of splines in transmission, adding strength.
- 11—Differential lock doubles traction in soft ground.
- 12—Pair of internal expanding brakes on differential shaft.
- 13—Complete accessibility of all working parts.
- 14—Large capacity through combination of light weight, power and speed which enabled as much work to be done as with any ordinary three-plow outfit.

These are just a few of the improvements, all thoroughly tried and tested, but new to tractor construction, which from a mechanical point of view stamp the Moline-Universal Model D as the most advanced tractor.
