

STREET CAR STRIKE LOOMS IN CHICAGO

Conference Fails to Arrive at Settlement of Dispute Between Men and Company.

COMPANY MAY GET INCREASED FARES

State Public Utilities Commission Will Try to Get Disputants Together Again for Further Consideration of Grievances.

CHICAGO, July 25.—A strike of employees of the Chicago street car and trolley railways likely will occur in the near future.

The men declared further strike with the street car companies and the trolley companies.

Blame for the failure of the negotiations was placed upon representatives of companies by the union men.

The state public utilities commission liquidated a statement saying an effort would be made to bring about a resumption of conferences.

If the men persist in their attitude it is likely that a strike will become effective within the next 24 hours.

It is expected that the public utilities commission will announce today a plan to permit the elevated railways to increase fares.

Arbitration of the lockout of more than 300,000 building trades workmen, which has been in progress since the start of construction work in Chicago, has been approved by the women.

TEACHINGS ARE CHRISTIAN, NOT ANARCHISTIC

So Says Bishop Williams Regarding Henry Ford's Philosophy of Life

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., July 25.—"If Henry Ford's writings were adhered to by the citizenry of the world it would be a pretty good world, distinctly Christian throughout."
This was the statement today of Bishop Charles H. Williams, Episcopalian bishop of Michigan, who was the chief witness at the trial of the Peace Tribunal. $1,500,000 that said Bishop Williams was called by the plaintiff to refute testimony of Professor S. S. Reeves, of the University of Michigan, who described Ford's teachings as anarchistic.
Bishop Williams stated that, in a general way, he had made a study of anarchism. His qualifications to testify were backed up by the district Judge Tucker allowed his testimony to go into the record.
"What is anarchism?" Attorney Alfred Lucking, for Ford, asked the witness.
"It is the abolition of government," replied the bishop.
"What is an anarchist?" was the next question.
"A man, who believes, advocates, works for the abolition of government and seeks these ends through violence," the bishop answered.
Attorney Lucking dug into the literature put out by Henry Ford, and brought up the quotation "One city, one state, one country."
"Is that anarchistic doctrine?" he asked.
Bishop Williams answered that the line is a stock phrase of social philosophers and quoted from the ten commandments to show that the "brotherhood of man" idea is Christian rather than anarchistic. Bishop Williams testified that many of Henry Ford's slogans expressed fundamental beliefs of Christianity.
"Men in authority have wanted more authority and, being stupid, seek it," was an excerpt read from one of Ford's treatises.
"Is there anything anarchistic about that?" inquired Lucking. "Isn't that philosophy borne out by thinkers who are not anarchists?"
"Yes," answered Bishop Williams.
"State whether the idea that war is murder is contended by non-anarchists," Lucking requested.
"Well, Carlisle said so," Emerson said so; many have stated that before," the bishop replied. "I think it was in the Bible, the papers, too."
"Is war condemned by the scriptures?" Lucking asked.
"Often," said the bishop.
"Now this idea, Mr. Williams, 'The people always acquiesce in war; if the people would not acquiesce in war there would be no war.' Do any besides anarchists believe that philosophy?"
"The pacifists stand for it and a good many sects, like the Quakers, have held that belief," said the bishop.
"Samuel Johnson, not Henry Ford, the bishop testified, was the author of the quotation, 'Patriotism is the last refuge of the scoundrel.' The district Judge then turned the question over to Attorney Elliot Stevenson of the Tribune counsel for cross-examination. The charge consisted of the Mexican border were referred to.
"If a man renders the government inefficient during war, times, isn't he an anarchist?" Lucking asked.
"Well, a good deal may make mistakes and render the government inefficient, but it would not classify him as an anarchist," Bishop Williams replied.
"I'm not speaking of a good man unless you classify an anarchist as a good man," Stevenson said.
"A man in a blind rage may work for definite governmental destruction before it is an anarchist," the bishop replied.

RAIN IMPROVES FIRE CONDITIONS

Reports Show No New Forest Fires as Result of Lightning

BOISE, July 25.—Reports in the hands of federal and state officials today indicate that there is a decided improvement in the forest fire situation, due to recent rains in various parts of the state.
It. A. Holley, mineral examiner for the land office, stated today that his department has only two new fighting fires. C. H. Morse, assistant district forester for this district, in charge of the work of the department, gave the information that only the subdivision of "East 200" had a fire reported in the night. This is a subdivision of the property of the association and the hundreds of private citizens who have joined in the "Forest Block" against the spreading of fires.
Reports from the various fire districts received by C. B. Morse, state fire fighting boss, showed that all the fighting fires have been put out. No reports of new fires were received. The electrical display in the city, which have been forwarded to the fire department.

MAKES VISIT TO HEYBOURNE PARK

University Man and Officials Investigate Conditions

MOSCOW, July 25.—Dean F. G. Miller of the university school of forestry has just returned from Heybourne by the state in 1909 from the federal government's "Forest Reserve" near Heybourne, Idaho. He was accompanied by the people of Idaho, because of the accessibility of the area and the fact that Dean Miller believes it will become the playground of the state west.
Other members of the party were W. L. Bassett, district manager of the Coeur d'Alene national forest; C. E. Billings, lumberman of the Idaho State Lumber Co.; J. H. Hedges, E. C. Conklin, superintendent of the Idaho State Lumber Co.; and J. C. Mohr, in charge of logging operations.
The purpose of the trip was to make a study of the land and to make a future policy for the forest timber.

LIBRARIES FOR BUSINESS MEN

Many people, perhaps, look upon the public library as a place to go for entertaining books of fiction. Students go to look up references and to read science or literature specified for certain study courses. Children go for stories of adventure and travel and for the story hour instilled by many libraries. Business men and industrial concerns are not usually thought of as making frequent and direct use of the public library facilities.

The St. Louis library, however, is making a special effort to serve persons in business and industry. It has a well equipped reference department with which it is hoping to augment the local business world. Specimens of high grade advertising and data classified according to subjects are there for the publicity men. There is a department of applied science covering too many fields to mention, but offering accurate and readily available information to the individuals who need it. There is a good collection of government documents on a wide range of subjects such as agriculture, mining, technology, with statistics on industrial, labor, foreign and domestic commerce, wages scales and export information. This library also has special lists and publications giving information concerning the personnel of business houses in all parts of the world.

This is a fine work for any library to perform. The business man who has already made his success can find here specific information on matters in which he is interested. The young man or woman just making a start in the field of business can make use of these library facilities for broadening his outlook and studying to get ahead in his chosen line.

Not every public library has such a complete collection of reference works for persons interested in business. But the main thing is to make use of such facilities as are on hand, to get them before the men and women who can make the best use of them and who will jump at the chance.

A CARAVAN FOR REMEMBRANCE

On July 7 there started from the White Horse a procession of motor trucks. Their final destination is San Francisco. These are the trucks which took the place in a very great extent, of the so-called army used in hauling supplies and munitions in this country and abroad during the war.

The War Department is responsible for the trip, the main object of which is to raise national interest in a series of "Roads of Remembrance," roads stretching away across the country, dedicated to the remembrance of the boys who drove the trucks in the war, and their comrades.

The idea of memorial roads is not new, but now it is proposed by the War Department that the route followed by the trucks shall be the line of the road.

The Forestry Department is writing that the roads be lined with trees, and this is the gospel which will be preached as the caravan winds its way westward.

Clear the trucks as they pass by, for they made history. And let each state build its roads and plant its trees. No nodder could join the past and future.

STEALING THE BACON

The Germans are up to their old tricks. Army officials have been finding American bacon in Germany in districts where it could hardly have been procured in a legitimate manner. They have been discovered covering plots for the stealing of food from France and the American army. This is no small matter of the taking of one side of bacon here and there by a family who had not seen good bacon for five years. It is a conspiracy to steal it by wholesale and sell it where it will bring high prices.

One of the findings of the investigators was a German freight car with a false top concealing thousands of cigarettes. Other thousands were found in another train covered with coal in a locomotive tender.

The Spartan morality which considered thieving a virtue unless it were found out seems now to have been reinterpreted among Germans. Anything will do, from raiding Belgium and killing his babies to stealing bacon and cigarettes, if only they can get away with it.

It will be the job of the allies for the next forty years to see how low they can reduce the percentage of getting away with it.

Alvin York's pastor was invited to attend a candle-vill show in Nashville, and he went. Labor he wrote a letter saying: "It was entirely different from what I expected. I am very sorry I was there, and have deeply repented for the same." Oh, cheer up, Larson! A lot of us have been fooled the same way about a show, and bought our own tickets besides.

Some senators who were awful mad because Wilson wouldn't tell them anything about the treaty are now awful mad because he wants to tell them all about it.

Music in Twin Falls

.....Past, Present and Future.....

The Land boys appreciated the editorial comments in The Times about the great need for a musical center in Twin Falls. It is not only a necessity for the community, but it is also a necessity for the individual. I think a band is almost a necessity for every community, and anything that is helpful to the band is helpful to the community.

The thought was brought out in an interview on the subject of music in Twin Falls. Mr. Price had had a special teacher of the violin, and he has been a very successful violinist. He has been a very successful violinist, and he has been a very successful violinist.

"I think the self-educating development by a serious study of a musical instrument is of invaluable value to anybody, even if it does not lead to a profession."

Disapproves Old Adage. In spite of the old adage to the contrary, some things done by fathers are done most satisfactorily, as for example the teaching of music. Mr. Price, the father of the violinist, disapproves the old adage.

LABOR PLANS FULL CONTROL

British Workers "Aim to Take Over Government in an Orderly Way."

MOVEMENT ALREADY BEGUN

Margaret Bondfield, English Labor Leader, Now in This Country, Predicts Complete Success Within a Comparatively Few Years.

When Frank A. Vanderbilt, on his recent return from Europe, said that England had narrowly escaped a revolution during the labor troubles of last winter, one of his startling assertions announced such attention in the United States as it was.

Miss Margaret Bondfield—in this country as the representative of the National Federation of Women Workers of England, considered one of the foremost labor leaders of that country—strongly says that the revolution there has already begun and that forces the strength of which is not recognized outside of Great Britain are already organized and need but to be extended to bring about, in an orderly manner, fundamental changes which would put the workers in possession of the government and the industries.

First, she expects a labor parliament within a few years; "but that," she adds, "would only be a beginning."

"The labor movement in England is organized in three branches, distinct yet working together," said Miss Bondfield in Washington the other day when asked what the forces she referred to were. "It is unlike anything you have in this country, and I am here in the hope that something similar will be undertaken by the workers of the United States, for we have no national as well as international aims. You have the beginnings of the movement, but they are not developed as they are in England. The worker in England is organized from three main aspects or functions: first, as a producer in the industrial world; second, as a consumer in the cooperative union; and third, as a citizen in the labor party."

"It is, you see, a trinity, there in one, but each keeps to the separate field of activity. There is no supreme authority over all; unity and harmony of action is obtained by joint committees, which meet for the consideration of policies that apply to all. Thus these forces are brought to bear on every question of importance that arises on any one of the three sides of the problem."

If you don't want war, you have or haven't what you want, and a little Twine want ad.

To Mend an Ugly Tear.

Sometimes you are unfortunate enough to make an ugly tear in a household next gown. It may be mended very successfully, and if it is an incalculable loss it will not show at all. Lay the tear edge to edge, and keep it pressed by hand until the edges meet, they do not just overlap. Cut a piece of rather thick, heavy fabric, such as muslin or flannel, to the size of the tear. Lay the garment on the ironing board right side down, place the patch over the tear, and cover the fabric with a piece of gauze of the same material as that of the garment to be mended. Keep both rubber and paper perfectly close to the edge of the material, then lay with a tape or piece of muslin binding.

Patience Again.

As sure as the coming of summer there are some form of summer bugs. Some are annoying in their ways, and some are not. In padding embroidery use the chain stitch. This is an especially good knit for making collared edges. If making patch work, if you cut your pattern in table oil cloth instead of paper, you will find this very much more satisfactory. The oil cloth pattern will not slip when cutting and there is no danger of cutting off a portion with the scissors.

A Dress Protector.

When the yoke of a slipdress becomes worn, cut off the slipdress, cut the neck and the top, leaving a neck hole through which the neck of the dress can be slipped, and the yoke will be protected.

A Footwear Fad.

The few who wish to follow fashion will in footwear wear this summer, white oxfords with black shoes and black stockings. This combination is sanctioned by New York's latest decree. Of course the generality of women will use the conservative all white.

A Nation of Spenders, We Must Become Instead a Money-Saving People

BY THE WIFE OF THE SECRETARY OF WAR

As a people we have always been regarded as extravagant and the accusation is not unjust. We have been wasteful in many different ways, and in looking for compensation for all the cruel sacrifices we have been forced to make during the war our attention is called to the material benefits we can derive from the bitter experience if we are willing to learn the lesson. If we become a nation of savers instead of a nation of spenders some of the sacrifices will not have been in vain. When the actual fighting was over they laid their hands under a handkerchief and said: "I believe enough real money can be found in Twin Falls to organize a good one-hour addition to the city."

One of the most obvious ways to give our financial support. This, however, differs from most of our war service in that it involves an sacrifice. It is absolutely the safest and most paying investment one can make, and one is no longer forced to argue that he should do this thing for his country's sake, or for his soul's sake, but it can now be put on the lower plane of a thing done for one's own interest which incidentally helps the nation's credit.

No amount of money is too small to be put away profitably in Thrift stamps, and there are always convenient at hand places where the investment can be made, including the postman at our doors and the schools where we send our children.

When we open our purses and should address to ourselves the question: "Am I spending this money wisely, or could I make better use of it?" The trouble is that if we do not take this matter under more serious consideration than we have in the past our country's credit may be at stake.

With an apology for the bad taste of a personal allusion, my children spend a portion of their money, allowance each week for Thrift stamps, and I am confident involved in seeing who can possess the largest number has run the game to a surprising extent. Thrift stamps and War Savings stamps have the value not only of creating a fund for a definite purpose, such as the education of a child, but teach the value of money and the lasting returns which can be gotten for it, at the same time inculcating all the traditional virtues which flow from saving a part of all the money coming into one's possession.

One of the permanent benefits that we can extract from this cruel and wasteful war, beyond the determination that it must never happen again, is the consciousness of a personal responsibility to our government, without which it cannot hope to hold the respect of the rest of the world.

FAMILY OF SNAKE CHARMERS

Women Have Spaulter Power Over Reptiles Which the Ordinary Person Holds in Dread.

Probably nowhere else is the art of snake charming brought to such a pitch of perfection as at Mount Pogo, Upper Burns, Idaho, and especially through by women. Here two famous sisters, whose fame is a byword throughout Burns, make their home.

At special requests they will come to town for exhibition of their skill, but as a rule they prefer the vicinity of their mountain. This particular family has carried on this profession for many years past, keeping their secret always within their own circle.

The snakes they use are the deadly hammoryad or onia hungaria (snake sphingoides), the king cobra. The task, possibly, would not appear to many, as these reptiles are the most dreaded of their kind. Measuring 10 to 12 feet in length they possess a deadly poison in their fangs, and on an alarming speed. If it seeps of them, that they are the only ones who will attack a human being on sight, chasing him for miles until one or the other is bound to give in.

The snakes are fed on lizards, and appear amiable and tame to handle. The origin of the family and their work is probably not far from the dim past ages of years, but their skill is not one whit less today than it has been since the profession was first heard of. How long they will continue to carry it on is a matter for conjecture, but undoubtedly they stand for one of Burns' best attractions, and a mark for the enterprising tourist who craves to see the mighty hosts of Mount Pogo.

Some Nomenclature.

Historic Geneva.

Any one of us who has had the great many and associations of Geneva will constantly turn them in the streets—the Rue de la Ville, the Rue de la Poste, the Rue de la Gare, and above all, the Rue de la République, where Rousseau's father lived; the Grand Rue, where Rousseau himself was born; the house which was used as a meeting place for the revolutionary committee; and the Hotel de Ville, where he was born, his father and mother, in their courtly days, used to walk up and down of an evening.

KNIFE OF STEEL FOR KILLING POULTRY

Most Blades Are Too Broad and Too Large to Handle.

They Are Inexpensive as Blood Collects at Junction of Blade and Handle.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Knives in common use for bleeding and branding poultry are not sufficient for the purpose according to the United States department of agriculture specialists. The blades are too broad and too long and the curves at the point should be on the back instead of on the cutting edge. The handle is so large that it is difficult to hold.

Such a knife, with the aid of the packing house emergency wheel or similar device, can be made from an eight-inch flat file. To make it, the blade should be shaped from the small end of the file. It should be for chickens, two inches long, one-fourth inch wide, and one-eighth inch thick at the back. For turkeys, the blade should be two and one-half inches long, one-eighth inch wide, and one-eighth inch thick at the back.

MOTOR DRIVING

They Tour in Own "Pullman"

A "Hotel on Wheels" carried a train of excitement at the Indianapolis race on Decoration day, when it was given the maiden trip from Marion, Indiana, to Indianapolis, by J. C. Hartley, president of the Indiana Truck corporation, who, with Mrs. Hartley and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goldblatt of Marion, Indiana, have started ahead on a round trip from Marion, Indiana, to Indianapolis, by way of about 4,000 miles.

"Thousands of people at the Indianapolis races viewed the 'Hotel on Wheels.' It is complete to the last detail. There are sleeping compartments for four people, with glass windows that can be raised and lowered. In the side of the body, beneath each sleeping compartment is a commodious chest for clothing. At the rear of the body is a complete kitchen equipment.

The rear is also equipped with a motorcycle for special errands that may take the driver of the truck off the main line of travel. A complete electric lighting system which furnishes twenty-five electric lights is utilized with batteries, generator and motor. Communications on the outside of the truck contain tools, ropes and various other equipment that is likely to be needed. The truck is equipped with water tanks and pumps and modern sanitary plumbing. It rides on very large Firestone pneumatic tires. A large tent fly can be stretched from the top of the truck to a distance ten or fifteen feet away.

The driver sleeps on a specially devised seat which can be turned into a bunk at night. This seating body is mounted on a 2-ton Indiana truck chassis, the frame having been lengthened to meet the body requirements. It is equipped with shock absorbers.

Touring in this way permits the tourist to get off the main line of travel and visit at will any spot that may occur to him and be entirely free from dependency upon hotels or the railroads.

RALPH DE PALMA, NOTED RACER, SAYS SPEEDING IN AIRPLANE LACKS THRILLS

Ralph de Palma thinks there are more thrills in sight racing than in flying. "Flying seemed monotonous compared with motor racing," he said in speaking of his air trip.

Longshore Works.

"On a trip of several hundred miles you may be making speeds which would be terrific in an auto—140 miles an hour. But at the height of a mile or more you have no realization of speed, and sitting up there in the wind and noise is homesome work."

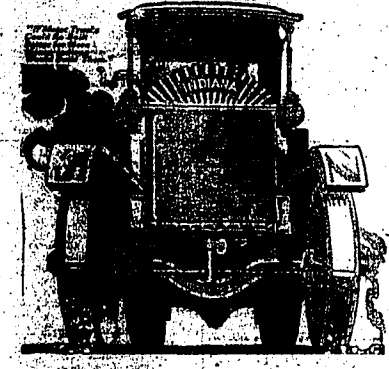

The aviator, now staying at Longshore works, has no objection to a contest, but there is no competition, no audience, no applause. Thurling over the ground at Daytona Beach in a racing car at two and one-half miles per minute, with 50-foot leaps from the ground, or whirling around the Indianapolis Motor Speedway track in the 500-mile race, with competitors contesting every lap—that's very different stuff. Every minute has its incident and its thrill. I prefer to be down on the ground, smelling the gas, eating the dirt, in contact with my rivals and the crowd."

"Wise Men Take Care of Batteries"—Watson

While all motorists may not be in the class with the chap who takes an actual delight in spending all of his spare time tinkering about the garage, most of them have some knowledge of the under and outer workings of their cars. They know that spark plugs must be cleaned, valves must be ground, that carbon should not be allowed to accumulate in cylinders, that the gear box must be kept filled with grease, and that even so matter of fact a thing as a fire, appearing at an occasional chance, is in the air. But according to D. C. Watson, manager of the local "Kendall" Service Station, the average motorist knows practically nothing of his battery except that it is there to furnish current for starting and lighting.

"A mighty wise man," said Mr. Watson, "asserted years ago that few people realized they had a stomach unless it gave them trouble, and a similar statement would apply equally well in connection with starting and lighting batteries." With the battery it's a matter of "out of sight, out of mind"; the battery works on uncomplainingly until the last ounce of its exhausted capacity is consumed, and then it's a matter of "get it out of the car and get it replaced."

"When motorists thoroughly appreciate the great saving of time, money and annoyance which follows the regular inspection of their batteries, they will see a remarkable, country-wide increase in starting and lighting efficiency. Many of the best informed motorists in town now come to our service station at least once a month and have their batteries thoroughly looked over. We take care of all makes of batteries in this way. In some cases, by these same men, we have brought their batteries to us only when something was wrong, but they have learned that the power and punch originally built into their batteries can best be kept there by expert inspection at regular intervals."

DIFFICULTY IN WASHING CAR

Operation Can Be Performed by Man Working Alone if Barrel is Placed on Platform.

The great difficulty in washing automobiles, where no water under pressure is available, is to operate the sprayer pump, and with some types a sponge effectively, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. A large water and air-tight barrel with both heads in fact will be required. A tent of water, to which a hose can be attached, is inserted in one of these heads. The hose is then connected with a faucet down, upon some sort of platform. A hose is attached to this faucet and to the nozzle of the force pump. After the water is opened, but few should be pumped into the barrel until it is about three-fourths full. The valve is then closed, and the hose is removed from the nozzle of the force pump. To use the barrel as a force pump, it is only necessary to get nozzle on the hose and open the valve at the bottom of the barrel. The air, which is compressed by pumping the water into the barrel, forces the water out when the valve is opened, thus making an effective spray. All these operations can be performed by a man working alone.

Water from a well or cistern is used with the convenience of a City Pressure System.

Along Auto

With possibly one or two exceptions, the plaintive wail rising from Auto Row is "Car's gone, looking for cars." The few cars which are received are spoken for—in advance and those fortunate enough to be first on the waiting list figuratively drive the cars from the railroad yards themselves. And none of the automobiles can see any light for months to come. The war has resulted in a shortage of hundreds of thousands of cars and greatly increased factory production will have a result before this shortage can be made up.

Edw. S. Johnson is one of the fortunate dealers who can report a carload of cars on hand, with two more on the road. A shipment of Chalmers is now in the harbor, and will be ready to arrive soon, all of the latter, however, being already sold.

The Idaho Auto and Supply company have received word that a consignment of Indian trucks have left the factory, to be followed shortly by another load.

O. E. Duke and family are leaving Monday for Halley to go on a week. Mr. Duke expects to bring back a fish string of fish.

Diamond Tires Have New Adjustment

ALSO new and strong to America's 6,000,000 motorists is the recent reduction in tire prices. The announcement, just made, by the Diamond Rubber Co., of an adjustment basis for their fabric and cord tires. The company's new adjustment figures are: 6,000 miles for safety tread tires, 4,000 miles for cord tires. This is a remarkable increase over the old figures of 3,500 miles on fabric and 5,000 miles on cord.

The announcement of increased mileage adjustment on Diamond tires reflects all adjustments which toward that recent price reduction meant a cheapening of the quality of the tire. On the contrary, it has just the opposite meaning states Manager Randolph, local Diamond dealer, that the motorists will be assured, with proper care of tires, greater mileage than ever before at a lower cost.

TAR REMOVED FROM MACHINE

Almost impossible to Run Over New Roads or Pavements Without Getting Some on Car.

It is hardly possible to drive a machine over new tarred roads or pavements without getting at least some of the tar on the body. If treated in time the spots are not difficult to remove. The machine should be washed immediately and carefully dried with kerosene so that the tar will not smear. A little kerosene applied over each spot and worked in with a finger will help to remove the stains. It should be washed with body soap and a final polish in the usual manner completes the operation.

When going down a long hill change from one brake to the other to allow the lining to cool. If this is not done brake linings wear away rapidly and sometimes burn. Thus, by frequent changes you prolong the life of the lining several hundred per cent.
