How You Can Double the Mileage on Your Tires

After running 4000 to 6000 miles on your tires, wouldn't it interest you to know that you could get again as much mileage out of them—at half the cost of the original set?
And wouldn't the proposition have been a stronger appeal, if you were promised puncture-proof service in addition to this heretofore unheard-of economy. A new scientific principle in tire construction makes all this possible—credit for the invention going to Chas. C. Gates, E. M.

A HOT SPOT Chalmers Shuns a Repair Shop

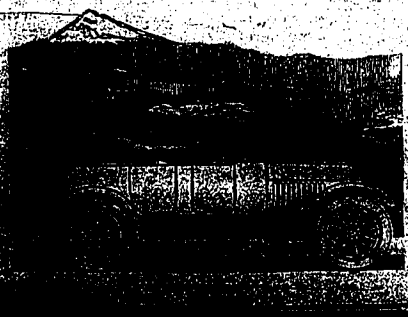

MANY of the large Chalmers merchants of America report that it costs them but $3 per car per year for service. They have had so very little trouble with the car that their figures have come down to a point reached, we believe, by no more than one or two cars.

There's good reason for this. Most car troubles come from two sources:

1. Poor lubrication.
 2. Excessive vibration.
- Hot Spot and Ram's-Horn aid and make cure, an extraordinary lubrication of the engine, and provide such silky smoothness in power that few persons can tell, whether in the car or at the curb, if the engine is running. Moreover, Hot-Spot and Ram's-Horn aid to the long life of car and engine; and hence end it to the owner. A repair shop is shunned. Let us tell you just exactly how Hot-Spot and Ram's-Horn do the trick. It's well worth any man's time; and not to know is to be behind the times.

Outfits That Intrigue the Motorist.

If you have foresworn a motor tour for good reasons, do not allow yourself to stroll into shops or through the departments in big stores where motor tops are on display. Temptation lies there, along with the proper outfit for any sort of motoring. Yes, these motor clothes suggest all sorts of alluring outfits, from a tour across the continent to that of a few hours along perfect roads and through smart towns, and each has its own charm. The coats, capes, sweaters and hats show the motor and other sport clothes have become more "specialized" than ever before.

Leading off with coats, there are leather coats, like that shown in the picture that allow you to defy the hardest wear on the longest trip. It has a belt that fits through a large, patch-pocket that holds everything with all that does them at the top. A "slap" of the cut makes a special shield for the sleeve and a short shawl collar dispense of protection for the neck. In a brassage way, "Coats" that are made of heavy, three-quarter length and heavy shorts and new styles in breeches and Leaving leather out of the reckoning, there are comfortable coats of tweed, cover cloth and heavy Jersey, and these, like the leather and part leather coats, have certain fine quality of style that comes in garments that insure adaptability to the sort of demands made upon them. Among the newer coats are more casual mittens in which two colors are woven together in the fabric with something of a changeable effect. For all occasions, forcing these cloth coats are most dependable. Besides, there are the "new camel's hair coats," essentially like those shown in the picture and especially stylish. And last come the coat of pongee, which has a vitality that insures its long life and a history that proves it always elegant.

To wear with these there are, too, motor-hats for military, police, leather and silk, or of other military leather and of rubberized cloth that looks like a heavy, crumpled serge. Sweats all these hats are fitted in the back and have vents in the front. They are worn in tan and brown, dark blue, black and green and in black, and in many shades of gray.

THE CHEAP LABOR FALLACY

"If cheap labor meant prosperity, then China and India would be the most prosperous nations of the world. But cheap labor means just the opposite of prosperity, means it both to the laborer and to the man who hires him."

It is the delusion of a profit in cheap labor as compared with high-priced labor which has given our cities their ugly slums, their breeding places of crime, tuberculosis and other plagues, moral, physical and economic.

It is the delusion that cheap labor is cheap which has produced the condition of which a trained observer can say: "I went recently through the Ghetto of New York City, notorious for its depth of misery and poverty, but I can pick a hundred thousand white men farms in the south where there is ten times the money to be found in this section."

The only profit in cheap labor is temporary. In the long run even the employer loses by it, and the result to the community is always loss. Even the nation might be destroyed by the fallacy.

To pay all men alike would put a damper upon initiative. It would hold the whole world to a dead level. But there should be a minimum standard below which no one should be allowed to live.

The occasional working less to be carried by the community in some form or other. But city slums are a habit. So are bedraggled, miserable hazy. They are largely due to hazy thinking, and it is time that hazy thinking should cease.

AIR TRAFFIC RULES

The tragic results of the accident to a "blimp" causing the down-town section of Chicago have emphasized the need of something new in police regulations to traffic rules for the air.

Aviation organizations have long foreseen this need, and have gone so far as to make specific demands for municipal, State and national legislation on the subject. The matter has come up in Washington in the present session of Congress, but nothing serious has been done about it.

Obviously it will not do to have airplanes and dirigibles flying, hovering and doing stunts at their own sweet will over business districts and crowded residential sections. The danger to the property and life below is too great. People do not want airships and aviators falling all over them, or setting fire to their houses and office buildings, or knocking off their chimneys and church spires or dropping things on their heads.

Rules must be established, too, for the safety of the aviators themselves, and that is perhaps the hardest problem. How can routes be laid out in the air and flyers be made to observe them when the sky is full of planes and dirigibles, and it will be before many years? There is a field for some genius of a traffic policeman to use his ingenuity.

X-RAY FOR BOMBS

A new use has been discovered for the X-Ray. It is all bombs discovered by the police will be X-rayed to determine whether or not they contain any mark or device which might be traceable to the sender of the deadly missile.

Persons who receive suspicious-looking packages are urged to turn them over to the authorities at once, without opening them, and that they may be investigated by this modern method. It has been suggested also that the hand grenades brought to the country by returning soldiers shall be very carefully handled, as it is possible to lead them with the most deadly explosives.

No one who has any reason to be suspicious should hesitate a moment in calling upon the authorities for aid and investigation. There is no possible way of knowing all the ramifications of the bomb makers' schemes, and the result of inattention or carelessness may be as fatal as the explosion of the bomb itself.

Music in Twin Falls

.....Past, Present and Future.....

MUSIC AND CHARACTER BUILDING

Music is a fight to the death. America is a fight to the death. America is a fight to the death. America is a fight to the death. America is a fight to the death. America is a fight to the death.

It is well that Napoleon declared his defeat in Russia was caused by the cold and barbaric tunes of "those northern Cossack redoubts."

Now consider another slice of the history of music. Music is not only a fine mental discipline but is a splendid memory drill. Failing memory should be remedied by the study of music.

There are many other ways of preaching the Gospel than by speaking from a pulpit. Many a true man has been converted to the most elegant and uplifting sermons. But he would have heard the voice of some one who filled with the power and pathos of a sacred song.

Under its sway and spell men of mind and unappreciated nature, men of great ability, men of great intellect and high upon their fellow men, men of low ambition and selfishness are moved to noble impulses and to great deeds of character.

From a spiritual and moral standpoint should we not encourage music in our schools? It is the language of our own soul. What can we utter or express, music seems to say for us. It is the language of our own soul.

The idea that music is a luxury which only the affluent can enjoy is a fallacy. Music is a part of the human soul, and it is the language of our own soul.

It is not a luxury, it is a necessity. It is the language of our own soul. It is the language of our own soul. It is the language of our own soul.

General Pershing said: "Music and entertainment are as important to our soldiers as food and sleep." Major Bell said: "A singing army is a fighting army."

Music has been one of the bulwarks of the army. It is the language of our own soul. It is the language of our own soul. It is the language of our own soul.

ASKS DISTRICT BE FORMED OF SALMON TRACT

Settlers Want Election on Plans to Create Irrigation District Out of Project

A petition asking the county commissioners to call an election for the purpose of forming the Salmon River project into an irrigation district was filed with the county clerk yesterday by Judge James H. Hutchins, attorney for the Salmon River Settlers' association. The petition contained the names of owners of some three thousand acres in excess of the twenty-five per cent required by law.

The formation of the Salmon River Irrigation district has been under consideration for nearly four years. When several efforts on the part of the settlers to correct the project's difficulties proved fruitless in the years between 1914 and 1916 many who had been giving their time to secure a reduction of the acreage upon the project and thus guarantee an ample supply of water for part of the lands, began to cast about for someone whereby the wish of the large majority of the tract for a settlement could be fulfilled.

The experience of the early part of the project has shown that the majority might be proposed and be unable to the larger number of settlers, it could be thwarted by a small number who could vote more than they were therefore apparent that the project must eventually be organized in some form whereby the power of a very few to veto a project of the majority could be ended and majority rule secured.

The stock company holding all the lands of the project was one plan suggested. This plan was given up since it would require unanimous consent of the stockholders. The only other workable plan possible was the one provided by the state laws, the irrigation district.

In January 1917 the first actual attempt at forming an irrigation district was made. The settlers' attorney, James H. Hutchins, was named as attorney for the project. At that time the petition which was quickly signed by the owners of over twenty thousand acres. Mr. Lonsley was preparing an application for creation of all phases of the working of the irrigation district at the time of his death. The project was never filed but the project should be included in the bill.

Mr. Hutchins was employed by the county attorney in September 1917, and he made a thorough study of the petition district from every angle considering whether it could be included in any way. He then changed the petition considered it inadvisable to push either the district idea or the settlers' suits in the courts while the state land board was taking its turn at an immediate solution of the project's difficulties by means of the Whiffin plan of reclamation.

When it was seen that nothing would come from the state's action Mr. Hutchins advised the formation of an irrigation district. He considered it inadvisable to push either the district idea or the settlers' suits in the courts while the state land board was taking its turn at an immediate solution of the project's difficulties by means of the Whiffin plan of reclamation.
