LABOR INSISTS ON FUNDAMENTAL CHANGES IN ECONOMIC SYSTEM

Grand President of Railway Brotherhood Declares American Worker Has Given Drab Life to Old Regime, and Fight Has Not Been for Progress, but only to Keep Pace With Hour

WAR WAS FOUGHT FOR IDEALS OF DEMOCRACY; IT RESULTED IN DOUBLING OF MILLIONAIRES

Basic Structure of American Industry Must Be Rebuilt, He Says; No Pretext by Which Order Can Be Defended Which Concentrates Wealth in Hands of Ten-Per Cent of the People

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—"Organized labor has come to the parting of the ways. We have seen the folly of the old strategy of trying to better ourselves by negotiations for merely a higher wage and humane working conditions. Now we are working for fundamental changes," said J. J. Forester, grand president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees, comprising more than 450,000 employes, in an interview here today.

"We have not come to this conclusion lightly. We have not decided impatiently. For decades, the American worker has given his drab life to the old regime; fighting every inch of the way. And the fight has not been for progress, but merely to keep pace with the exigencies of the hour.

"We are not eloquent men, we are not theorists. The facts have converted us, as they have converted, I believe, the great majority of Americans. We have all seen the war and listened to the ideals for which it was fought. We gave our lives, our time and our money, and gave them gratefully.

"But what else do we see? The number of millionaires has doubled, and the people pay the extortion. Yes, the workers received the wage increases. In fact, on the railroads, under government control, the employes got what seemed fair treatment. But the money was not money, it did not purchase goods. It did not allow the individual a greater partaking of the generous things of the world. And today he is determined that in a country dedicated to freedom he shall have freedom. Freedom to decide his own destiny, to make his home a better home, to give his children something of his dreams for them.

"I say these are simple considerations. But they are deep, and they dominate all of us.

"The basic structure of American industry must be rebuilt. There is no just pretext by which the present order can be defended, an order which concentrates the wealth from the work of all into the control of less than ten per cent of the population.

"The American citizen is wise enough to vote; he must be wise enough to vote also in his shop as to the regulation of the wealth he is creating.

"That is the proposal of the railroad brotherhoods and affiliated organizations in the Sims bill.

"We wish the railroads to be operated in behalf of the public on a basis of justice to the men who conduct the industry. We want capital out of the railroads. We are insistent that capital shall be treated fairly. We are not revolutionists, but constructionists. We say, 'Pay capital every dollar honestly and prudently spent for the public and let the courts decide by the constitution how much the bill is.'

"I want to correct one illusion about the events of these days. It has been suggested that through radical leadership the rank and file has come to congress with threats of selfish retaliation if our demands are not met. You must know that labor leaders would not be capable of striking up the country as it has been stirred if we had not opposed strikes, but have advised patience. But we are not the generals of labor, we are labor's spokesmen.

"We demand in this twentieth century of industry an American commonwealth of democracy in industry."

Would Corral Sugar to Prevent Home Canning and Turn Out of Penny Immediately

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Evidence that food profiteers have entered into a conspiracy to hoard sugar preparatory to raising the price at least three cents this fall, was obtained today by Deputy Commissioner of Markets Edwin J. O'Malley. O'Malley said he had discovered 124 brokers controlling the sugar market had entered into a hoarding combine while he was investigating dealers in army supplies.

STRIKE SPREADS IN MIDDLE WEST

Representatives of Federation of Labor Urge Men to Wait Until Official Call

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Representatives of the grand council of the railroad labor today visited railroad shops in and around Chicago, in an effort to persuade the strikers who are out on strike, to return to their places. It is hoped the men will return to work at least until the official strike call, which is not expected to be distributed today throughout the entire country, has been issued.

An appeal has been issued by the Northwestern and the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad for equipment, declaring their traffic is being impeded by the number of locomotives and cars out of order. Reports of the number of men out in the middle west, declaring their traffic is being impeded by the number of locomotives and cars out of order, reports of the number of men out in the middle west, declaring their traffic is being impeded by the number of locomotives and cars out of order.

MAYS TO PITCH IF JOHNSON CAN BE RESTRAINED

Yankee Owners Charge President of League With Holding Stock in Indians

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Owners of the Yankees, are expected to make applications today for an injunction restraining Ben Johnson from pitching. Pitcher Carl Mays in suspension. Action was held up yesterday when the club's attorney prepared the papers in the case. If an injunction is secured before game time this afternoon, it is planned to pitch Mays against St. Louis.

President Ben Johnson of the American league has announced that, inasmuch as the Yankee owners refused to attend a league meeting, none will be held. He is still standing firmly behind his suspension of the former Boston pitcher.

Captain Huston has recently accused Johnson of being a mediator in the Cleveland club, stating that the fact that Cleveland to get Mays from Boston prompted Johnson to suspend the pitcher. Johnson has declined to comment on the statement.

BASEBALL CLUB IS AFTER MONEY

Two Cache Valley Pitchers Seek Berths in Twin Falls

A meeting of the Twin Falls Baseball association took hold of the C. H. Thomas office yesterday afternoon preliminary to a campaign for increased financial support for the local club. Another meeting will be held at the club room this afternoon.

Manager Tule Christian today received receiving letters from two pitchers who are after berths on the local club. One is W. K. Wood of Preston and the other is Herb Wood of Logan. Both clubs in the Cache Valley League. Christian is in the middle of the season and has a team of second place. The team is headed with the local men and will have a few more added, most of them in the league.

FROM THE PRESS BOX JUG

The press box and the field are one that has been pretty generally agreed in the minds of those familiar with our game. There are no business enterprises which we can name at the moment where the contrary plan has worked to any degree of success. The former must put seed in his soil if he expects to reap a harvest. The latter must put out his net and catch what comes. The former must put out his net and catch what comes. The latter must put out his net and catch what comes.

GOT ROAST BEEF

Crew of United States Vessel Fed Hungry Citizens of Roumania.

Some of the inhabitants of Constantza, a Roumanian city on the Black Sea, tested their luck for the first time in two years when a few weeks ago the crew of the U. S. S. Western Pilot, commanded by Lieut. Comdr. J. C. Piper, put in a netting to friends in Lombard.

People at Constantza and other Roumanian cities visited by the Western Pilot were found to be actually starving to death, writes Piper. At Constantza the men engaged to help unload the vessel were so weak from hunger they could not work.

While many knew plentiful there was no food to be bought, says the letter of Piper to his friends. The Germans stripped the railway station of foodstuffs. Children were dying daily from starvation. Nothing was to be seen in the shops save a few rotten, stinky loaves. The Western Pilot was at Campden, N. J., when Piper wrote.

COMPULSORY MILITARY TRAINING BILL IS BEFORE CONGRESS NOW

Provides That All American Boys of 19 Years Shall Devote Three Months to United States Army Establishment, and Subject to Call to Colors Until 45 Years of Age

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The compulsory military training bill for all American boys of 19 years is provided in the draft of a bill for a reorganization of the United States military establishment, submitted by Secretary Baker to Senator Wadsworth, chairman of the senate military affairs committee, and Representative Kahn, chairman of the house military affairs committee, and one of the bill for the reorganization of the United States military establishment.

The bill calls for an army of 400,000 men and 200,000 women. Under the universal military training provisions, boys of 19 would have to undergo three months of military training in the summer of each year, and in addition, they would be subject to call for full military service in alternate years.

The "chemical warfare" service would be treated as a separate unit, and the universal military training bill would be applied to the United States military establishment.

NECESSARY TO KEEP BOOKS

Without Accurate Accounts No Form of Business Can Be Successfully Carried On.

Accountancy, which is the science of systematic business, has a history that runs back of almost 4000 years. Very early in the development of nations it was found that in commerce as well as in the affairs of state, accurate and careful record-keeping were indispensable. These systems were, at first, crude and laborious, but they at least kept the finances of the nation and the wants of trade from being chaotic.

The invention of double entry book-keeping early in the fifteenth century by the merchants and bankers of Venice gave to the commerce of Europe an invaluable trade instrument, and one without which the great commercial enterprises of the later centuries could hardly have existed.

And so it has been on down to the present time; there has been a parallel progress between the accomplishment of commerce and the science of accounting, and it is known to every man in business that the former could not continue without the latter. Even the most unbusiness-like people know this much, and we can hardly imagine anyone who engaged to attempt to carry on any kind of a business enterprise without keeping books.

Bookkeeping, as a formal subject of study, is taught in most of the public and private schools of this country, but it is only that form of bookkeeping that applies to the affairs of the merchant or the shopkeeper. The public has yet to learn that bookkeeping is quite as necessary to the prosperity of the wage-worker, the salaried man, the farmer and the householder as it is to the shopkeeper, the merchant or the manufacturer—be he large.

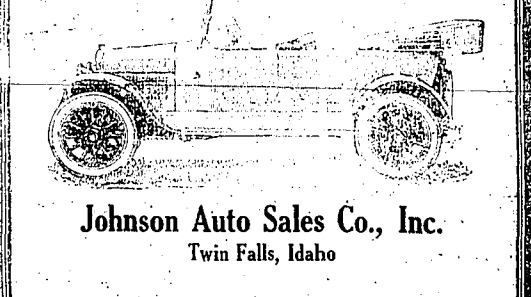

A Skeptical Investor.

A woman with a few thousand dollars to invest asked a bookkeeper to suggest a good investment with a minimum of risk. A partner in this house, on reading her request, proceeded to write his regular business application to those who don't want any security which goes down. His recommendation was the 3 1/2 per cent bonds of the United Kingdom and Ireland.

A few days later he received a communication from the same woman and she requested that he send another investment suggestion.

"While I have faith in Great Britain," she wrote, "I am not so sure about Ireland."—Wall Street Journal.

The Post-War Maxwell is the Surprise Car of the Year

ITS a mental stimulation to look over the post-war Maxwell and see one surprise after another in fine engineering.

You get the accumulation of war years in rare automobile ideas.

There's the new Lemoine type front axle, which gives a new delight at the wheel in a easy, steering effect in steering.

Then there's the heavy new rear axle with extra large, indestructible four pinion differential. And two universal joints of the collar disc type. They require no attention during the life of the car.

Baked! The emergency is now found on the transmission, as on so many former cars. The service brake is the larger toggle type, and is equipped with equalizers, which prevent the tendency to skid.

In the rear view is shown the gas tank, fuel, and vacuum feed. No more gas fumes or gas leakage up in front.

Also equipped with Hot Spot and Rain-Proof Horn.

There are many more rare treats in store for you, but remember this Post-War model is the continuation of the original Maxwell chassis as laid down 7 years ago.

To date more than 300,000 have been sold. The public has paid $200,000,000 for post-war Maxwells. This Post-War Maxwell is a greater car.

Jan. J. Reilly is taking the water from his well, at the barn across the road, to his residence. This is a convenience that will give joy to the housewife.

Summer Suits Must Look Cool

Suits for summer wear, as a first requirement for good style, must be cool. Many of them accomplish this by being made of light, airy, crisp fabrics, such as linen, cotton, or rayon. They are made of loosely woven, lightweight silk or fiber fabrics that are the latest fashions of the best tailors. Besides these there are those unflattering dresses and molars with advantages of their own to recommend them, and then is still "in the running." But in the race for preference with women of fashion these long-sleeved fabrics have been outdistanced by the newer weaves.

In the two suits shown in the picture the one at the left is typical of the style that looks for suits made of light jersey, silk and silk fiber suitings. Straight hanging coats and ultra low narrow front coats made of the usual wool clothes are the rule for these suits. The suit on the right is a model followed in nearly all of them. It has a wide, flat collar, a vest for midsummer, made of organza and other airy, cotton, often in combination with the suit and it is a slouch with a soft, wavy, rather than a flat, and a lattice design embroidered in gray and silver. There is a narrow necktie and the front of the vest, the ends finished with small flower-like ornaments made of silver ribbon.

The suit at the right is a conventional tailored model of white cloth with half-line stripes which may be in brown, blue, green or black. The vest, while not a straight-line model, is cut on easy but trim lines. This, with the lace-trimmed organza overcoat, gives the suit a refreshing, crisp style, better suited to hot days. With a properly constructed hat and white footwear, summer suit has become merely a state of mind. In a costume that looks so coolly, coolly, cool, its wearer will be a joy to be held on the warmest day.

Julius Bottorby

Marked Use of Ribbon.

Heavy trimmings, especially on walking hats, is one of the season's developments. One idea of decoration that has taken hold strongly of the mind is the use of ribbon in twister arrangements. Loops of this material stand out from the base of the crown, one flat on the left and the other a few inches above it. This trimming is placed either at the side or front. In some cases, loops of ribbon are attached to the top of the crown, extending toward the front of the hat. An alpine hat of tawny ribbons is shown, on the covers of small white, the poverty of this arrangement being principally in the width of the material used.

Quitting to Used.

Quitting appears occasionally in tulle dresses.

One More Effort.

"In the rainbow colors blend into one another so that you cannot tell just where one leaves off and the next begins. Failure is admitted in the next thing to success, and discouragement slides by imperceptible degrees into the realm of victory. Keep trying. One more effort may be all that is necessary to bring you across the line which separates triumph from defeat."—City's Companion.

HOUSEKEEPER WHO FOLLOWS DIRECTIONS CAN MAKE CONVENIENT FIRELESS COOKER

Inexpensive Material and a Little Work Plus Common Sense Will Produce This Fireless Cooker.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. If you use a fireless cooker, you will be able to serve hot food. Many foods cooked at a low temperature for a long time have a much better flavor and are more digestible than those cooked at a high temperature.

How to Make the Cooker. The cooker is made of a wooden box, 12 inches long, 12 inches wide and 12 inches high. The box is lined with a layer of asbestos paper. The top of the box is covered with a layer of asbestos paper and a layer of tin.

Materials You Will Need. These materials plus a few hours' work plus ordinary common sense will produce the fireless cooker you want and need in your kitchen.

Utility-shirt wooden box or food can, 12x12x12 inches. Layer of asbestos paper, 12x12x12 inches. Tin sheet, 12x12x12 inches. Asbestos paper, 12x12x12 inches. Round plow of tin, 12x12x12 inches. Wire mesh, 12x12x12 inches. Round plow of tin, 12x12x12 inches. Wire mesh, 12x12x12 inches. Round plow of tin, 12x12x12 inches. Wire mesh, 12x12x12 inches.

FIRELESS COOKER AS ICE BOX IN SUMMER

Construction on Same Principle as Refrigerator.

When Used to Keep Food Cool It Must Be Chilled to Desired Temperature in a Cooler to Make Many Cold Drinks.

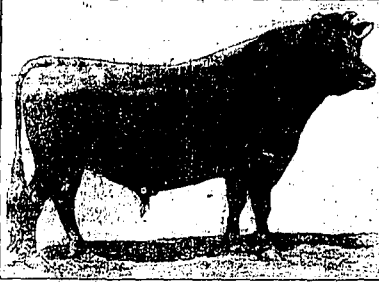

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The fireless cooker can be used in a kitchen and will keep food cool for several days. It is a convenient and economical way to keep food cool in the summer months.

When the cooker is used to keep food cool it must be chilled to the desired temperature before it is put in the cooker. This can be done by placing the food in a cooler and allowing it to reach the desired temperature.

Single dishes for making a fireless cooker may be made by cutting a hole in the top of the box and placing a layer of tin over the hole. This will allow the food to be placed in the cooker and the lid to be closed.

If the Best Bull Were Used in Ordinary Dairy Herds, the Income From Dairy Products Could Be Vastly Increased.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Success in the operation of a co-operative bull association depends a great deal on the care that is used in its organization. To begin with, those interested in forming such an association should first determine the need for such an organization in their community.

Write your secretary of state, including a copy of the constitution and by-laws of the association, and ask for blanks and all necessary information for incorporating a bull association in your state.

The organization should be organized into local districts where the bulk of the association may be found. This will allow for more efficient management and control of the association's affairs.

Many people hesitate to join a co-operative organization because they do not understand the principles of co-operation. It is important to educate the public about the benefits of co-operation and to show them how it can be applied in their own communities.

The United States Department of Agriculture has published a booklet on the organization of co-operative bull associations. This booklet provides detailed information on the steps that should be taken to form such an organization.

After the preliminary steps have been taken, the next step should be to hold a meeting of the association. This meeting should be held in a public place and should be attended by all interested parties.

It is important to select a permanent secretary for the association. This person should be someone who is well-known in the community and who is capable of handling the association's affairs.

The first order of business in the selection of a temporary chairman and secretary is to hold a meeting with a permanent secretary in effect. The chairman will preside and see that there is a full and free explanation and discussion of the aims of the organization. It is important that all who are present understand the aims of the organization. This is fundamental in a co-

MORE RYE BEING PRODUCED

Greatest Increase Seen in 1917 and 1918—Farmers Dealing More Familiar With Crop.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. More acres are now planted in rye than ever before in this country in any previous year in the history of the United States.

From 1882 to 1909 the production of rye in the United States was practically stationary. From 1909 to 1918 the production was almost tripled, the greatest increase coming in 1917 and 1918.

Five years ago there was approximately 1 acre of rye for each 10 acres of wheat in the United States. In 1918 there was approximately 1 acre of rye for each 10 acres of wheat.

The United States Department of Agriculture thinks it probable that rye will have a permanently larger share in American agriculture, and that from an agricultural point of view there should be a further considerable increase in production.

GENERAL FARM NOTES

Hold to the raw, safe and hen. Co-operation helps in farming in every way.

Few are not adapted to growing in very small numbers, as they require much space.

Chickens, milk, saucers and pumpkins need well permeable after eight years it will care for.

Read the Advertisements

You read your newspaper to get the latest news. To get all the news you should read the advertising columns as thoroughly as you do items of local, national or world-wide interest.

For every advertisement is a news item. Each advertisement tells a story of its own—a story of economical interest to you and your family.

Advertisements tell you what, where and when you can buy to best advantage. Advertisements keep you posted on the latest improvements in every article of human use, whether food, clothing, articles of household utility, necessities and luxuries.

Advertisements have established standards of quality for nearly everything. You insist on that quality when you buy—perhaps unconscious of the fact that advertising has set that standard of quality in your mind.

Your local merchants deserve your support and patronage.
