TENTATIVE AWARDS GO TO REED AND JOHNSON

BOISE, Aug. 7.—Rebuilding of the soldiers' home will be started at once if the state board of examiners tent on the suggestion of the government that the difference between the contractors' bids and the appropriation be made up by issuing debt securities. The difference between the contractors' bids and the appropriation was $27,017 and $22,419 more than the appropriation made by the legislature.

PARIS PRICES CUT IN MIDDLE

PARIS, Aug. 6.—The first official campaign to fight the high cost of living in Paris has resulted in price cuts varying from 10 to 20 per cent. It was claimed today by leaders of the movement. The movement is spreading, and the syndicates in provincial towns are taking measures to limit their own price increases. The "parol committee" in Paris are trying to force the bakeries to post a list of prices, but the work has been carried out in orderly fashion without any disturbances. The committee met today to discuss the price of such commodities as a given section and then "peacefully persuade" shopkeepers who have been selling at higher prices to cut their figures. The trade unions are taking a leading part in the campaign.

The trade of the United States with Latin America the last fiscal year aggregated $1,750,000,000, against $750,000,000 the year preceding the war—a gain of about 130 per cent.

For the four years of the war our foreign trade reached over $23,000,000,000, as against $1,000,000,000 in the immediately preceding four years. Our imports jumped from $10,500,000,000 to $18,500,000,000, and our exports from $9,000,000,000 to $10,675,000,000.

Germany's gross debt, peace and war, is $43,000,000,000, or 45 per cent of her wealth; England's $24,000,000,000, or 100, or 55 per cent of her wealth; Italy's $8,000,000,000, or 40 per cent of her wealth; the United States, $10,000,000,000, or 40 per cent of her wealth. Even with the Fourth Liberty Loan ($4,000,000,000) added, our percentage would be only 5 per cent. To match what Australia and Canada have done this country should raise $20,000,000,000.

Music in Twin Falls

.....Past, Present and Future.....

Account to the suggestion of The Twin Falls reporter, the interviewer sought out the editor to ask him what he thought about music in Twin Falls. "Mr. Hecker," said the interviewer, "you want to give me an interview on the subject of music in Twin Falls, do you not?" "Yes," Hecker replied. "What do you want me to say?" "I want you to say something about the state of music here, present and future, as it affects Twin Falls."

Mr. Hecker professed that he knew nothing about the past of Twin Falls except what he had read in the newspapers and magazines. He did not know very much of the past of music here. "Of the present situation with regard to music, I am not sure," he said, "but I think you are right in having a good band, a light song band and a folk band. You can get one of 'Stille's' almost any day to satisfy him. 'Stille' and 'Billie Mae Mack' are having a very much like 'The Olden Ball' at the time of the Chicago world's fair."

"I want to say," Hecker continued, "that I am a young man in a coat still up to his shoulder blades in the game of the funny things a girl will do."

"Sometimes a man would crack his head and loose, with a good must be it, but not in hearing of the draft in forwarding boards—J. H. Muckley in 1916 Parader."

Triumphs From the Fashion Show

To attend one of the fashion shows, staged by the Fashion Art League of America is to come away, convinced that Americans might sign up a collection of indifference in the matter of fashion, without sacrificing anything of beauty or style. They do not choose to be like and they do not fall very cheaply the least of other lands, but look at all quarters of the world for inspirations. The great American name are signed to them, and the gown at the left is one of the triumphs of the last four seasons.

The "Dahlia" gown has as a foundation a green and gold metal cloth that shimmers through a veiling of gray silk. The soft flounces of tulle are placed above the bottom of the skirt and a tulle of tulle is edged with a fall of it. The bodice shows down from above the bust line at the front into a wide cloth at the neck. Here it goes for such continuance to the back as to be a part of the dress, except from an American designer. An overbodice of the tulle covers the shoulders and forms skirt above the waist.

effect of a short, square train is made of wide green and gold ribbon, brocaded with a butterfly pattern that is set into the grille at each side and joins at the middle with two gold roses. These roses are small and full blown, made of a gauze and appear mysteriously on the "jane" where it is joined at the back. They strike the high note that finishes off a gorgeous and beautiful gown.

"Gorgeous" does not fit a description of the gown shown on the right, but "brilliant" belongs to it. It was made of black satin, black tulle and zig-zag a famous designer, with some brush-wool as to be an irreducible picture gallery of lovely apparel for womanhood. The skirt is adapted to fall in about the ankles, revealing them and the silk-and-satin-clad feet. The black tulle overbodice has long and full-trimmed sleeves, a wide fringe of brilliant set embroidery and strands of jet beads over the shoulders. A long, gorgeous strand of them falls from the front of the bodice.

few violin students ever become virtuosos, and most of them get a lot of grating which fits into life and gives them an appreciation of music and the finer things.

"But learning to play is a good deal like raising a garden. Both require supervision. A garden left to itself will grow strong in weeds, and a violin student without competent instruction will get as many bad habits as a garden does. And it is about as hard to get rid of one as the other. But they must be dug out to permit growth of what is desirable. Given sufficient Twin Falls sun care could develop a pretty good orchestra."

"The you think an orchestra in Twin Falls would pay?" the interviewer asked.

"Well, not in dollars and cents, but it would pay mighty handsome dividends in pleasure and satisfaction, both to the players and to the public."

Where is Teaching?

This is the latest break-neck problem. Although the town has long prominently in European history at various times for over a century, Lloyd George had to confess when it was mentioned at the peace conference that he did not know exactly where was situated.

Nor was he able in his lack of knowledge. It is doubtful if one person in fifty would be able to give you any information about the town.

And yet it was one of the scene of a great peace conference—that of 1770, when Vergennes, the foreign minister of France, arranged the peace of Teatras, thereby avoiding a great European war, and also, in all probability, securing the independence of the United States.

LACK MICE FOR STUDY OF CANCER

Doctor Wood of Columbia Reports Shortage Because Armies Needed Them.

HELD UP RESEARCH WORK

War's Absorption of Scientists Who Entered Service Also Retarded Investigations in Diseases—Death Rate Jumps.

New York, July 26.—Cancer during the war was inhibited, not only by taking physicians from research work but because of the shortage of mice, which were used in large quantities with the animal carriers of the organism of gas and the diagnosis of certain types of cancer. As a result of the report of the Francis Carter Wood, director of the George Crocker Special research fund of Columbia university, thousands of mice which had been raised for research work were turned over to the government. The mice became very valuable for more sensitive to gases than human beings, so that they were kept in exposed areas and observed closely, because their behavior would indicate the extent of gas long before it could be detected by human beings. It was also ascertained that mice had been sent out on board every submarine, for use as a source of information.

Mice React to Gas.

One of the most common troubles on submarines has been from cholera.

due to gas batteries. The latest report to the gas long before it is dangerous or even perceptible, to the crew, thus enabling them to find the difficulty and repair it before the gas becomes so fatal as to be dangerous. In the French army hundreds of entrenchments were built up for the detection of gas. In addition to supplying thousands of mice to the government, the George Crocker special research fund related much money to supply many medical schools and research laboratories throughout the country.

The other use of mice in the war was in disinfecting the various types of pneumonia prevalent at different times. Different types of disease are treated differently, but it is often found impossible to discern the difference between the various symptoms in men. When mice were introduced with the germs, the disease was quickly identified.

Doctor Wood reported that various changes in cancer statistics resulted during the war, especially in England, where large classes of the population had been sent to the war but that a careful analysis of the figures shows that the changes were mainly due to distribution of classes of population due to any remarkable increase or decrease in the disease itself.

Death Rate Jumps.

An cancer is not prevalent in proportion to the military and the prevention of deaths from this cause annually jumps, though the proportion of new cancer cases is not so high in this country, likewise, the records were found to show that cancer was most prevalent in Vermont and least in Utah and Montana, but this was explained as being due to the fact that a large percentage of the youth of Vermont had migrated and that a larger portion of the population in the western states was composed of newcomers, generally young men and women.

Among countries, cancer mortality was greater in Switzerland, and the highest mortality was in the high civilization of Italy. Doctor Wood suggests this to be due, not to any connection between cancer and a high state of civilization, but to the fact that cancer is less often diagnosed and reported as the cause of death in countries like Italy.

HIT FOOD PROFITTEERS

Send Prices Up When Control Is Released.

British Parliament Asks Controller for Explanation of Existing Conditions.

London.—Food profiteering is causing some anxious moments among the housewives of England, and thus far prevents the abandonment of the food control office.

Relaxation of control has been feared by food profiteers in many classes of foodstuffs, and by practical housewives of England from the market. The American housewife, for instance, recently deplored by the average Britisher because it would get a poor grade as she could get at home in previous times—has been wiped out of the market.

It is an exaggeration to say that foodstuffs have been scarce in England these last two weeks or more. There has been a rise in value since the war began, but the market takes up the search in the downtown districts, where, perhaps, he has in earlier days found a shop or two which would accommodate him in emergencies.

Recently G. H. Roberts, the food controller, announced consumption of control of bacon and tins or three other food products and the situation has become of such urgency that he has had to face questioning in parliament.

He spoke in a reassuring tone, saying he saw no reason why there should be shortage of food during the coming winter, as there was prospect for adequate shipping facilities.

Doubtless, he added, certain shortages might be feared. It is his specialty at present of certain staple items in the city's purchase of the average household which has permitted gradual creeping upward in the price list.

Marine Rookies Shocked by Customs of Cubans.

Guantanamo, Cuba.—Some newly arrived marines at this place are getting their first insight into Cuban customs.

It is not uncommon to see school children in the towns playing here playing in the streets.

Another novel sight is the custom of growing. Cubans have to pay taxes on the graves of their relatives, and when the taxpayer becomes delinquent the hole or holes are estimated and thrown in a fountain head in one corner of the burying ground.

The marines are rapidly acquiring the notion that Cubans are fresh air heads.

LIVING MONUMENT TO DEAD

Town to Care for One French Orphan for Each of Its Dead Soldiers.

Chicago.—Twenty-one little French war orphans constitute a living monument which Clarinda, Ill., has planned for its soldier dead. A fund has been contributed by the citizens to care for one little war orphan for each Clarinda has men killed in France, that their names may be kept alive, to be loved and honored on both sides of the water. The family of each dead hero will receive letters regularly from one small protégé who during its whole lifetime will hold the name of their hero in reverence.

The Clarinda citizens have paid $3,000—10 cents a day—for each child's support for a year through the French Children of France, an American organization with headquarters at 410 South Michigan avenue, Chicago.

cooperating with a similar one in France, of which Marshall Jeffers is the head. The organization will see that the adoption of each child is made in the name of and as a memorial to a dead soldier of Clarinda. The town plans to repeat this sum annually for each child until it is capable of caring for itself.

It has been demonstrated that to create a day, to supplement the pension of the same amount which the French government, straining its resources granted its war orphans at the time of the early disasters, will suffice to keep soul and body together in a little village of the war and enable it to remain with its mother as other living relatives instead of being placed in an institution. From the prayers of such a child the name of the brave American soldier who died for France and the world will never be absent.

Milton Virden Colorado Farmer tells why he bought a Santa Cruz Valley Farm

May 21, 1919.

Gentlemen:

I have farmed for the past year in Santa Cruz Valley, near Chandler. I formerly lived in Missouri and owned 100 acres, being there twenty two years. I came to Arizona because I was tired of dirt, snow and a short growing season. Santa Cruz Valley has many advantages but I can hardly express the ones I value here in the Santa Cruz Valley.

We are not only in the heart of the Southern Pacific and our freight rates are much lower than on a branch line. When the marketing situation here is the best I ever heard of. This means that I can supply twenty per cent of the food demands. This puts the local farmer in a position to make excellent profit on everything he can produce. I am proud of the excellent home place I have found here.

My main-line will be here soon from Colorado to put the land in shape. (By an amount, to have some of the best orchards, citrus here and see the exceptional values. I feel sure that if you see the conditions here they would do as I have done.

As long as a man has only one home, he will live, he must as well live where he can work his farm the year round, make a fine as much money, and enjoy warm, sunny, comfortable weather from January to December. Yours truly,

MILTON VIRDEN

$150 PER ACRE "DOUBLE-CROP LAND" WITH WATER

800 an acre cash, or approved securities—balance five equal annual payments beginning two years from date of sale. Interest at 6%.

Would an income of $1,500 from 100 acres suit you? This is possible in Santa Cruz Valley and here is the way:—

First crop: Corn. Each acre yields 200 bushels, pastured 2 to 3 months in fall, stock raised, sold in May. Yield 2 to 3 tons per acre—annual total $1,200.

Second crop: Alfalfa. Each acre yields 100 tons per month. Minimum total 1 to 2 tons per acre. Annual total $1,500.

Second year: Alfalfa. Each acre yields 100 tons per month. Annual total $1,500.

Third year: Alfalfa. Each acre yields 100 tons per month. Annual total $1,500.

Fourth year: Alfalfa. Each acre yields 100 tons per month. Annual total $1,500.

Yearly income from 100 acres of land which cost $15,000 an acre $18,150.

A much better income can be made by keeping my farm range cattle and getting paid to market on your cattle.

Just think of the $15,000 income, independent of any land which cost only $1500. You can see why the news of this farm is so interesting in becoming immediately independent in double-crop times—get our big free illustrated booklet today.

Special recipes are not necessary for using Mazola. Use any of your own—with less Mazola.

It is equal to butter, better and more wholesome than margarine or compounds and you use 1/4 to 1/3 less Mazola for shortening, as in pie crusts, biscuits, etc.

Use Mazola over and over again—it carries no flavors or odors. Its economy is remarkable.
