ONE EXPEDITION ONLY IN MEXICO

Troops Sent in Pursuit of Outlaw Bandits Are Ordered Back to the States

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 23.—Falling to fill the trail of cattle thieves who raided American ranches near Fort Hancock, two troops of the Seventh United States Cavalry sent into Mexico today were ordered back by Brig. Gen. H. B. Egan. The troops, which were sent to the border to hunt for American ferals, arrived back in their camp, near Fabens, this evening.

The expedition south of Candalaria, searching since Tuesday for members of the Bonario kidnaping gang, was the only American force in Mexico today.

Eight of the gang were reported to have been captured by Caranistas at Coyame, Chihuahua. The captured bandits, which have crossed the border in pursuit of cattle thieves were recalled after reporting progress in picking up the bandits' trail. The captured bandits, which had too much of a start. The Americans forced the Rio Grande in opening the chase at dawn Saturday, many hours behind the bandits.

Robbers of Gambling House Are Surprised

LEAGUE FIGHT GOES TO FLOOR

Amendments to Treaty by Committee Will Require Ratification by All Powers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Administration leaders and league of nations supporters tonight viewed the Shantung amendment adopted by the foreign relations committee as definitely opening for a fight on the floor of the Senate.

On the basis of information from Paris it was felt a party to the treaty would not be necessary, and the amendment should be adopted by the Senate as a whole.

In addition to Japan's approval to any amendment that of all the other powers would also be necessary, and in view of the present position taken by England and France toward the secret treaty with Japan regarding Shantung, the following raises the question of whether they would accept the amendment.

Prize Looks Forward to Visit to America

QUEBEC, Aug. 23.—The Prince of Wales is looking forward very much to his visit to the United States, he was told today, when he was here tonight, when he will be accompanied by his wife and two children.

ABOLISH ARMY SERFDOM

Says Brigadier General Samuel T. Ansell, formerly judge advocate general of the army, and the man who exposed the injustice of the American court-martial system:

"We will never fight another war successfully unless congress radically changes the methods of organization and discipline in the army; and this applies particularly to the courts-martial."

The American public has learned a good deal in the last few months about the practical working of the present system. A sincere effort seems to have been made by the army authorities, since the armistice was signed, to mitigate the severity of the sentences imposed during the war. It has been impossible, however, to remedy all the injustices under the present mode of procedure. Thousands of the undesired sentences were already served, in whole or part, before the reviewing court got around to them. Many of the wrongs cannot be righted under the present law. And it is a significant commentary on the system that General Ansell was not able to accomplish his reform work within the organization, but had to leave the army to do it.

"The whole system," he says, "is out of tune with our democratic government. Our military code was taken bodily from that of the British back in 1774; and the British in turn took theirs from old times when the soldier was but a serf."

"The British have revised that old code until there is little left of it. But we, in free America, have kept it substantially as in the days of the eighteenth century. As a result, too many soldiers are tried who ought not to be tried at all. Too many are tried on charges that as a matter of fact do not specify any offense known to the articles of war. Too many are tried on flimsy evidence. Too many are tried by officers not properly qualified to pass judgment, because they do not know anything about the law. Too many have sentences imposed on them absurdly out of proportion to their offenses."

The public agrees with General Ansell that "our soldiers are not serfs, but citizens," and that congress ought to make it impossible hereafter to repeat the wrongs under which supposedly free Americans have suffered in this war of freedom, as members of an army supposedly the freest on earth.

THE MIRACULOUS TROLLEY SYSTEM

With street car fares rising everywhere, companies complaining that they are losing money and patrons kicking against higher fares, there is increasing interest in the Cleveland plan.

It is certainly a surprising phenomenon to find that in that city of nearly 1,000,000 people and long trolley hauls, the people are riding for less than five cents, with no prospect of an increase. The present rate of fare is 11 tickets for 50 cents, with an extra cent for transfer. It does not seem to be wrecking the company, either. The stock, which is quoted at 102, pays a dividend of 6 per cent, which may soon be raised to 7 per cent. Wages have been increased 25 per cent lately, and the employes are satisfied.

How has this miracle been accomplished? First, the water was squeezed out of the stock some time ago. The company was re-financed on a basis of actual value, with private ownership and public regulation. The company kept the actual management of its property and employees, but the city purchased interest and dividends and assumed considerable authority over service, finances and general policies. This authority is exerted chiefly through the agency of a street railway commissioner. The fare moves up or down automatically to provide the money required for fixed charges and operating expenses. So far, it has ranged from three to five cents, with some times, as at present, a charge of one cent for transfer.

The plan is being studied with much interest by the Federal Electric Railways commission at Washington, and may be made the groundwork of recommendations made by that body for the straightening out of trolley troubles in other cities.

WHEN ONE COW EQUALS FIVE

It may sound like an exaggeration to say that one good cow is worth more than five poor ones. The assertion is proved, though, by an incident related in a U. S. Department of Agriculture bulletin.

A New Jersey farmer had five cows, just ordinary cows, which were very good milkers, but with which he was pretty well satisfied. He got as much milk from them as his neighbors got from their cows.

His son, however, was not satisfied. He bought a high-grade cow, and paid $150 for it—a price which his father regarded as extravagant.

When those six cows came fresh in the spring, the one high-grade cow produced more milk than the other five together, and kept it a longer.

There was five times the product for one-fifth of the labor and feed.

Does good stock pay? Anybody in that neighborhood will agree that it does. The farmers there are selling off their old stock

Work Should Not Be Undertaken Solely in Order to Provide the Work

By WILLIAM B. WILSON, Secretary of Labor

We are short in our normal supply of labor somewhere between three million and five million workers; so if we could engage in our preparatory activities on a post-war basis immediately there would be a shortage of the supply of labor. But we are not in a position to do that.

How are we going to provide employment; how are we going to create a reservoir that will take up the surplus labor during the period of demobilization and keep it busily employed? And there is great necessity for our people being busily employed during that period, which will be one of the most critical in the history of our nation.

Now during the past two or three years our public improvements have lagged. Our federal government has not engaged in the usual public improvements; neither have the state governments nor the municipalities. There were two reasons for that: the shortage of workmen and the inability to properly finance, because of the control that the federal government had to have over finances in order to make sure that its own financial situation would be secure. Both of those conditions have changed, and there is now a surplus of labor, and the federal government has released control of the finances so that credits are now available.

To me the one great method of forming a reservoir for buffer employment is to have the federal government engage in its normal improvement activities, and to have every state and municipal government do likewise.

I would not ask that work be undertaken solely for the purpose of providing work. To place men at work on any job, where the results from it are not needed, is just so much waste of time and energy and man power. But there is a tremendous amount of work, a tremendous amount of improvement that is needed; and so that the minds of our workers will not be fertile fields for the propagation of false philosophy it is our duty to see to it that these activities are now engaged in to the fullest extent.

CUBAN ELECTION REFORMS

The Cuban election laws have been overhauled and completely rewritten, and an American has done it.

Major General Crozier, who was youngest marshal general of the United States army during the war, and who handled the draft, was invited to the island for this purpose by the Cuban government. He spent four months there, and seems to have done a thorough job.

He took the election machinery out of the hands of the political parties, as some of our states have done, and put it in charge of the judiciary, giving the party organizations representation but no votes. He established a strict corrupt practices act and made it possible for any aggrieved person to get a square deal in an election dispute. He brought all political organizations under statutory regulation, arranged for a census of voters and originated a plan whereby every voter will carry an identification card entitling him to vote without registration.

Having returned to this country, General Crozier might justly devote his attention to extending the reforms he has inaugurated in Cuba. There is hardly one of them that might not be adopted to advantage by some of our states. That identification device would probably make a hit with the average American voter, wearied of much registering, and might result in a better turnout on election day.

PROFITTEERING IN DRUG SUPPLIES

A few weeks ago the editor of The Times commented on the fact that local druggists were charging 65 cents for a well-known tooth paste whereas the same goods were advertised by a Salt Lake firm for less, and the manufacturer's price was only 40 cents.

The article was repeated. In order to do the local merchants justice, it is only fair to set forth the fact that the Boise Golden Rule store advertised the same article a few days ago in the Evening Capital News for 45 cents. Now the editor lives in Twin Falls, and believes in Twin Falls, so he did not send away for his favorite tooth paste to take the taste of the water out of his mouth, but went to another drug store to get another package of it.

So apology is offered to the druggists who get only 65 cents for the goods. They are mere pilfers.

A new French wireless station will send a message 12,500 miles, which is half way around the earth. That distance is covered in a small fraction of a second. Pretty soon the wireless senders will be so powerful that messages will circle the earth, meeting themselves coming back before they are fairly started.

If that actors' strike lasts long, it may be a landmark blow to the "legitimate" theater business. Theater-going is only a habit, and with the movie houses all open, the public may get out of the habit of patronizing the others.

Why not government regulation of tips, too? In many restaurants a patron has to tip a waiter nearly as much as the food bill amounts to, if he wants to get anything to eat.

If the railroad men start a new political party, based on their federal ownership program, it will at least bring a satisfactory show-down on that proposition.

You've seen bottles of milk in Christen airplanes. And there's a certain fitness in that, for wasn't it a cow that jumped over the moon?

Save the ponds. No one trying to spend them, anyway, because you can't buy anything with them any more.

Chicago delicately calls its landlord profiteers "rent hogs." Wonder what it calls its bankers.

Food waste has just as much to do with high prices as food extortion.

ARKANSAS THOMAS 'SCATS

He proposed—and she called "his bluff."

If opportunity did knock, most people would be out to a car.

Never mind who won the war. We all know who lost it, and that's enough.

USE SPONGE ON WET TIRES

Wiping Them Off and Then Carefully Drying Them Will Prevent Annoying Rim Rust.

After driving in wet weather if the car owner is careful to sponge off the tires when he returns to the garage and then wipe them dry, especially along the grooves, he will do much to prevent the formation of rust. This advice is particularly applicable during the spring months of frequent and copious rains.

Grain Determination.

"I want a set of self-cakes," said the worried-looking man. "Certainly, sir," answered the dealer in sporting goods. "By the way, they've just bought a set of clubs from you yesterday."

"So I do. You determined to learn how to play that infernal game of break over your golf stick in town?"—Hingham Age-Herald.

The Co-Ed Helped.

Gravely and unfortunately the freshmen of the Mountain States School of Mines carried 5,000 gallons of water outside the other day to keep their annual custom of painting a white "X" on the school's buildings. This is a landmark of collegiate industry raised every spring under the supervision of the seniors. The letter is just one square, made of closely packed rocks. The freshmen do the hauling, the sophomores and juniors apply the lime, and the seniors arrange for the trucks. This year the solitary co-ed at the school of mines helped voluntarily.

No Profiteers.

"These new cars have no swivel front seats to be quite wealthy." "They are product too." "That's that?" "They had one before only a few days when they couldn't get the word passed around that they unswayed every dollar of the firm's fortune before the war started."—Hingham Age-Herald.

WAGES

Labor is the application of the force of mind or of mind. Product, it is the result of the application of labor (material excepted).

Wages is the result of the product labor produces. Wages and product are synonymous. The product of labor is its wages. The wages of labor are its wages. The wages of labor have value. Value is that resulting from human desires and needs. Value and price do not mean the same thing. The most valuable things have no price, as air, water, sunshine, land, labor, etc. The result of the product is placed together with quantity and quality. A man dying of thirst in a desert would give any price for a drink of water; if he obtained his water for any price for air or sunshine, or the labor that would extricate him from the water, it is estimated that he would give a price of land.

As stated above, wages and product are synonymous. Therefore, the price of the product is the price of the labor in the styled wages. But the question of paying money for the labor in producing a product for the purpose of profit taking in the transaction, has come to give wages and product two different meanings.

Wages is defined as something offered to produce. It is said wages is an agreed amount of money the laborer is willing to take per hour or day or piece for producing a product. That the price of the product has nothing to do with it and cannot be taken into consideration by the laborer, because its price may be high or low or no price at all when it reaches the market and no labor is forced to, and is willing to take the agreed price of wages and be concerned only of the price of the product, his true wages.

Money is an order for a certain quantity and quality of gold, to the exclusion of all other products, and is used to facilitate exchange, and the usual scheme of profiteering.

Gold is a product of labor price fixed.

American Styles in Summer

In certain lines of women's apparel America has become independent of other countries in the production of styles and materials. In some things we are contented to excel, as in the designing and making of tailored suits and shoes. We have been driven to depend upon ourselves in producing the very best of the ready-to-wear worn by women whose demands are peculiarly American.

The proportion of undergarments made of washable silks grows larger, and more de-chine gaiters on the feet, and underpins every day. There are several very good reasons for this, but the main one is the labor love of luxurious clothes, especially in the matter of undergarments, which is rooted in the eternal feminine nature.

Hand stitching is the hallmark of elegance in undergarments, so that women who know how to sew for themselves have a great advantage over those who do not. But there is not much hand sewing or hand embroidery on manufactured underwear, which, nevertheless, continues to be very durable. The manufacturer who turned out the two envelope chemises shown here will not divide a cent between them and their hand-made counterparts. They are just as effective and just as durable. It is in little details of finish that the hand-made garment gets beyond the limitations of machinery and cannot be exactly copied. The chemise at the left is of white silk with a crossbar of green. There is a yoke of plain silk, also a border about the bottom and bands over the shoulders made of L. Bows of narrow ribbon with their hanging ends finished with soft silk folds under fascinating and original finishing touches.

The lovely garment at the right is made of pale blue satin with heavy silk embroidery and real fillet lace to catch it. The empire waistline makes it graceful. This is patterned, in with satin ribbon tied in a bow with long loops and ends. The same model can be made less fanciful or less elegant when made of the cotton fabrics.

The Ideal Garment for Motoring is This Coat of Soft Tan Leather

If you do much motoring you will surely want one of these striking and serviceable coats. Never has anything been found that is as popular as these wind-proof coats of fine soft leather.

Are just the thing for this windy country for they keep out the biting winds and the dust and cold.

Made similar to the style illustrated; full and roomy, making it a comfortable coat for travel. Wide collar protects the neck and excludes the cold.

The prices for this style of garment are very reasonable when quality is considered. Prices range from $50.00 to $75.00.

New Fall Suits and Cloaks are arriving daily. For those who want the newest first this large department is showing many new models. A visit is urged to all women to come in and see the new garments.

TWO DIVORCE SUITS FILED

Three Cases of Water Larceny in Probate Court Against Farmers—Burt Buhl—Bull Against School District Is Continued.

Two divorce suits were filed yesterday in district court. Olga Hane suing John Hane on grounds of cruelty and Lillian G. Hiest seeking freedom from Charles F. Hiest, charging him with desertion. Mr. and Mrs. Hane were married November 24, 1914 in this city. The Hiests were married at Provo, Utah, August 17, 1901, and have a 12-year-old daughter, whose custody is sought by the mother.

Desmorer has been filed by Sula Din to the suit of John Altkanick, which seeks recovery on a note.

Probate Court Three cases of alleged water larceny were filed in probate court yesterday against W. A. Leitch, Jake Van Ostrom and Alfred Mueller, all farmers living near Ith.

The suit of John Williamson to collect pay from the Marus school district for driving a school wagon has been continued.

LEGION DANCE BUILDS UP POST

Affair at Lavaging Pavilion Is an All Around Success

With a record crowd in attendance the American Legion dance at the Lavaging pavilion Friday evening was not only a financial and social triumph but it materially increased the membership of Twin Falls Post. Each arriving service man who was not already listed on the membership rolls was collected and in most cases joined the post.

WILL AUCTION AT BIG SHEEP SALE

Col. Walters of This City Picked for Big National Event

Col. E. O. Walters, well known local auctioneer who has just completed an engagement at the Big Floor sale here today for Salt Lake City to serve as one of the auctioneers at the conclusion sale of the National Wool Growers' association. This is one of the big western sheep sales, all prominent about growers of the country sending consignments of imported stock, in which every breed will be represented. The sale will take place Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The selection of Col. Walters as one of the auctioneers is excellent testimony of his ability.

Alsike Crops Are Setting Records

S. H. Proctor, a farmer rearing flour mill surplus of winter wheat, has produced a yield of alsike that sets a new record for that crop. From 17 1/2 acres of ground Mr. Proctor has harvested 271 bushels of alsike, which he has marketed for the post-graduate of $240 for his entire crop.

The acreage in acres of approximately 15 bushels and 10 pounds to the acre, the proceeds averaging $24 per acre. An exceptionally superior grade of seed was produced and was sold to the seed company "at the bush."

Seed from the Proctor field will average one ton to the acre, bringing returns of about $9 per ton or a total of $162. This makes the total proceeds for the field, $2656.

PROGRESS OF AGRICULTURAL CLASSES SHOWN IN CIRCULAR

Establishing "linkage" between the various districts under his charge, George E. Brennan, director of the agricultural classes included in the Home Project during the summer months has issued a new letter to each worker from his headquarters at Twin Falls high school. In this way each individual worker is informed of what is going on around him and the various communities are kept in touch with each other's progress. The letter follows:

Midsommer News Letter This letter is being sent to each Home Project worker to give you an idea of what we are all doing. You are scattered all the way from Ith to Eden and Oakley and it keeps the word on the go a large part of the time to make the rounds. Material for school work is being gathered, more and better equipment has been ordered, and the class room is being rearranged in order to make our class work more pleasant and successful for the coming year. This country has proven to be too good for you to leave and I shall be on the job again this fall.

Party-two boys organized their intentions in the Home Project work here. Several found out later that they would be impossible for them to carry out their plans. Only about six schools in the state are doing this Smith-Lewis Project work. It is a new feature in agricultural education. The Bull high school work closed last year. The milk line only has twenty-eight, other schools of the state are going to start this work in the fall. What the Boys Are Doing Austin Ayotte is keeping milk, butter fat, and feed records on six cows. The milk is sold to the market. Leland Averitt is growing an acre of Red Globe onions from seed. The field is looking very well but he finds the grass and weeds to be a problem in an onion field.

Alford Bailey is keeping good accounts of the five acres of silage as his project. He lives six miles northeast of Harlow on the Salmon trail. Arthur and Paul Wilson are interested in the project. They are farming the cost and the net profits in growing a basket or one hundred pounds of wheat.

Frank Reed is growing on acres of contract beans. The crop was up and looking well on June 29.

Mareen Headley, who lives five miles southeast of Twin Falls, has a dairy half of track and garden crops. The Headley family came to this tract from the West last fall and are farming their first season under irrigation.

Chifford has a bean project. The beans in about one and one-half acres on June 23, his beans were up and looking very growthy.

James Vriel, who lives on the valley, has undertaken an alfalfa project. The crops on their farm looked fine early in June. Vernon Day has a one-acre garden project. He has a lot of fruit. His garden was looking well two weeks ago.

ANNOUNCEMENT

NOT MOVING The confused appearance of our store during the last two months was due to the fact that we were flooded out of business early in June thru the breaking of the city water main, and not, as many supposed, because we were getting ready to move.

READY FOR BUSINESS We now have our store again ready for business with a more complete line of exclusive ready-to-wear tailored and pattern hats than has ever been shown in the city.

EXCLUSIVE READY-TO-WEAR. Beginning with this season our line of millinery will be confined exclusively to ready-to-wear tailored and pattern hats direct from the foremost designers.

NO RENT, LOWER PRICES Our arrangements on our place of business are such that we are relieved of the necessity of loading our prices to pay store rent. Our prices will give our patrons the benefit of this large saving.

NEW MERCHANDISE Our large stock supplemented by large shipments each week during the season assures our patrons of the best possible selection of up-to-date styles and designs.

A REAL DRAMA—THE SYNOPSIS

Merrilla, Queen of the Sea, is sporting with the seals and mermaids, when a strange bit of floatam comes down into the briny depths from a wrecked ship. It is a look of rhinoceros an drapery in which Merrilla reads that if she can save four human lives she will be endowed with mortal form but immortal soul.

Boreas, Master of Storms, has wrecked the ship, and his daughters, the Sirens, are drowning the hapless sailors—dragging them luck into the depths even as their boat upsets in the surf. Merrilla swims to the rescue, and succeeds in saving three lives. The Sirens report to their cruel father that Merrilla is interfering with their work, so in a rage Boreas captures the Queen of the Sea and confines her in his cave.

Prince Hero has sailed to meet his betrothed, Princess Leandra, but loses his reckoning and lands near his cave, to which he is guided by the good fairy, Ariela. The Prince rescues Merrilla and falls in love with her, but prompted by Ariela, goes on to fulfill his engagement with the Princess. Boreas in revenge wrecks his ship, and the Prince is barely saved by Merrilla, who thereupon is endowed with a beautiful mortal body, and still more beautiful soul.

The vengeful Boreas then captures Leandra and shuts her up in his Tower of Knives and Swords—the gateway to which is guarded by flashing, scolding blades of steel, always in motion. Merrilla releases her, and Boreas rescues the Princess, and the evil demon, who so charmed by her that he wants to make her his Queen. Merrilla scorns his suit, and by skillfully eluding the sharp, slashing swords, makes her way to the Princess in the tower, where Boreas locks them both, and cuts off all means of entrance from below.

The Fairy Ariela, however, brings a messenger with the opposite cliff, and Merrilla attempts to escape by walking this slender strand across the chasm. When she is half way over Boreas breaks the strand, and she is precipitated eighty-five feet into the breakers. She escapes after a battle with the surf and brings the Prince to besiege Boreas' castle and rescue the Princess. With the Prince, Merrilla, the Prince rescues her, and out of gratitude releases him so he may wed the former Queen of the Sea. The Princess herself finds happiness in the love of her faithful chamberlain, and all ends happily, as good fairy stands shield; with the evil demon, Boreas, being punished by being buried in his own Cave of the Winds.

TROOPS CHASE CATTLE THIEVES

Mexicans Raid American Ranches But Leave Hot Trail for Soldiers to Follow

EL PASO, Aug. 23.—Two troops of United States Cavalry crossed into Mexico below Fort Hancock at 6 a. m. Saturday, in chase after Mexicans who had raided American ranches in that vicinity Friday. Gen. J. R. Ewin announced here this afternoon.

With the troops below Camachula being backed up with a new position bridge over the Rio Grande to improve provisioning and twenty days' rations forwarded to them, this makes two American expeditions an American will tonight.

General Ewin had no reports from the Fort Hancock expedition since the mounted forces went in after the cattle rustlers.

Instructions were for the cavalrymen to recover the stolen stock and punish the bandits. He gave his consent for the location after Fort Hancock officers reported the information of the raids and that they could follow a "positive and hot trail."

Altrapeans from Fort Bliss will keep in touch with the Seventh cavalry troops below Fort Hancock, only about 20 miles east of here, in the manner as planes have kept in communication with the Cavaliers at Compton.

The latter flyers have now established a base in northern Mexico to which army motor trucks are carrying drums filled with gasoline and oil. It was to enable the transport these drums to ford the Rio Grande that the bridge was thrown across by

"The Place of a Skull"
By REV. GEORGE GUILLE
Pastor, Episcopal Church, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—And when they were come unto a place called Golgotha, that is to say, a place of skulls, they crucified him.—Matt. 27:33-34.

The Spirit of God carefully marks the place where the Lord was crucified. The word means that everything else in the story of the cross, has its meaning.

The world boasts of its wisdom. At every turn we are summoned to hear what it says and to care upon its progress and achievements. But it is a disappointing life. It has brought no peace to our souls, no joy, no overflowing of spirit, and when it comes to removing death, or the sting of death, which is sin, or the power of sin, death, it has made no progress at all. Sin and sorrow and death are still the great facts of human experience.

Nor has man's wisdom given us any knowledge of God and a life beyond death. The wisdom that has been had in this searching out of the things that are done under heaven and was unable, by wisdom, to discover anything about God, and the power and Godhead. God must reveal himself. And he has done so in the person of Jesus Christ. As it is written: "Who of God is made unto us wisdom." And the apostle, declaring upon the wisdom of the world, says: "The cross really is a Greek's foolishness; but unto them which are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God, and the wisdom of God. And because the wisdom of God put to death in the place of a skull, the utter wreck of human wisdom. That which is God's estimate of the wisdom of men; the cross erected there is man's estimate of the wisdom of God.

How did man acquire the boasted wisdom? It was by listening to Satan's lie. The pursuit of knowledge for its own sake which that arch-fiend proposed to set the race, and in following his fatal suggestion there was forfeited that higher wisdom which God had intended before the world's origin; and "which none of the princes of this world knew; for had they known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory."

For twenty-five hundred years after the creation, "the incredible things" of God were "daily seen" in His eternal power and Godhead. Written across the heavens with accuracy and clearness was that revelation, the history of His glory and His wisdom. That man did not see it, but that man did not like to retain God's glory. He would not have himself to be wise; they became fools" and "changed the truth of God into a lie." They began their knowing, and from that hour on, "the light of thought" has displaced another, and systems of philosophy have chased each other like mad men in a mad race of time. And still, "the world by wisdom knew not God" and "the world by wisdom knew not Christ." The world by wisdom knew not God, and the world by wisdom knew not Christ. The world by wisdom knew not God, and the world by wisdom knew not Christ. The world by wisdom knew not God, and the world by wisdom knew not Christ.
