ORGANIZED LABOR MAKES THE DAILY TIMES ITS OFFICIAL PUBLICATION FOR DISTRICT

Fight of Newspaper Against Profiteering and Its Stand as Champion of Producer and Consumer, With Fair Treatment of Labor, Brings Endorsement From Central Union Body.

Feeling that the Twin Falls Daily Times best represents the ideas of fairness to the working man and the common people, organized labor of Twin Falls has selected the newspaper as its official publication. The action was taken at a meeting of the Central Labor Council Sunday evening.

The Times thus becomes the spokesman as it has been the friend of organized labor throughout the territory covered by the Twin Falls district, which extends on both the north and south sides of the river west including the boundary of the Coeur d'Alene, Rupert and Huerfano. Several thousand union men in this territory are accordingly provided with a channel of publicity that extends to every portion of their field and have, likewise, the means of keeping in touch with each other and of receiving, daily, full and fair information of any developments in their ranks.

AERIAL DERBY NEARING END

Some Flyers Have Finished Trip but Results Will Not Be Known Till All Finish

ROOSEVELT FIELD, MINNEOLA, L. I., Aug. 27.—Three American aircraft have completed the 362 miles in the New York-Toronto aerial derby today when the flyers again began taking to the air in America's greatest sky race. They were Lieutenant J. M. Flynn and Lieutenant E. M. Day, who left at 10:30 a. m. from Roosevelt field, and Major Rudolph Schroeder in a V-7, who landed at Toronto at 10:30 a. m. The winner will not be known until all of the flights have been completed. However, owing to the fact that the point system in this race is kept in keeping score. This is to give the users of the high speed and high speed types of planes an edge in the $10,000 prize and the challenge going with it.

Fifteen aircraft had finished one leg of the long international contest before the flights were resumed this morning, and there were expectations that other pilots would come into the race.

Some of the machines that were damaged by accidents have been returned to the starting point to re-enter the contest. There was a lot of speculation over the whereabouts of Sergeant Frank Combs, the first of the flyers on the southern route to reach Mincola from Toronto. He had not been heard from since he left Albany yesterday on his return to the Canadian city.

Many Planes in Buffalo
BUFFALO, Aug. 27.—Today the assembling grounds of a large airplane factory will also planes make hasty preparations to hop off either to complete the course with the last 85 miles flight to Toronto or else to make the longer flight back to Roosevelt field, Mincola. Taking off at approximately minute intervals, planes hopped off in whatever direction.

The one-armed Canadian ace who was forced to make a landing about ten miles east of Buffalo, when darkness came upon him last night, arrived early this morning at the Curtiss flying field and at 8:24 he left for Toronto, where he is the second Toronto start to complete the round trip, having arrived only by Major Schroeder, who completed the course at 5:52 last night.

TAGGING ALL THE BASES

The White Sox gained on the Tigers when Eddie Collins beat the Braves with a home run in the tenth inning.

The Reds hammered two more spikes into the pennant by beating the Phillies. Grob's homer won the first game. Burdick hits on Cheney in the fifth and won the second game for the Moran men.

With Graves, Spooker and O'Neill making sensational catches and bags forking, the Sox, the Indians, beat Detroit and tied Jennings' club for second place.

After Nell had trimmed the Pirates in the first half of a two hill, Ibsie Adams pitched Pittsburgh to safety, allowing the Giants' seven outburst.

Monahan blanked St. Louis in the first game at Brooklyn and Grimes allowed but five hits and won the second game easily.

The Cubs' hopes if they had any left, faded away in Boston when the Braves took both ends of a double hit, beating Alexander and Hendrix. And it was "Mud" Smith that beat Alexander in the first game.

SIXTY-FOUR SURVIVE IN TENNIS TOURNAMENT

FOREST HILLS, L. I., Aug. 27.—Sixty-four survivors of the first round of the national tennis singles were ready to carry the battle of racquets into the second round on the courts of the west side tennis club here today, the weather permitting. Gray skies and a chill breeze were the order early in the day, though the fore-caster predicted fair weather.

SNAKES SPOIL DANCE PARTY

Wriggle into Room and Young Folks Break for Doors and Windows.

Wilmington, Del.—Young people around Wilmington who were enjoying a private dance at the home of Ellis Hittingham were thrown into a panic one evening recently when two blacksnakes were slipped through a window and into the room where the party was dancing. It is supposed that small boys were the perpetrators of the joke, although because of the known opposition on the part of church members to dancing, some of the young people are hinting that perhaps that was the method taken to keep the "dew" away from the Wilmington young people. While the two frightened snakes were wanted to enter the cafe, they for windows and doors, and their exerts were not far behind.

MILLION HOMES NEEDED IN U. S.

More Homeless People in This Country Today Than Ever Before.

SITUATION DUE TO THE WAR

Great Scarcity and High Cost of Materials Check Building Operations—Little Work Done During Past Four Years.

Washington.—The United States today is facing the greatest shortage of houses since man ceased to live in caves and huts of brush and made for himself and family the hearth and some that became the temple of civilization. During the recent session of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, in Atlantic City, Secretary Redfield of the department of commerce declared that the nation will require 4,000,000 additional homes during the growing population, for whose shelter no provision was made during the four years of war in Europe. In addition to the needs of the United States, Secretary Redfield declared that, in December, England, France and Belgium also will need 1,000,000 homes, but to mention the requirements of Russia, Austria, Italy, Serbia, Roumania, Turkey and other nations in which millions of buildings were held in ruins during the period of hostilities.

War Caused Lack of Building. The perplexing situation now existing in the United States is said to be due entirely to the war. During the years of hostilities, the scarcity and high wages of labor and the scarcity and high cost of materials prevented the construction of houses which the natural growth of population rendered necessary. Then came Secretary McAdoo's appeal for the restriction of building operations to a minimum during the war. For a time building was almost stopped. Funds that otherwise might have gone into homes, business blocks, and factories were invested in Liberty bonds, and as a result building lagged. Now have some of the causes which checked building operations disappeared with the war. Materials are almost as scarce and in many cases more costly than they were during the struggle. Whatever reduction of wages may have occurred in some of the countries, there is none in the United States, and as a result there appears to be no definite program for the prompt and speedy erection of homes in the United States.

Give Me a Friendly, Natural Hand-shake

an' a friendly natural tobacco. Keep yo' put-on airs an' "sauced-up" tobaccos for the fellow that likes nut sundaes better than home made pie—

So says a friend of ours named Velvet Joe. And he just about hits the nail on the head.

Velvet is made for men who think there's no smoke like real tobacco. If you are that sort of man, listen:

Velvet was born in old Kentucky, where more than one good thing comes from. It was raised as carefully as any other Kentucky thoroughbred. But the real secret of Velvet's friendly qualities is its slow natural ageing in wooden hogsheads. Ageing in the wood never hurt anything—and least of all, tobacco.

And so we say, Velvet is good tobacco—nothing more or less. It runs second to none.

The picture of the pipe on the tin needn't keep you from rolling a jim-dandy cigarette with Velvet.

Not 16 cents or 17 cents—But 15 cents!

COAL PROBLEM LIES IN CARS

Supply Transportation and There Need Be No Coal Shortage, Says Senator

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Steps to insure an unimpaired supply of cars for the transportation of coal will be taken by Congress as the result of the first day of investigation of the coal situation by a sub-committee of the Interstate commerce committee, Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, chairman of the sub-committee, said today.

One of the first recommendations to be made by the investigating committee to the senate will be that the railroad administrator be called upon to show what efforts it is making to furnish all of the coal cars needed by the mines. If the investigation shows that the railroad administration is not meeting the demands then corrective steps will be taken.

"The transportation problem appears to be the crux of the whole situation," Senator Frelinghuysen said. Coal-miners and producers appearing before the sub-committee have maintained that with sufficient transportation and cooperation from the labor and the consumer, there will be no coal famine this year.

Denial was made by Harry N. Taylor, president of the National Coal Association, that there has been any profiteering in coal thus far. Warning was given by Taylor, however, that there would be profiteering if there is a coal shortage.

"As soon as there appears a shortage then the little men will open up their mines and they will charge all that the traffic will bear," Taylor said. "We cannot control them and I don't think whether congress will be able to control them. These men are called 'snow birds,' for they come and go with the winter and close their mines when there is no coal shortage."

Shot Politician, Is Now Paroled

DEER LODGE, Mont., Aug. 27.—In a political quarrel in Thompson Falls September 28, 1916, Miss Ethel Colby shot and killed A. C. Thomas, chairman of the Republican county central committee of Sanders county, this state. The young woman alleged that Thomas had trifled with her character. On December 6, 1916, Mrs. Colby was convicted and sentenced to a term of from ten to twelve years in the penitentiary at Deer Lodge. Word is now given out by Deer Lodge that the young woman has been paroled and departed for her former home at Franklin, N. H.

Journalist Gives More Details of Secret Pact

PARIS, Aug. 27.—Pierre Ahlin, the journalist who yesterday said to the Marshallists that President Wilson had entered into an agreement with Japan in 1917, today elaborated upon his explanation of the article but continued to refuse to divulge the source of his information.

"I understand that President Wilson personally began negotiations with Japan at the end of 1918 as part of the American policy of improving relations between the United States and Japan," said M. Ahlin. "The pact which a written treaty was completed, but the president is said to have gone so far as to recognize that Japan had special interests in China in view of the geographical relationship. The accord was in China's interests because it limited economic and financial considerations and guaranteed China's sovereignty. The entry of the United States into the war prevented the president from divulging the pact which, it is believed here, was the reason for Mr. Wilson's resignation of the Shantung arrangement in the peace conference."

M. Ahlin who was formerly attaché to the French foreign office has written several books on treaties.

LEHMAN PARTISAN ON WAY TO COLUMBIA, N. C.

COLUMBIA, N. C., Aug. 27.—An American partisan's squadron is expected to reach here Friday. Major Gen. M. H. Babbitt, commanding the aerial squadron, in a telegram received here, announced that bad weather had prevented the squadron from overhauling the air field at Pittsburgh before continuing westward.

DUKE OF NORTHUMBERLAND RESENTS LABORERS' DEMANDS

LONDON, Aug. 27.—The Duke of Northumberland has blurted out as the self-appointed defender of things in general, and especially such economic and social lines in Great Britain. The duke can well afford to blurt to "stay put" as they are for he receives some $400,000 annually from coal royalties and to mention other important sources of income.

But the duke has risen up in well calculated wrath at the drift of recent supplies in the outside markets, grounds, and he wants to stem the tide which appears to be sweeping this country toward a complete almost total industrial liquidation of industries, including coal mining.

So the duke is rallying about him all the fall-back conservatives he can muster in a desperate drive against the hell to now unrelenting policy into the government. He is attempting to show the country that the demands of labor leaders for nationalization of the coal mines, railways and the government's already announced plan of national housebuilding is not the forerunner of revolution which will mean "disaster for England."

"The syndicalist leader," says the duke, "has no intention of submitting to state control. They want to get rid of it as soon as possible. They would substitute for it what they call control by the workers—state of course a control by the few persons who run the machine. If the syndicalist report recommending nationalization of the coal industry is acted on they will never cease fighting as they have said, till the workers get complete control into their hands."

"We have already reached the point where private industry is being created through the uncertainty caused by the government's weakness and surrender to extremist threats. By the revival of industry is the fear in the minds of capitalists of industry that they may be hindered after having committed themselves to large expenditures. The uncertainty about the international situation is a far more important factor in hampering development."

"The more urgent need at the present time is a statement from the government that it will not give any more to threats from the syndicalists."

It may be remembered that the duke was summoned to the coal congress, where others' representatives threatened to denounce his royalties.

The duke's stand is reflected by all of his class who have held special privileges for centuries and how are getting rather perturbed, because there is a prospect of some of them being abolished in the interests of the community at large.

THE HIGHWAY DISTRICT REPORT

Let nobody attempt to make light of the enormous job which the commission of Twin Falls highway district has undertaken. Let no body throw any obstacles in the path of the men who have undertaken to carry the program to completion. The district needs the roadways, and the commission needs the help and criticism of any body whose criticism is in any way constructive.

The farmers who waited upon the highway commission seem to have been satisfied with what they learned. The verbal report of Mr. Channel may have been more completely explanatory of the activities of the commission than the written statement submitted.

The written statement contains much that is irrelevant and immaterial, and leaves out some things that seem to be vital to an understanding of what has been done and what is being done to build good roads. Closely related facts are widely separated in the report. When these facts are brought closer together they bring out of the confusion which seems to encompass the mind of the author.

The report of the committee of farmers who waited upon Mr. Channel says and his associates are not infallible, and it must be expressed in handing a proposition as big as the building of highways, that some mistakes will be made. If there have been mistakes, the committee fails to point them out specifically or even to suggest what those mistakes have been. The highway commission, of course, does not suggest that there have been any mistakes.

The report by Mr. Channel says, "The highway district construction program . . . will require about 300,000 cubic yards of crushed rock." With the same crusher plant turned over by the county commission the commission was convinced that the cost of producing crushed rock would be around $4 a yard. So the crushed rock for the highway district would have cost $600,000, or $720,000 a mile.

The commission in its wisdom decided that was too much to pay out for crushed rock, so it sent its engineer, Mr. Johnson, to Utah, California and Oregon to investigate. He found the average cost of producing crushed rock in large plants on the coast to be 60 cents per cubic yard.

No there was nothing to do except get a large crusher plant. Thereupon bids were called for the construction of a plant to produce 100 tons per hour, or 500 cubic yards in eight hours. This indicates that 500 cubic yards weighs 500 tons. So the 300,000 cubic yards of crushed rock necessary for the construction of the program would weigh 300,000 tons. At 60 cents a cubic yard, the total cost would be $180,000 or $140 a mile.

According to the letter to "Dear U. S." Jim McMillan's estimate was $10,000 a mile for building roads in California. He pays 50 cents a ton for crushed rock. Now, if the California roads are being built about the same time as it is proposed to build Idaho roads, Jim's estimate will be 3840 tons of rock to the mile. He pays, at 50 cents a ton, $1920 a mile for crushed rock. This, now, shows that the price received for the finished road is a fraction more than 52 times the cost of the crushed rock.

This figure will be found fairly accurate as showing the relative cost of rock and road, for the county has built "about" two-thirds of a mile of highway out at Shoshone Falls, and this work convinced the commission that it could not expect to quarry and crush the rock with this kind of equipment, for less than $4 per cubic yard, and our own experience with a small plant has convinced us that the average cost would no doubt exceed this amount.

Three hundred thousand cubic yards of rock spread over 125 miles is at the rate of 2400 cubic yards to the mile, so two-thirds of a mile would require 1000 cubic yards, which, at $4 a cubic yard equals $4000. Now, if the proportion of rock cost and completed cost is the same in Idaho as in California, this two-thirds of a mile would have cost $2 times $4000, or $8000.

The commission has spent $45,702.94 for "road construction." Subtracting the cost of this two-thirds mile from the total amount spent for road construction we find the commission has spent $10,702.94 in road construction elsewhere. Now, the only mention of any roads constructed, except the two-thirds mile out at Shoshone, is "some earth roads which were included in our construction program have been constructed or improved."

The pertinent question for which answer is sought is where those roads are which have been constructed or improved at a cost of more than $10,000.

That the decision of the commission to build a crusher plant is based on a sound understanding of the needs of the district may be understood if the cost of the completed highway is figured out on the same basis as is shown to obtain in California, namely, 52 times the cost of the crushed rock.

With the small crusher plant, the cost of producing crushed rock at $4 a cubic yard has been shown to be $7200 a mile. This, multiplied by 52 is $37,440 a prohibitive price for good roads.

If the cost can be cut to the cost at which the commission felt justified in assuming it could produce the crushed rock for, namely, $1500 a cubic yard, the cost per mile would be $107,500 a mile.

If the cost of crushed rock could be brought down to the average price in California, namely, 60 cents a cubic yard, the 2400 cubic yards to the mile would cost $1440, and 52 times that is $74,880, the estimated cost per mile of completed highway.

The commission's engineer found the average cost of producing crushed rock in California to be 60 cents a cubic yard. If the stone in California weighs the same as in Idaho, that is, if 500 cubic yards weigh 500 tons, the cost per ton of stone at 60 cents a cubic yard is 37 1/2 cents. So if Jim McMillan's estimate holds its place at an average cost plant, he is paying 12 1/2 cents a ton profit on stone. The profit element can be figured out of the cost of Idaho crushed stone. It is an item of 25 per cent.

But Jim's estimate is paying 50 cents a ton, and that is equal to 80 cents a cubic yard, so he is paying 20 cents a yard more than the average cost. The 2400 yards used in a mile of road at 80 cents a yard equals $1920, which, multiplied by our "16" number, 52, gives the cost per mile of $99,840—close enough to show the accuracy of the figures, the decimal having been cast off the 52 for convenience's sake, as he is receiving $100,000 a mile.

Now somebody is talking about the possibility of 25-cent milk. The ladies will have something to say about that.

Tell me is going up again. Why? Same old reason, of course—because of the high cost of tobacco.

ANGORA GOATS.

"Good-day," said Mr. Angora Goat. "Hello," said Mrs. Angora Goat. "I might have expected you to make such a speech," said Mr. Angora Goat. "Hello," said Mrs. Angora Goat. "Because you're such a terror," said Mr. Angora Goat. "So are you, my dear."

"I thought I would have surprised myself if I had had it," uttered Mr. Angora Goat. "You're silly foolishness," said Mrs. Angora Goat. "Have you a creature there like this?" "Quite easily," said Mr. Angora Goat. "How?" asked Mrs. Angora Goat. "By surprising himself."

"Well, he might surprise himself by falling over when he meant to stand up, or by slipping when he didn't intend to, or in many other ways. There, surely, you thought you had me in a trap, didn't you?" "I thought to see this thing, I wouldn't trap you, and besides there is no trap around here."

"I didn't mean a real trap," said Mr. Angora. "I mean you tried to put me in a hole." "Oh, dear," said Mrs. Angora. "Oh, dear," said Mr. Angora. "What I mean is you tried to make me appear foolish, and as if I couldn't answer my own question and I could. You will have to admit that."

"Very well, I admit it," said Mrs. Angora Goat. "I agree with you, though not with many creatures. That is, I agree with you at times."

"I know," said Mr. Angora. "It is not because of your sweet disposition." "Why should I waste time by having such a thing? One can't enjoy my children and my job," said Mr. Angora. "That that is not my affair. I know the keeper says we're a bad pair."

"Yes," agreed Mrs. Angora. "You heard him say so. He said we were beautiful, but bad."

"That's absurd," said Mr. Angora Goat. "The very idea of being good when we are beautiful. That is quite enough."

"I think so," said Mrs. Angora Goat. "Got many creatures don't." "You heard the keeper say that we were a bad pair, and yet you know he had never known," said Mr. Angora Goat. "Good," said Mrs. Angora Goat, "what her horns."

Two Odd Frocks for Afternoon

Then we are treated to a few really something new ideas in frocks of varieties quite different from those that have gone before. The first frock is long and the sleeves and sometimes prove to be the fore-runner of new models. After a survey of this season's afternoon frocks the two models pictured here are more than likely to be pronounced "odd," but with the exception that they are pleasing.

BY A TAXPAYER

One half of the city council, either officially, or semi-officially, or personally (it does not seem to be certain if it does) feels it a duty to offer a reward to the hero who can locate and tie the champion liar" who originally concocted the story of a dead man with the city waterworks. In connection upon the matter of the reward as carried by "the official newspaper" of the administration, the little crowd of taxpayers suggested that another reward be offered—this time to see if anyone can discover the champion juror in the act of installing the filter at the reservoir.

It is not an item of common knowledge, however, that any "reward of merit" money was actually placed on deposit in either case.

THIS STORY SMELLS LIKE NATURE FAKE

Melon Grower Tolls of Catching Two Eggged Coyotes in His Patch

Although El Vance is no nature faker by reputation he tells a coyote story that might be taken at face value. El tells of trapping two eggged coyotes in his watermelon patch.

He is of course well known, and Vance's patch has been discussed several times recently. El finally decided to trap the eggged coyote wolf traps hanging in his barn. Catching the thieves would be better than slandering them. El thought, so he set the traps with egg-pots through his melon patch.

Results were fine. On the second night he got the intended message and El rushed out to view the coyotes. He found a couple of badly frightened 15 year old boys. One had strapped in a trap and having only one foot free was unable to extricate himself. His daddy started to his assistance but was started by another trap on his way.

The large traps had them around the ankle, this adding much to their discomfort. They confessed to a furrow run to the patch but denied that they had destroyed melons. El agreed to let them go and not publish their names if they would come back and settle for the damages. A sum covering about half of the damage being agreed to. So the boys departed with a melon and a pair of sore shins.

Last season Vance had trouble with vandals who not only stole melons but destroyed a quantity of green ones. One night a couple of young business men visited the patch and one of them looked into the melon of a shotgun. The other escaped by getting behind a tree and making good his escape to shoot for such a thing as destroying a lot of green melons, states Vance. "But I believe I have a right to protect my property the same as any merchant would protect his goods from burglars state I make my living that way."

A Bad Tooth Never Grows Better Unless Good Dentists Help It

By DR. PARKER

First and Executive, Head of the E. R. Parker System

The first duty of a dentist is to save teeth, and when they are past saving he must resort to artificial plates.

Some dentists can save teeth that others can't, because some men know more than others.

The advantage of having your dental work done under the E. R. Parker System is this:

The System is employed by Registered Dentists working together, and the dental work they do is the result of all their knowledge combined, each one doing that kind of work that he best knows how to do.

The judgment of one man in dentistry is never so dependable as the combined judgment of several men. Registered Dentists using the E. R. Parker System make examinations and give advice free, and they tell all patients examined what their teeth need and how little the price will be for doing the work.

Everyone should have the teeth examined at least twice a year, and the plan of charging nothing for examinations is something you ought not to overlook.

WEATHER-PROOF BARN IS ASSET

Modern Building Profit-Maker for the Owner.

DESIGN THAT IS POPULAR

Keeps Live Stock In Good Condition and Makes Them More Productive—Is Constructed of Hol-low Tile.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF CHARGE on subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Lecturer in this line, he is without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, Box 117 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill. You will only receive two-cent stamp for reply.

Those farmers who have good looking farm buildings take as much pride in them as the autoist does in a handsome automobile. But aside from the satisfaction that modern buildings bring to their owners, there is a more practical side to having up-to-date barns, hog houses, cow sheds and other farm structures. A good barn, one that is weather-proof and has an interior arrangement that permits of the work being done in the easiest way, is a profit maker for its owner. The live stock are healthier and, in the case of the dairy breed, more productive. At the same time it costs no more to secure this extra production and to protect this good will.

With the cost of operating a farm as high as they are now and with the prices of the feedstuffs for man and beast that the farm producers at the present level, savings in labor and protection of crops and live stock are well worth considering. A ton of hay, a bushel of wheat or corn, and the health of the animals all mean money nowadays, and are worthy of being housed in buildings that will protect them from weather and rodents. This is particularly true with regard to the dairy herd and the winter's supply of feed for it. A well-constructed barn is essential to the prosperity of every farmer.

In the accompanying illustration is shown the type of barn that is popular in the corn belt, especially in Iowa, where the farmer is so extraordinarily prosperous. It is a general-purpose building, constructed of hollow building tile. While this kind of a barn costs more to build than a plank frame building it will prove economical in the long run because it is practically indestructible.

The hollow tile is plastered with cement up to the window sills. Another strip is plastered two feet above the windows, which gives the building a finished appearance. The gambrel roof also adds to its appearance and gives the greatest amount of room possible. The stable floor is of concrete. As will be seen by the floor plan, one section of the stable is for cows and the other for horses. The cow stalls are arranged along the two sides of the building and are separated by a driveway, or litter alley, which extends through the center of the building. The feed alleys are placed either wall and run the greatest amount of room possible. An overhead trough track runs over both the litter alley, for the removal of manure, and over the feed alleys for the distribution of feed. The stalls are of stone, with either concrete, steel or wooden linings. At the rear of each of the rows of stalls is a gutter sunk into the concrete floor and connecting with a drain. This permits of washing down the stall floors and flushing the gutter. At the end of the barn four-horse stalls are provided in the floor plan, but they are of sufficient size so that more animals can be housed. This section also has a concrete floor, gutter and drain of one of the materials mentioned. There are no posts in the main floor in this type of a barn, leaving all the space for the storage of roughage. The ventilator shafts are in the walls, leading from the first girder in the stable to the ventilators on the roof.

From this description of the interior of the barn it will be readily seen that the work caring for the cows and horses can be done with the least amount of effort. The feed and litter carriers eliminate many steps in caring both feed and manure, while the addition of a fresh-water system will bring the water to drinking cups at each stall, or to a tank set at one end of the building.

The advantage of building of hollow tile is twofold. The air spaces in the provide insulation, which makes the barn warm in the winter and cool in the summer although the herd is housed here during the hot weather. It is also practically indestructible, and is fireproof. When a brooding or a breeding rooster is used, there is little danger that the roof will be damaged by flames.

The site in connection with a hollow tile barn usually constructed of the same material. In this construction it is practicable to put a water tower on top of the site, which will furnish all the pressure needed to carry fresh water to all of the farm buildings.

It will be noted that there is an abundance of windows in the stable wall. These permit the entrance of both fresh air and sunlight. The good thing in the health of the cows and horses. Sunshine is nature's greatest blessing from winter to a warmer. Such a barn as this will not only be a beautiful addition to any farm building group, but will prove to be a money-making investment, as well as club in the animal and the feed that they will need during the winter, when they are indoors.

Germaine Furrer said at a tea:

"Girls who have gone in for the arts, the dairy business and the most modern make poor wives. I know a girl who married after getting in music. It is reported that her husband said one night in his cups: "My wife used to play the guitar. Now she—she—picks on me."

To Teach Them.

A specially prepared set of lesson books will soon be used in the public schools. These books will build the foundation of thrift and economy which will be carried on through the higher schools, thereby molding the habit of saving into the character of the future men and women of America land, best of all, no one is really too

Seems Like Prophecy.

I have a friend, a professor at Lehigh University, who many years ago was a tutor in the house of Hohensollern. He taught the six or forty sons of the former ruler of the state. This friend was telling me not long since that one day, when he was instructing young Frederick Hohensollern, then crown prince, in the art of history, discussion arose between teacher and pupil about the rise and fall of Rome.

"I will be more accurate than my father when I come to the favorite," declared the youthful crown prince. "Well, my highest," replied the teacher, "then do you know that when your father dies you will have a throne to contend for?"

"It seems the colored man, who was a farmer, had bought a hog for which he paid $10. Then he had to travel $5 in corn to feed his porcine property. When market day last arrived he received but $11.50 for the animal. "You didn't see out, but did have did you, 'Hester'?"

"Hester" gripped from ear to ear, as if he had made a handsome profit. "All right, didn't do well on the corn man," he answered, "but on the hog I've done cleared a dollar as a half-pipe." His Laughs.

PEOPLE GET RICH IN TWO WAYS

The majority through skill and success in investments and trading. The majority through systematic saving of small sums.

If you save a dollar a day at the Twin Falls National Bank, the principal and four per cent interest will amount to $1,167.98 at the end of five years. $4,354.51 at the end of ten years. Smaller deposits than the Dollars care the same interest and will increase proportionately. A Savings Account is the sure way.
