NO CHANGE IN PITTSBURG

Operators Preparing to Run Mills to Full Capacity Again Monday Morning

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 4.—The close of the second week of the iron-wood strike today found the situation in the immediate Pittsburgh district unchanged from that existing for the last several days. Mills that had been operating only partially were being prepared to start in full on Monday with others that had been closed were to open with the beginning of the third week.

The strikers leaders here saw great significance in the meeting of the executive council of the Federation of Labor and the mutual council two which had attended strike charges in Washington on Monday. The meeting of the executive council was called to discuss handling of and financing the strike action, according to John Fitzpatrick, chairman of the strikers committee. He said it was the first time in the history of the American Federation of Labor that the council had been called to act in a strike. There was a report here that the council might consider an appropriation of $2,000,000 a week for strike benefits.

The strike leaders continued today the line of divisions for appointment to the senate committee on education and labor, and a mass of data will be ready for the strike investigators when they come here next week.

Hand bills directed at the deputy sheriffs and special policemen stationed at the steel plant for distribution in the mill section here during the night.

"We cannot believe that you have any fraternal and helpful feelings for your fellow workers" the appeal read. "You have worked with us and now you are doing the dirty work of the master. He has a Justice League and a Begeister Army. Join with us and

Afternoon Frocks for Indian Summer

Summer styles do not carry over into fall now-a-days, any more than those of winter into spring. Fashion takes more and more note of the demarcations. In January the trapezoid model for coats, who so soon to meet the coming, leaves winter styles behind, and in August the new frock and top coats for autumn, make their appearance. There has been an unrelenting effort this year on the part of costumers and milliners to make fall styles characteristic of the season, and the new apparel seems to interpret our glorious Indian summer. New silks, lightweight and supple, in lovely colors, are interesting with gold and silver threads and there are many metal trims that are lightweight also, having shells and ropes as a background for the broadest decorative. One of the new fall models is shown here in company with a frock designed for summer wear. The fall model will delight the slender woman because it is one of those that accentuate the rounded hip line. It is made of black satin with white dots embroidered on it in rows. The "V" neck, cut high at the back, is another bit of good management on the part of the designer that is especially becoming to a thin woman. It is low in front, fitted to the waist, becoming details of lace and colorfasted buttons. The three-quarter length blouses sleeves are very prettily finished with the same delicate addition of fluff and lace. They are short enough to reflect exactly the French abbreviation of sleeves.

The second dress of black and white fall and black geometric is a conservative late summer model in which the two fabrics are closely combined. The two waist pieces of georgette set on below the hip at each side forestall the widening hips. A sash does not broaden the figure any, so that this is a better choice for fall figures than the newer model. The printed panels at the back and front of georgette, and the brilliance of black and white in the underparts of fluff, give this frock an unexpected distinction that will appeal to nations. They have more need for dresses of this character than for more pronounced fashions.

A hint that the railroad men may become involved in the struggle was contained in a resolution passed at a meeting of representatives of all bodies of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen in this district, and sent to Governor W. C. Sprout of Pennsylvania today.

The resolution, which was given out at strike headquarters, protested against the deal to the steel strikers of the right to meet in peaceful parades in certain communities in the immediate Pittsburgh district. The state constabulary and private guards "in beating and trampling defenseless men and women, destroying personal property and arresting persons without cause and in a certain instance tearing down and trampling the American flag." The chief executive called upon "to stay these lawless acts in order to avoid the possibility of other labor organizations becoming involved in this controversy."

Fifty Per Cent Evening Working

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Steel mills in the Chicago district are being run at fifty per cent capacity, according to a canvass of all mills in the section, during which steel mill operators reported that more men returned to work yesterday than any day since the nation wide steel strike was called.

ENGLAND MAY TRANSFER EXCESS WOMANHOOD TO CHINA

LONDON, Oct. 4.—England may transfer on mass her excess of womanhood to the colonies. There are at least 1,000,000 women and girls in the British Isles who have no chance of getting married because of the lack of men, while at the same time there is difficulty in absorbing them into industry now that the army has been demobilized.

Hundreds of thousands of these women, some single, others widows, are unemployed because of the war, so conditions are anyway near reasonable they could make a living in the colonies. Many have been offered to go to India, but the conditions are being insisted in Canada, Australia and New Zealand. Women who have been unemployed in the home country are being sent out to these lands to find employment in the labor market, and few British excess women power can be transferred. All phases of the labor market in these dominions will be canvassed, the professional, industrial and domestic service.

It is hoped will be allowed to get out of the dominions and they are really wanted and will be welcomed. What Canada wants are housewives. If it can be done, the British dominions may have, provided proper training and treatment are satisfactory.

"NATIONALISTIC" THINKING

"Nationalism" and "Internationalism" are shibboleths, and may by their men's patriotism be judged. Nationalism, for the time being, is in the ascendant.

Intense national feeling is held essential to patriotism in this country must be everything and all other countries nothing. Every country proclaims and proclaims its greatness as contributing to the well-being of a profound belief in one's own country, as the highest and best of nations, in all particulars.

Internationalism, the tolerance and appreciation of other nations and the effort to cooperate with them instead of opposing or antagonizing them, is looked upon with suspicion and dislike.

Perhaps it is possible to go too far in this direction. One is brought up with a pen on reading this passage. From a recent article by Maximilian Harden, the German editor, on the Prussianized education which was led to all German school boys before the war, and is still held to them for that matter:

"The duty of thinking internationally is hammered into every boy and girl from the time of playing with lead soldiers, and the duty to realize over one particular national character and to strive with all one's strength to improve and render it finer and also to be happy over the fact that in the garden of humanity only flowers of one's own are fostered. No. The duty to consider one's own nation as the highest purpose and the reason of creation. That is what is hammered in. The word internationalism, which stands ahead of all history, of Christianity, all art and science passes for a word of abuse as synonymous with unpatriotic and without ancestry."

"Humility" An empty phrase imported from the west, from nations who honor the German Emperor with an interjection of words and they went to edit off his locks."

It was precisely that sort of thing which created a generation of Germans so swollen with emotion and self inflated with the idea of the world's unity that it was ready to march itself, as one man, at the throat of civilization.

It was unbridled Nationalism that made this war. It was internationalism, operating through the Allied powers, that saved the world.

England, France, America and Italy were less patriotic than Germany, and loved their own more than their neighbors. But they had what Germany lacked. A genuine regard for all the time to government, literature, art, science and social life which are not common to any nation but shared by the best spirits of all nations.

"NATIONALISTIC" THINKING

"Nationalism" and "Internationalism" are shibboleths, and may by their men's patriotism be judged. Nationalism, for the time being, is in the ascendant.

Intense national feeling is held essential to patriotism in this country must be everything and all other countries nothing. Every country proclaims and proclaims its greatness as contributing to the well-being of a profound belief in one's own country, as the highest and best of nations, in all particulars.

Internationalism, the tolerance and appreciation of other nations and the effort to cooperate with them instead of opposing or antagonizing them, is looked upon with suspicion and dislike.

Perhaps it is possible to go too far in this direction. One is brought up with a pen on reading this passage. From a recent article by Maximilian Harden, the German editor, on the Prussianized education which was led to all German school boys before the war, and is still held to them for that matter:

"The duty of thinking internationally is hammered into every boy and girl from the time of playing with lead soldiers, and the duty to realize over one particular national character and to strive with all one's strength to improve and render it finer and also to be happy over the fact that in the garden of humanity only flowers of one's own are fostered. No. The duty to consider one's own nation as the highest purpose and the reason of creation. That is what is hammered in. The word internationalism, which stands ahead of all history, of Christianity, all art and science passes for a word of abuse as synonymous with unpatriotic and without ancestry."

"Humility" An empty phrase imported from the west, from nations who honor the German Emperor with an interjection of words and they went to edit off his locks."

It was precisely that sort of thing which created a generation of Germans so swollen with emotion and self inflated with the idea of the world's unity that it was ready to march itself, as one man, at the throat of civilization.

It was unbridled Nationalism that made this war. It was internationalism, operating through the Allied powers, that saved the world.

England, France, America and Italy were less patriotic than Germany, and loved their own more than their neighbors. But they had what Germany lacked. A genuine regard for all the time to government, literature, art, science and social life which are not common to any nation but shared by the best spirits of all nations.

JIMMY'S BOSS
By GLADYS PLUMMER.

Jimmy Murphy's freckled forehead assumed perplexed lines as he repeated his blue eyes and a long nose and his forehead by numerous small white beads, similar to the one he occupied, but was immediately smoothed by the pressure of a sharp palm shot through his left leg.

"Yes, dear, a hospital," Jimmy's head turned quickly to the pretty nurse sitting at the foot of his bed, and he smiled as she nodded. "I'll have a job to find it, I guess," said the boy, then adding sulkily: "I must be my boss' fault."

"The hospital will be here in time to fill out your hospital card. You give her your employee's telephone number," said Miss Ashby kindly. "I go off duty now and will see you again in the evening."

The boy's intelligent eyes watched the slim little figure of the nurse as she passed between the rows of beds and out through the large swinging doors.

"She's just like the girl my boss told me about, and the tears are in her eyes, and she's looking at her eyes when he talks about her," he mused.

"After that, Jimmy?" asked Miss Ashby next morning, as she placed the thermometer in his mouth.

"I'm not going to school, nurse," but his answer was interrupted by a barely perceptible twitching of the mouth.

"The nurse bent over him, her cool hands holding a slender foot. "So, nurse, you've got hair that looks like gold in the sunlight, too, haven't you?"

Jimmy's eyes glittered with the recollection of the nurse's description of the girl he was thinking of. "And eyes that look like gold in the sunlight, too, haven't you?"

"The boy became serious at once. "Sure not," he said reassuringly. "I'm like Jerry. I was only thinking I had somebody like her, but I'm not thinking about anything else, too, Miss Ashby. If I don't get to work by the time you get to work, I'll be late, and that's what I'm worried about."

Coats That Have Style

There is a definite air of gracefulness and charm, adapted to the new lines of fashion, about our Coats, that bring women back to our display season after season.

Especially noticeable in our newest coats is the richness of soft-textured fabrics. Dozens of them are full trimmed; others are plain or embroidered. On any number of models we find huge collars in company with bolts of unbelievable slenderness. Reins, brown, taupe and navy blue, but vivid tones appear frequently in this fashion procession.

The First Showing of Fashion's Favorites

An Exposition of Fall and Winter Styles Any Day, Any Time

Presenting for your inspection Women's and Misses Coats, Suits, Dresses, Skirts, Furs and Waists in collections large enough to offer splendid choice of style, material and price.

A season when Fashion has many Favorites—little style features that distinguish the modes of the season as they have been distinguished no other season. A season when women are wanting to carry out their individual ideas in dress—when personality in dress takes on a stronger meaning than ever before.

Women's Fondest Hopes Realized

Such a season finds us prepared to help women realize their fondest desires because we anticipated this demand and made our preparations accordingly. Our efforts have been rewarded with success and today we are glad to direct your attention to the fine assortments of Future-Wearing Apparel we have brought together here for you.

The New Silhouettes are Straighter

The new season has given us a new silhouette—very much straighter than before so we find less of the flare and "drawn in" features of previous seasons. The effects obtained in holding to this new line are beautiful and you'll admire the creations under all circumstances provided for you.

FRENCH BEAUTY LEAVES STAGE

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Kia Lavalliere who once charmed the hearts of the French stage with Sarah Bernhardt, is leaving her theatrical career at the height of her success, with manager offering her fat contracts, to enter a convent.

The beauty, who was a favorite with the late King Edward on his visits to the French capital, and who cherished gifts from another European monarch, now dead, will be seen a Carmelite nun in an old costume at Marseilles.

She is quitting the stage, she told her friends at an elaborate dinner of farewell, because of a strange dream in which she saw her face pictured in a framed oval, hanging at the door of one of the ghastly Paris restaurants where she had so often presided as the queen of festivities.

"I had come home after what we thought was a 'big night' she said. 'I got one of those after-thoughts which will cause an actor that lasted until nearly midnight. 'The dream was so vivid that I woke suddenly, sitting upright in my bed. I saw my old friend Lavalliere from motor cars, richly clad as usual, entering the door of a gaily lighted restaurant. I was outside in the cold, dressed in rags, shivering and bent like a woman of seventy, stretching out my hands for a few sous, unperceived by the people who were passing me and call me the queen of the French stage. 'I slept no more that night. When I awoke I went to my old address where I had known from childhood and told him of my dreams. At first he advised against my entering a convent, but I have talked with him for two weeks and he finally has given his consent. 'During her career of many years on the French stage, Mrs. Lavalliere had displayed much interest in religious matters. She often visited Lourdes and watched sick pilgrims bathed in the waters of the spring, which were reputed to have miraculous healing effects. She made but few appearances during the war, devoting her time largely to her work. A group of French sisters, each wearing for good luck one of her silk stockings about his neck, adopted the name 'Lavalliere-Kennedy' and fly of them soon 'died' in the air.

About The Materials

The materials used too are of interest here you will see, in coats, wool, velvet, pique, cloth, leather mixtures, polo cloth, tulle, silver, lace, flannels, pomerey, plaid, frost glow, chambray and kersey and in suits, single cloth, adventure, gabardine, tricot, velvet checks, leather mixtures and serge.

Mew Winter Suits in Attractive Styles

Suits are more attractive than for some time with their knee length jackets, high "choker" collars, and two toned pockets. Some have full belts, with abundant "lace string belts." There are many other features including handsome and fancy headlining, embroidery in new designs and exquisite linings.

The Price of Suits Range $35 to $125

Clever Styles in Winter Coats

Coats too come in for admiration in both straight full belted and loose back, front belted styles the "suzette collars" had for particular notice and offer a "coquetry" feeling you can't resist and you won't forget the pretty fancy linings contained in them present.

The Prices of Coats Range $20 to $250

When the Leaves Begin to Fall It's Time to Get Ready for Winter

Because so many of you are apt to overlook provision for the common comforts of life until actual necessity compels attention, we issue this reminder:

It is now high time that the heating apparatus of the home be carefully inspected to see if any repairs are necessary. When the first chilly weather demands a heater fire it will not be soon enough to find that the grate works fixing or the smoke pipe must be renewed. Heavy demands then on the plumber and boiler men are sure to cause delay and inconvenience, if not absolute and illness.

Likewise, if the bins have not been stocked with winter coal, now is the opportune time, before the rush begins. Not coal, by the way effects quite a saving this fall. For the range it is ideal fuel, and for the heater, and furnace when used with the Lamp, it banks the fire so that the Lamps last much longer than when completely exposed to the flame. Place your order now, and it will be delivered direct from the quarry, saving you $1.00 per ton. It will be reported that the City Coal Company refused to join the coal combine when invited to do so, resulting in the lowering of the price of coal at this yard.

As was expected, our stand in this matter has brought up on the wrath of the combined coal interests, and a bitter fight is now being made on the company. It is a case of might against right, and we know that right will triumph. Should any member of the coal combine tell you we are selling a cheaper coal or not giving full weight, or give any other reason to justify them in charging a higher price—get the facts before you pass judgment.

You can have your coal weighed over the scales and at our expense, and you are always welcome to look over our invoices from the coal companies with whom we deal, make comparisons with others, you will find we pay as much for lump and egg coal as the mines as anyone else, and you will also find that we pay 20c more per ton at the mine for Kemmerer than than any other coal sold in the city. Our business is conducted open and above board. We have nothing to hide or keep under cover. We will warrant it a great privilege to give you a free sample of our King or Kemmerer coals and have you try them in competition with any other. You to be the judge and jury in deciding which is the best.
