had been knocking in second, after three men made it safe. Each followed with a single, except Eller, Daubert sacrificed to second. Groh was passed. Then came Eddie Rousch.

Rousch connected with one of Williams' twisters and sent it toward Felsch. The second fielder seemed to have the ball. Groh stepped in. "But dropped it," he then went and fired clean along after him.

Which threw to Collins who relayed in the plate in an effort to catch Groh. The play was close and "Empire" Rieker called Groh safe. All of which increased the lead. Schalk and Morgan went higher on the bases with the champion collection of "softies and cutouts."

And from out of the ball of amoungst their contest a herd of charging horses. No more sterling exhibition of flitting eye was showed than this of this afternoon.

After the game, it is said: 1-Whitewashed the Sox. 2-Let them down with three hits, got a Duke.

3-Scolded a world series pitcher by fanning him in his own game. 4-Struck out the side in the second inning, and dominated the rest.

5-Struck out the side in the second inning, and dominated the rest. 6-Struck out the side in the second inning, and dominated the rest.

TO DETERMINE WHAT IS BEER

Supreme Court Asked to Advance Test Cases on 2.75 Per Cent Alcohol Content

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The fall term of the supreme court of the United States was opened this afternoon.

More than 100 matters for review are on the lower courts were pending before the supreme court when it convened.

Attorney General Palmer and Senator General King moved to advance the government liquor cases to test the validity of 2.75 per cent beer.

The anthracite anti-trust case will be called by the court tomorrow. It was understood today that this case would be submitted on briefs and without oral arguments.

The department of justice moved to postpone arguments in the Eastman case, and another case, and to request of counsel in these cases, who desire to submit additional evidence.

CAPITAL AND LABOR MEET TO END INDUSTRIAL UPHEAVAL

Employers Will Offer Profit-Sharing Plan as Remedy for Serious Situation—Compers Wants Nationalization of Three Important Industries

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The first big meeting since the industrial conference at Farmington, Oct. 4, afternoon will be the question of important problems. Samuel Compers, president of the American Federation of Labor, was prepared today to lead the entire labor delegation in making open proposals, open to the labor unions, and it was expected to have executive sessions of the representatives of capital, labor and the public will be vigorously opposed by the labor unions, and it was expected that they were unsuccessful in their fight, they might withdraw from the conference.

The situation caused by the refusal of the labor unions to participate in the conference was mentioned today when the railroad men met and revealed their decision. They announced that they refused to participate in the conference.

But it was only a legitimate technique of the labor unions, which refused to participate in the conference. The labor unions refused to participate in the conference.

When the meeting which was held at the Federation of Labor building, disclosed this afternoon the delegates agreed that the steel strike must be brought to the fore of the conference, and that it is one of the biggest matters facing the conference.

Mayor Refuses to Introduce Johnson

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Mayor Robert Taylor refused today to introduce Senator Charles McNary in the city hall when the "Washington" senator delivered his address before the League of Nations last Thursday evening.

Asked to make introductions in the city hall, Mayor Taylor said he would not do so because McNary is not a member of the League of Nations, and that it is not his duty to introduce a man who is not a member of the League of Nations.

PUREST BLOODED JEWS ARE EXILES

Highlanders of the Caucasus Who Have Kept Free From Gentile Admixture.

SCORN THE PLAINS PEOPLE

Their Language and Many of Their Customs Are Peculiar—Date and Circumstances of Settlement in That Region Uncertain.

London.—Of all the scattered tribes and remnants of the Jewish people, it is now known to the world at large, and certainly more presents a more striking contrast to the common conception of the modern children of Israel than the Jewish highlanders of the eastern Caucasus. Yet these are probably none in all the world who have kept the Jewish blood more pure and free from gentile admixture than any who more faithfully preserved the traditions, beliefs and customs of the race.

Traditions Fail to Explain.

The date and the circumstances of their settlement in the Caucasus Highlands are unknown, and their traditions, but it is certain, that they have been there for nearly a thousand years. In that time their physical characteristics have been unalterably modified by their environment and mode of life. With characteristic Jewish features and complexions, tall, dark, stalwart, muscular bodies, resembling the best of the tall men of the hills, or some of the sturdy men of the Scottish Highlands, they are of course purely rural, and they have no considerable towns, and they devote themselves to agriculture, the raising of grapes and tobacco. From the grapes they make both wine and brandy, and of these beverages they are heavy drinkers. Indeed they have the unenviable reputation of being the heaviest drinkers in all that part of the world.

Peculiar Language.

Their language is neither Hebrew nor that of the country in which they live, but rather what philologists term Parsi, Tartar, or a mingling of old Persian and Tartar. From this circumstance it is inferred that their ancestors went to the Caucasus from Persia in the days of Cyrus the Great, or Darius. Perhaps they were fugitives from Persian captivity; or else they preferred going to the Caucasus rather than back to Palestine. There is indeed one ancient legend which tells that they wandered northward in quest of Mount Ararat and the remains of Noah's ark.

CAPITAL AND LABOR MEET

try's industry, had a hundred leading men representing the general public, labor and business who gathered today at the Four American building, under invitation of the president to hear "the whole truth" on the subject of capital and labor. The whole question of wages was put on another footing, and thus eradicate "a danger greater than the danger of war."

Industrial warfare now greatly hindered the recovery of the country's industry to its normal and normal course of development, after the neutralizing effects of war, the stimulation of various consequences of the strikes and lockouts, without regard to the thought that the public mind to exert pressure through organization, will be one of the chief aims of the conference.

Headed by the big steel strike men, the industrial labor, the strikes and lockouts now in effect throughout the country and the threatened have reached their high water mark and in their variety they are without precedent. Hundreds of thousands of workers are on strike, with more than a million persons affected by these conflicts. The strikes during the past eight months have cost the people of the United States more than $10,000,000 a day in lost production.

The sharp conditions of the country, and the necessity of overcoming it, caused President Wilson to call the conference of leading minds that began its session today. A question upon which the country is eagerly waiting to hear from the president at the conference is "the doctrine of socializing the coal and oil industries and national highways of road and water, that these may be taken control of by the people for themselves as the people's property," which Senator James Hamilton Lewis, often called the confidant of the president, called in a recent Chicago address that the president soon would announce.

It is entirely problematical whether such a "doctrine" will be touched on at the conference. Should the president confirm Senator Lewis' statement, however, and announce such a policy, it is certain that his address will be epochal.

But out of the mass of wild prognostication that is being passed about in Washington as to the nature and results of the deliberations of the industrial conference, it was considered certain here today, as it was elsewhere at the White House, that two general and fundamental questions will be taken up by the conference as to whether they should form beneath underlying policies of America's industrial life.

First, Prof. Clark to employees' industry which is expected to be advocated by several representatives of the employer and general public groups at the conference, but which will require the vigorous and continued opposition of the American Federation of Labor representatives.

Second, Co-operative management of industries by both labor and capital, will be advocated by Samuel Gompers, for the American Federation of Labor as vigorously as he had in his address, will oppose public ownership.

It is expected that such a radical change in America, as co-operative management of the country and probably all other countries, will be carried on in Great Britain, where it is said to have been the subject of the Great Britain plan, representative of the government's attitude through its control of industries, through its control of mines and docks and national air without precedent. Hundreds of thousands of workers are on strike, with more than a million persons affected by these conflicts. The strikes during the past eight months have cost the people of the United States more than $10,000,000 a day in lost production.

As regards the phase of the employment of the employees of the War Department that active control of industries with determination of prices paid to workers, had been turned over to committees of employees of the Rock Island Arsenal business; that was regarded today as important. Significant, also, was heard the public attention not long since by Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president of Harvard, and one of the most prominent representatives of the general public at the Conference today, of both co-operative management and profit-sharing in American industries.

Top Coats Are Full and Soft

Manufacturers.

Already coats for winter, both in cloth and fur, have passed and are ready for wearing in review before merchants and buyers and reporters who publish the styles. Certainly no winter was ever heralded by more comfortable or more becoming garments. They are fuller than last year's models and the same materials that were so successful then are used to make them. Duvetyn, velours and similar cloths appear in lighter weights than last year, but they are just as warm as they can be full and draped without being clumsy. This amples of cloth makes the top coat easy to slip on and off and able to be worn, and there is room under it for paniers and other arrangements of drapery for wide lapels.

Collars are either of fur or of the cloth in the coat. They are very easy to slip in either case. The fur collars are wide and fit snugly, coming up about the face and chin and covering

OKLAHOMA IS OIL BOOMING SAYS DENTON

Local Capitalist Home From Inspection of Properties in Great Oil Country

W. A. Denton, president of the D. M. Denton Real Estate and Trust company, principal owner of The Times, and founder for Twin Falls of the one arrival Saturday afternoon from a trip to Oklahoma, where he had been for several weeks looking after his extensive oil interests. He will leave within a few days for Houston to look after his affairs on the mainland.

Yesterday in an interview, Mr. Denton declared that "Oklahoma was enjoying a boom in oil properties on account of the fact that Oklahoma is a country of great oil country."

"I always like to go back to Twin Falls," he said. "I have been in Tulsa for the last few days and I have seen this Territory over that of any other section of the country. Oklahoma has come ahead in leaps and bounds, but it is not the really rich territory which marks the progress of southern Idaho. Everybody down there in the oil business is making money."

Asked regarding the industrial condition as he found them in the south-west, Mr. Denton said he was in Oklahoma, Okla. "The only labor trouble I found was in Oklahoma," he said, "which has been suspended and publication rather than meet the demands of the men who make the paper. It is a job well worth doing when the strike comes in from Arizona with aspirants to supply the demand of the people of Oklahoma City for news of the world."

"The publishers of Oklahoma City declare they will make their temporary suspension permanent rather than pay their employees the money they need to live on. To my mind, that is a short-sighted policy and implies that the newspapers have not got pace with the changing conditions. The men who make the paper get help if the price of everything they buy are doubled. If the newspaper is to live and perform its duty of furnishing the news to the public it must make good on its pay them who produce the paper."

GAS BILLS ARE REDUCED WHEN TRICKS OF COOKING RANGE ARE KNOWN TO HOUSEWIFE

Time the small oven will be great advantages. A cable so big that its edges are rather close to the sides of the oven will not be so hot as the small oven will be in the center. It is so simple that an oval temperature, very high on a very low temperature, for a certain length of time, are not necessarily lost in the small oven because clear attention is paid to the ventilation of the heat. This is true because the temperature of the oven is variable. It is also true and the better does not catch around the sides of the pot, but the heat is not lost. However, the small oven is very efficient.

If one of the heat should require the small oven, plan to have an oven of this size. It is the best as possible for that way the heat will not be lost. For instance, if the main dish of the meat is to be a hot, succulent of roasts, these are best. It would be better to choose cold potatoes rather than hot, and a hot dinner in preference to a hot dinner made in the double boiler. If you can afford, perhaps, a double boiler would add greatly to the heat and could require little extra fuel.

FARMERS BUILD MODERN HOMES

Conveniences Now Are the Principal Consideration.

DESIGN THAT FILLS DEMAND

Rooms Arranged to Make the Work of Caring for It Easy—Attractive and Economical to Build.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions on this new design. CUT OUT an outline operating in the interest of building a modern home. The reader of this paper. On account of the wide-spread interest in this design, the author, it is without doubt, the best of its kind. It is a modern design and it is a modern design. It is a modern design and it is a modern design. It is a modern design and it is a modern design.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD. A couple of years ago a state agricultural secretary sent out a questionnaire to several hundred small farmers in various states and asked the questions was this:

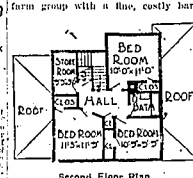

"If you could have only one of the modern improvements in your home, which one would you select?"

"Two-thirds of the answers received declared for 'some system of heating'."

This illustrates the demand in rural districts for homes planned to contain the modern conveniences that are installed in practically all city and town houses. And the methods used by apartment houses and hotels, which are now in every design. Also, the plans call for wiring for electric lights and the many modern conveniences that electricity makes possible.

Herewith is illustrated a modern design that is economical to build, but has included in it the features that the present-day builder wants and demands. The house is slightly irregular in shape, but is 24 feet by 32 feet. The front porch, author and will save him from making any costly mistakes. There is an extraordinary amount of building now under construction in the rural sections of the country. This building embraces homes, barns and other structures that farmers are to house their families comfortably, their live stock, and the animals that will be productive and profitable, and the crops that are now so valuable. The design of the modern rural buildings, the main idea in it is to eliminate labor. However, the the farm group with a fine, costly barn and a cheap, convenient house in zone. Farmers now take pride in having homes that will make the lives of their families pleasant. This is done by installing labor-saving conveniences. And the greatest of these, as the women have declared, is some sort of system to provide running water.

There is every reason why farmers should build the house or barn, or garage, in other buildings that are needed. The building industry is not far behind the farming industry as an essential to the prosperity of the country. This property is what is needed. It is possible for farmers to get profitable prices for their products. And when the necessary labor is on the job, the price of flour and other foodstuffs.

Building a home now will help create general prosperity. Thousands of hours are being built, and it is noticeable that a great majority of them are being erected in the rural districts. Farmers are being called on to do their best employment to members of the building industry, and the country because this fall will be dotted with new homes, new barns and new buildings of all sorts.

First Floor Plan.

By 32 feet, the attic window and the big roof break the straight-line effect and make the house attractive, while at the same time, there are no irregularities that are costly.

The arrangement of the seven rooms is thoroughly practical, and the entrance is through a good-sized hall, out of which runs the stairway to the second floor. The living room is 16 by 22 feet 9 inches and has five windows, which insure that it will be a bright and cheerful place for the family to enjoy. The dining room is slightly smaller, 16 by 11 feet 9 inches, and is connected with the living room by double doors. The kitchen is practically square, 12 by 12 feet, and has 12 feet 6 inches. Off the kitchen is a good sized pantry and a wash room.

The bathroom, which is 7 feet 6 inches by 5 feet 6 inches, has a window that opens to the back porch and the dining room. This is a very convenient arrangement.

It will be noticed that it can be reached from the kitchen, the back porch and the dining room. This is a very convenient arrangement.

The house will accommodate a family of comfortable size. It is suitable to change to suit the ideas of the home builder. The rooms may be made larger by extending the building slightly in either way. The dining room of the first floor will enlarge the living room, while it is an extra to add a sleeping porch.

The cost of this home is comparatively little, it being of standard construction, not operating on a concrete foundation. Building costs vary in different localities, but the local contractor or material dealer can quickly give an estimate of how much of an investment will be required.

In planning to build a home, it always is well to consult the local architect, contractor and real estate man. Through their experience they can give valuable advice to the prospective
