REDLAND REDS ARE JUBILANT

Four Scouting-Count 'Em, Four Hauling to Belt Fill Them With Confidence and Pep

CHAMPAIGN, Oct. 7.—The campaign here came to a familiar climax today, after a four day regimen in all-around and Cincinnati turned out to be a most successful one. The Redlands were very confident and pep.

The Reds, having acquired the world's championship championship title, are now on a high of confidence and pep. The fact that they are beating in their own ballpark, and now need only one more triumph to complete the circle for Chicago, has emboldened this bunch of boys to beyond description, beyond words.

Meanwhile Pat Moran has become a figure of more or less importance in the Cincinnati news columns. He is a former field pitcher, and has been a member of the Redlands. He has been a member of the Redlands, and has been a member of the Redlands.

Through fifty years, Cincinnati has had an excellent record. It has been a winning ball club, and has been a winning ball club. It has been a winning ball club, and has been a winning ball club.

And meanwhile the White Sox came to this town just a week ago, and are now in the midst of a campaign. They are now in the midst of a campaign, and are now in the midst of a campaign.

SUPPLY LUMBER FOR LESS COST IS OBJECTIVE

North Side Canal and Pumping Companies Figure on Saving Large Sum to People

Prominent North Side business men are planning the organization of a lumber company which has as its object the selling of lumber cheaper than the dealers there are now selling. The concern would be a lumber and mercantile company, under the laws of the state of Idaho and would have a capital stock of $250,000, to be divided into 25,000 shares when $50,000 had been subscribed.

A meeting of the directors of the North Side Canal company was held a few weeks ago at which the present prices of building material were discussed. A committee was appointed at that time to inquire into the matter and as the result of this committee F. M. Anderson was sent to the lumber producing districts of the coast to ascertain for what lumber could be purchased direct from the mills.

Later a meeting of both the Canal company and the Pumping company was held at Jerome September 15, at which all interested persons were invited to be present to hear Mr. Anderson's report of his trip to the coast.

It was found that lumber could be laid down at any of the towns on the North Side at from 42¢ to 50¢ per thousand feet, the price being sold for by local yards on the North Side. Mr. Anderson also stated that if the quality of the lumber were taken into consideration, the price differences a much larger difference would exist.

In the opinion of the men interested in the formation of the company, the growth of the North Side project has been retarded largely because of the high cost of building material. They believe a company can be formed that will sell lumber cheaper than it is now being sold and that if this could be done a building boom would ensue.

It has been estimated that $2,000,000 worth of lumber and other building material will be required on the North Side within the next three years. In a statement issued by the promoters of the enterprise, they say: "We believe a saving of around 20 per cent can be made in the lumber buying and selling of this large bill. It is not too much to expect that a saving of $500,000 can be made. This is a large sum. It's money saved that is really made."

"We desire to make it perfectly safe and practical to do this for you."

"While it will be necessary for legal reasons to organize a separate company to do this work, the new concern will be closely related to the Canal and Pumping companies."

Anyone residing on the North Side may subscribe $100 of the stock of the new company. No one can subscribe less than $100 and will have an equal interest. The earnings on the stock are to be applied upon the unpaid balance until it is fully paid. A dividend not to exceed 10 per cent may be paid on the stock in one year. All other earnings of the company in excess of stock dividends, including fund will be distributed to its stockholders in proportion to their purchases during the year.

"There will be no credit business. The only one of the reasons given by the company why they are endeavoring to sell cheaper."

LET'S CONTRACT FOR NEW BRIDGE

City Council Accepts Bid of C. H. Mull for Bock Creek Structure for $48,800

The city council last night awarded C. H. Mull the contract for the construction of the bridge at a cost of $48,800. Mr. Mull's bid was the lowest submitted.

The council considered only minor matters last evening. Hal G. Biles, superintendent of schools, asked that the city flags be flown next week when 800 teachers gather here for institute. The request was granted.

An advance of $270.95 was made to Mr. Mull for the work which he has completed on the main trunk sewer. Council ordered a resolution prepared, maintaining a street near the tickle school at the school board's request.

Street Commissioner Berg was instructed by the council to inform every merchant within the fire district that the city streets and streets around their places of business must be cleaned up within a week and that a receipt be procured with a lid on it to be placed upon the bed of the inflammable material and that the box must also have a lock on it.

Outrigger, who is acting mayor, believes the councilmen that he is probably more out of his mind before the next meeting. A new councilman will then be selected. Bills of about $500 were paid.

EFFICIENT AND ATTRACTIVE BARN

Fourteen-Sided Structure Is Novel, But Convenient. IS YEAR OF FARM BUILDING

The Design Shown Here Is Intended to House Sheep, Horses and Cattle—Modern Buildings Good Investment.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and furnish plans for the construction of a barn for the reader of this paper. On account of the many inquiries for the author and publisher, he is without doubt, the most popular of the farm building authors and only includes William A. Radford, 210 West Division Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only includes modern stamp for

With wood of the present price and the likelihood that it will stay there because of the world-wide shortage of lumber, American farmers are adding blocks of sheep to the live stock on their places. And in so doing there has come a need for buildings to house them.

Fourteen-sided barn 18' 0" in diameter and has a 12-foot slope to the top.

As every sheep is liable to weather conditions, and frequently a rainy spell will cause a considerable loss. While sheep must have plenty of pasture in which to run and feed, they also must have a place to shelter them, for they certainly "know enough to come in when the rain falls." Besides the fact that the sheep gets from the pasture, it is necessary also to provide them with pasture, which usually is attractive in specially designed feed racks. Most of this feeding is done indoors by those who have been successful in sheep raising.

Farm building architects, whose business it is to design buildings to suit the needs of various animal husband, have taken the needs of sheep into consideration in planning the sheep barn. But there are many farmers who would like to raise sheep, if they could do so without making a large investment in buildings. For this reason, the architect has planned the barn shown in the accompanying illustration.

On the main floor around the side there is ample space for the winter supply of hay for the animals. The building will accommodate while the alfalfa furnishes them with fresh feed throughout the winter months.

The exterior of the barn is attractive and will add to the appearance of the farm building group. It is of frame construction set on a concrete foundation. The half of the interior which is devoted to stalls for the horses and cattle has a concrete floor, the half for sheep has a dirt floor, graded so as to provide ample drainage to keep the floor dry, a thing the sheep must have. The stalls for horses and cows or for sheep are arranged around the perimeter, the animals to face in. At the rear of the stalls is a gutter sink into the water tank and connected to the carrier track for the removal of litter. The track also runs over the head of the stalls, which makes the feeding of the stock easy. Attached around the building over the sheep feeding racks. The plan of the floor shows the placing of the stalls, the sheep feed racks and the overhead carrier system.

The floor is made of concrete and can be constructed by the carpenter who built the barn. While they are placed under the carrier track for sheep, they can be transferred out doors, in good weather and taken into the barn in bad weather. The stalls will accommodate fourteen horses or cattle and provide

Cities Go West

Henry Watson says cities have a strange tendency to move west. The writer "Guard" in the Philadelphia Press.

Europe's three largest cities, London, Paris and Berlin, have distinctly moved west from their original sites.

Tokyo, which in Japan's biggest city, and Canton, the metropolis of China, Calcutta for years the capital of British India, the largest city of Africa, shifted westward.

South America's two principal cities, Rio Janeiro and Buenos Aires, shifted in the west. East and west grew inland, as did Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Chicago.

The North American continent is a vast expanse of land and water. It couldn't help the Hudson on the west.

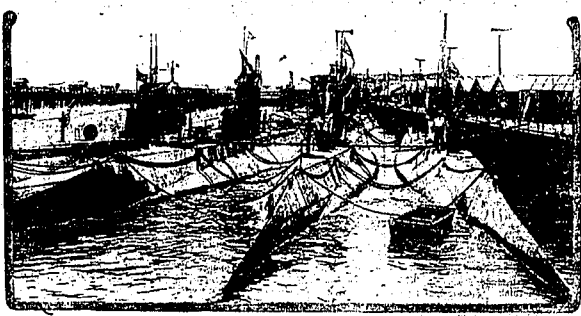

Vegetation Carried Far. Evidence of possible long-distance plant dispersal could doubtless be picked up on many expeditions. Reports to the Royal Irish Academy for two centuries ago have been confirmed by modern expeditions. PLENTY OF COAL COMING IN

The heavy demand for coal the past few weeks has made it necessary to triple our orders with the mines.

After being short of coal for a few days due to the unusually heavy patronage, we are pleased to announce a shipment arrived this morning.

With the new arrangements with the mines we hope to receive several cars a day which we feel safe in assuring our patrons will be sufficient to fill not only all current orders, but will enable us to store enough in our yard to care for any emergency that may arise.

We take this means of thanking our patrons for the whole hearted support accorded us in our desire to operate our business without affiliating with the combination to boost up prices.
