MORE TO 4 TO 1

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Eddie Cicotte pitched the White Sox to a four-out victory over the Reds this afternoon. Ineffectiveness of Harry Sullivan, teamed in the Red's defense and a few timely errors by the Sox, notwithstanding, were the contributing factors in the triumph of the White Sox.

JOHNSON WOULD BE PRESIDENT

Judge Carey Says Higan's Only Purpose in Present Trip Is to Advertise Himself

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 7.—When Senator Hiram Johnson, fiery opponent of the league of nations, arrived in Portland this morning he was told that the mayor of the city, George L. Baker, declined to present him to an audience at the public auditorium to-night where the senator is to address a mass meeting of citizens. He also was shown an editorial in a morning Republican newspaper castigating his stand on the league and peace pact, and likewise confronted with a half-column communication over the signature of Hon. Charles H. Carey, a leading Republican politician, denouncing to several Republican national conventions and candidates for a like place next year, in it Judge Carey alleged that Johnson's present trip is for the purpose of advertising himself as a candidate for president, therefore Mr. Carey could not accept the honor of introducing the senator at tonight's auditorium meeting. However, Senator Johnson and his supporters expressed little concern over this condition, claiming they would be remaining. "It's only their first year. They'll have others. Then they'll subside."

At the request of the early hour, 7:30, but a small delegation of friends met him at the depot, and these broke him with him at his hotel. Later the night he met members of the press at a dinner was given by the Chamber of Commerce, and during the afternoon will speak at a reception in his hotel. In addition, he will address a full house at the public auditorium.

Fashionable Sweater Coats

The sweater, that summer and winter companion of the outdoor girl, is no fall-sweater friend. But, nevertheless, it has taken its cue from the suit and blouse, and is made in several very attractive styles that open down the front and demand a vest or blouse to be worn with them. These vests are made of the same material, but are varied, according to the demands of occasion and weather. Sometimes they are of crisp serge and lace and sometimes of plain waves in fine silk. It is the vest that adorns the sweater coat to the day and the occasion.

The last word in these attractive late-summer sweaters is a sport and the picture above conveys it to you. Of the two models shown, the one at the right is the most novel. It is made of fiber silk, knitted (by machinery) in a wonderfully pretty fancy stitch, with a facing that forms a collar in a simple slash. The belt is knitted to match the facing, and one end of it slips through a slit in the other end; both are pointed and fasten with a loop over a pearl button. The cuffs and a border about the bottom of the sweater are knitted in still another stitch, and a narrow band of black introduced in them gives a sharp and brilliant color contrast. This sweater is made in several bright colors.

THE AVERAGE YOUNG MAN

Nearly any young man will argue that he is an average young man. That's out of the failing of men, both young and old. They maintain an average. They never expect to set the world afire. They are satisfied to drift along in the flow of an average interest in young men. The Times has faith in the ultimate good to be accomplished by the young men of today, because they accomplished so much during the war. But getting right down to business, the Times asked several business men the simple question: "What is wrong with the average young man today?"

It was a sort of unfair advantage we took of the business men for there was the subtle suggestion that there is something wrong. And they all agreed that something is wrong with young men today. The consensus of opinion may be summed up in the following words:

"He doesn't want to work."

"This natural aversion to work is not to be wondered at, but there is something radically wrong with any young fellow who is willing to set his feet under a pile three times a day, without giving thought to the time when that pile will no longer be available. We've hunted up and talked to a number of young men during the last few weeks. They all seem to know a great deal more about movie stars and football and the world series than we do, but not one of the half a dozen had read the covenant of the league of nations, and only one knew who the secretary of state is."

"They are all good, likable chaps, lively and entertaining within their limited sphere, but when any economic or political question is broached they grow fidgety and are willing to change the subject. None seemed to have any objective or life purpose. None had any idea what he would be doing ten years from today. The most forward look any had taken was to the next pay day. The interest of their employer did not concern them. Every one of the young men knew there was no appreciation of their superior qualities, by their employers, for not one had received an increase of pay likely of more than the six per cent a year for months. All professed to 'keep up' by reading the newspapers."

"This condition likely is not unchangeable. And yet nothing serious seems to be done to overcome it. Perhaps it ought not to be overcome. Perhaps it is better that the young men do not think, or read. For boys it is well that dad is absent willing to take care of them. Democracy demands something else from them. They are neglecting their present opportunities are laying a weak foundation for future citizenship. They will inherit their politics and their father's accumulations and they may trust the future to care for itself."

And so the world shall move on to greater and greater things.

THE DISTRIBUTOR'S TWO-THIRDS

During the last four years the California Fruit Growers' Association has received an average of $100 a acre for oranges. Bringing the same period the average price paid by the consumer is said to have been $180 a acre.

When the milk consumer pays 11 to 15 cents a quart, the farmer generally gets 7 to 7 and a half cents.

There have been many instances recorded lately of farmers selling tomatoes for 30 and 35 cents a bushel and consumers paying $2 a bushel for them.

In general, the original producer of food receives about 35 percent out of every dollar that the consumer pays for it.

Much of this margin is, of course, inevitable. Wholesale and retailers and most of the other factors come under the title of "middlemen" perform a real service of some kind or other. There is certainly something wrong with the system. It is too costly. All the emphasis lately has been placed on production. "Produce more," the experts have said, "and food will be cheaper." Would it not be better to put more emphasis on distribution?

It seems quite evident that more money might be saved out of that 65 cents which goes to the distributors than out of the party 4 which goes to the producer. If the processes of distribution could be so simplified that the cost of getting the food from producer to consumer were reduced one-half, there would be a big saving to the consumer as if the farmers, gardeners, poultrymen, dairymen, etc. made the public a free gift of all they produced, but by the middlemen distribute it as they do at present.

A commission from India is studying prison and corrective methods in this country. After several months of observation and study the commissioners say they are not so sure that Indian methods are not pretty good as they stand. Perhaps they feel as many American do, that prison reform is a simple matter, but reforming the prisoners presents a difficulty not yet solved in any country.

Why put the electric fan away, when it can be used before the furnace grate to start the fire, in the laundry to help dry the clothes or on a shelf in the kitchen, and toward a window opened at the top, to blow the cooking odors out of doors?

One remedy for the high cost of living is fishkeeping. You won't catch anything, but it will take you mind off your troubles.

Last winter it was the flu. This winter it may be the strike.

FLASHLIGHTS

Much that the average man calls hand lamp is actually his own fault.

This winter is mighty good for us, but unfortunately few of us are ready for it.

A young woman sets her cap on a man in the hope that he will buy her blouse.

The man who is looking for trouble doesn't need to worry from his eyesight to find it.

When a man goes to the point where he thinks he knows it all he's about ready for the fool-feller.

There's no fool quite so foolish as the man who starts out to do something which he thinks he can't do.

Among the recent disappearances in it to meet the man who predicted a cold winter because of the open water.

Some people go away for the summer just to get away from the people who would come to visit them if they stayed at home.

Nothing comes a girl that she must marry a certain young man quite so surely as her parents' continual objection that he is the son of her.

The man who marries three times or more either had misty eyes, or had the first one or is just determined to keep at it until he finds a wife he can be happy with.

It takes all sorts of people to make up a town, but every one and then some are in a town who are not.

They would not have been missed had they been forgotten. Detroit Free Press.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS

Nearly all busy people are happy.

It's a man's outfit that plays havoc with his income.

One blow splits the comb and one reasonably so.

It is easier to avoid cold than it is to dodge a creditor.

Some men always do their best—just to stay their best friends.

One can't judge the good there is in a man by the worldly goods he possesses.

To strain soda is a popular interior decoration at the present stage of the game.

But it is first that the congregation of a sidewalk preacher is seldom caught napping.

It sometimes happens that when a man takes a rest he takes something that he had justly earned.

Yes, the world has one you on a heel, but you will surely be back if you do down and wait for it to come and settle—Chicago Daily News.

REFLECTIONS

The flash often strikes the situation in a political union.

Why does the faded man in the crowd always get in front?

It is a wise fool that has been his life of wisdom to himself.

If a man has a hole in his bonnet he is necessarily a man of lively head.

A new broom doesn't sweep any cleaner than an old one with a new head and old handle.

It is true, Babala, that no man would be willing to swear to everything his wife's doing country.

Why does the average man never realize that when he says "I will" that the law begins to work?

Thought seems to be a patrician affliction. It makes the eyes red, the ears white and the feelings lame.

If you would know what your friends say of you when absent think of what is said of others in your presence.

Not So Good as It Sounded.

"What's that chap you went to college with doing now?"

"He's making a living with a hand-organ."

"With a hand-organ? How's that?"

"He's making a living with a hand-organ."

LABOR'S HOPE IN GOOD UNION MAN

Bulwark of Nation's Stability Through Conservative Trade Organization.

HIS MOTTO, JUSTICE FOR ALL

Though Frequently Misunderstood, and Too Often Mistakenly Misrepresented, the World is Better for the Work He Has So Uncertainly Done and is Doing.

At this period of world unrest, with millions of men and women of different nationalities, speaking different languages, and holding different opinions, a common bond of union is needed. The man who is able to bridge the gap between these different groups, and to bring about a common understanding, is the man who is the backbone of the nation. The man who is the backbone of the nation is the man who is the backbone of the nation.

Such an article is the following: From the pen of Mr. Charles W. Fair, editor of the "New York Times," dated the 21st of October, 1919.

"The world that comes out of the laborer's hands is not only the world that breaks the bread and feeds the body, but it is the world that breaks the bread and feeds the soul. The world that comes out of the laborer's hands is not only the world that breaks the bread and feeds the body, but it is the world that breaks the bread and feeds the soul. The world that comes out of the laborer's hands is not only the world that breaks the bread and feeds the body, but it is the world that breaks the bread and feeds the soul."

FOUGHT THE FLOWING BOWL

Eastern Monarchs and Religious Leaders Largely Affected by Vice Against Drunkenness.

Temperance movement, and prohibition crusade date back at least 2000 years. It was China that first tried to be temperate. Early reforms about 2200 B.C. were carried out by the kings of India and Persia. But the Chinese claim that in the seventh century before Christ the emperor of China was disgusted over the prevalence of drunkenness, and ordered all the vineyards in the kingdom uprooted.

A hundred years before this emperor's death, in the seventh century before Christ, King Wen tried prohibition in China. His founder of the Chou dynasty, promulgated an "Anouncement Against Drunkenness" in which he exhorted Chinese dignitaries to abstain from wine.

King Wen declared drinking to be a national vice. He ordered that those who had any wine in their possession with themselves, and even their drunkenness was not to be tolerated.

The temperance reform, which was instituted in Egypt centuries before Christ, was a woman's rather than a man's. It was the woman who was the backbone of the nation.

Life's Master-Key

Life's master-key is a personal possession. It's yours to use. It's your estimate of yourself plus sufficient initiative to bring ideas to pass. You're bound to be questioned and discounted at every turn. Others have the same mental concept of their worth as you do. It's your job to show them that is not fact. No, you won't begin that old quarrel about the material of the reform. It's your duty as a literate man to do just, impartial and irreversible. They know neither set nor moral position. They will justify their will with their own, to do the opposite facts. When opportunity steps into your way, grasp the forehead or join the great army of those who spend the time in regrets and those who sigh "If I had only known."

Power of Imagination

A typical, treating an old woman at a hospital, found her temperature on each visit by putting a thermometer under her tongue. One day, when she was nearly well, the doctor did not take her temperature. He had secretly got 100 yards from the house when her son called to her. "Mother, it means," said the young man, "I'm back on top." The doctor returned. As he went to the old woman, she said to him, "I'm back on top." He said, "Why didn't you tell me that under my tongue today? That man says did me more good than all the rest of your trash."

Neatness Featured in Girls' Clothes

Designers of children's clothes for this season featured neatness in them and found the results so good, and so satisfactory to the buying public that they are concluding this effort in the new fall line.

In the new fall line, in dresses for schoolgirls, simple designs with contrasting lines in bright colors, and bows of bright, broad, in the new workable material, account for about all that attractive manufacture that they are coming out in the way of decoration. There is a fitting for even severely plain styles in the dress for schoolgirls in which the dressmaker's cleverness is in the way of the skirt, with plain buttons, pleated skirts reaching below the knees and tucked-in waists, and neat dresses with the introduction of color or use of regular or built-in, making an ensemble that makes every eye.

Any of the new styles are suitable for making a dress like that shown in the picture. The model appears to be of sweet cloth but it is an advantage over a good quality of serge or whipcord or other firm material. The skirt has a three-inch hem and it holds in a triple box pleat at the front and back. It is cut on a plain waist cut, surplice style and V-shaped neck opening and revers. The neck opening, small collar collar, and the cuffs are outlined with white silk braid. There is a wide, plain belt of the dress material bound with braid and a narrow ribbon tie.

Young girls are likely to have very decided opinions of their own in the matter of dress. That an elegance and refinement are a part of their education, as important as any other part of it, mothers must insist upon appropriate clothes for school wear, taking time to explain to these girls and their mothers, which expert designers have turned out, are better than fancier ones.

Every Animal in This Picture Was Proved to Have Tuberculosis. Below: This Herd, at the United States Government Home, Washington, D. C., Was Found to Be Free From Tuberculosis, and Was Given the First Accredited Herd Certificate.

TUBERCULOSIS IS OFTEN DISCOVERED IN HEALTHY-APPEARING BUNCH OF CATTLE

The Federal government, in cooperation with state livestock sanitary officials, has made a beginning in the best of driving "animal 12," from this country. It can not be done in a year, nor probably in a score of years, but every owner of even small herds of cattle can help forward the campaign by making sure that his animals are not carrying and spreading the germs of this dangerous highly contagious and contagious disease. Tuberculosis test applied by a trained operator.

Tuberculosis is the most accurate diagnosis made in the selection of stock. It is safe only in the hands of a trained and skilled operator who is acquainted with its action and illustrations.

Can Not Trust Eyes Alone.

Many fine herds of cattle which were a delight to the owner and which seemed to be healthy on superficial examination, have been found to be extensively infested with tuberculosis. They appeared to be perfectly healthy and subsequent slaughter of the animals proved that the test had not gone wrong. Their bodies were found to contain extensive lesions of tuberculous, and they had been allowed to mix with other cattle and sows and to pass on to other cattle and sows.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH THE AMERICAN RED CROSS

In Roumania

Since after the entrance of the Roumanians in this war the success of the Central Powers in Roumania had reduced that country to a most tragic condition and in the summer of 1917, the American Red Cross dispatched its first Roumanian relief contingent. Two hospitals were at once taken over and operated by the Red Cross, a center for the starving refugees established and food and clothing distributed over a large area. Transportation was one of the most urgent problems with which the Red Cross workers in Roumania had to cope. Here is seen an officer sent by the Red Cross to carry its relief supplies up into the mountains.
