Secured Market.
If not too severe, search marks are most effectively remedied by soaking the part in cold water and exposing to the rays of the sun, mistakingly fresh air is dried, until the flecks disappear.

To remove scurf from linen, put two ounces of Fuller's earth in a saucpan, add half an ounce of white soap, the juice of two large onions and one cupful of vinegar. Boil together for a few minutes, strain into a jar, and bespattered for fifteen days, spread on the soiled portion with a knife, and allow it to dry on. The stain will soon disappear. If the garment is soiled with ironing, rub a lump of dry starch on the smudge. Then squeeze it off. Repeat till the yellow disappears.

Iron-Mold and Dry-Iron Stains.
Iron-mold and dry-iron stains may be removed by placing the stained material in a hot solution of salts of sorrel or salts of lemon, and leaving it to steep until they are blue, or by trying the boiling part over a basin and pouring hot water through to moisten the cloth, which enables the chemical action to take place more rapidly. Then a small quantity of salts of lemon or salts of iron should be applied to the stain and rubbed freely by hand, and boiling water again poured through. If the first application does not remove it, the process must be repeated. It is best to use the old iron rust, neither of the above-mentioned chemicals may remove it completely. A solution of oxalic acid, which is a strong chemical, may even have the desired effect. It is best to use the same manner as salts of lemon but it must be used with great care, as it is injurious to fabric.

MAMMOTH CAVE LONG FAMOUS
Has Been Acknowledged One of the World's Wonders Since 1892.

The most famous cavern in America is Mammoth cave, in Kentucky, writes "Nikolai" in the Chicago Daily News. Mammoth cave was an old Indian refuge, and the story of public adventures is written plain in the skeletons, tombs and old records that have been found in the cave's depths. Then, in 1892, a white man, a pioneer hunter, followed a wounded bear into the mouth of the great cave, and from that time of Mammoth cave became in American estimation the eighth wonder of the world.

Almost as soon as the white man discovered the cavern he began to make practical use of it. Long before the era of Indian possession but had inhabited the cavern halls and in the course of time their skeletons had accumulated on the floor, especially near the entrance. The skeletons, containing nitrate, played an important part in the war of 1812, for nitrate, so needed for making explosives, was scarce in the colonies and the Mammoth cave became the main source of supply.

When the country settled down to a period of comfortable prosperity, Mammoth cave became, even more than it is today, a great show place of America. The cave's history is told in the names of the various rooms and galleries. Jenny Lind and other artists visited the cave and sang or played music before the folk is quite dry, sprinkle with salt and rub with half a lemon. Rinse off the acid and wash once. When the stains are dry, wash fresh, they may be removed by dipping the stained part in buttermilk, or milk, that has been boiled; change the milk frequently, then wash the article well.

To Remove Iron Rust.
Spots of iron rust which are so likely to be found on white dresses and aprons may be easily removed in the following way: Place a small lump of cream of tartar on the spot of iron rust, and tie up the dress goods so as to hold the cream of tartar on the spot. Tie the string to all the spots of iron rust and put the clothes into the boiler. After boiling, the clothes will be perfectly white and free from spots.

Find Upas Tree Valuable
Natives of Java Procure Ready-Made Clothing From Its Branches, With Little Effort.

One of the strangest myths is that which concerns the "deadly upas tree" of Java, whose poisonous exhalations were formerly alleged to kill any man or animal that ventured into its neighborhood.

It is the only kind of tree in the world that produces ready-made clothing. The tree's bark is a natural cloth, only requiring the removal of the soft outer part in order to render it available for use. A vertical section of it from a small branch will furnish a log for a pair of trousers or an apron for a coat, while from a larger branch the body of the garment is obtained.

Fall Cloaks Have Flowing Lines

The cape, pure and simple, having had its day of high favor, must pass on to make place for cloaks and coats more novel. But the cape is graceful and practical, a garment that women love to wear and manufacturers have capitalized their fondness for it by making out new garments that preserve its flowing lines. These new styles, at first glance, are very capricious. They are lank and ample, with long, thin, continuous drapery. Their collars are managed in a variety of clever ways, and some of them are collected while others are so amply supplied with this accessory that it becomes the dominant feature of their attire.

The cape, unmodified, is never wholly absent, and is represented this season in handsome evening wraps of silk. In these there are fur capes that are glistening of ermine, that will play their usual part in adding to the richness of fall and winter costumes. The cape, of a side cloth cape need not be that it is antiquated.

QUICKSILVER MINE PLEASER LOCAL EXPERT

Theo. Durier and William Peterson Inspect Rich Deposits in Yellow Pine Basin

"Yellow Pine Basin undoubtedly has one of the richest quicksilver deposits in the world," declared Theo. Durier of this city, who with another local man, William Peterson, has just returned from an inspection of the Fern Quicksilver Mine company's properties in that district. The two men, who were accompanied by a geologist from the United States Geological Survey, inspected a six-mile stretch of the basin, including a vein which has uncovered a vein mass of 500,000 tons of mercury, the largest ever discovered. Mr. Durier and Mr. Peterson spent three days on their trip of inspection and returned highly satisfied. They inspected personally and lightheartedly, by a number of friends in the morning yesterday. Mr. Durier described the way in which he obtained some well up to representation by the company which reported in the inspection trip.

The Yellow Pine basin, he states, is a scene of lively industry. Substantially all the basins are springing up, and preparations are being made to work the property on a large scale.

The mineral work at the mine, he states, is some of the best seen during his long experience. There is a reserve of ore visible to a depth of 48 feet. This great quantity of low grade ore, he says, is all mine, the back bone of the mine, although the vein is of high grade, the upper part, including an already mentioned vein, two to six feet, will yield a rich return.

Mr. Durier is enthusiastic over the mine's future. "I'd be glad to talk it over with anyone interested," he said. He resides, in addition, at a number of other points east of the Washington school.

BORROWED CAR FOR JOY RIDE

Barley and Paul Couple Land in Twin Falls Jail When Found in Missing Machine

Four young joy riders, two girls and two boys, spent last night in the county jail and were fined over $500 for a joy ride in a borrowed car. The joy ride was a party organized at Barley last night and on the night of the joy ride, the party was taken to the home of a young man in the city.

The boys, the Meson Knippen of Barley, aged 18 and 17, and a young man, aged 21, of Twin Falls, were taken up on the street here about 11 o'clock last evening by Sheriff Sprague. Their car was due to the fact that they were riding in a borrowed car belonging to a young man in the city who they had borrowed from a man at Barley who they supposed to be the owner.

The sheriff's office was told by the young man who they had borrowed the car from, and they were taken to the jail.

KEEPS FLOWERS ON QUENTIN'S RESTING PLACE

CHAMBERLY, France, Oct. 11.—A wreath-laden, mother and French woman, Madame Marchand, has taken up upon herself to tend the grave of Lieutenant Quentin Houshey, which lies just at the edge of the war-torn field village.

It is nearly a quarter of a mile from Madame Marchand's humble abode down to the site of ground where young Houshey fell in aerial combat with the Germans in June, 1918. But two or three times a week the old lady hobbles down the road with a handful of fresh flowers, throwing away the old ones. They do away any dirt that may have blown against the wooden cross at the head of the grave.

Two of her own sons were killed in the war. The grave of one who died in France they nearly and one who died in Italy she makes a pilgrimage to. The other lies in this same French soil.

The French have set up a wooden sign pointing the way to the burial plot, with a list of the names of the dead.

No Change in Condition of President

hours concerning the president's condition, given some color by Senator Wilson's letter, which, however, is now published in the House and is not intended for publication.

Admiral Grayson, who is not only the president's physician, but also his close friend and almost constant confidant, takes a purely professional view of the matter, and in his report to the president's physician, he declares that the president has been "restored to his normal condition" since the president's return from his speaking tour. He indicated that he will stand by his report, but he will not issue a public bulletin which, he declares, have been absolutely candid.

Dr. Grayson made several sarcastic remarks to the president's physician, but after things saying he did not understand the senator to be "boasted in the medical art."

Times and again Dr. Grayson has told the White House newspaper reporters that President Wilson's mind was very clear and active, that he was not as sick as his own physician had said recently that he has shown marked progress in regaining from the nervous strain caused by overwork. At Paris, the physician said, "might have been able to finish his work but he would be 'up and at it' early every morning. The continuing of the present work over the long war period would mean the same of the president's present condition a natural death."

It is known that Dr. Grayson has had a letter from the president's physician, and that the president was responding favorably to the rest cure and that there was no reason for apprehension as to the final outcome, notwithstanding the official bulletins have been issued to indicate that the president's recovery would require the prosecution of a cure and be urged patients upon the part of the president's friends, even as he made upon their rehabilitation on the part of the distinguished patients. It is known that Dr. Grayson has notified the members of the cabinet that only matters of the most urgent character may be brought to the president's attention at the present time, but if the magnitude of the situation calls for the president's knowledge of the subject and action by him, Dr. Grayson will present brief conferences with cabinet members.

Urges Highway as Guide to Aviators

MINEOLA, Oct. 11.—Discussing the commercial possibility in transcontinental flights, Major Carl Spatz said: "The first thing we would need would be a transcontinental highway. There wouldn't be any need for a landing field then. Such a road would provide a safe place to land and would provide a white line across the country for flyers' guidance. With such a highway it would be possible in an emergency to fly a battle squadron of planes across the United States in three days with a fair degree of safety. The road should run west from Salt Lake City and then have forks to Portland, Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles and El Paso."

Melon Party for Service Men Held

Seymour Fairchild staged a long delayed melon party for the returned service men yesterday at the city park, this achieving an ambition which was once thwarted by the city authorities who fined him for soliciting subscriptions for financing such an event, not having a license for that form of activity.

A good sized crowd was reported at the feast, also being entertained by the vocal efforts of their hosts. A silver offering was taken.

Several thousand pounds of melons remaining will be distributed free to the service men on park to others, until Monday, at the sold to Mr. Fairchild announced last evening.
