GOLD MINERS ARE REPORTED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Reports of gold strikes in the United States for a second year are reported today.

THE FIRST PRAYER

"The first prayer (vs. 32-38). (1) The disciples on the cross, in the hour of our great need, we naturally pray for ourselves before God. This is a beautiful feature of the prayer (vs. 39). "Take away this cup from me."

THE SECOND PRAYER

"The second prayer (vs. 39, 40). He addresses the second time from the disciples and uttered the same words in prayer. It is proper to repeat our requests, and the disciples asked for strength. Their shame and confusion were marked than at first.

THE THIRD PRAYER

"The third prayer (vs. 41, 42). He uttered the same words in his third prayer (Matt. 26:41). He now tells the disciples to stand up and bid their feet as the hour had come for his betrayal. There is such a thing as being asleep when wanted and awake when it is too late. If the disciples had been praying they would not have fallen asleep.

WINS COUNTY SWEEPSTAKES

Filing Led Proves He is Best Pig Raster in County by Taking First Prize

TED HIERER

Ted Hierer of Filer won the county sweepstakes in the pig raising class. He has been very successful in pig raising and attributes his success to a thorough knowledge of swine and his great love of all things pertaining to the farm.

It was not difficult, the farm bureau says, to award the sweepstakes prize. Ted stood out above all the contestants so far that there could be but one selection. It is McCreo of Maroa who is the lady's teacher and much of the boy's success has been due to his untiring efforts.

McCreo worked hard throughout the summer in an effort to make the club a success. The champion's story follows:

My father had wintered three old sows and a male. On March 15th one sow had nine piglets and laid on all but three. On April 7th the last three came. We sold all the sows and the male. We decided to feed the five pigs, three from the first litter and two from the last. The first two we took them away from the sows. The three older ones were all sows. Pig number one has a spot on the right side. Pig No. 2 has a hole in the right ear. Pig number three has a hole in the left ear. The other two were later ones, one a sow and one a male. We did not mark them, but their sexes appeared. We put them in a little forest of black walnut trees about one-fourth acre. I had to spray all feed and water to keep them from wintering again. These pigs were for winter again and they were given to me to see what I could do to feeding. So I joined the Pig Club and followed their instructions. They have had no milk. They had some house soap; the most wheat and mixed feed with what alfalfa that grew in the forest.

On May 10th pig number one weighed 45 pounds.

On May 20 pig number two weighed 42 pounds.

On May 20 pig number three weighed 40 pounds.

On May 20 pig number four weighed 40 pounds. (This is the male.)

On May 20 pig number five weighed 40 pounds.

On July 24, 50 days later I weighed them again, having fed 156 pounds of wheat and 230 pounds of mill feed at $2.25 a hundred pounds. At this date July 24, they weighed:

Pig number one weighed 108 1/2 lbs. Pig number two weighed 98 1/2 lbs. Pig number three weighed 97 1/2 lbs. (This is the male.)

Pig number five weighed 67 1/2 lbs. On August 1, 37 days later, I again weighed:

Pig number one weighed 132 lbs. Pig number two weighed 128 lbs. Pig number three weighed 121 1/2 lbs.

Pig number four (male) weighed 85 pounds.

I fed in three days 75 pounds of wheat and 16 pounds of mill feed. On August 17, 68 pounds of wheat. August 18, 78 pounds of wheat.

September 10-12 lbs. of wheat. September 11-12 lbs. of wheat. September 17-13 lbs. of wheat. My father helped me with each time. Pig number two shows a very large gain on this last weighing. We cannot account for this unless we made a mistake the first time. We weighed twice this last time and know it is correct. One thing I decided to cut out for the next ones and will register the three older ones and enter the pure bred class the large amount of wheat fed on the last feeding is due to having so little feed.

BARNTREINER POSTED AS LOST

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—The barkentine Thresher, nearly forty days overdue from this port for Seattle, was today posted as lost.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 5.—Blair for today's style of fiction, writing was placed upon the late O. Henry, known as William Sydney Porter, who died in New York, during an address here at Ohio State university.

"Modern authors are not living up to their opportunities," declared Garland.

"It is not that the journalist has too big a place in the literary world, but that he is not a real writer."

"I don't remember anything about it except that he looked like anyone else."

"He was very secretive. He had enormous inventive powers but there was always a trick somewhere. His writings lacked that fine serious intent. He was not definitive, not expressive."

ONLY ONE GERMAN PERMITTED TO LIVE IN PARIS DURING WAR

PARIS, Dec. 4.—There was just one German who lived in Paris through the war with the permission of the authorities quite undisturbed, and that was the German ambassador in the Rue de Lorraine. Dorothea had no friends. Solitude upon her, and one afternoon, taking the key to the embassy's cellar she excavated several bottles and began enjoying life in the caretaker's cottage.

By 8 o'clock that night Dorothea had forgotten the police raid. She was taken back to the embassy. She was told that the next time she made a sortie she would be interned for the remainder of the war.

HIGH PLIERS TO ROUND GLOBE IN TWO DAYS

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Europe in six weeks and a trip around the world in a day or two was predicted by Brigadier General William Mitchell, chief of training operations of the United States Air Service, in an address to the American Flying Club, No. 11 East Thirty-third street.

Two inventions, both conceived and perfected in this country and both already tested out at the government plant at Dayton, Ohio, were the basis for General Mitchell's prediction.

ANNIS TRIAL STARTS TODAY

Jury Selections for Hearing National Banditry Case

Selection of the jury was under way in district court this morning for the trial of H. Annis, charged with holding up W. B. Starr of Kimberley, forcing him to write checks amounting to $300, cash them in a local bank under duress of a gun, and carry Annis out of the vicinity by automobile. Starr, finally watching his opportunity, called Annis unwares, bypassed him while she stopped at Eden to replenish the gas supply of Starr's car, according to Starr's account. The amazing story of banditry told by Starr when he turned Annis over to the authorities. Annis put up $100,000 as the money he secured for a loan and had been forced to pay Starr. The alleged sensational current case looks almost certain to be a sensation.

F. Warner were understood to be near for the state on the morning of the opening of the trial.

The names of the jury selected consisted of E. L. Orphan, H. C. Orphan, J. M. Cairns, John B. Hester, Jess W. Cross, Chas. H. Burton, George A. Bryant, C. H. Lewis, Fred L. Swank, W. O. McKibbin, H. L. Dall and Oran Dole.

HOW TO MAKE SCHOOLS WORSE

Before his six children, all of school age, seated at the dinner table the successful business man of an important city in the Northwest was criticizing the methods of the principal of the high school. To do too poor the discipling was, and gave examples. The whole system was bad, he said.

Finally, one of the guests, a woman who had been a school teacher, interposed with this statement:

"Yes, the schools are bad. And you are doing all you can to make them worse. You have provided, perhaps, that this principal is not a good an executive as you are. Would you take his job? You are making $33,000 year; the principal $1,400. You complain because you are not getting a $15,000 executive, who also has to be a scholar, which you are not, for $1,400."

"Moreover, before your children you are stating your disapproval of his discipline, thus undermining his influence and making it impossible for him to exert the discipline he can."

"Have you ever gone to him, as man to man, and as a friend of the schools, wishing him well in his conduct of them, and given him some of these suggestions for improving his methods—planting at his service what you have learned in your conduct of your plant? You have not. You sit back and criticize him where it will do him the most harm, before your children, and you are one of the influential men of this town who are satisfied to pay the man in charge of your adolescent children the salary of $1,400."

"Whose fault is it that the schools are bad? Yours!" This will bear a little thinking by any parent, employer or other citizen to whose interest it is that the schools should be good.

THE ADMIRALS

One of the many pieces of unfinished work left by the last session of congress was the naval promotions bill. The original purpose of this measure was to give the full rank of "admiral" to the naval officers who distinguished themselves most in the war. It was intended to apply to Admiral Sims, who commanded the American fleet abroad, and Admiral Benson, chief of naval operations.

No one has seriously questioned the fact that these two men deserve the permanent rank of "admiral" instead of the very common title of "vice admiral." The same may be said of Admiral Mayo, who commanded the Atlantic fleet during the war. In addition to their acknowledged merit, it has been pointed out many times that men of similar service in the British and other navies are given an admiral's rank, and it is embarrassing to American fleet commanders, and humiliating to their country, to have them outranked as they are by foreign commanders when they have anything to do with foreign fleets.

Opposition to these promotions was shown in the senate committee—just why, it is not clear. Most citizens undoubtedly would like to see the men referred to obtain the rank they deserve, just as Gen. Pershing has been made a full "general."

Another thing that makes it rather easy for the British and Americans to fraternize is that any land and sea play "America" and "God Save the King" at the same time.

GOVERNMENT NEWS CONTROL

At the convention of the National Labor party in Chicago, a Kansas City delegate demanded government ownership of all news-distributing agencies in this country.

Well, the government does maintain a considerable outfit of news agencies, and keeps them working all the time. And how many people are willing to accept their publication gratis, or read the news they distribute, even when the regular newspapers try to help out by reprinting the government bulletins?

Uncle Sam has his merits; but somehow as a publisher of news he fails to make good.

THE PASSING OF INDUSTRIAL UNREST

That the crisis of industrial unrest in this country has been passed and that better business conditions may be anticipated from now on is the view taken by the National Bank of Commerce in New York in its Market Letter in the December issue of its magazine, Commerce Monthly. The bank points to the failure of the steel strike, the yielding of the coal miners to constituted authority, and the plans for deporting dangerous aliens, as signs of better days.

A recent dispatch declares that Sweden is the most prosperous country in Europe—no people in starving condition, no strikes, no depression. And down in the body of the dispatch is the probable reason for this happy state of affairs—no profiteering.

McAdoo's plan for the miners may have been one word for the miners to three or four for McAdoo as president, but it is nevertheless worth public attention.

Editorial Squibs

One policeman on the job is worth two to politicians.

Weight helps the flu. You should weigh until you get ill.

Financially considered, this is an age blighted with ephors.

Many a man, after a look in the window, is knocking up the shoes of yesterday.

After the battles of peace are over, many a leading general of the profiteers will tell how defeat came about.

Spats started to rubber soles may appear to those who do not hanker for the high prices of slimes.

Profiteers must at least suffer the embarrassment of knowing they have gotten themselves very much talked about.

Among other post-war depravations, London is suffering from a dearth of tallers. It is too early yet to predict the borrowing effect on Anglo-Americans on this side.

"That?" she cried. "You say 'that' too! Then he was after all! She was very much excited, and repeated the word several times with a kind of joy and man on publicity. 'I wouldn't tell you what I thought about him, but I know he was a thief. I knew it in Paris—I knew it in Antwerp—I was an American—she had made all the arrangements to bring Claire over—that I heard it clairaudiently. 'De Kessel was a thief.' I know that in my own room—the first time he came." And then she smiled at me benignly: "And thanks to you he didn't get any diamonds, so 'free Claire's safe—she'll never know the truth about her father from me."

"Claire never had any jewelry—the whole accusation was trumped up to keep the change to rob me. But how long she was in it? I had those diamonds?"

"He says he put them there—or at least Claire did—in your slipper," I burst in.

"Never!" she cried. "Never in the world!"

"And he says they're his," I persisted, feeling I'd got my opening at last. I put it that way partly to disabuse her mind of the idea that monseigneur was a thief; partly to save her from the too sudden shock of the Emperor William, "and I'd have to let her down gradually."

"They're mine," she returned vehemently. "I assure to you they were mine. I swear to you again—positively—in the sight of God—they are mine. Consider—my love was all ruined now. If they had not been mine—if I had stolen them from Claire—would I have shown them to you? Would I have asked you to help me dispose of them?"

I was forced to admit, "Of course not—I had already taken that into consideration."

"Yes—I grant you that you honestly believe they're yours," I admitted, "but what if you got to know it, how they came to be yours?"

"She told me then, hesitating no longer, the unbelievable story—unbelievable by every modern standard and false every scientific point of view, explaining why she'd prevailed in the first instance about her uncle. It came, after all, quite what you'd call by so harsh a name as lying."

"She told me—as she had on the steamer—how she'd gone abroad to hunt new parties for her success and the circle's meeting at her house, of which she was a sort of priestess, and how she had been in contact with the Jewish girl. She'd had a 'wonderful gift of prophesy' and at a private sitting with her had gone into a trance—and had given out that Mrs. Delario was 'one of the chosen'—one of the disciples of the Mystical Cult of the Crystal Sphere, whose headquarters were a monastery in Tibet, and had then predicted that she was shortly to receive the 'mystical sign of initiation' and a gift—conveyed through space by spirit influences—of seven blood-red gems, which she was at liberty to dispose of, and convert into cash if she desired—discreetly and dealing in turn but only his sublimated equivalents—and away to her personal needs and the furtherance of her work for spiritualism."

"On being pressed by Mrs. Delario to disclose the time and place of the gift—the girl had declared that the stones would be in a small oblong box which Mrs. Delario would discover among her things when the time came, and that she would 'receive' them suddenly—secretly—without mutual knowledge of how they got there—and they would probably be given to her in Paris. Beyond this the girl was unable to say."

But Mrs. Delario accepted the prediction and, greatly excited and excited, watched for the hour that was to mark her initiation into earthly wealth and occult glory. The hour did not come in Paris, and she returned to America a little disappointed but still expectant.

LITTLE TATTOO
ANOTHER TON SLAAN

Cleaver Jockey Cost Samuel
Hildreth $15,000.

Boys of Today Do Not Class With Boys of Olden Times—Youngsters
Do Not Make Study
of Various Tracks.

They are touting little Laverne Factor, the Jockey for whose contract Samuel Hildreth recently paid $15,000, as the "second best slant" in the game. It is a good boy. He may be even greater than Tod—some say. But I doubt it very much and I'll tell you why.

It isn't that I am blinded by the glamour of money and the years that have drifted by since I was a boy. I am not. I am of those who believe implicitly in the improvement of athletics in all branches of sports.

But the thing of horses is different from athletic competition. There is no satisfying the fact that the jockey of today, with the exception of Johnny Lottus, do not class with the boys of Slan's time, writes Jim Sloan in New York Evening Mail.

There was one slant at the old Morris Park when Slan was practically unbeatable over the course that had a noticeable leaning at far turns.
He won races with a regularity that was uncanny.

It was purely by accident that the reason for Slan's recent success at Morris Park was discovered. This is the story as Jack Dornley tells it.

"A horseman had been out on a party," says Dornley. "He was returning to the stables at Morris Park about 8 o'clock in the morning when he met a young fellow in a blue coat and "You're early, Tod, aren't you?"
he asked. "Yes, answered Slan. "I'm not, you see, I can't sleep not come out for a breath of air."

Slan.

When Slan met this young fellow on his way to the track, he was talking to the old days at Morris Park. He remembered that young fellow as being the one who was riding the
"very, very, very fast" horse, "the slant" that was going to win from a party."

"No answered Slan. "I'll tell you about that. Morris is not riding any more
and I don't know what happened to
him. You will remember that he was a slant in the Morris Park. These days he is going to the slant toward the stretch."

"It was out that morning that I was out
outward where the slant started. I where it ended and the slant was gone. After that I could always mount up as I hit
the hill and
see these things.
I could make my run on the downgrade with a
fresh horse under me.
If you'll remember, I won many a race
over that Morris Park
course after you
met me walking that morning."

"And there you have it, Tod Slan, when he was at the head of the pack,
never went out to find out something
about a certain spot
in a track that might be the slant with races. Do you think Factor or the other
slant riding today
would think of these things, or if they thought of them,
would they take the trouble to find out
about them?"

Well, maybe Factor
would, I don't know. But I must say
I hope so.

Hangs the K. O. on Englishman in
First Round—Beckett Made Miserable Showing

LONDON, Dec. 5.—"I've not the same idea for Jack Dempsey that put Beckett to sleep," declared George Carpentier, heavyweight champion of Europe, who knocked out Joe Beckett in the first round of their bout at Holborn stadium Carpentier's famous "K. O." punch is a short run upper cut with terrific driving power behind it.

Carpentier did not show a single mark of his fight tactics. He was judicious over his success, but declared that he was not surprised at the outcome.

A fatigue hanged hands on the battle, practically all of the best hitting had been made with Beckett in favor.

Beckett's friends were unable to explain his poor showing. He seemed to be dazed as though suffering from stage fright before the enormous crowd. The friends of Walter had a great number of women wearing evening gowns and jewels as well as elegant men and excellent ladies.

English boxing fans were in an angry mood today, for they had to see the last penny on Beckett.

Promoter Offers $150,000 Purse for Twenty-Round Bout Between Two Champions

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, expects that negotiations for the Jack Dempsey-George Carpentier bout for the heavyweight title will be opened within a few days, he announced today.

"There is one man who is actively after the match," said Kearns, "and that is D. K. Torrlich of New Orleans. Unless I am very much mistaken Torrlich will be hot after the match within a few hours.

"To date Torrlich is the only promoter who has offered us anything that looked like business. Many promoters have asked for terms and signified their desire to promote a championship bout, but Torrlich got right to the point in his offer, and he has something tangible to work on. His offer to us is $150,000 for a twenty-round bout to be staged at New Orleans some time about March 17."

According to Kearns, Torrlich had representatives in London who were on the ground early to open negotiations with whoever won the Beckett-Carpentier affair. Whether or not he will be able to induce Carpentier to come to America is a question, but it appears that the New Orleans promoter has the inside track owing to the fact that he arranged definite plans in plenty of time to get the jump on his rivals.

TEXAS RANGERS GRAB BORDER
SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 5.—A band new school in warfare will be put into use by the firing forces which the United States decide upon military action in Mexico. It will be the organization of boundary battalions of artillery by airplanes points within the invaded territory.

The guns could be transported to any place in the hills and set up for use. They are little lighter than the three inch guns and can be used for any class of shell or long range work. Our plans will carry the guns and equipment and another plane will carry the crew.

State cavalry are expected to arrive from Columbus, N. Mex., Saturday at the rate of the Oklahoma fuel pits and strip mines which are to be operated by volunteer stockholders, according to Governor Robertson.

The governor issued a proclamation placing the entire national guard in readiness to move on short notice.
It is not expected, however, that the entire guard will be called out at once, but will be called as needs require.

BOSTON FIRE OFFICERS
WITHDRAW FROM A. F. L.

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—The Officers' Club of the Boston Fire Department has voted to give up its American Federation of Labor charter in the International Association of Fire Fighters.
The charter was obtained two years ago. The International Association has taken an active part in causing widespread agitation for higher wages and better working conditions for firemen.

The action is said to be due to criticism by firemen of the club's opposition to the two platform system, which plan was defeated in the recent state election.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 4.—Fire which followed four explosions in the Long hurst district early today spread rapidly and in a short time the Municipal Music Hall, Old Peltola hall and the Advocate newspaper office were all ablaze. The fire raged for 3 hours before it was gotten under control and the loss will reach $100, 000, fifty per cent of which is covered by insurance.

Firemen suffered from the cold,
the mercury being ten above zero.
Ten fatalities escaped in their night clothing from apartments.

FENSELS REPORTED IN DISTRESS
BOSTON, Dec. 5.—Wireless messages telling of two vessels in distress, one on the rocks of St. Mary's Island and the other off Cape Sable, were picked up by the navy yard today. The steamer Aronson was reported ashore on St.

LYOIS REGISTER SHOWS
RECORD SHIPBUILDING

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The annual report of Lloyds Register of Shipping has been renewed and the 1918-1919 report, together with a review of the work done by the society during the war, is now in circulation. The annual reports were curtailed and finally discontinued because of the restrictions on shipping information during the war.

The 1918-1919 report states that at the end of June, 1919, there was being built under the inspection of Lloyds Register of Shipping with a view to classification a large amount of shipping that has never been recorded in the history of the society—namely 4, 766,235 tons.

WASTE OF TIME TO CRITICISE

English Jewels Assets Women Are Obligingly When Seen at Office Range

PARIS, Dec. 4.—(Associated Press)—The women in the office range and will soon pass away in the opinion of Eleanor Olsen, fashion designer, who, she says, has established her as an authority in the sphere of fashionable life.

"I cannot question the wisdom of statements of his boldness, the logic of immediacy in women's dress," said she. "And, since their statements are inspired, they are right in giving expression to them in the church people of the world."

"But from the standpoint of strictly common sense, I feel that the present fashions are only a psychological reflection of the kind of epoch which always follows great periods of sorrow, such as the present war, and crystallizing them and phrasing them as an immediate way out of labeling them forbidden fruit."

"Unquestionably some of this winter's styles in women's gowns are vulgar. Most women are guilty when they see at close range so the tendency of this vulgar fashion only tends to die out."

"But after all, this is only a world which will soon have its own epidemic of scarlet fever. It is a waste of time to criticize something which is bound to pass away in a world that is always growing better."
