Seventy-one From Drinking Bogus Whisky in New England; Scores of Others Are Near Death

Concoction of Wood Alcohol Blinds Victims and Throws Them Into Terrible Agony

BOOZE BRINGS GOODLY PRICE

Obrage of Maniaghter Lodged Against Them—Indications Point to Widespread Sale of Deadly Imitation of Whisky

SUINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 27.—The death toll in the Christmas "whisky" trade has mounted to seventy-one this afternoon. The victims were blind and plunged into great agony by a deadly concoction of wood alcohol, were reported dying in hospitals and private homes.

Authorities investigating the sale and distribution of the "fake" whisky, said that indications were that there had been a conspiracy to sell the bogus beverage. Many deaths will follow before the warrent can be spread, they feared.

The cities known to be affected by the poison beverage which was sent out of New York are: Chicago, 29; Detroit, 2; Philadelphia, 2; Pittsburgh, 2; and New York, 1.

A cure that will save the lives of those stricken was found today by Dr. Geo. C. Gage, professor of the American house, Chicago. Falls, where much of the "fake whisky" was bought and drunk, and who claimed the police yesterday, surrounded this morning.

The defendants were held in $10,000 on the manslaughter charge and $100 on the illegal sale charge, and following their plea of not guilty the cases were continued to January 3 for trial.

The authorities have discovered it was one single lot of "fake whisky" that caused the heavy toll of death and great suffering throughout the Connecticut valley.

LIBERTY-LOVING NATIONS CAN ALONE MAKE LEAGUE VALUABLE

New Nations Rise on Ashes of Old, New Ambitions Seize Peoples in Process of Evolution, World of Labor Is Upset As Result of World War.

ALL NEED STABILIZING INFLUENCE OF LEAGUE DEDICATED TO JUSTICE

By Alexander Ribot, Twice Premier of France during the war (Written expressly for the International News Service) PARIS, Dec. 27.—The League of Nations will be of little value to the world unless it is supported by a permanent agreement between the nations which fought side by side for the right of peace and justice for all.

The war did not result merely in the downfall of empires, it has shaken to its foundations the very basis of the world's civilization, and as regards the future, marching toward a new equilibrium. It set free the hopes of many peoples, it brought to the surface ambitions which had been kept down, which did not dare to show their heads.

France has never had such a high place in the imagination and the gratitude of the peoples of the earth. She won the admiration even of those who professed to hate her.

WOULD EXPLOIT MEXICO WITH INTERNATIONAL COMMISSION

Former British Consul to Mexico Proposes Plan by Which Great Britain Would Help United States Solve Problem, Save Its Investment and Develop Its Trade

NO RETURNS FOR SEVERAL YEARS ON $3,500,000,000 INVESTMENT

LONDON, Dec. 27.—Joint intervention in Mexico by a mixed foreign commission, on which Great Britain and the United States would occupy the chief places, is advocated by H. Graham Richards, former British consul general to Mexico.

Such intervention, Mr. Richards holds, would protect foreign investments in Mexico, amounting to $3,500,000,000 and upon which no return has been received for several years, and would allow Mexico to develop its resources.

Mr. Richards pointed out that Great Britain has £1,000,000,000 invested in Mexico, most of the railroads having been built under the British flag, together with British money. He declares that, with a heavy war debt and a depressed condition of the country, Great Britain can no longer protect her Mexican interests.

THE FACT that the United States has £1,000,000,000 invested in Mexico, and also strategic and political reasons, make it necessary for America to occupy the chief places in any settlement of Mexican chaos, said Mr. Richards.

Mr. Richards described President Carranza as "anti-American and pro-German." He said that Carranza's policy was to exploit Mexico with a view to the formation of an independent women's party.

BRINGING UP FATHER

EARLY AUTO DAYS

In 1894 gasoline sold for six cents a gallon. The first New York motor car was built in 1891. The first four-cylinder car was brought out in 1900. In 1892 Harney & Halley announced they would exhibit throughout the country a "horseless vehicle." In July, 1898, the news was given that a plant would be built to turn out "one motor carriage a week."

It is hard to conceive that in 1890 there were but four motor cars in the United States. First English Field Marshal. The first English field marshal was created so long ago as 1730.

OLD BELIEF CALLED SILLY

Idea, Long Held, That Pearls Decay If Not Worn Is Ridiculed by Expert.

Pearls abound in romance, and romance abounds in fiction. This fact was strikingly brought to light by a full page advertisement in Harbinger, a London publication, who does a large business among the British nobility, published recently in the London Times. Through this publicity with his prospective customers about fact and fiction in the business of buying and selling pearls and pearls. This paragraph is quoted from a weekly paper which thus the largest circulation of any religious newspaper in the world.

"Some family heirlooms of great historic value had to be insured. At a bank where various tin boxes were deposited in a strong room. One of the boxes contained a heavy pearl necklace. On being opened, however, it was found that after many years, in which they were displayed, and in some cases had crumbled to dust. A specialist said if they had been occasionally brought to the light and had been worn, they would have been in as good a condition as when they were deposited in the strong room of the bank. What a lesson it conveys of the folly and error of hoarding our possessions. God wants us not to bury our talents more than our treasures. They will sink into atrophy by non-use."

Harbinger comments that "the selection should have exercised more care than to insert such other rubbish."

Being a specialist," he says, "I repeat that the statement is all rubbish, every bit of it, although I agree with the application."

No More "Lyciferians."

They're out for reading rolls on white paper, the country, are now things of the past in Scotland. The root of the word, which is the old English of Anglo-Saxon "lic" means "a hole corpse." The Lyciferians were the equivalent of the Heligates, common in rural England.

Many times hear names after the containing hole, though the spelling is changed somewhat, some being called "Lyciferians" and "Lyciferians."

Two of the Lyciferians were farmers by the name of Able, of the Dundee of the road from the Don of Lindisfarne to the shire, but they were known along the boundaries of the last century. They consisted of two unknown numbers of which some, about five feet high, and somewhat square on the sides and top.

Daydreams. Dreams will at times reveal to us how little we have forgotten, but the value of dreams as a key to remember is disputed and diminished by what seems their lack of selection. They hold the most with the present, or with sheer impossibility, in such a hope's melody.

At their best our dreams seem faint, faded, based upon the real yet wandering from it with erratic inconsequence, of which the possible meaning makes. And yet so dreamlike, they are so poetic so much, with intangible as of resurrection. But it is in our daydreams, when reason still retains the control, that we find the most interesting touch the best; and daydreams are the poetry of memory.

Chaucer. His best tales run on like one of our Indian tales, sometimes bestowing a little and turning him themselves in words that show without revealing the secret; sometimes looking sensibly, while here and there a quiet thought, a tender feeling, a pleasant idea, a golden word, appears, as quietly like a water-lily, to float on the surface without breaking it into a ripple. He is neither maliciously witty, and all the while, like the princess in the story, lets fall a pearl at every word.

Character may be divided from like, he was a good man, good, sincere, hearty, temperate of mind, a thoroughly humane, friendly with God and humanity.

The KITCHEN CABINET

To grow and to keep in person as attractive as possible should be not only the pleasure but should be also everyone's duty.

OLD-FASHIONED DISHES DEAR TO OUR HEARTS.

How very rarely do we see the toothsome crullers, dainty, suet, rich and crisp. The same recipe may be used for fried cakes, but the manner of cutting the cruller makes them an much more attractive. Rolled twice as thick as pastry, then cut in oblong with three or four slices, nearly through to the edge, with a sharp knife they look like an oblong loaf, and are baked in a hot fry. Drop into deep hot fat and fry a golden brown; roll in powdered sugar before serving. Some cooks treat the little strips before dropping into the fat, which gives them an especially attractive appearance.

Crullers—Put one cupful of sugar, two eggs, three table-spoons of butter, one cupful of saved milk, a teaspoonful of cream of tartar, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one grain nutmeg and a bit of salt. Cream the butter, add the sugar and when well mixed the yolk of the eggs will beat on, then a little of the milk with four stiff with the dry ingredients and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Cut just a little flour so possible to roll. Chill on ice before rolling and the cakes can be limited very soft.

Good Cruller Recipe—Beat two eggs until light and foamy, add one and three-fourths cupfuls of sugar and continue beating until the sugar is nearly dissolved, add one and one-fourth cupfuls of soft milk, one-fourth of a cupful of thick cream, a teaspoonful of soda, a half-teaspoonful of salt and grated nutmeg to flavor. Add as little flour as possible to handle; mix on low speed to lather before rolling. Try in hot fat, using the same amount of fat. (Cure of bread making in one minute in the fat.)

Dumplings of Fishbones. Fishy dumplings may be prepared as follows: Take one loaf of egg, one cupful of butter milk, mix two eggs, two spoonfuls of salt sifted in flour enough to make about a cupful and a half of drop batter. Drop from a teaspoon in a hot fat, roll little of meat with pieces of bones on which to rest the dumplings during the cooking.

Indiana Felt of Corn. The corn of Indiana grew that year for January and four years for seed and some. They invented "succulent" composed of linted and heavy, but that was not the best of it, to them all of our best recipes for the preparation of corn, not excluding "ventriologist's" corn.

Our Columbus holiday was it was before Columbus landed, the great American food crop. The year's crop of water, based on statistics in length, and allowing 20 feet to each wagon, would make a line long enough to encircle the globe once and a half times.

Ventriologist. Ventriologist is the art of producing tones and sounds without any motion of the lips, so that the hearer of the notes the sound to some other place. The ventriologist uses no organs, but does this by vibrating upon the peculiar structure of the organs of the voice, but upon dexterity. This name is founded upon the subtle suggestion that the voice proceeds from the stomach. The art of the ventriologist consists mainly in taking deep inhalations of air, and then allowing it to escape slowly, the sounds of the voice being modified by the muscles of the throat and palate.

Ventriologist is a very old art and was known to the ancient Greeks as well as to the Romans. The Greeks called it the "singing in length of tones, and called ventriologist a "Bastriantist" (bull-prophecy).

FATEFUL DAY IN HISTORY

Americans Have Good Reason to Remember Events Connected With the First of July.

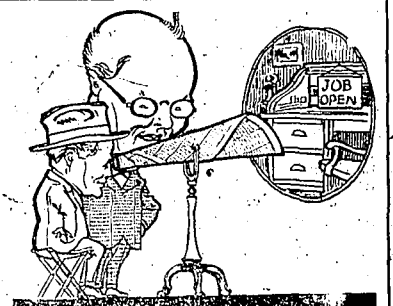

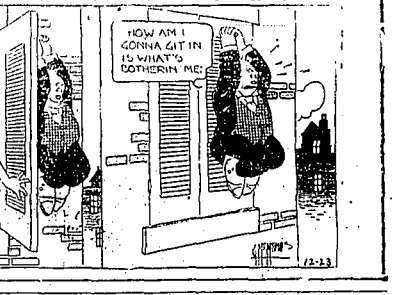

In American history the first day of July is so particularly remembered by the battle of Gettysburg, the advance of the scouting forces of the Union and Confederate armies meeting together in the forenoon of July 1, 1863. The fight continued for three days. The second day was the bloodiest of the Civil war and 23,000 men fell, killed or wounded. One year previous to the battle of Gettysburg, the battle of Malvern Hill was fought, and it was then that General McClellan's action of retreating in the morning, instead of following up his advantage, evoked a storm of criticism which eventually destroyed his reputation as a capable commander of large armies in war. In later years, the battles of San Juan and El Cance were fought on July 1, 1898, during the Spanish-American war. Both ended with American victory, among the engagements that charged up the side of Kettle Hill in the attack on San Juan was the 66th Connecticut regiment. Theodore Roosevelt, who afterward, in writing the history of the regiment, said that for one reason or another the public objected to the "Rough Riders." At first he and his men fought against the use of the term, but to no purpose, and when generals of distinction and brave commanders began to write it so in formal communications, the general accepted the name also.

Old Publications. An old bit of the past turns up in a list of old publications, some to be sold at auction, namely, to give it its full, imposing title, "A Sermon Preached at White-Chapel, in the Presence of Many Honorable and Worshipful, the Adventurers and Planters of Virginia, and Published for the Benefit and Use of the Colony, Printed, and to be Found there and for the Advancement of their Christian Religion." The Rev. William Symonds preached that sermon, the Christian Science Monitor, and described "In his greatest glory." Yet he preached to history a sorry congregation, say, largely composed of dumplings who had fallen at home through bad habits. His calculations to help in his own country.

DON LYMAN THE BARGAIN MAN City Property

50 foot lot with 2 small houses price $1000, with reasonable payment. 4 Room Modern house close in and on one of Twin Falls, best streets, lay out garage. Price $2800. A reasonable cash payment. 5 Room house new; a splendid house all through having hard wood floors in entire house, educated basement with furnace heat. Sleeping porch, garage. Price $6000, including all furniture. Terms reasonable.

FARM LANDS

Fine 100 acres nearly all in hay splendid improvements, entire farm all fenced rabbit tight, large frame barn, five modern houses. If you want a fine farm for stock or any thing else this should interest you. Price $100 per acre. 80 acres about three miles out from Twin Falls, has about 50 acres in hay suitable for lots. Price $100 per acre. 40 acres less than two miles from Twin Falls one of the very best in every way. Has fine 6 room house, electric lights and water in house, Twin Falls school wagon. A nice farm and the price reasonable for so highly improved place. $300 per acre. Good terms. We have others which are highly improved, if you wish the best let us show you.

I also have extensive listing in the Nampa, Caldwell, Wilder, Deer Flat and Gem District. I have some splendid bargains. I can only name a few of them.

40 Acres a splendid laying 40 mostly all in hay has small house, deep well, land all fenced near school. Splendid potato land. Elevation only 2200 feet and early potatoes can be put on the market 3 weeks earlier than most other places. Catalpa, Melons, Tomatoes do remarkably well in fact this land is the cream of Idaho for productivity. No rock or conies. Price $175 per acre. A three or four thousand cash balance. Easy terms.

160 Acres, with 150 acres in alfalfa hay priced at $125 per acre. Has four improvements. This land is splendid potato land, 40 acres in potatoes this year put on the early market would more than pay for the entire 160.

40 Acres as fine as there is in Idaho, not a blinch in any way. Soil will produce the biggest crops in anything you wish to grow. Price $250 per acre. $1000 will handle this. Put one-half of this land in potatoes and pay out this year.

I am going to tell you why I urge putting in potatoes. First, There is great scarcity of potatoes throughout the United States. Second, This land will mature some potatoes three to four weeks earlier than land in this section, or in Colorado or any other large potato growing country that would come into competition with it and so I do not hesitate to say that I believe the man that gets the early potatoes on the market first will reap an immense reward.

I have taken the trouble and have been to the expense of looking up some splendid bargains and if you want some thing good I would like to show you. Now then if you have any real bargains for sale I would like to have you list them with me. I have been in Idaho nearly 25 years and I know the bargains and they must be bargains before I can recommend them to my buyers and I wish to keep my reputation as the man that never has sold a piece of property that has not been a money maker for the buyer, Why? Because I know the values and will not recommend them unless they are bargains.

I will be in my down town office in a few days until then call me phone 3249 or come to the house—609 Main West.

INDUSTRIAL CONFERENCE OF THE INTER-CHURCH MOVEMENT.

The Interchurch World Movement has to do with all phases of the religious problem. It is conducting a comprehensive survey throughout our country and it is believed that its findings will astonish the Church in America in many respects and will inspire the Church to larger effort in Christian service. In the early part of October, under the auspices of this organization, an industrial conference was held in New York City. Representative speakers from Canada and the United States discussed all important phases of the industrial problem. Among the speakers were Col. David Carnegie, of England, member of the British Labor Committee, Hon. P. Adams, Minister of Labor, Dominion Government, Ottawa, John L. Walker, President of the Illinois Federation of Labor, F. Ernst Johnson, of the Commission on Social Service of the Federal Council of Churches, Frederick C. Howe, former Commissioner of Immigration of New York, L. P. Alford, editor of "Industrial Management." Prominent ministers and other leaders in the churches took part in the discussion. "The Interchurch Newsletter" announces the following items as "the most important principles recognized by the Conference:

- Immediate investigation of the steel strike by the industrial relations department of the Interchurch World Movement.
- Recognition of the right of workers to organize and of the principle of collective bargaining.
- Promotion of the co-operative movement in both production and distribution of goods.
- Condemnation of the exploitation of alien immigrants and foreign-born citizens.
- Recognition of the right of negro citizens to economic justice and freedom from economic exploitation.
- Recognition of the principles of freedom of choice in occupation and vocational training, equal pay for equal work, healthful working conditions and equal voice with men in management of industry.
- Training of the youth of the Church for their future responsibilities in the application of these principles, and adequate sociological training in the theological schools.
- The Church should not be committed to the present or any other political, social or industrial order as a finality.
- Surely the voice of the Church of Christ should be heard in no uncertain manner at this time. It is the day of restlessness and confusion. Matters in the industrial world are in a very critical condition. We are in the midst of what someone has recently called a "frenzy of strikes." The situation is complicated by an alarming amount of lawlessness.
- We are certain that nothing but the Gospel of Jesus Christ fully applied to industrial conditions can ever reverse the warning elements and establish justice and peace declared the United Presbyterian. The Church entrusted with a Gospel message should utter that message fearlessly and with sufficient power to be heard by capitalists and laborers and all others concerned. There should be no special favor shown, no bias in favor of any class, no bidding for endorsement from any particular source, but simply a straightforward insistence that the principles of Christ's Gospel shall be recognized as authoritative in the lives of men. Selfishness and greed and lawlessness are found among all classes. Christ did not hesitate to denounce these things and to summon men to lives of self-sacrifice, courage and heroic service. Let us who are charged with the responsibility of proclaiming the Gospel be true to our Master in this critical hour.

TRYING THE KAISER

When news of interest to America is hard for the correspondents in European capitals to get, they fall back on the trial of the Kaiser. Doubtless the correspondents get their cue from official sources, so it is not inconceivable that officials are still talking about trying the Kaiser. The latest information is that the Kaiser is to have a separate trial from the other persons guilty of bringing on the great world war. It is a "duty" of the allied governments to bring the guilty to book.

For a number of years after the American war of the states, northern politicians kept themselves patriotically enthused with proposed trials for Jeff Davis, and everybody was "hanging Jeff Davis to a sour apple tree" until the former president of the confederacy was called by death. Whether a mistake was made by not making Jeff Davis the goat for the late rebellion, by compelling a forfeiture of his life, no historian with which The Times is familiar holds him responsible for the war of the rebellion. There were thousands of persons as much responsible as was Davis, and all of these did not live in the Southland.

In reality persons do not make war. Social, moral, political and economic forces acting through individuals or nations make wars.

Even if the Kaiser is held to be solely responsible for the recent world cataclysm, his punishment would not remove from the earth those forces which so acted as to make Germany, and the Kaiser as the head of the German government, the center of the maelstrom. What is needed is a correction of the forces which made the Kaiser an active agent in bringing war to the peoples of the world.

A BIG CHANGE FOR EX-SERVICE MEN

A special ruling allows all former service men, no matter when discharged, to reinstate their insurance on or before December 31, 1919, on the basis of their former status if they are in good health as at the date of discharge or at the date of the expiration of the grace period for the payment of the premium, whichever is the later date, and payment of two months' premiums on the amount of insurance to be reinstated. After December 31, the privilege of reinstatement will be limited to the period of 18 months following the month of discharge, or 12 months following the month of lapse, if reinstatement is made after 18 months following month of discharge.

As only two months' premiums are now required for reinstatement, a former service man who paid more than two months back premiums in reinstating prior to July 25, 1918, can, on application, obtain credit for any premiums so paid in excess of two and have the overpayment applied toward future premium payments.

The bureau of war risk insurance wants the service men to know what their rights are as to government insurance and the methods by which this insurance may be retained or reinstated. It is to the interest of every service man whose insurance may have lapsed or been canceled to apply at once for reinstatement. To wait may mean disaster.

Check or money order should be made payable to the treasurer of the United States and with the application, sent to the Premium Receipt Station, Bureau of War Risk Insurance, Washington, D. C.

The only kind of circulation which is really of value to a newspaper or its advertisers is that represented by the townspeople who buy it regularly because they want it. That's the kind of circulation The Times boasts. Quality circulation is The Times' big asset. Folks talk The Times because they have confidence in the newspaper. They know it says what it thinks without reference to anything except honesty of conviction. Readers were not inveigled into buying The Times by "pretty girl" contests or promises to give an automobile to somebody who would get out and persuade folks against their better judgment to subscribe for something they did not want. The Times' circulation is substantial, and it continues to hold its own despite the absurd charges of disloyalty engineered through a packed meeting of the American Legion by the cohorts of the politicians and representatives of special privilege in the state of Idaho, and hounded about from month to month till the loyalty of the very persons charging disloyalty has become a matter of grave question.

Battle of the Giants.
According to Brewer's "Historic Note Book" the battle of Waterloo was the battle of Australia known as the "Battle of the Giants," but the battle of the Giants was a desecrated. This battle was fought on September 13, 1215, and during which the allied French and Venetian grand-master, Francesco I. D'Alviano defeated the allied Italian and States armies. The carnage was very great, as 42,000 men were killed. One of the victors were first dead and died in the field. Trivulzio, who had been made a knight of the Holy Roman Empire, called them all child's play compared with this "combat of the giants."

Question for Ostrac.
Judging by what is generally the good lady in Proverbs, belov'd ad she has been for centuries, as a most questionable example, her price might be above rubies, but what business had she to "show up" early in the morning, before it was yet light and exultant all day her industrial piece-making? It couldn't have been good for her husband either, for all we hear of his activity is that he "prated her" and that he "sat in the gate"—which latter I take to be the Biblical equivalent of sitting at the gate of a country store with his feet on the rail, taking all her labor for granted.—Exchange.

IN BAD COMPANY

Let us see how the people of the United States are lined up on the League of Nations. On one side are all the pro-Germans, all the men of褐褐 tendencies. All the millionaires who want a large standing army and universal military training. All the pessimists who assert that as long as human nature is what it is, no league can prevent war. All the infidels who do not believe that a time will ever come when "nation will lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more," and a majority of the United States nation.

Who are on the other side? The Literary Digest says that a poll, reaching over 17,000 clergymen, "disclosed about one in twenty who would doubt or drastically alter the league covenant." The investigator who made the survey, says: "That the preponderance of church sentiment be that it would be a calamity to the Christian church and to the kingdom of God on earth if the treaty and the league covenant should not be ratified this year." The opponents of the league try to camouflage the issue by claiming that they are Americans. Indeed, the substance of all the anti-league speakers may be boiled down into one sentence: "Look out for the interests of the United States and for the rest of the world as well as Great Britain and America." That is, Protestantism. The spirit of America finds expression in the work of the Red Cross; in the Spanish war, which was fought in a genuine altruistic spirit, to save a weak and oppressed people from the bloody and cruel domination of the Spaniards; in the heroic work of a quarter million young American lives and half a billion of money to save the world from the domination of the Germans, and asking no indemnity or compensation.

ASSISTS THE REPAIR WORK

Handy Device to Sheet-Metal Work Which Holds, Searches in Position Desired.

For those who prefer the tubular flash light to the trouble light connected to the storage battery, for the repair work, a handy device is a sheet-metal clamp which holds the flash light in such position as to throw the light where it is needed. The device would be of little use to the driver who has to have an open drive alone, but for those who often drive alone,

A Flash-Light Clamp is a Great Comfort to the Lone Night Driver, in Case of Tire Trouble.

There is decided advantage. The metal used should be stiff brass or steel, but the spring which holds the flash light must of course have sufficient springiness for this purpose. The light will be found convenient for the changing in the position shown, but if some other angle is preferred, the clamp may be readily bent to give it—R. P. Avery, Gardnerville, N. No sign in Hall.

"Browsers that crowd sight and day and have no sense of proportion at all," is the way William Almon Wolf describes Hall's only fowl of any importance in an article in Colliers. In addition he accuses them of not being educated. "Like the mass of the population," and of being ignorant of the fact "that a work's business is to let an unobtrusive world which wouldn't notice the phenomenon itself, know that the sun has risen." "When it comes to rock fighting in Hall," Mr. Wolf writes, "the rooster plays a very important role. Sunday afternoon is the great time for that," he says, "and all day Sunday you may see sporting Hallites going about with a gamecock or two under their arms. There are two rings in Port au Prince, thousands of men gather there every Sunday afternoon and bet on their favorites. Hallite cockfighting is not a very brutal affair; the birds aren't spurred. It is the custom for the owner of the losing rooster to cry quits before much damage is done."

CANTATA TO BE GIVEN SUNDAY BY BAPTISTS

Usual Services On Lord's Day In Twin Falls Places Of Worship

The premier musical service Sunday will doubtless be the cantata given by the Baptist choir, given in the evening under the direction of Leonard Wood. Clarence Hays will sing a solo during the evening as will Leonard Wood, Mrs. W. G. Smith, Miss Edna Graham and Miss Juanita Dean. An orchestra composed of Messrs. Musser, Dean, Emery, Wild, and A. and J. R. McMillan will accompany the singers. The cantata contains some good musical numbers that have been well worked out.

At the Methodist church the pastor, Rev. A. C. Bennett, will speak on "The Unconquered." The morning meeting will begin at 7:30 at which the subject will be "Twin Falls Possibilities in 1920." Paul McKinley, who is home from Walla Walla, Washington, where he is attending school, will sing a solo and a ladies' quartet will also furnish music. Sunday school, Epworth League and Y. M. C. A. will take place at the usual hours.

At the Ascension Episcopal church the lay service will be mainly one of music. The church will prepare some splendid musical features.

Rev. Asher Harland Brand has chosen "The Unfinished Work of Jesus Christ" as his theme. The cantata will be given in both morning and evening services. At the evening service, which begins at 7:30, the subject will be "Responsibility Selected." Why a Prisoner Escaped? A duet from Handel's "Messiah" sung by Messrs. Dwight and Bennett will be one of the musical features.

The lesson theme at the Christ Scientist church will be "Christian Science." A musical program will also be given.

Mrs. H. L. Locklin Called to Beyond

A brave struggle was sadly ended yesterday when death, the Grim Reaper, claimed Mrs. Homer L. Locklin, who passed away, following a long illness, at her home, 326 Seventh avenue North.

The end had been expected for many days but she could not find the sorrow of the countless friends that were drawn to the loved woman by her many admirable qualities. Her death is a great loss to the bereaved friends and other relatives.

Mrs. Locklin had been a resident of Twin Falls for some years, her husband being connected with The Times, and was well known. She leaves a sister, Mrs. J. M. Elliott, and her mother, Mrs. Josephine Crum.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Christian church. Interment will be made in Twin Falls cemetery.

THE LETZ ALFALFA MEAL MILL

Make Four Tons Do the Work of Five

Four tons of Alfalfa meal is equal in feed-value to five tons of alfalfa hay. The LETZ will grind your hay into meal. It will grind corn fodder, oats and all, into a fine meal, or you can mix grain with the alfalfa or you can use it as a feed grinder for wheat, oats, barley, corn, or any grain you wish to grind. Just the mill for the farmer who wants to make all of his feed count. We will show you at any time just what the LETZ will do in actual operation. The LETZ will soon save its cost in saving feed.

The Woman Edna Bowman

CHAPTER I.

Edna, Chicago's coroner March had could not dull the gloss of his big eyes. As a furious man he took to him eagerly, assuming himself to be a poorly protected boy, sitting and howling lamentably. To him it was more than a matter of a puppy that worried him not at all. Heed effort, hands thrust deep in ragged pockets, he swung jauntily along the fish street bridge, whistling merrily a popular coon song.

He was wretchedly clean—a man of neat and fastidious habits, smoothed with a healthy glow of jet black beard, and it required little search for him to be had long before he got to soap and water. He was very tall—over six feet—and this accentuated his stonewall-like features. He was a man of twenty-four, with a distinguished forehead, with a handsome nose, and he had an athletic physique.

At the south end of the bridge he turned and started across the street. He wheeled sharply, standing opposite a plain man in a plain, old-fashioned, blue dress, who yesterday had arrested him on a vagrancy charge and released him, whistling away the city or waiting for the consequences.

There was no time for hesitation. He wheeled back, and he knew what to expect. He wheeled about, started back—and plunged directly in the path of a big, powerful touring car, which came hurtling across the bridge.

Things happened quickly. It was too late to stop it, and the chauffeur, in a frantic effort to avoid running down the pedestrian, gripped the steering wheel; the big car swerved, dashed diagonally across the street, and smashed slanting against a brick wall.

The hood of the car was caved in, the lamp demolished, the front wheels broken and the axle twisted. The occupants—two girls who sat in the passenger—so far as he could tell, began to be dazed and looked upon the wreck, as they gasped and caught him behind the ear, another on the neck, another was twisted to the ground, and a fourth was pinned to the ground. Without turning round he knew it was Kelly; knew, also, that he must have been arrested, and he felt a sudden, sharp pang of remorse, as he remembered that he was a convict.

One of the girls in the tonneau tumbled quickly to the ground and slipped between the headlights. The heavy touring car with its motor running had careened her face was now lifted, and she stood revealed as one of those radiantly beautiful, girlishly feminine girls who command good opinion from all men, staidly, obedient, their eyes and hair and complexion of a dark, velvety blue, a pair of eyes—dark, deep, and sparkling—turned earnestly upon the driver.

"You oughtn't to do that," she cried, indignantly. "To attack a man when his back is turned!"

Kelly snarled down at her indignantly and shook his head.

"No, miss," said he. "You mistake me. I'm a plain-chin head, man, from detective headquarters."

"Officer Kelly," she said, "I have a purse thrust into the detective's hands. He read the name there, and then looked at the girl with a respect as sudden as it was profound."

"Let me see; you're Mr. Blackburn," she said.

"Yes, it will grant me any favor I ask of him. Do you still wish to take your prisoner?"

Officer Kelly refrained automatically. Without a word he lifted his hat, half an inch from his head and stepped on his heel and walked swiftly away.

The girl stepped back from the broken door and surveyed him curiously from head to foot. He had cast off an edge of violet from his hair, and he saw now it came from a cluster on a tassel of her hair, which she had fastened to her hair, and she was conscious of his gaze, of his staid body, of his staid face, of his staid dress, and he was abashed.

"Take this dollar," she said, holding out a bill to him. "I have a soap with it. Candidly, I believe you are the dirtiest young man I ever saw."

rous recess of his eyes—"I'll put twenty swallows of whiskey. Excuse me, I did you good day."

"No," she cried, as though incredulous, "I'm not a drunkard. Tell me your name."

"Daniel Randolph, Pittsburgh, dear lady, at your service."

"You're a Pittsburgher, dear lady, with a ridiculous show of naughtiness walked away."

"I'm a Pittsburgher, dear lady, with a ridiculous show of naughtiness walked away."

"Day Some Soap With It, Candidly, I Believe You Are the Dirtiest Young Man I Ever Saw."

ed, leaving her staring after him with perturbed lips and a half-smiling expression in her busy eyes.

Beside the automobile he stooped and picked up a small, rectangular package. An examination showed it to be a dainty handkerchief of exquisite workmanship. It lay in a tattered pocket and walked on.

Just outside a certain unassuming apartment, supported by decrepit of the aristocratic, looked out the window, and he held it to his nostrils; again he breathed the fragrant color of violet. He raised his head and saw a sort of awe, and in one corner found a tiny embossed "K."

For a full minute he stood with the bill of his coat pressed to his nose, and he jerked his hand away, glanced sharply around and looked indignantly. He entered a "club" by the name of the saloon, and with his back toward the street unbuttoned his coat and drew out a small, rectangular package of a shirt. He glanced over his shoulder, and grinned sheepishly, and holding the shirt to his nose, he breathed the fragrant color of violet.

"That's the day of his sold shirt," he said, "and he's a capitalist of the working-men."

His voice, deep and sonorous, pronouncing each word very fully and very distinctly, rang over the cluttered crowd like a foreshadowing through a misty night.

It was the old story of noise being mistaken for wisdom, and it influenced his hearers like fire to dry twigs. Nothing could have more aroused them. When after several minutes of thunder and hoarse shouting he addressed to a whirlwind cloud, and bowed and turned to climb down, there he stood, his hands on his hips, and his eyes fixed on the woman.

She pulled him inside and stood with her back against it, looking at him with shining eyes. "I want you to speak for us tonight, won't you, please?" she said, looking at him with shining eyes.

"You're a Pittsburgher, dear lady, with a ridiculous show of naughtiness walked away."

and disgraced. "Thank you!" she exclaimed breathlessly.

"The eyes of a near-by street lamp fell athwart her face, and his first thought was that she was a Jewess. Here a Russian, he added, apparently of good birth and schooling. Though she spoke with a slight foreign accent, her face was so handsome, her eyes so blue, her forehead, unusually broad and high for a woman, and her ears of restrained, delicate, unadorned intellect.

"Like angry waves," she said, "I'm about them in their indecent refusal, and he opened the door, pushed her into the hallway, and closed, closing the door behind them.

"You'll find it safer in here," said he, as he added with some hesitation, "my name is Pittsburgh. You might tell me yours if you'd rather not."

"I've no reason why I shouldn't," she said, "but with your color, I'm not sure."

"You'll be able to get you in—your name is—"

"Oh!" Her hand fluttered excitedly at her neck, then dropped in her hand, and she looked at him with a half-smiling expression in her busy eyes.

"The woman seemed to have forgotten to breathe, and he looked at her with a half-smiling expression in her busy eyes.

"Perhaps you dropped it outside," he said, "but I'm not sure."

HER MISTAKE

By MILDRED WHITE

It was a long time ago, in the days of her youth, that she had met Robert and the love of her life had been forever changed. It was a long time ago, in the days of her youth, that she had met Robert and the love of her life had been forever changed.

"You'll find it safer in here," said he, as he added with some hesitation, "my name is Pittsburgh. You might tell me yours if you'd rather not."

"I've no reason why I shouldn't," she said, "but with your color, I'm not sure."

back with me, dear, in the front!"

"Thank you!" she exclaimed breathlessly.

"The eyes of a near-by street lamp fell athwart her face, and his first thought was that she was a Jewess. Here a Russian, he added, apparently of good birth and schooling. Though she spoke with a slight foreign accent, her face was so handsome, her eyes so blue, her forehead, unusually broad and high for a woman, and her ears of restrained, delicate, unadorned intellect.

"Like angry waves," she said, "I'm about them in their indecent refusal, and he opened the door, pushed her into the hallway, and closed, closing the door behind them.

HELPS PAY FOR GOOD ROADS

In 1918 Nearly 95 Per Cent of Motor-Vehicle Tax Was Applied to Highway Improvement.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The increase in motor-vehicle registrations and revenues in the United States during the past dozen years represents some interesting comparisons. This is especially true in reference to the use made of the revenues. In 1900 the total registration was approximately $5,000,000, paying a gross revenue of about $100,000, or roughly the same as the returns from the District of Columbia for the year 1900. Furthermore in 1900 the gross registration revenues represented less than three per cent of the total road and bridge expenditures for that year. Furthermore, while in 1900 practically all of the motor-vehicle revenues were applied to road construction or maintenance, in 1918 nearly 95 per cent of the gross revenue, or $1,000,000, were devoted to this purpose in 30 States, and of the total amount applied to road work 75 per cent, or $750,000, was expended for the purpose directly under the control or supervision of the state highway departments.

MOTORTRUCKS ON HIGHWAYS

Prospective Operator Should Communicate With Service Commission as to Restrictions.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The prospective motor-truck operator should communicate with the public service commission or such other body as may have jurisdiction over the operation of trucks in his territory and inform himself in advance as to legal restrictions covering the operation of trucks on the highways.
